As Reported by The Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Delicate Compliment Paid by German Emperor to United States.

Our Washington correspondent furnishes two interesting items in the following extracts from reports of the interstate commerce commission, and in reference to the pleasant relations existing between this countrf and the German empire:

The preliminary statistical report of the interstate commerce commission for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1901, has just been made public and shows the general prosperity of the railroads of the country during the period covered by the figures. The returns cover This office is in receipt of a letter the operations of about 192,000 miles two years ago, now in Uncle Sam's question amounting to $1,578,164,205 service, dated at Villefranche, France, as compared with $1,487,044,814 in the where the U.S. cruiser Albany, which preceding year. There is no doubt but that the railvastly increased if the element of watered stock were eliminated and the profits computed on the actual cost of construction and operation. They would then be able not only to declare handsome dividends, but to give the public better and cheaper service, though perhaps some railway magnates would not be able to live in as magnificent palaces as now or buy as many famous pictures abroad.

That is a delicate compliment which the German emperor pays to the Unitfoolish and harmful talk is being indulged in, both here and in Germany, about friction and the possibility of Sine, White and Hotchkiss of Chicago. hostile relations between the two nations. There is no warrant, in fact, for the assumption advanced in certain quarters that this government is looking for or expecting trouble with the Germans or that the German government wants or expects other than the most amicable relations with us.

The source of much unfounded and the German empire has been its procedure in preparations to compel Venezuela to pay what is apparently a just debt, and the bugaboo of contemplated violation of the Monroe doctrine has been raised when as a mat ter of fact Germany has proceeded with the utmost discretion and courtesy, shaping its course so as to give this country no offense. Only a few. weeks ago President Roosevelt reaffirmed the Monroe doctrine more vigorously than it had been set forth in more than half a century, and Germany, through its embassador, promptly and explicitly declared its acceptance thereof as an international principle, and our government has been fully acquainted with every step taken or proposed by Germany in this Venezuelan dispute and has sanctioned it.

"Ye call me the village prophet, and well you may attach to me that title, as up to date I have never yet had to go 'way back and sit down. I was born among the granite hill of New England and my sires came from old Plymouth Rock. I was not always thus—the chief narrator of a band of well-fed remnants of the early settlers of this section, but one of the most unostentatious residents of this community. Associations have made me what I am-a walking compendium of what happened around about here in the days of long ago. Yes, this weather reminds me of the early springs we used to have when we seeded our land in early February, and when we raised crops that were crops, and the chances for making a living were a blamed sight better than now, The soil was rich those days. You could raise anything. One spring in particular several about here decided to plant beans and corner the market. Beans were beans those days when the fightin' was goin' on. We planted the beans in early February and inside of two weeks they were powerfully well advanced, the soil bein' just right for bean raisin'.

"It was along in the first part of May that a neighbor from the town of Ela came over and said his beans were all ripened and goin' to seed. Lord! we hadn't expected anything like that though we knew the soil was rich. We went looking around and found 'twas true-they were dryin' on the vines. We harvested what we could but hadn't much time as the hay crop was boomin'-finest crop you ever sawwalked right along, 3 to 5 inches in 24 hours. We cut off one meadow and left the piles lay for a couple of days while we looked after the corn which was a growin' right smart owin' to the richness of the soil. Couple of days later we went over to take a look at the beans and found that they had about all gone to seed and a new crop was sprouting. Going down to the meadow we found the cocks of hay all turned upside down by the new growth under 'em.

"It was a wonderfully early season, and the soil would raise anything and

For a moment silence reigned and the story was considered pretty near as big a one as Thomas Creet's revised version of "Hard Luck in Kansas."

Soon another pioneer arose, picked a handful of raisins from a box nearby, and said.

"I guess that was the same season that fishing opened so early on Fox river. I was about 15 then and I remember of father going on a fishing excursion one Saturday afternoon way up the river. The fishing was good 2 and the party went up as far as Mc-Henry, drank up all the lemonade they had in bottles, and didn't get back until Sunday night. Mother was about as mad a woman as you ever saw. A few warm words were passed and mother grabbed father by the hair and gave a good hard pull, she was so darn angry, but the blasted hair was so tough it wouldn't come out and instead of the hair she got a great big portion of the scalp.

"We were all pretty badly scared, but finally mother sent brother Hank out and got a pan of earth off that east 40 and made a plaster for father's head. Next day a new scalp had grown on and the new hair started soon after. "Yes, sir, it was rich soil we had

New York dispatch: Marconi, the inventor of wireless telegraphy, was the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in the Astor gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria Monday. The only formal addresses were those by President Charles Proteus Steinmetz, field. Signor Marconi, Professor Elihu Thomson and Dr. Michael I. Puhin. Thomas A. Edison wrote that he would like to meet the young man who had the monumental audacity to attempt and succeed in jumping an electrical wave clear across the Atlantic Ocean, but was unable to accept the invitation. After thanking the institute for his reception, Signor Marconi said: "I think it is well known all over the world that Americans, in applied electrical engineering, stand first. JANUARY 29 M'KINLEY

Ready and Generous Response Is Made to Gov. Nash's Request.

There has been a ready response by the governors of states and territories of the United States to Gov. George K. Nash's request that Jan. 29 be set apart as McKinley Day by official recognition. Had he lived, William Mc-Kinley would have been fifty-nine years of age on Jan. 29. Governor Nash of Ohio took the initiative step in requesting the governors of the country to issue a proclamation suggesting that memorial services be held in all the churches on Sunday, Jan. 26, preceding McKinley Day. On Wednesday, the 29th, a special effort in every section will be made to complete the contributions to the McKinley National Memorial Tomb to be erected over the grave of the late President at Canton.

The McKinley National Memorial Association represents the only national movement seeking to erect a memorial tomb to William McKinley by popular offerings. The Washington Arch Association has left the popular Fire Loss Is $10,000,000.

Lebanon, Ill., dispatch: Prof. B. F. Staymates, statistician of the Illinois Fireman's association, has completed statistics for the past year, showing the total fire loss in Illinois to have been in excess of $10,000,000. The national loss was $103,500,000. Twenty per cent of fires are reported due to defective flues. Although gasoline is generally supposed to cause a large percentage of fires, the report states that during the last year only 10 per cent of the fires were caused by the explosion of gasoline stoves.

The men who personally knew Abraham Lincoln become fewer each year, but there is none who during the time in which the martyred president rose to prominence saw more of him than J. G. Stewart, a veteran photographer of Bloomington, Ill. In 1857 Mr. Stewart was in business in Springfield. He recalls many interesting events in the career of Lincoln and says when he first knew the "railsplitter" that Mr. Lincoln exhibited negligence as to dress. The future president usually went about with one trousers leg caught on the top of one of his high boots. Mr. Stewart belonged to the Fremont party and following its defeat signed a call to organize the Republican party in Springfield. Among the names signed were those of A. Lincoln and Shelby M. Cullom. The first meeting was held in Mr. Stewart's gallery. The organization was called the Lincoln club. During the presidential campaign in which Lincoln was the nominee for president Mr. Stewart made over 450,000 pictures of Lincoln.

Odd Use of Mirrors.

In a village in the Cotswolds England, it is the custom to place a small mirror on the front door under the knocker, in which the visitor may examine his appearance before entering.

The Woodbridge (Suffolk) Urban District Council of England has resorted to novel means of preventing accidents at dangerous street corners. Three roads in the authority's district meet at awkward angles, and collisions between vehicles have been rather common. Widening by demolition of house property being impossible, the surveyor recommended the erection of mirrors. By this means drivers can see through brick walls, so to speak, and the experiment has proved successful.

Profit in Hogs. Mr. John Cowie of Des Moines, lowa, in a paper read before the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, gave the results of forty years' experience as a hog-raiser. It contained much valuable instruction, from which we glean the following:

"I have been in the hog industry for the average human life time. I went into the pusiness to make money, and I have made it, and out of the hog. I have stayed in the hog business because there was money in it. I started with a pair at $1.25 apiece. I afterward sold hogs dressed at $1.75 per hundred pounds. But I got away power from the Jackson street plant. from that style of hog.

"Years after that first experience, I stood in the Chicago market and had the proud satisfaction of selling four carloads of hogs of my own raising, every one of them, and received for them $5,375. When that check was cashed there was not a mortgage left on the home, and there has not been one on it since. You see I owe to the hog the greater part of my worldly possessions. For twenty years my annual sales averaged over $3,000. When the children grew up and had to be sent away to school, and when the wheat crop failed, as it does sometimes with us in Iowa, my main reliance to foot the bills was the hog, and he never yet failed me.

"I wish to speak to you plainly in regard to breeding and feeding hogs profitable to me. What I say in regard to this animal is not theory, but is personal experience, at close range.

"The first requirement in the hog industry is a good hog house. There is too much risk from loss unless you have proper shelter for both brood sows and young hogs.

"Another important thing is the pas-

"I have my pigs come along in May, after we are sure of good weather.

Then I let them run in the pasture the whole summer, and they grow to pe long, lank, big-boned and big-muscled fellows. No fat on them yet. The following September we commence fattening them. In February they weigh 400 lbs.

animal we have, if properly cared for. of late years.

"After I have my hogs fattened, I would not drive them to market, but haul them. Then I would have my cars well bedded; ride with them myself; go with them to Chicago; stay with them in the yards, water, feed and stay by them until they cross the scales. Stay right with them.

"There is money in the hog business if it is properly conducted. There is no money in it if it is ot properly conducted. There is no reason why science cannot be employed in feeding hogs any more than in the construction of a railway bridge. You have to think. You have to experi ment. Every man is the architect of his own fortune. Let him get up and hustle, and do some thinking, get action on himself, and luck will follow

"I have made a success in swine raising. True, too, I have fed cattle all my life, and raised horses all my life. We used to raise a great deal of wheat. I lost money raising wheat, but I never lost money raising hogsnever did. The hog has always been the one I could fall back on."

A fee of $17,816 was paid Friday to Secretary of State James A. Rose by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway company to do business in Illinois. Last October, when the company was organized, it complied with the foreign corporation law by paying the minimum fee of $30 in Illinois. It was then licensed to transact business in the state until the proportion of the capital stock and mileage in Illinois could be determined. The company when they attempted to open the safe. Chicago alumni and friends of Wooster University will join in the effort to raise the $140,000 necessary to secure the provisional gift of $100,000 to the Ohio institution. The donor of this sum is a wealthy New Yorker, and not Dr. D. K. Pearsons of Chicago, as reported in the dispatches from Ohio. Since the burning of the main college building a month ago the trustees have received $60,000 insurance, and this, with the expected contributions, will make a fund of $300,000.

David M. Cline choked to death at Bloomington while eating pork in a saloon where he had been engaged as porter. His family and relatives are all prominent in social circles and were not aware of his Bohemian habits. At one time he had a lucrative practice asa physician, having received a fine education at a Louisville college. He was regarded as one of the most prosperous doctors of central Illinois several decades ago, but the habitual use of intoxicants drove him downward until of late he has lived a lonely life. One brother was mayor of Leroy for several terms.

The fast west-bound express of the Big Four, with eight coaches filled with sleeping passengers, had a miraculous escape from being wrecked two miles west of Mattoon. The axle on the engine broke and the drive-wheel was hurled into the ditch, while the train was going fifty miles an hour. The engineer by quick work succeeded in mained on the track. Railroad men say the avoidance of a wreck under such circumstances is unheard of.

A brilliant Masonic ceremonial, known as the super-excellent, was celebrated in Bloomington. The grand lodge of Illinois was in attendance and delegates from the lodges of Champaign, Urbana, Lincoln, Clinton, Decatur, Peoria, El Paso, Joliet, Danville, Streator, Monticello, Pulaski, Springfield, Canton, Chenoa, Washington and Yates City were present. A banquet concluded the secret work.

The First Cuban Election.

The Cubans have held their first general election since the compulsory withdrawal of Spanish sovereignty. The returns show a light vote and an absence of excitement which must be regarded as remarkable in view of the years of struggle and the expenditure of life and treasure that have culminated in this forward step in the process of organizing an independent government under the Cuban constitution.

The light vote is explained in part by the withdrawal of Bartolome Maso as a candidate for the presidency, thus leaving Tomas Estrada Palma practically alone in the field for that office. While a small percentage of the voters persisted in casting ballots for Maso, it is apparent that many of his supporters were content to express their opposition to Palma by absenting themselves from the polls. It is not yet quite clear what was the purpose of the Maso adherents. Apparently the election was carried out in accordance with the law framed by the constitutional convention, and there seems to be no cloud upon the title of Senor Palma to the presidency of the new republic. He has evidently a very large majority of the electors, which form an electoral college similar to our own.

The next step will be the balloting for president and vice president by the electors of the six provinces on Feb. 24. These equal the number of senators and representatives in congress to which each province is entitled. The returns are made to a central board of scrutiny, which transmits the result to will thereupon fix the date for the assembling of congress, for the proclamatransfer of authority to the newly organized republic.

Ireland and the St. Louis Fair.

The cigar makers are played in building up the fabric of their disputes with their employers to American civilization. In addition to it. If they prefer fight to arbitration, an exhibit of what Irishmen have that is their affair, though it puts them wrought under the benign influence of quite out of harmony with the trend our free institutions, the Irish national of sentiment indorsed by men of great museum will also contain Irish antiqui- power and influence on both sides in ties in literature and art showing the favor of settling such disputes by reainfluence which the Emerald fisle has exercised upon the world's civilization, and in this respect it will prove specially worthy of consideration,

He has at different times been put on trial for arson, embezzlement and murder. He was one of the famous triangle of the Clanna-Gael and was mixed up in the famous Cronin tragedy. His conviction in the present case involves a fine of $2,000, but it also means his disbarment and the end of his career as an | the treasury, has six toes on each foot, attorney in Illinois. The punishment is none too severe. There is altogether that the distinguished Iowan has any too much "jury fixing" in various parts less brains by reason of the superfluiof the country, and a few examples like this may have a wholesome effect.

A new phase of the "American peril" seems to have made its appearance in the old world. Great Britain now in commission by 1907, indicates the fears that the influence of American rapid development of Pacific comprogress may lead to a desire on the part of Canada and Australia to follow our example and break away from the apron strings of the mother country. Undoubtedly these colonies possess more of the American spirit than of British conservatism and would get along well if they set up for themselves.

The Kokomo (Ind.) person who was voted the ugliest man in a party threw the prize, a silver cup, in the face of the man who was making the presentation speech. In the fight that followed several girls fainted and the party broke up in confusion. Apparently the prize winner was ugly in more ways than one.

The Cabinet and the West.

"The Winning of the West," he perhaps had no idea that he would some time be president of the United States, though as president he still appears to have a generous feeling for the west. This is shown in the makeup of his cabinet, all of the members of which except two, Long and Root, may properly be classed as westerners when the latest selections are seated. Secretary Hay was a native of Illinois, and his early life was spent in the Mississippi valley. Attorney General Knox comes from Pennsylvania, though west of the Alleghanies. Wilson is from Iowa and Hitchcock from Missouri, while the new members, Shaw and Payne, come respectively from Iowa and Wisconsin. The only representatives of the Atlantic seaboard in the cabinet are Secretary Root of New York and Secretary Long of Massachusetts.

of agriculture seems to have been more than necessarily considerate of popular precedent regarding the appointing of two cabinet members from one state when he presented his resignation to the president because the latter had offered a cabinet portfolio to another Iowan. The action was no doubt dictated by a delicate recogniion of what he regarded as political propriety. While it has been the usual custom to have but one cabinet officer from the same state, it has by no means been an invariable rule. Since that aroused them and made things the appointment of Attorney General fly in general A dog, who had viewed Knox the state of Pennsylvania has had two members of the cabinet, Postmaster General Smith also hailing from the Keystone State. The selection of cabinet members cannot always be controlled or dictated by geographical divisions. When Mr. Wilson offered to step down and out, he was informed, it is said, by the president that it would be almost impossible to the military governor. That official find an equally good man to fill his place and that his resignation would not be accepted if any persuasion could tion of the election of president and induce him to remain. If the president vice president and for the formal is satisfied to have one Iowan in the treasury and another at the head of the department of agriculture, there is no reason why Secretary Wilson should not continue to fill his office to the satisfaction of the American farmer.

It was hardly to be expected that the proposed plan for the settlement of the disputes between capital and labor sphere. For the purpose of putting his | conference in New York would wholly escape criticism. A rather curious commentary on the proposition was made at a late meeting of the New York Cigar Makers' union, which was to the effect that the proposed arbitrators could have no control over any labor bodies, and therefore no attention should be paid to the proposal for companied by some aspersions upon no control over any one was so obvious that its announcement included the statement that it would not undertake with the part which the Irish race has plainly under no obligation to submit son instead of by force.

Just what effect the number of toes has on the brain is not wholly clear, though the inference is that the more toes one has the less brains. In this connection is noted a Washington dispatch which conveys the information that Governor Shaw of Iowa, lately appointed secretary of and no one, we imagine, will claim ty of toes.

A Little Boy's Life Sayed. I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine my boy would not be on earth today.-Joel DEMONT, Inwood, Iowa. For sale by all druggists.

The Diamond Bracelet

By MRS. HENRY WOOD. Author of East Lynne, Etc.

CHAPTER IX-(Continued.) "The bracelet could not have gone without hands to take it, Gerard," replied Lady Sarah. "How else do you account for its disappearance?"

"I-I believe there must be some at the door saved me." misapprehension, some great mistake in the affair altogether, Lady Sarah, It will be unraveled."

"Ay, and in double-quick time," wrathfully exclaimed the Colonel. "You must think you are talking to a pack of idiots, Master Garard. Here the bracelets was spread temptingly out on a table, you went into the room, being hard up for money, fingered it, wished for it, and both you and the bracelet disappeared. Sir"turning sharply to the officer-"did a clearer case ever go before a jury?"

Gerard Hope bit his lip. "Be more just, Colonel," said he. "Your own brother's son steal a bracelet!"

"And I am happy my brother is not alive to know it," rejoined the Colonel ces is staying at home with her." in an obstinate tone. "Take him in hand, Mr. Officer; we'll go to Marlborough street. I'll just change my safe." coat. and--'

"No, no, you will not!" cried Lady gown and the Colonel in it; "you shall not go nor Gerard either. Whether he is guilty or not, it must not be brought against him publicly. The Colonel was about to storm forth an answer, but her white face, dulge these spirits while things are so ner heaving throat, had some effect even on him.

"I do not believe he has anything to confess," she deliberately said; truly believe that he has not. He could not have taken it, unseen by me; and when we quitted the room, I feel sure the bracelet was left in it."

"It was left in it, so help me heaven!" uttered Gerard.

"And now I've got to speak," added Frances Chenevix, "Colonel, if you were to press the charge against Gerard, I would go before the magistrates and proclaim myself the thief. I vow and protest I would, just to save him, and you and Lady Sarah could not prosecute me, you know."

"You do well to stand up for him!" retorted the Colonel. "You would not be quite so ready to do it, though, my Lady Fanny, if you knew something I could tell you."

"Oh, yes, I should," returned the young lady with a vivid blush

The Colonel, beset on all sides, had no choice but to submit; but he did so with an ill grace, and dashed out of the room with the officer, as fiercely as if he had been charging an enemy at full tilt.

"The sentimental apes these women make of themselves!" cried he in his polite way, when he had got him in private. "Is it not a clear case of

"In my private opinion, it certainly is," was the reply; "though he carries it off with a high hand. I suppose, Colonel, you still wish the bracelet to be searched for?"

"Search in and out and high and low; search everywhere. The rascal! to dare even to enter my house in

"May I inquire if the previous breach with your nephew had to do with money affairs?"

"No," said the Colonel, turning more crusty at the thoughts called up. "I fixed up a wife for him and he wouldn't have her; so I turned him out of doors and stopped his allowance."

"Oh," was the only comment of the police officer.

CHAPTER X.

It was in the following week, and Saturday night. Thomas, without his hat, was standing at Colonel Hope's door, chatting to an acquaintance Alice. "You must live there as well when he perceived Gerard come tearing up the street. Thomas' friend backed against the rails and the spikes, and Thomas himself stood with the door in his hand, ready to Don't you envy me my prospects?" touch his hair to Mr. Gerard as he passed. "What's the man's head running on now?" returned Gerard. "There are no detectives after me; it was only a seedy sheriff's officer. Pshaw. Thomas! there's no worse crime attached to me than a slight suspicion of debt." "I'm sure I trust not, sir; only master will have his own way."

"Is he at home?" "He's gone to the opera with my lady. The young ladies are upstairs alone. Miss Seaton has been ill, sir, ever since the bother, and Lady Fran-up, do you think?" the man ventured Sarah, laying hold of the dressing to remark. "If the Colonel should come to hear of it--'

"How can he? You are not going to tell him, and I am sure they will not. Besides, there's no help for it; I can't go out again for hours. And, Thomas, if any demon should knock and ask for me, I am gone to-to an evening party up at Putney; went out you know by the side door."

Thomas watched him run up the stairs, and shook his head. "One can't help liking him, with it all; though where could the bracelet have gone to if he did not take it?"

The drawing rooms were empty, and Gerard made his way to a small room that Lady Sarah called her "boudoir." There they were-Alice buried in the pillows of an invalid's chair, and Lady Frances careening about the room, apparently practicing some new dancing step. She did not see him; Gerard danced up to her, and took her hand, and joined in it.

"When the cat's away the mice can play," cried Gerard, treating them to a

"Mr. Hope," remonstrated Alice, lifting her feeble voice, "how can you inmiserable?"

"Sighing and groaning won't make them light," he answered, sitting down on a sofa near to Alice. "Here's a seat for you, Fanny, come along," he added, pulling Frances to his side. "First and foremost, has anything come to light about that mysterious bracelet? "Not yet." sighed Alice. "But have no rest; I am in hourly fear of "Fear!" uttered Gerard in astonishment. Alice winced and leaned her head upon her hand; she spoke in a low tone.

"You must understand what I mean. Mr. Hope. The affair has been productive of so much pain and annoyance to me, that I wish it could be ignored forever."

"Though it left me under a cloud," said Gerard. "You must pardon me if I cannot agree with you. My constant hope is that it may all come to daylight; I assure you I have specially mentioned it in my prayers."

"Pray don't, Mr. Hope," reproved "I'm sure I have cause to mention it, for it is sending me into exile; that and other things." "It is guilty only who flee, not the innocent," said Frances, "You don't mean what you say, Gerard." "Don't I! There's a certain boat advertised to steam from London bridge wharf tomorrow, wind and weather permitting, and it steams me with it.

I am compelled to fly my country." "Be serious and say what you

I had a few liabilities, and they have all come down upon me. But for ner. She's a bright girl, and I got this confounded bracelet affair, there's no doubt the Colonel would have settled them; rather than let the name of Hope be dubiously bandied by the public: he would have expended his ire in growls and have gone and done it. "If the bashaw comes home before 12 Thomas must dispose of me somewhere in the lower regions; Sunday is free for us, thank goodness. So please make the most of me, both of you, for it is the last time you will have the privilege. By the way, Fanny, will you do me a favor? There used to be a little book of mine in the glass bookcase in the library; my name in it and a mottled cover; I wish you would go and find it for me."

over Alice, and his tone changed. "I have sent her away on purpose. She'll be half an hour rummaging, for I have not seen the book there for ages. Alice, one word before we part. You must know that it was for your sake I refused the marriage proposed to me by my uncle; you will not let me go into banishment without a word of hope, a promise of your love to lighten it."

"Oh, Gerard," she eagerly said, "I am so glad you have spoken; I almost think I should have spoken myself, if you had not. Just look at me.'

"I am looking at you," he fondly answered.

"Then look at my hectic face, my constantly tired limbs, my sickly hands; do they not plainly tell you that the topics you would speak of must be barred topics to me?"

"Why should they be? You will get stronger." "Never. There is no hope of it.

Many years ago, when the illness first came on me, the doctors said I might get better with time; but the time has come, and come, and come, and-gone, and only left me a more confirmed invalid. To an old age I cannot live; most probably but a few years; ask yourself, Gerard, if I am one who ought to marry and leave behind a husband to regret me; perhaps children. No, no."

"The cruelty would be, if I selfishly allowed you to talk of love to me; or, still more selfish to let you cherish hopes that I would marry. When you hinted at this the other evening when than wretched bracelet was lost, I reproached myself with cowardice in not answering more plainly than you had spoken. I should have told you, Gerard, as I tell you now, that nothing, no persuasion from the dearest person on earth shall ever induce me to

"You dislike me, I see that." "I did not say so," answered Alice, with a glowing cheek. "I think it very possible that-if I could ever allow myself to dwell on such things-I should like you very much, perhaps better than I could like any one." "And why will you not?" her persuasively uttered. "Gerard, I have told you. I am too weak and sickly to be other than I am. It would only be deceiving myself and you. No, Gerard, my love and hopes must lie elsewhere." "Where " he eagerly asked.

Alice pointed upwards. "I am learning to look upon it as my home," she whispered, "and I must not suffer hindrances to obscure the way It will be a better home than even your love, Gerard."

GIRL WHO GOT PRETTIER.

Embarrassing Misunderstanding Caused by a Vocal Cockneyism. Mr. Charles Whymper, the wellknown engraver and animal painter told the following anecdote a few years ago: "I dined at Mr. So-and-So's at Highgate last night, and as a assigned to me to take down to dinalong very nicely with her and Lady Bletherington on the other side, until the ladies were on the eve of retiring to the drawing room. I was talking about the beautiful scenery near the house, the views from the windows, suddenly did not dare to answer her, so I said: every day.' There was no mistaking her words, so I answered: 'Yes, indeed, you get prettier; and no wonder, in such fresh air, and-' Just then she caught her mother's eye, and with the other ladies she left the room. As she went out she looked over her shoulder with such a withering scorn in her eyes that I knew I had put my foot in it some how. Then it flashed upon me that I had misunderstood her; she had dropped an 'h.' What she had said was not a silly compliment to "When do you suppose you may re- herself; the sentence really was: 'I think Highgate prettier every day."

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRI-CULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof-Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Shrinkage of Corn. The value of any variety of corn must be determined by a number of 163,000,000 pounds, and that same year things other than the yield per acre. It has generally been supposed that the relative value of two kinds of corn could be determined at harvest time. Thus, if one variety gave 80 bushels matic conditions and not to any deper acre and another 85 bushels it crease of interest in the industry. Proseemed an easy arithmetical problem duction, however, has been almost to determine which corn was the best. Old corn raisers, however, know that this does not prove the case unless the corn is to be sold immediately after harvest. The fall weighings of corn and the spring weighings differ enor- quantities to all parts of the world. mously. The difference runs from 6 to 25 per cent of the whole weight of corn harvested. Even greater differences have been noted, especially in prize crops to be harvested at a certain time. In such a case it was only natural that the grower should plant his corn as late as possible and have it get sufficiently ripe to harvest at the appointed time. In such a case the corn is certain to contain an unusual amount of water and to weigh the maximum. If that same corn could be seen about the end of the following March, every kernel on the cobs would be seen standing by itself. The shrinkage would then be well up to 35 per

In relation to the shrinkage we must consider the size of the cob. The cob in one variety of corn may be 13 per cent of the whole and of another variety 20 per cent. Yet the corn on the larger cob may shrink so little in comparison with the corn on the smaller cob that the large-cobbed corn may be the most economical to raise. Especially may this be so if the corn is to be held over six months or a year. We do not assert that this is true as a rule, but it has been found to be so in some cases. What all are aiming to do is to secure or develop a variety of corn that will have a small cob and that will shrink little in thoroughly dry-

It has seemed to the writer that prizes awarded for acre yields of corn should be for total weight of dry matter. The shrinkage of corn in drying and the variableness of such shrinking constitute a very large problem as to the real yields of corn grown nder stimulation of money-prize awards. It will also be understood that the farmer that has corn to sell in the fali can afford to let it go at several cents less per bushel than he can get for it six months after.

Orchard Planting. From the Farmers' Review: One of the questions often asked and as often answered is: When shall I plant my orchard and what varieties are most profitable? My method of planting trees is simple and has always proved to be good. My advice to the wouldbe orchardist is: don't plant your trees too early in the spring when the ground is wet and cold. Wait instead until corn planting time. The roots of your trees will need pruning with a sharp knife. All broken and split roots should be cut off, leaving them, however, as long as possible. Then cut back the top and limbs in proportion to the root pruning. When your tree is ready for setting put it into a grout hole (a hole filled with thin mud and water). Leave it in the grout hole for three to twelve hours, according to the dryness of the roots and weather. This well done is the life of the tree. The next step is to have your orchard well plowed and the distance between rows marked off. Then dig a hole for each tree large enough so that the roots will not be cramped; fill in fine dirt around the roots, tramp it down lightly, then add more and tramp again, and so on until the tree stands perfectly solid. I usually put the largest root to the southwest to hold the tree straight Apple trees should always be planted the same depth that they stood in the

Now we come to the sticking point, what to plant. If I were going to plant an orchard of one hundred trees would set 75 Ben Davis, 5 Stark, 5 Jonathan, 5 Newtown Peppin, 5 Grimes Golden, 1 Snow, 1 Dyer, 2 White Rambo, and 1 Early Harvest. This would give the earliest and best fall apples, the finest flavored early winter fruit and the ever-bearing moneymaker, the Ben Davis, It has more good qualities than any other apple in cultivation, and you cannot go wrong on it, though you may on some other varieties. I have two orchards and about thirty varieties and the Ben Davis yields more money than any other variety 2 to 1. I will not give any figures in this article, but if it is attacked by some one who "has it in" for the beautiful red-cheeked Ben Davis, with trunk like an oak and branches as tough as a hickory, its roots reaching in every direction, hunting for the moisture with which to feed its luscious fruit, that smiles on and gladdens the heart of the man who planted it near his cot, I will come again and show that the Ben Davis is king .- A. California's Raisin Industry.

The average annual consumption of raisins in the United States for the past five years has been about 80,000,-000 pounds, or not far from one pound per capita of population. Practically nual consumption is upwards of five ing themselves.

pounds per capita, and the total supply orted from southern Europe. As we had no native grapes suitable for the production of raisins, varieties of grapes had to be imported from n twenty-five years ago, but the ing stry did not reach commercial imance until 1885-86. Production the year amounted to 9,400,000 pounds askinst 3,500,000 pounds the previous , and imports declined about 13,-3,000 pounds. The industry increased rapidly until the high mark was reached in 1895 with a production of imports fell to 15,921,278 pounds. Since that time the production of raisins in California has declined, but this, it is claimed, has been due to adverse cliequal to the demand, and, although imports have not wholly ceased, they are practically offset by exports of California raisins, which are now sent in small and, it may be said, experimental Gigantic Ash Beetle. The beetle here shown is probably the largest beetle in this country, measuring two and a half inches in length in mature specimens. Some are even larger. It attacks ash trees, and can be checked by spraying with trees, causing the beetles to fall, ween they may be destroyed sing-The thorax and wing covers are ale olive-brown, spotted with of a black. The legs are shining black. These assects are quite easily kept in check rom the fact that they seldom appear in very large numbers. They give of a very offensive odor, which is very neciceable when there are a number of them in a locality.

The Clover Root Borer. One of the greatest obstacles to the growing of clover is the clover root berer an immigrant from Europe. Destructive as has been this pest in the United States, in Europe it is an insect of no consequence. Indeed the Europeans are not at all certain that it ever feeds on the roots of the clover plants. In this country it not only feeds extensively on the clover plant, but multiplies beyond anything ever known in its European history. It illustrates the same general law that seems to apply to both weeds and insects coming to this country from beyond either ocean, namely, an increase in prolificacy and a change in kind of food preferred. So destructive has this insect bestates some years half of the clover fields have been ruined. White clover seems to be free from the attacks of this insect, while Mammoth clover suffers most severely. Common Red clover is freely fed upon, while Alsike clover is attacked to some extent. The root borer prefers the large, succulent tap root, which may be why White clover escapes entirely and Alšike to some extent. Attempts have been made to kill the root borer by putting chemicals on the ground in the shape of fertilizers; but no favorable results have been obtained. Plowing under and reseeding have given little reason for trusting in that method. The only method that seems to promise anything is to abandon clover growing for two or three years on ground where the pest has established itself.

It is believed, however, that the berers will gradually lose their voraciousness and aggressiveness, and perhaps sink to a position in this country similar to that occupied by them in Exrope. The foundation of this hope lies in the reported fact that where the pest was most destructive a dozen years ago, clover is now grown without trouble.

Should Plums Be Thinned! pays to thin most fruits, but it is popen question if it pays to thin all fraits. Thinning affects different fruits dicerently. When peaches are thinned the remaining peaches make enough extra growth to about make up for the los of the ones that have been taken Moreover the ones that are left bring a higher price. This is true to a less degree with apples and pears. But when we get down to plums the same law does not seem to hold good. Professor Goff of Madison last year thinned his plums and made the following observations: Thinning to one inch apart decreased the yield 35 per cent and thinning to 2 inches apart decreased the yield 61 per cent. The professor says: "Where the market does not discriminate in price between medium-sized and large plums thinning will not pay unless the trees decidedly overbear." In thinning, all plums stung by the curculio should be removed Early thinning is desirable. but late thinning is better than none. The plums should be left not nearer than 1½ or 2 inches apart. Plums on the total supply was produced in this most of the Americana trees should be country. In England the average anthinned to prevent the trees exhaust-

ANOTHER REMARKABLE CASE

Which the Doctors Failed to Cure of Understand.

A Medical man as a rule dislikes to acknowledge the value of a proprietary medicine in fact, professional etiquette debars him from doing so. Yet there are many eminent, physicians, those most advanced in their professions, who give full credit to the great curative properties of Vogeler's Curative Compound, from the fact that it is manufactured by an old and reliable company, proprietors of St. Jacob's Oil, from the formula of a brother physician, who to-day stands in the front ranks of the most eminent medical men in London, and on account of its intrinsic merit, it is largely prescribed by the medical profession; but, in the case which we are about to relate, the attending physician called it "rubbish," but, as it turned out, Mrs. Nettleton tells the doctor that "rubbish or not, it saved her life."

Mrs. Nettleton graphically relates the particulars of her own case, which will doubtless be of interest to many of our lady readers:

"I had been an intense sufferer for many years from dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, when a little pamphlet was placed in my hands, and, although at that time I had been bedridden for more than six months. I determined, after reading some of the wonderful testimonials therein of cases similar to mine, which had been completely cured by the timely use of Vogeler's Curative Compound, to try some; especially as my doctors failed to even benefit me, and I had almost given up all hope of ever being well again. It is most interesting, and, in fact, marvelous to relate, that the very first dose of fifteen drops relieved me. It was not long before I was able to get up and about; three months from taking the first dose I was enjoying better health than I had been for fourteen years. I continued well until a few months back, when I was taken ill again, my troubles being dyspepsia and constipation. I had a doctor attending me for a month, but continued to grow worse, until I again found myself bedridden, when I bethought myself of my old medicine, Vogeler's Curative Compound, which I immediately sent for and took in place of the doctor's medicine; at that time I had not had a movement of the bowels for five days, but Vogeler's Curative Compound soon put me on my feet again-in fact, completely cured me a second time, but, of course, this attack was not as bad as the first, yet I fully believe I should not have been alive today had it not been for Vogeler's Curative Compound. If I had only thought to have taken it when my last illness took place, I should not only have been saved much suffering, but a $75 doctor's bill."

Mrs. Nettleton said: "I have recommended Vogeler's Curative Compound for indigestion and eczema, and in every case it has proved a cure beyond a doubt. Mr. Swinbank, our chemist, has sent me the names of no end of people who have been cured by Vogeler's Curative Compound. By the way. the proprietors have so much confidence in this great London physician's discovery, that they will send a sample free to any person sending name and address and naming this paper." St. Jacob's Oil Co. 205 Clay Street, Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. Nettleton is a confectioner, in the Brighton Road, where she has been established many years, and is honored and respected by all classes. Her statements as regards Vogeler's Curative Compound may, therefore, be regarded as reliable evidence of its great value. The public, however, may look upon this remarkable statement as one of the many which we are constantly receiving from grateful people all over the world, who have been cured of various maladies by the use of this wonderful remedy, which is the result of an eminent physician's life-long experience. These people are nearly always representative and well-known citizens.

BLEW UP MAINE

Spaniard Makes Confession Which May Clear Mystery of Battleship's Loss.

WAS DISMISSED BY WEYLER.

Plan Was to Provoke War Between Spain and the United States-The Self-Confessed Culprit Is Now Living Near Sloux City.

Sioux City, Ia., dispatch: A special to the Tribune from Chadron, Neb., says a Spaniard working for Bob Yago, a wealthy ranch owner of Sioux County, has signed a confession that he blew up the Maine in Havana harbor. The Spaniard has been working for Yago since shortly after the destruction of the Maine, and is a well-educated man. Yago has himself been in Cuba, and when he found the Spaniard had been also he questioned him. He learned facts that made him suspicious, and he found papers that indicated he had been an officer in the Spanish army. Yago knew the Spaniard's weakness, and, after furnishing him the beverage which caused him to talk, accused him of having been an officer in the Spaniard army. The Spaniard was taken by surprise, and, believing Yago knew his whole life, made a confession, now in the hands of Yago and Andrew McGinley. A committee, composed of Andrew McGinley, Ed. Satterlee, Hank Simmons and Tom Coffey, has taken up the matter and will consult County Attorney O'Connell of Sioux County as to an official investigation. Yago and McGinley refuse to give up the confession, but it was learned that the Spaniard's correct name is Manuel De Silvia Braga, and that he was a captain in the Spanish army in Cuba; that during Weyler's reign he became angered at the brutal treatment accorded Cuban prisoners and so expressed himself. He, with two sergeants, was arrested, courtmartialed and dismissed from the army. In revenge he sought to provoke a war between Spain and America. He was thoroughly familiar with the harbor of Havana and knew all about the marine explosives. He first thought he would destroy the Spanish ships, but feared this would not have the desired result. So he planned to blow up the Maine, intending to do so when the officers and men were ashore. He knew the batteries that controlled the mines were closely guarded, but dressed in an old uniform, that of a captain, with some old clothes in a grip, he had no trouble in passing the Spanish guards. In a short time thereafter he touched the button that sent the Maine to the bottom. Changing his clothes he escaped in the excitement and took a schooner to Matanzas, going from there to San Domingo and New Orleans. He was engaged by a Texas ranchman to drive cattle to Montana, where he was employed by the Lake Tomb and Lemmon Cattle Company to drive some cattle from Montana to their South Dakota ranch, where he went on Yago's ranch. He has since been known as Cyclone Pete. getting his name from a cyclone expe-

Serious Riot in Spain. The decision of the municipal authorities of San Sebastian, Spain, to suppress the annual popular holiday, consisting of tormenting bulls safely / fethered, occasioned serious rioting, during which many persons were injured and much property was sacrificed. A mob stoned the town hall, the residences of the municipal officers, and the barracks of the gendarmes, and swept through the streets, undaunted by the shots of the gendarmes. The latter were powerless until a force of troops arrived and charged the rioters. Many arrests were made.

Shirt Factory Burned.

The four-story building at 1008 St. Charles street, St. Louis, occupied by the Premium Shirt Manufacturing Company, was burned and the contents destroyed, causing an estimated loss of $250,000. This loss was partialily covered by insurance. The firemen put forth all their efforts to keep the fire from spreading to the adjoining building, occupied by the Corticelli Silk Company, which carried a valuable stock. In this they were successful, although a nominal damage resulted to the stock of the silk company from water that leaked in.

Unique New Violin.

The Stroh violin made its first appearance at a special concert given at the Prince's Restaurant, London, by J. E. Muddock, who has furnished the following description of the violin's construction.

The vibrations of the strings are conducted by means of an ordinary violin bridge, which rests upon a rocking lever to the diaphragm and resonator. The lever supporting the bridge oscillates laterally upon the body of the instrument, the end being attached to a diaphragm of aluminum by a small connecting link. The diaphragm is held in position between two india rubber cushions by means of a specially designed holder fixed upon the body of the violin by two brackets. Attached to this holder is the trumpet or resonator. The body or main support of the instrument is is no way employed for sound purposes; it simply holds the various parts of the violin together and sustains the enormous pressure of the strings when tuned. The disk or diaphragm which represents the belly of an ordinary violin is perfectly free to vibrate, the result being that when the strings are set in motion by the bow, the bridge and rocking-lever vibrate accordingly, and thus every vibration is transmitted to the diaphragm. The diaphragm sets in motion the air contained in the resonator, the resonator augmenting and distributing the same to the surrounding atmosphere.

Lesson to Bankers.

The Jewell County (Kansas) Repub lican tells a little story in illustration of the circumspection with which country bankers must handle their customers. A Kansas banker lost patience with the "dribble-drabble" business of a man who caused the bank a lot of trouble in bookkeeping, and the cashier told the man that his account was not desirable. In a little while the man died, leaving a large sum in life insurance, which was deposited by the wife in a rival bank. And a little later still she married the best customer the first bank had, and induced him to remove his deposit.

And the lesson is that all banks should treat us kindly, for there is no telling how soon we may leave a lot of vengeful widows to deposit the life insurance elsewhere and marry away the bank's best customers.

Mixed Relationships. Lord Chesham, who kept his fiftyfirst birthday last week, was doubly connected, and in a curious way, with the late Duke of Westminster, who was not only his brother-in-law, but also his father-in-law, as Lord Chesham married his Grace's daughter by his first wife. Lady Chesham was, in consequence of this double alliance, sister-in-law to her own father, while the Duchess of Westminster became mother-in-law to her own brother. The

How Much Was He Out?

A great many of the citizens of East Walnut Hills are relating the details of how "Billy" Weiss, who presides behind the counter in John Smith's saloon at Woodburn avenue and Clayton street, was flimflammed, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. One day recently an old fellow whose face was adorned with typical hobo whiskers appeared in the place bearing a can in his hand. 'Gimme five cents' worth of beer," he demanded. The foaming lager gushed into the bucket and filled it to the brim. The old fellow then produced a Canadian quarter of a dollar and tendered it to Weiss. The latter informed him that the quarter was worth but 20 cents, and gave him 15 cents in change. A half hour later the old man reappeared and asked for his Canadian quarter. "Let's see, how much beer did you buy?" asked Weiss. "Five cents' worth, and here's the nickel," answered the old fellow, laying a five-cent piece on the counter. Weiss tossed the nickel in the drawer and handed the customer his quarter. And now the question Weiss and his friends are figuring on is, how much did he lose?

An Important Discovery.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 13 .- A sensational statement is made by Mr. Benjamin Major, whose home is at the corner of Jane and Hurlbut Ave., this city.

Mr. Major says that he has found a remedy which will positively cure all Kidney and Bladder troubles. He suffered himself for a long time with these diseases in the most painful form, and during his illness experimented with a great many medicines without getting any relief. Finally he tried Dodd's Kidney Pills, and to his great joy was cured completely.

The statement he makes seems to have ample confirmation in reports being published every day of wonderful cures by this remedy.

FOUND AMERICANS BUYING LAND AT SASKATCHEWAN, WESTERN CANADA.

Michigan Farmer Visits Saskatoon

and Is Well Pleased. Mr. S. K. Lent was a delegate sent from the farmers of Allegan County. Michigan, to Western Canada, to report on the prospects for successful settlement. His report is as follows: went from Winnipeg to Edmonton, thence east one hundred miles by wagon. I found the country in that vicinity a rich, black loam, varying from 12 inches to 3 feet deep; the crops are simply something enormous; wheat and oats by actual measurement often standing five feet in height. I have been a farmer for forty years, and consider myself a fair judge of the yield of grain, and I saw wheat that would yield 50 bushels per acre, and oats that would yield 100 bushels per acre; not one alone, but a good many. As for root crops and garden truck, in no country have I ever seen their equal for all kinds except corn and tomatoes; the nights being too cool for these to ripen well. As a stock country it has no equal. East of Edmonton, on the head waters of the Vermillion River, I saw hay meadows containing from 10 to 100 acres, the grass standing 4 feet high, and would often cut 3 to 4 tons to the acre. From Edmonton I passed through some fine locations, namely, Wetaskiwin, Lacombe and other points.

From McLeod I went to Regina, thence to Prince Albert, 247 miles north of the main line. For the first fifty miles is fine farming country, but the next hundred miles is more of stock country. Then at Saskatoon, Rosthern and Duck Lake I found some very fine farming country, so good that I found a party of Americans from Minnesota buying land for themselves-one party buying 12 sections, and the other 20 sections of land for themselves, which they proposed to improve at once.

I have traveled over twenty-three different States and Territories in our Union, and never in my life time have I ever seen such magnificent crops and especially as fine a stock country.
