> A prominent representative, whose district comprises the most important dairy section in Illinois, was not in Washington when the fight raged the fiercest on this measure, but instead, was in attendance upon a political love feast at Peoria. A promoter of the Peoria meeting was William Lorimer of Chicago, the political sponser of Wm. J. Moxley, the "bull butter" millionaire of Chicago.

The interests of the gairymen of the northern Illinois district were left to shift as best they could. It is a mighty cold day when the farming interests receives any favor at the hands of congressman or senator. Just before a congressional or senatorial campaign those silk-stocking gentlemen will traverse the district and lie to the agriculturalist the way the old ner of promises. That is as far as their duty goes. Perhaps the farmers will continue such men in office and perirps they won't.

To the efforts of a number of congressmen from the west is due the credit of fighting the butterine combine but we fail to find the name of idential chair since the days of Washthe gentleman from Aurora in the list ington and Jefferson-that plain and of advocates for restriction on an industry which is the strongest competitor of the dairy farmer.

The working day of all public employment, it says, should be eight hours, in the hope that it will bring private employment to the same standard. The period of work in underground mines should be eight hours a day. The states should adopt a law providing that labor should be paid in cash or cash orders without a discount, and not in goods or due bills, and that company stores should not be allowed. Regarding injunctions the commission deplores the abuse of power shown by so many judges.

FEELY MAKES MAIDEN SPEECH.

Chicago Congressman Comes Out Victorious in a Tilt with Representative Towney on the Oleo Bill-Philippine Tariff Thrashed Over in the Senate.

Thursday, February 6. For four hours the Senate Lad

the Philippine tariff bill under discussion. The measure was completed so far as the Philippine committee. is concerned, all of the committee amendments being adopted. Senator Foraker declared the American army never would return from the Philippines until it returned victorious, and that men in and out of Congress ought thoroughly to understand this fact. The Secretary of War transmitted to the Senate the sedition laws enacted by the Philippine commission. Mr. Hoar expressed astonishment that such laws should be enforced by the government authorities. Mr. Foraker said the Philippine commission adopted the language of the revised statutes, adding such matters as would make the provisions applicable to the Philippines. Mr. Tillman denounced the sedition laws enacted by the commission as "damnable doctrine." In response to Mr. Patterson (Col.), Mr. Foraker said there was not a single word in the sedition laws which would temporary defeat of the bill was comenable the authorities to touch any man who was loyal to the United States. Mr. Tillman said that he had to the aid of Mr. Henry, who had the seen a statement from Gen. Chaffee bill in charge, and relieving him of that practically the entire Philippine population was imbued with a hatred of Americans. Mr. Hoar said it was a great question whether this powerful nation should crush the life out of a republic modeled after our own government. Early in the day Mr. Scott from that brought in for sale or (W. Va.) delivered a speech advocating storage was defeated. Monday, February 10. Throughout the entire session of the Senate the Philippine tariff bill was under consideration. Mr. Turner (Wash.) concluded his speech begun last Friday on the legal and constitutional phases of the Philippine question. He held in the main that as the Filipinos has established an independent government in the islands prior to the fall of Manila, the United States, under the principles of international law, had no right in the islands. Mr. Teller (Colo.) took the floor to deliver a speech on the pending measure, but had scarcely introduced his argument before he requested that he be allowed to continue his address to-morrow. Representative Feely of Chicago made his maiden speech in the House and acquitted himself with great credit. The oleo bill was his inspiration. Representative Tawney of Minnesota, author of the oleo bill and one of the leaders in the fight for the dairymen, attempted to confuse Mr. Feely. When he had Mr. Tawney in a position from which he knew he could not escape, he unmasked his battery and annihilated him. General debate on the bill was closed. The friends of the bill have declined to offer an amendment to make the 10-cent tax apply to oleomargarine, in imitation of butter, "of any shade of yellow," The amendment is designed to meet the charge of the opponents of the bill that without this amendment the language of the bill might be construed to absolutely prohibit the sale of oleomargarine.

Tuesday, February 11.

By a vote of 155 to 106 the opponents of the oleomargarine bill forced adjournment in the House bfore the bill had been disposed of. The plete, but not squarely upon its merits. Mr. Tawney (Minn.) came command, temporarily stemmed the tide of battle, but he could not win the day. Mr. Boutell's amendment to remove from the operation of the bill oleo imported directly into a state for use and consumption as distinguished pulse for the dairy interests came when an amendment offered by Mr. Scott (Kan.) was accepted, 96 to 60. shall not interfere with the manufacture of oleomargarine in a state where the product is sold entirely within that state. Mr. Allen (Kan.) offered stitute for the entire bill, restricting eration of the bill and no amendments the sale of oleo to one and two-pound packages. Lost, 146 to 115. Mr. Tawney moved that the House adopt the bill with all amendments except number two. When the clerk came to read that amendment it was discovered to relate to a trivial unimportant correction. The House then adjourned. Old men eloquent made the Senate chamber ring with words of earnestness. The debate was the future of the Philippines. Hoar of Massachusetts, Platt of Connecticut and Teller of Colorado were listened to in respectful and admiring silence. Mr. people would never permanently hold was contrary to our principles.

ELEVEN KILLED AT ST. LOUIS.

Fire Destroys the Empire Hotel and Lodgers Are Burned to Death. Eleven persons were killed and eight severely injured in an early morning fire which destroyed the Empire hotel, a large three-story lodging-house at 2700 and 2702 Olive street, St. Louis, patronized by men exclusively. Many others were slightly hurt and ten or more who had narrow escapes from death in the fire were frost-bitten afta er they had fled out into the cold.

Thirty-five to forty persons were in the building, and it is believed that all have been accounted for. It is thought that $20,000 will cover the damage to building and contents, which were totally destroyed.

The Diamond Bracelet By MRS. HENRY WOOD. Author of East Lynne, Etc.

CHAPTER XVII. uncle's house; not as an interloper stealing into it in secret, but as an honored guest to whom reparation was due, and must be made. Alice Seaton leaned back in her invalid chair, a joyous flush on her wasted cheek, and a joyous happiness in her eye. Still the shadow of coming death was there, and Mr. Hope was shocked to see her -more shocked and startled than he had expected, or chose to express.

AT A

"Oh. Alice! What has done this?" "That," she answered, pointing to the bracelet, which, returned to its true owner, lay on the table. "I should not have lived many years, of that I am convinced; but I might have lived a little longer than 1 now shall. It has Lady Sarah says she shall never regard Chenevix came towards them from a it but as an ill-starred trinket, or wear it with any pleasure."

"But, Alice, why should you have suffered it thus to affect you," he remonstrated. "You knew your own innocence, and you say you believed and trusted in mine; what did you fear?"

"I will tell you, Gerard," she resumed, a deeper hectic rising in her cheeks. "I could not have confessed my fear, even in dying; it was too distressing, too terrible; but now that it is all clear, I will tell it. I believed my sister had taken the bracelet."

He uttered an exclamation of amazement.

"I have believed it all along. She had called to see me that night, and was for a minute or two in the room alone with the bracelets; I knew she, at that time, was short of money, and I lids drooped, and the damask mantled feared she had been tempted to take in her cheek, deeper than Alice's hecit-just as this unfortunate servant | tic, "will you help me?" man was tempted. Oh, Gerard, the dread of it has been upon me night and day, preying upon my fears, weighing down my spirits, wearing away my health and my life. And I had to bear it all in silence-that dreadful silence that has killed me."

"Alice, this must have been a morbld fear."

"Not so-if you knew all. But now that I have told you let us not revert to it again; it is at an end, and I am very thankful. That it should so end has been my prayer and hope; not quite the only hope," she added, look-

"Stay, Gerard," she gravely interrupted; "those words of endearment are not for me. Give them to her; can you deny that you love her?"

"Perhaps I do-in a degree. Next to yourself----'

"Put me out of your thoughts while we speak. If I were-where I so soon shall be, would she not be dearer to you than any one on earth? Would you not be well pleased to make her your wife?'

"Yes, I might be."

"That is enough, Gerard, Frances, come hither."

The conversation had been carried been the cause of misery to many, and on in a whisper, and Lady Francis distant window. Alice took her hand: she also held Gerard's.

> "I thought you were talking secrets." said Lady Frances, "so I kept away." "As we were," answered Alice. "Frances, what can we do to keep him among us? Do you know what Col. Hope has told him?"

"No. What?"

"That though he shall be reinstated in favor as to money matters, he shall not be in his affection, or in the house, unless he prove sorry for his rebellion by retracting it. The rebellion, you know, at the first outbreak, when Gerard was expelled from the house before that unlucky bracelet was ever bought; I think he is sorry for it; you must help him to be more so."

"Fanny," said Gerard, while her eye-

"As if I could make head or tail out of what you two are discussing!" cried she by way of helping her out of her confusion, so she attempted to turn away; but Gerard caught her to his side and detained her."

"Fanny-will you drive me again from the house?" She lifted her eyes twinkling with a little spice of mischief. "I did not drive you before."

"In a manner, yes," he laughed. "Do you know what did drive me?" She had known it at the time, and Gerard read it in her conscious face.

He went out into the street and walked to and fro, rubbing his hands, while the men inside took their drink. "Was there ever such luck? Was there ever such luck?" murmured Mr. Shanghai Smith. The morning of the following day Her Majesty's ship Triumphant lay at her anchors off Saucelito, in San Francisco Bay.

Though the admiral did not know it, one of the very first to greet him when he set his foot on dry land at the bottom of Market street was the man he had licked so thoroughly fifteen years before in Melbourne.

"Oh, it's the same," said Smith to his chief runner, who was about the "hardest case" in California. "He ain't changed none. Just so old he was when he set about me. I'm goin' to have thishyer admiral shipped before the stick on the toughest ship that's about ready to go to sea. Now what's in the harbor with officers that can lick me?"

"Well, I always allowed (as you know, sir) that Simpson of the California was your match. And the California will sail in three days."

"Righto," said Smith: "Simpson is a good, tough man. Bill, the California will do."

"But how'll you corral the admiral, sir?" asked Bill.

"You leave that to me," replied his boss. "I've got a very fruitful notion as will fetch him, if he's half the man he was."

Mr. "Say-it-and-mean-it" Smith laid for Admiral Sir Richard Dunn, K. C. B., etc., etc., from ten o'clock till halfpast eleven, and he was the only man in the crowd that did not hope the victim would come down with too many friends to be tackled.

The admiral came at last; it was about a quarter to twelve, and the whole water-front was remarkably quiet. And the admiral was only accompanied by his flag-lieutenant. The two were promptly sandbagged.

The flotation of the stock of swindling concerns has been checked. Nor does this tell the whole story. In former years most of the companies were formed for the express purpose of putting their stocks on the market. This year most of the companies kept their stock to themselves, and the public was not even given a chance to subscribe.

A mad doctor might rule the habit out of his diagnosis. Nevertheless the popular belief is firmly rooted, and it is for fear of this belief doubtless that we talk to ourselves even as we dress our hair with straws so rarely.

It may be said that we never do address ourselves at any length except in the delirium of a fever. In moments of ordinary excitement of course we utter to the wind some sort of appropriate ejaculation. Delight wrings from us a cry of "Hurrah!" or "Thank heaven!" even though there be none by to echo us. Similarly in any disgust we emit one of those sounds whose rather poor equivalents in print are "Ugh!" and "Faugh!" and "Tut!" Much further than this we do not go. "Why, what an ass am I!" cries Hamlet in one of his soliloquies. Omitting the first word and transposing the last two, the ordinary modern man does often soliloquize to that extent. But he could no more soliloguize to Hamlet's extent than he could speak in decasylabics.

Nor is there any reason to suppose that that class of the community with which, contemptuous of his own flueney. Hamlet compared himself is or oquies we cannot accept Hamlet as an unbiased authority. We merely find in

PRANKS OF CUPID.

Some Celebrated Men Who Married Their Domestic Servants.

Many celebrated men have married their domestic servants. Sir Henry Parkes, premier of New South Wales, is an example. One night when dining at a friend's house he was struck by the appearance of a servant girl who waited upon the table and persuaded his host to allow her to enter his employ. This she did and for a short time held the position of cook in Sir Henry's household. Then he made her Lady Parkes.

But more illustrious than this is the case of Peter the Great. One day he was dining at the house of Prince Menshikoff. He noticed one of the servant maids particularly, and, though she was not handsome, she caught his fan-

The public exhibition in Pittsburg of the bullet riddled bodies of the two Biddle murderers prior to their interment was a rather disgraceful culmination of the series of melodramatic incidents that make up the astounding narrative of their escape, flight and death. Undoubtedly under the same circumstances the same thing would have occurred in any other city, but it is not creditable to the Pittsburg authorities that a spectacle which appealed to most morbid instincts of the mob was permitted. The most lamentable feature of the occurrence was the preponderating presence of women, whose demonstrations of maudlin sympathy and curiosity, according to the reports, must have been both shocking and sickening. Possibly in this demonstration there may be found some explanation of the psychological puzzle presented in the conduct of Mrs. Soffel, the wife and mother who sacrificed home, husband, children and reputation and risked her life to become the accomplice in the escape of these desperate criminals.

According to a New York paper, there is a scheme on foot in that city to publish an edition de luxe of the "One Hundred and Fifty First Families of the United States." To get into this volume the subscriber pays $1,500, which entitles him to a family biography (written by himself, if he chooses) and pictures of himself, his residence, etc. The scheme has long been popular on a less extensive scale, notably in town and county histories, and there are scores of books in every part of the country giving elaborate biographies, pictures, etc., of people who think they ought to be handed to posterity and By all means, let us know who are the 150 first families of the United States at $1,500 per family.

Southey on Wordsworth.

Of Wordsworth, Southey writes in 1808, says Harold S. Scott in The Atlantic: "He has written a masterly Hall; or. The Fate of the Nortons.' The poem is incomparably fine. It would amuse you to hear how he talks of his own production. His entire and intense selfishness exceeds anything you could have conceived. I am more amused at it than offended; not being sufficiently attached to him to feel pain at perceiving his faults, and yet respecting him far too much on the average of his qualities to be disgusted. It is so pure and unmixed a passion in him that Ben Jonson would have had him in a play had he been his contemporary."

GERMAN ARMY OFFICERS.

The Abject Deference Shown Them by Civilians Is Amazing.

The respect and deference shown to the German army officer on duty and off duty by his countrymen are wonderful to see, according to a London writer. "Civilians, even compatriots of distinction, on entering the dining room bow to him with formal humility, He acknowledges the obeisances only with a rigid glare of haughty indifference, though he is politely conscious of the coming and going of ladies. The German civilian does not appear to be surprised at or to resent being contemptuously ignored by him, but recognizes him and looks up to him as a superior member of a superior race and continues to make his obeisances, however loftily they are ignored.

"But, while the officer is unable to see the civilian at whom he is looking point blank, he never misses observing the entrance and acknowledging the salute of another of his own race. He rises from his seat and stands stiff and erect while the newcomer advances and exchanges formal bows and greetings, and as he recovers the erect position from the bow he brings his heels together with a sharp parade click and waits until his superior has taken a seat before he resumes his own."

There were tremendous ceremonies in eating and drinking, too, especially in drinking. "Each table group lifted their glasses invariably together, as if It the word of command, taking their time apparently from the senior present. Having seized their glasses together and raised them together and simultaneously drunk, they would sumultaneously finish and then, holding their glasses before them, would with great ceremony bow to one another before replacing them on the table. It did not matter whether they were drinking beer or claret or the German champagne, which seems to be the especially smart thing to take, there was the same ceremony. When a senior officer went out of the room, all the juniors present rose to stiff attention and bowed as he passed. When a junior rose, he made the round of the table on his way to the door and bowed separately, with a spur jingling heel click every time to every other officer."

A COMEDIAN'S TRICK.

Ruse by Which He Escaped Arrest and Had His Debts Paid.

Many amusing stories are told of Joe Haines, a comedian of the time of Charles II., sometimes called "Count" Haines. It is said that he was arrested one morning by two bailiffs for a debt of £20, when he saw a bishop to whom he was related passing along in his coach. With ready resource he immediately saw a loophole for escape, and, turning to the men, he said, "Let me speak to his lordship, to whom I am well known, and he will pay the debt and your charges into the bargain."

The bailiffs thought they might venture this, as they were within two or three yards of the coach, and acceded to the request. Joe boldly advanced and took off his hat to the bishop. His lordship ordered the coach to stop, when Joe whispered to the divine that the two men were suffering from such scruples of conscience that he feared they would hang themselves, suggesting that his lordship should invite them to his house and promise to satisfy them. The bishop agreed, and, calling to the bailiffs, he said, "You two men come to me tomorrow morning, and 1 will satisfy you."

The men bowed and went away pleased, and early the next day waited on his lordship, who, when they were, ushered in, said, "Well, my men, what are these scruples of conscience?"

"Scruples?" replied one of them. "We have no scruples! We are bailiffs, my lord, who yesterday arrested your cou-)in, Joe Haines, for a debt of £20, and your lordship kindly promised to satisfy us."

The trick was strange, but the result was stranger, for his lordship, either appreciating its cleverness or considering himself bound by the promise he had unintentionally given, there and then settled with the men in full.

THE KANSAS PEOPLE ARE IN LOVE WITH WESTERN CANADA. They Say the Land There Is the Finest on Earth.

A great number of delegates have been influenced through the agency of Mr. J. S. Crawford, the Canadian government representative at Kansas City, to visit western Canada, and whether from Missouri or Kansas the story is always the same-they are pleased with the new country being opened up. Isaac H. Levagood writes from Didsbury, Alberta, as follows:

"I met three delegates from Kansas yesterday at Didsbury, and took them home with me and took them out in the afternoon and showed them some of the finest land that lays on top of fod's green earth. They are more than pleased with this country. They stayed with me last night; this morning I took them to Didsbury, and they went on north. When they come back they are coming to my place and I am going to help them to run some lines and they are going to locate in sight of my house. There have been over 1,200 acres of land changed hands. here in our neighborhood this spring. When I located here last fall I was the furthest back of any of the settlers; to-day I am in the center of the settlement. We have thirty-six children that are of school age in our district, and we will have our school district organized next month, when we will proceed to build our schoolhouse. The longer we stay here the better we like the country; that is the way with everybody here, they all seem to be satisfied and doing well. I have talked with a great many men here and they told me that they had less than $50 when they got here, and today they have got 160 acres of good land and five or six hundred dollars' worth of stock. Crops are looking fine here. I think this will be a good winter wheat country. One of my neighbors has a small piece and it looks fine."

Road Sign Posts in France.

Cyclists who contemplate touring in France will be pleased to learn that the road from Dieppe to Paris is now so completely provided with sign posts that a foreign cyclist landing in Normandy without a map would not have the slightest difficulty in making his way to Paris if he followed the roadside directions. The entire route is divided into numbered sections and at frequent intervals the cyclist is informed by sign posts as to the turnings, inclines, distances, etc. All the great highways from Paris are to be treated in the same way.

A Frozen Draft.

An anecdote comes from Brussels illustrating the generous spirit of a banker of that city. The banker is fond of outdoor exercise. As an exhibition of his skill in skating he made his autograph on the ice in a very artistic manner.

Some gentlemen, having admired his signature, proceeded to write above it as follows: "On demand I promise to pay for the benefit of the poor the sum of 5.000 marks."

They sawed out the block of ice. and, having called a cab, proceeded to the bank and carried the frozen note to the cashier's counter.

BEFORE HE TOOK VOGELER'S He Could Not Touch His Wife's Dinners, and They Were "Fit for a King." So writes our esteemed friend Mr.

Frank Chambers of 9 Bennett street. Chiswick: "For over two years I suffered agonies from indigestion and became reduced to a mere shadow of my stalwart self. I would return home from my business feeling so faint that I could hardly drag one leg after the other. My dear wife did all she possibly could to tempt me with dainty dishes, and as I entered the house I sniffed and thought: 'Oh, how good; I know I can eat that!' But alas! no sooner had I eaten a few mouthfuls, when I felt sick; severe pains shot chrough my chest and shoulder blades. my eyes swam and everything seemed black, I became alternately hot and cold, and got up from such a dainty dinner heartily sick of living, and feeling I was a sore trial to everybody. I may mention that I was also very much troubled with scaly skin, and often boils. But one evening I noticed my wife seemed more cheerful than'usual. I questioned her and found she had been reading a pamphlet she had received of men afflicted just as I was, and who had been cured by Vogeler's Compound. Said she, 'What gives me more faith in it is that it is made from the formula of an eminent physician now in active practice in the West End of London, so I am sure it is no quack thing.' 'All right, dear, let's have a bottle,' said I. After taking the contents of the first bottle, I felt very much better, and determined to give this remedy a fair trial, and I can positively assure you that a few bottles made a new man of me. I can sleep well, eat anything, and thoroughly enjuy life. I have told several of my friends whom I knew were suffering the same as myself, and they all wish me to say that they are like new men. I sincerely bless the great physician who gave you the formula of Vogeler's Curative Compound, and also yourselves for making its virtues known to a suffering public."

ROYAL DIVORCES.

They Have Not Been Very Numerou During the Last Century.

A royal divorce is a very rare event: indeed, those which have taken place during the last century-even including the most famous of all, that of the Emperor Napoleon I. and his unfortunate consort. Josephine-may be counted on the fingers of one hand. To these must now be added the divorce, on grounds of hopeless incompatibility of temper, of two of Queen Victoria's grandchildren, namely, the grand duke were turned to the end of the table and grand duchess of Hesse. PLACE FOR HUNTERS. SISTERS OF CHARITY MISSOURI AND ARKANSAS.

Great Wilderness an Ideal Spot For Those Who Enjoy the Pleasures of the Chase-Venison Stacked Up in Loads Like Cordwood.

"I am not much of a hunter myself," said Col. Joe McCann of the Iron Mountain route, 'but if I were you you wouldn't find me wasting time and opportunity among any of the northern hunting grounds I ever heard of. I would shoulder my gun and make a break for southern Missouri and enjoy sport. I never saw, heard, or read of such abundance of wild game as makes its home in that region and the contiguous territory of Arkansas. The latter region is one dense wild, and so well adapted to large game that the bear, the badger and the wildcat are numerous, and even that savage American beast, the panther, now virtually extinct east of the Mississippi, still hunts its prey in that great wilderness.

"The southern Missouri country is more particularly favored by small game-wild turkeys, grouse, quail and rabbits, although there are a great many deer there-so many, in fact. that one day a native came into a little town where I happened to be, with a wagon-load of venison, just as a farmer might haul in a load of cord wood to some town up here in the north. The deer were stacked on the wagon until it was about as much of a load as the mules cared to draw. They told me down there that such a sight was not uncommon in that region, the venison being purchased by local traders and shipped to various city markets. The venison at that time could be purchased by the dealers for from 11/2 to 2 cents a pound. A 200-pound buck, whose head and antlers alone would have been worth $40, was offered to me for $2.

"Bear hunting in the northern Arkansas wilderness is a great and exciting sport from what I have heard told about it," continued Col. McCann, according to the New York Times. "The bear is hunted on horseback sometimes without guns. With trained dogs the hunters train bruin to his lair or compel him to seek safety in some big gum or sycamore tree. If tracked to his lair the bear is routed out by the dogs and the hunters kill him with keen, long-bladed knives, which they handle with wonderful skill. When a bear is treed the tree is felled, and when the tree and bear come crashing to the ground the dogs are ready and the fight is between the bear and the dogs. If a dog is in danger the hunter-always on the alert to save his dog-takes a hand in the only bear hunting."

Where Little Dorrit Played.

A proposal has been brought before tne London county council to call a new open space in Southwark "Little Dorrit's Playground." This should gratify lovers of Dickens the world over, and they will be interested to know the spot is quite close to the old Marshalsea prison, which figures so conspicuously in "Little Dorrit." wear it is also St. George's church, where Little Dorrit used to sleep on the cushions, and where, afterward she and Clenham were married. Detroit Institution Suffers a Heavy Loss at Hands of Vice-President.

ENORMOUS AMOUNT INVOLVED

A Sum Largely in Excess of One Million Dollars Has Been Fraudulently Withdrawn from the Vaults-Frank C. Andrews is Under Arrest.

The City Savings bank of Detroit, Mich., with deposits of over $3,000,000, failed to open its doors for business Feb. 10, and late in the afternoon Frank C. Andrews, vice-president of the bank, was arrested on the charge of "willfully, fraudulently, and knowingly" securing from the bank, without security and without the knowledge of the other directors, a sum exceeding $1,000,000. He was arraigned and released on $10,-000 bail, his examination being set for Feb. 21.

A warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Henry R. Andrews, cashier of the bank. The warrant charges that Henry Andrews violated the bankling laws by certifying to checks , when there was no money in the bank to cover them.

Paying Teller Joseph Schrage was arrested and gave bonds to appear against Cashier Andrews and Frank C. Andrews.

It is charged that Schrage, who is a son of one of the directors and a mere boy, was made a tool of by Cashier Andrews. The prosecutor has been unable to find a certified check with the name of the cashier attached. It seems that young Schrage had orders from the cashier to certify to all checks that came to the bank from Frank Andrews, the young teller using a rubber stamp which had been furnished by the cashier.

To secure the indebtedness Vice President Andrews has signed over all his real-estate holdings and stocks, bonds, and other securities, which it is estimated will total about $1,000,000. Private stock speculations are given as the cause of his trouble.

The City Savings bank was the depository for the funds of the county auditors, their balance there being more than $150,000. It was also the depository for the board of education, which had a total of $467,000 on deposit. Other local banks will tempo-

Mrs. L. A. Harris, a Prominent Member of a Chicago Woman's Political Club, tells how Ovarian Troubles may be Cured without a Surgical Operation. She says:

"Doctors have a perfect craze for operations. The minute there is any trouble, nothing but an operation will do them; one hundred dollars and costs, and included in the costs are pain, and agony, and often death.

"I suffered for eight years with ovarian troubles; spent hundreds of dollars for relief, until two doctors agreed that an operation was my only chance of life. My sister had been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for her troubles, and been cured, and she strongly urged me to let the doctors go and try the Compound. I did so as a last resort; used it faithfully with the Sanative Wash for five months, and was rejoiced to find that my troubles were over and my health restored. If women would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first, fewer surgical operations would occur."-MRS. L. A. HARRIS, 278 East 31st St., Chicago, Ill. $5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.

fumes, Confectionery and Jewelry.

The good we do does not depend so much upon our ability or our opportunities as upon our disposition. One who serve himself, but is on the lookout for ways to help others, is constantly finding chances to do good. Watchfulness will make much of a little

That the methods and observanc of the church have changed with th Next Thursday afternoon the club necessities of our own advancement will be entertained by Mrs. Clara does not prove that it is falling in decay. The puritanic observance the Sabrath may not continue as the early days of a primitive peop some intelligent men and cultivate women hay not be as observant of t forms of church service as were the fathers; they may claim to worsh river basks on the Sabbath, instead in the church, but this is rather difference and self-indulgence that unbelief. They still seek the service they put their loved ones away, which is some tribute to the cause. Th temporal power of the church h passed away. Some of its influence may no longer exist, but it was and and will be more and more the mo powerful element that controls t destinies of mankind.
