COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Of the Palatine High School will be Held this Evening.

Commencement week began with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. J Hoffmeister in Methodist church Sunday evening. He took for his text: 'The fear of God is the beginning of Wisdom" and he gave a very practical and interesting address. Wednesday evening the class day exercises were held in Battermann's hall and the program was carried out with credit to class and teachers.

Following are extracts of orations to be delivered by the High school graduates at the commencement exercises if a human brother trespass on its to be held this evening in the! Methodist church:

ALEXANDER HAMILTON. Chas. A. Ost

During the early troubles between the colonies and the mother country, the one great point that was troubling him was what side of the coming conflict he should take. Having been born in a land under the rule of England, his mind was naturally inclined to favor her, but when he visited Boston, the hot-bed of resistance, he changed his mind and cast his lot with the colonies.

He was a stranger adventuring in a strange land. July 6, 1774, a meeting was held in the fields by the patriotic leaders and Hamilton, a poor boy, burning with lofty ambition and desire to make a fortune, attended this meeting. It was here that he follow-ed his choice maxim: "Successful men are those who take advantage of their opportunities, for opportunities are not made by men, but for men." After listening to the speeches he formed a speech which was composed of the points omitted by the orators. He made his way to the platform and after a few moments of youthful embarrassment, he spoke the points that were so long burning in his heart. The people were struck with awe and cried 'He is a collegian."

Washington, June 10. - Senator Wm. Mason is a candidate for the presidency of the United State. He made formal announcement this afternoon of his purpose to become President Roosevelt's rival. He has a plan of campaign mapped out and will carry it into effect as soon as congress adjourns. His first battle ground will be the south. He believes there is a sentiment in his favor in that region left the old homestead in Palatine of Mason and Dixon's line. To quote his own words, the senotor will campaign "from New Orleans to Bangor and from New York to SanFrancisco." He will make speeches to all who will listen to him. Not All The Privileges.

To the Editor:

Are not the inhabitants of our new possessions in the orient citizens of the American republic the same as the inhabitants of the Hawaiian islands? If not, why not?

The Review is not authority on the question, but G. K. is entitled to our opinion which is gleaned from what we have hastily read on the subject. In 1900 the inhabitants of Hawaii, by an act of our government, were declared to be citizens of the United States and the territory of Hawaii created. Under the United States supreme court decision in the insular cases, given we believe in May, 1901, the inhabitants of Porto Rico and the Philippines are entitled to full protection under the constitution, but not to the privileges of United States citizenship until congress so decrees, by admitting the countries as states or organizing them as territories.

At the conclusion of routine business Mr. Depew (N. Y.) addressed the senate in advocacy of the bill appropriating $10,000,000 for the purchase of 2,000,000 acres of land for a national forest reserve in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. Mr. Depew said the project was favored by President Roosevelt and by the secretary of agriculture, and federal action was justified fully by public necessity. No action was taken. The senate then began the consideration of the measure commonly known as the London dock charges bill. Mr. Nelson (Rep., Minn.), in support of the bill, said the charges made at the London docks against American flour, principally, were a discrimination against the United States. "God deliver us from trusts," dramatically exclaimed Mr. Nelson, in response to a question by Mr. Macumber as to what effect a steamship trust would have on freight rates. The bill was then laid aside. Bills were passed as follows: To ratify act No. 65 of the Twenty-first Arkansas legislature, declaring the Osage river to be not a navigable stream above the point where the line between the counties of Benton and St. Clair, Missouri, crosses the river. At 2 o'clock consideration of the isthmian canal project was resumed. Mr. Mitchell (Ore.) addressed the senate in continuation of his speech, begun Thursday, in support of the Nicaragua route. After a brief executive session | delay. the senate at 4:42 adjourned.

In the house, Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, asked unanimous consent to consider a resolution to authorize the conferees on the sundry civil appropriation bill to insert in that bill the necessary appropriations authorized by the omnibus public building bill. He explained that about $6,000,000 should bones intact.

Monday, June 9. During the early part of the senate session the naval appropriation bill was considered. All the committee amendments were agreed to except that relating to the construction of two additional battleships, two cruisers and two gunboats, action on which was delayed. After a speech by Mr. BILL Simmons in support of the bill for the establishment of a national forest reserve in the southern Appalachian mountains discussion of the canal bill was resumed.

> The house passed the anti-anarchy bill. The remainder of the day was devoted to the bill to transfer certain forest reserves from the interior department to the agricultural department, and to authorize the creation in such reserves of game and fish preserves. President Roosevelt, in his annual message, recommended such a measure. The minority of the public lands committee offered as a substitute for the bill a measure which eliminated that portion of the bill which transfers the reserves to the agricultural department. TEN BURNED TO DEATH IN CHICAGO HOTEL FIRE

Shackled Inmates Die In Flames That Sweep "Prison" Floors of Building Used As a Sanitarium—Many Others Injured

Without a chance to escape, eight | their death in a fire which swept through the two top floors of the build ing at Chicago June 9. One patient is missing and forty-eight are injured.

Manacled and tied with straps, the frenzied patients—suffering from alcoholism and drugs, the victims of hallucinations—died in their rooms on the fifth-or prison-floor before aid could reach them

Among the men who knew that the fire was reaching their rooms, and who knew also that they were without hope, was Alderman William E. Kent. Blind, as well as manacled, Kent

From all that is known of the disaster, it would seem that the fire started from a gasoline stove in the basement. As the attendants ran in terror up the stairways the fire headed them off. On the fourth and fifth floors it already was eating its way into the rooms where the patients were shouting and raving in their struggles.

It was part of the treatment of the sanitarium to produce hallucinations. And it was in this plight that death came to those on the upper floors.

In a space of time less than ten minutes every horror the human mind is capable of conceiving was enacted on the fifth floor. Here were confined the violent patients. They were strapped to beds and walls, and to make assurance doubly sure and escape impossible the windows were barred with bands of steel and screens of iron. Those who tore themselves loose from the leather straps and canvas harness found their exit stopped as effectually as if they had been in a dungeon 1,000 miles in solid rock. There they died, fighting for life with the strength and fury of mingled desperation and madness.

Some of the victims on this floor were in the throes of delirium tremens when the fire broke out. Others were in a state of stupor and torpidity from the use of drugs for the cure of which they were patients in the institution. How many of the patients who met their death without realizing the horror of their situation is not known. Some of them did not. Among the rescued were men who laughed insanely at the efforts of the firemen. Alderman Kent was not among the more fortunate who did not understand the fate they were meeting. There is every reason to believe that the blind alderman knew what was happening and tried with all the energy of a man who had neither sight nor free hands to help him to escape from

Kent went to the sanitarium May 31. He had been out of the place at times since then, but had become violent, assaulted his night nurse, Frank Johnson, and had been strapped to his

He was in this condition, it is reported, when the fire broke out, dressed in his night clothing.

Those who escaped from their rooms ran to the nearest window to the fire escape. It was five feet away, but it might as well have been fifty. Bars one and a half inches thick set into the casing, reinforced by a heavy wire screen, prevented exit.

Before this window was gathered a crowd of men, shouting, striking one another, and wildly tearing at the gratings. Blood trickled from torn fingers. And while the men struggled the flames were nearing them. While the uproar was at its height one man bounded forward. He was W. E. Davis of Cedar Rapids, Ia., who had been a patient in the institution for the last two weeks. Under his orders the men sought to unite their efforts to the best advantage. Four pairs of arms seized the heavy wire screening and pulled together. Finally the wires bent inward, but still the edges of the steel frame incased in mortar refused to yield. When one man dropped to the floor another took his place.

Finally a wild cheer went up from patients and two attendants in the the men about the window as the sanitarium of the St. Luke Society met | heavy wire netting fell to the floor with a crash. However, only the easiest obstcle had been overcome. The bars remained, bars designed to withstand the onslaughts of insane

Encouraged by their success the group of patients redoubled their efforts. As many men as could grip the lower part running across the window were called upon to exert their strength. The metal yielded to the combined strength of the desperate men. It bent, finally broke, and six of the struggling men were hurled to the floor, dragging the disengaged iron bar after them.

From this window Dr. C. A. Anderson of Chicago, G. S. Gott of La Verne, Ill., and Clinton Osborne, a New York real estate dealer, escaped. These helped others until twelve men in all were saved.

Those who were last to leave were badly burned. Before their turn came several dropped in their positions before the window. Back from the window men were being suffocated and burned to death.

Aside from the damage on the fifth and fourth floors, the hospital escaped without great injury. It is estimated that $25,000 will cover the loss in money. Aside from those who lost their lives on these two floors the inmates of the sanitarium escaped. On the second and third floors the patients could get out of their rooms and they were able to make their way down the stairs while the fire was eating into the rooms above them.

Severe Cyclone Strikes Clay and Becker Counties, Leaving Fifteen Dead.

KILLS THREE IN ONE FAMILY

Members of Andrew Horim's Household Instantly Killed and One May Die-Death on the White Earth Indian Reservation.

A tornado of marked severity prevailed over sections of Clay and Becker counties, Minnesota, and across the southern portions of the White Earth Indian reservation.

It is reported that fifteen lives were lost, many people injured and great damage done to farm property, many dwellings, barns and outbuildings being destroyed. The region throughout which the storm prevailed is comparatively sparsely settled and remote from telegraphic communication.

The storm first struck northwest of the town of Ulen, in Clay county, whence it traveled southeasterly across the northern part of Becker county, striking the towns of Foss, Atlanta and Walworth, along the lower edge of the White Earth reservation.

A cyclone swept across the country west of Ulen and many lives are reported lost. A strip half a mile wide and twenty miles long is laid waste, and everything in the path of the storm was wrecked.

Four miles north of Ulen three members of the family of Andrew Horim were instantly killed, and one other was so badly injured that he may die. Hundreds of head of live stock were killed. Many farmhouses were destroyed.

A storm passed over the southwestern portion of the White Earth Indian reservation, leaving death and destruction in its wake. The storm was particularly severe in Walworth and Atlantic townships, and fifteen persons are reported killed

A tornado struck twelve miles north of Lake Park, Minn., sweeping a strip of land two miles wide and three miles long. It destroyed nine farmhouses and killed ten persons. The church at Spangele was demolished.

Reprieve for Toombs.

Gov. Yates has issued a reprieve staying the execution of Louis G. Toombs until Friday, July 11. Toombs is in jail in Chicago on the charge of murdering a woman whom he had employed as a cook on a Lake Michigan boat, The governor gives as his reason for this action that it is the right of every prisoner to have the fullest possible opportunity to defend himself. An attempt is to be made to have the case carried to the supreme court.

THE KNIGHT ERRANT. Ethel V. Kitson.

The knight errant believed in re taining the church and justice and exercising the works of mercy to all people indifferently. Knight errantry has passed away but its influence and spirit should remain. Do not think he is not needed now. You know and I know that there are many cases of rob- tions at their meeting, June 5: bery, pillage and murder that he is needed to redress these wrongs and try to stop them. Many an heir today is robbed of his heritage by men and lawyers, and many a person has lost his money by investing it in things that were made to deceive. Think of the selfishness, ignorance and prejudice in the world. Surely, we need someone to wipe out these. But all these wants are not going unsupplied, because there are people who go on errands of mercy and try to do all in their power to make the world better and we can do very much to help them. Why, my friends, do not sit idly with your arms folded and think there is nothing for you to'do. Open your eyes and look around and you will see where you are needed. Be kind to all and lighten their burdens. Although the title of knight errant is not used pow, you can become one and try to redress wrongs and grievances.

CONSTITUTIONAL POWER OF SENATE. William H. Hanns. It was the great anxiety of framers monarchy and oligarchy, therefore source of true consolation and hope. they did privilege the senate with executive powers to avoid any excessive power in the president. Two-thirds of the senate must give their consent to all treaties and appointments of officers and judges in the United States whose appointment is not otherwise provided for by law. The framers of the constitution did a noble thing in given the senate higher power and greater dignity than the house. It would have shown weakness of mind to have divided congress into two houses of equal authority. It is protalent and who are gifted with power If our senate had not been composed that the hearts of his brethren mourn least there is no talk of self expatriaof such men our history would not be the miraculous poem of universal in-not been so much a question who will make the best president, as who will make the best political-leader. Therefore, in some instances, the senate, the real life of our government, has found it necessary to take the matter in their own hands and to execute its ability thereupon. In so doing it over-

As the union jack now grievences in behalf of the Outlander, all without foundation and merely for outside political effect, and in order to give some apparent justification to the plans being made to arouse a rewas to be assisted from outside by troops under Jamieson. The colonial office at London was in such a position that it would profit by the raid if it were successful and would not be complicated if it failed. After the failure the Boers had their eyes open to the Tillie C. Smyser.

They saw that their cherished republic was again in danger; that their freedom, for which their ancesters had sacrificed everything was to be torn from their grasp by a man, who, on account of his vast wealth and the wealth of others which he controlled, was able to do much for the purpose of extending British authority. If there were any other season for changing a happy, contented republic to a sullen, bitter dependent of an empire, than that of greed for land, the dishonor might not rest so heavily upon him.

OLIGARCHY OF THE SENATE.

Those seats formerly occupied by the nation's best, are now filled by the tools of capital, the agents of corrup-tion. The imperial crown of the us-urper now rests upon the senate. It has enacted laws, carried on a business which, although disguised in a veil of what is termed legality, a correct interpretation proves that its conduct is illigitimate. One of the most striking fea-tures of our senatorial oligarchy is the manner in which the senate deals with appointments made by the president. Fitness, merit and talent are by no means a sufficient recommendation for this dominent oligarchy. Any candidate personally distasteful to any one senator must be ousted because under the unwritten law of senatorial courtesy such senator, in order to obtain the votes must sanction the dismissal of any candidate from Alaska Has a Grievance.

There is a good chance for the man with the hoe in Alaska, according to Governor John G. Brady of that territory. Most of us have supposed that only the man with the pick could thrive there, but Governor Brady quotes facts and figures to prove that farmers as well as miners may dig wealth from Alaska's soil. In a recent interview he said: "Experience of years has shown that there are vast areas of the finest agricultural land in the world to be found in Alaska. You can cut areas of fertile valley land as hig as many of our states. There is a strip of land south of Yakatat 60 Mr. and Mrs. Swanson of Geneva, miles long and 30 miles wide every acre of which is excellent agricultural land, while the big valleys are rich beyond description. In the Tana valley the grass grows up to your waist, while the wild roses bloom all over the Yukon river country.

"But what is the use," continues Governor Brady, "of inviting people to come to Alaska to settle when congress neglects to pave the way? As matters stand it is impossible for a man to take up a homestead claim for the simple reason that there are no surveys, and the land office will not open the land to settlement until it has been surveyed. It is discouraging. I am hopeful that congress will do something to relieve the situation before long, for what we want most in Alaska are families who will settle on the

In the recent gun practice of the north Atlantic squadron the battleship Kearsarge made a world's record. Her gunners shot the big guns, eight to thirteen inch bores, at a target which was about the size of a small sailing ship from a distance of more than a mile. The record was seven hits out of eleven shots. It must be remembered that should any warship be hit seven times by projectiles of that size she could hardly escape destruction. Ail of which facts your Uncle Sam respectfully submits to any power that may be concerned to know that our jackies can shoot as well today as they did in 1898.

When little Peterkin asked his aged grandsire concerning the battle of Blenheim and what good came of it, the ancient Casper could only reply, "It was a famous victory." When one studies the "terms of surrender" and contemplates the frightful cost to

CHAPTER II.

The Last Resort. At just nine o'clock that same night a cab came to a halt in front of a sombre pile of masonry known to Parisians as a Capuchian monastery.

This vehicle contained our two adventurers. Jones gave the heavy oldstyle knocker a few bangs that rescunded harshly among the lofty corridors within.

This summons brought a lay brother at once to the door, for no appeal can ever be slighted by those whose vows hove made them brothers to the poor of their faith.

Jones announced that he had a most important communication for the reverend father which could not possibly be postponed until another daythat he had come over land and sea for this one purpose, and grave results might follow further delay.

The doorkeeper's hesitation seemed quite swept away by such logical reasoning, and he asked the two gentlemen to enter, which they did with considerable readiness.

The brother led them into an apartment and begged them to be patient, as the head of the order was engaged at the time with other visitors who had, strange to say, also come upon very important business.

When they were alone Merrick suggested the possibility of the good father's other callers being those persons whom they least desired to meet at such a critical time, and somehow this idea gave Jones so much uneasiness that he jumped to his feet.

Just as Jones gained his feet he heard a sneeze twice repeated, a sneeze that seemed to possess an individuality, as is frequently the case.

The effect upon Jones was magical. for his companion saw him give a sudden start, while his jaws came together with a snap.

"That is the time you struck the nail squarely upon the head, my boy. The count is here in this buildingafter all, he has gained a point on us, since he even now talks with the holy fluence to secure possession of the secret dossier. You can hear the murmur of their voices in yonder library," was what Jones said, impresshy our castors into the ring, and remember, Jones, he pays the freight."

Merrick was close upon the heels of the redoubtable Jones when the latter pushed the door wide open and thus unceremoniously entered the adjoining

Neither Jones nor his companion gave more than a passing glance at the room, their whole attention being him. taken up with the little party gathered near the center at the moment when they so suddenly forced an en-

These were three in number, the patriarchial good father, a tall, bronzed man in the fatigue dress of a French infantry captain, and a yellowbearded giant just back of him.

In these two Merrick recognized the count and his faithful Russian col-

Jones should have been called to the bar, for he had all the clever attributes of a successful advocate, and specious plea.

As he advanced in the direction of the trio he raised his hand in a dramatic as well as supplicating manner, and first of all sincerely begged pardon for disturbing the peace and sanctity of so sacred a place.

Then he told how he had come to see Father Anselmo upon very important business, and hearing the voice of his rival in the adjoining room, he had even dared profane it with his presence, for which he would always be profoundly sorry, hoping to have the good and gracious father hear his side of the case before delivering up the documents, which, sealed in a packet, he had held long in trust, waiting for some one to come bearing a message from Father Jean.

"Good father," said the suave American, producing a paper from his pocket, "there is the claim I make. Upon your judgment I stand ready to stake my all. There you will find substantial evidence to also prove my identity."

And while the venerable prelate was reading, the four men surveyed each other as mortal enemies might do-Jones calm and scornful, filled with the keen pleasure of coming triumph, the others frowning.

Ah! Father Anselmo had finished reading, and looked from one to another of the rival claimants ere rendering his decision.

"Father, I have your word to deliver, the packet to me, your solemn promise," said the count, in a hoarse. voice, reading his defeat in the face of the venerable recluse, and holding desperately to this last chance, as a drowning man will cling to a straw.

upon this document bearing the signaone who has the stronger claim, otherwise I would be false to my vow."

"You have decided, then, against me?" asked the count, between his teeth, his eyes blazing as when he faced the lion upon African deserts.

"I cannot resist overwhelming force of circumstances, and his claim comes first," steadily replied the aged father, handing over the packet.

"Then there is but one resource left us, Stromboloff, and that is to take by force from this rascally American what we are refused peaceably. Draw and stand by me, comrade," snarled the count, as he noisily rattled his sword from its steel scabbard and prepared for war.

Evidently the big Russian attache had been half expecting some such appeal to arms, if one might judge from the celerity with which he, too, whipped out a shining blade, which he was privileged to carry on account of his connection, unworthily enough, with the legation.

Jones, seeing what lay in the wind, was not slow to reach back to the pocket where he carried a sevenshooter, and Merrick followed suit with a swing, proving that if the fracas actually came to a crisis he would not be found wanting.

Eye looked into eye, and the count saw a lurking devil in the skyblue orbs of the Yankee that somehow he did not fancy-Jones was one of those peculiar men who could smile exasperatingly even when committing hari kari.

So the count, having mentally computed his chances of surviving an encounter, and finding them next to nil, decided to defer the reekoning until a more opportune time, when he would be able to bring more powerful factors to bear.

Father Anselmo touched a bell. Almost immediately half a dozen strapping big monks entered the apartment, proving that this bodyguard could not have been far away at any time.

The count had thrust his sword back in its sheath with an angry movefather, seeking to present enough in- ment, and stood there with his arms folded, looking defiance.

"Before we quit these walls, reverend father, I demand once more that you place in my hands the packet you gively. "Come, my friend, we must solemnly promised to deliver, if I could prove my position. This I have done, and you have it on the honor of a name Frenchmen are at present pleased to particularly honor."

> There was no change in the old monk's demeanor; he had weighed his chances and decided upon his plan of action, nor could threats or cajoleries have any further influence upon

"I as positively refuse, Count Leon. and in order that you may have no doubts as to what my action in the premises might be, I have here in your presence solemnly delivered to the accredited agent of M. Darragh the packet that was committed to my care when Father Jean passed to immortal-

Jones smiled broadly as his hands eagerly fondled the little sealed package, while the count glared his unspeakable rage.

"Now, depart from under this roof, ungodly men, and pray you come here could present so plausible a case that | no more. But for the honor in which few men might hold out against his all true Frenchmen hold your name, Count Villebois, I would be tempted to complain of your desperate action to those high in authority, who know how to punish as well as reward. With the passing of this legacy into the hands of this worthy man my interest in the matter entirely ceases."

"And mine only takes a renewed lease of life," roared the baffled African explorer, as he turned and accompanied the doorkeeper out of the room. Neither of our friends had any desire to linger within those gloomy walls, and lost no time in saying farewell to the venerable father who had proved so good a friend in time of

It had ceased raining, but gloom hung heavy all around them, a gloom and fog better suited to old London than the gay French capital.

Perhaps it was an accident, but neither of them were of a mind to believe so. Rather were our friends ready to suspect that the count and his Muscovite ally had something to do with the cab's disappearance, since such men never lose an opportunity to harass an enemy when the opportunity arises.

Nor did their suspicions arise in vain. Without the least warning the two friends suddenly found themselves set upon by a squad of roughs, such as may be recruited at small expense from the slums of any great city.

When Jones saw the nature of the gang thus brought so rudely to their attention, he scorned to avail himself of the potent weapon of his outer coat. The vermin were not worth such exalted treatment. Each of our friends had gone forth with a stout cane, and in the hands of determined men these could be

CHAPTER III. Velvet Claws.

Jones and Merrick were full of fight, so that the opportunity to do a little work in the service of the community came to them not without its advan-

And the way they badgered those castaways from society was really a caution-not a head escaped punishment, and some received such a double dose that they grew rattled.

The result was a foregone conclusion, since heads never could be in the same class with clubs. And in less than a minute the friends had their enemies on the run, utterly demoralized by the vigorous treatment

Without attempting pursuit, the two friends made the best of their way to their hotel.

Naturally both of them were eager to see what manner of document had fallen into their possession, but it was too public a place to serve as a council chamber, so Jones proposed retiring to his den on an upper floor, where no one would be apt to disturb them.

They were in the act of ascending when an attache of the establishment touched Mark upon the shoulder, spoke a few words and handed him a

At the same time he could not but notice that the card was such as ladies use for calling.

"I'll come up presently, my dear fellow-third stage, number eighty-seven. Good-give me five minutes or so."

And as Jones climbed the stairs in preference to using the lift, he chanced to glance through the open door of the hotel parlors, and beheld a vision in white, seated on a divan; a woman so entrancingly beautiful that any man might be pardoned for bowing at her shrine upon the slightest encour-

Jones merely gave one of his little whistles that seemed to express his feelings so completely. For the charmer was the Princess Olgavitch, whom a wretched fate had that day thrown across Mark Merrick's path under most peculiar circumstances, which were of a nature to arouse within her certain feelings she had laughed at in others. Jones did not enjoy the sight of it a bit. He knew the character of the Continental Lurline, and how unscrupulous she had always been in playing with the holiest of human passions.

Meanwhile Merrick entered the parlor. He had reasons of his own for granting the lady's request for an interview as soon as she came in.

His curiosity had been aroused by a few words written in French upon "A matter of great importance." She began by thanking him over again for his generous and manly succor of the morning. Merrick raised his hand in protest, shaking his curly head as though declaring he had done nothing that deserved such high praise. "Ah, you talk as though you were a member of the czar's court, so studied, so diplomatic. But I must not find fault. Then, monsieur, listen, you and your friend are in danger."

Petrified Forest in Tripoll.

The great desert in the forbidden hinterland of Tripoli, northern Africa, which has not been visited by Europeans for fifty years, has now been explored by Mr. Edward Dodson, a young Englishman, who went out last March. The members of the expedition experienced much difficulty with the authorities; at one place they were put under arrest, and on two occasions threatened by Arabs, who prepared to ambush them, says the London Mail. One of the most notable things on the journey to Murzuk was the great petrified forest. For ten days they traveled across an area of petrified trees varying in circumference from seven feet to a few inches. Every branch of this forest was, of course, lying prone, and this, together with the presence of marine shells. showed that this part of the great Sahara had at one time been submerged. One night they were surrounded by thunder storms. No less than five distinct storms were in progress all around, and the guns and spears of the party became surrounded by a halo of phosphorescent light, which greatly alarmed the superstitious attendants, who regarded this as a fourth judgment upon them for traveling with "unbelievers."

Victor Hugo's Tune. As a matter of fact. Victor Hugo has a certain claim to be considered as a composer. When his "Lucrece Borgia" was being rehearsed, the question arose as to who should be asked to set the drinking song to music. Meyerbeer and Berlioz both offered, but the manager would not hear of either of them, says the London Express. He said he did not want music which would distract the attention of the audience from the play, and he told the conductor of the theater band to write the tune for the song. The poor man did his best, but he could make nothing of it. In despair he went to Hugo. "This is the sort of thing you want," cried the poet, and began shouting the words of the song to a note of music in his voice, but he banged the rhythm with his first upon the table announced his selection of Mr. H. Clay Evans' successor, Representative Calderhead of Kansas leaned over in his seat in the house and confided to Representative Landis of Indiana in a stage whisper, that Mr. Eugene F. Ware was to be made pension commissioner.

"Who in the mischief is Eugene F. Ware?" inquired Mr. Landis, a blank expression upon his face.

"Why, don't you know of Ware; did you never hear of him?" asked Mr. Calaerhead in surprise. "To acknowledge that is to confess ignorance of the literature of your country. Why, Ware is the celebrated 'Ironquill.'"

"Why, you don't mean to tell me that 'Ironquill' is to be made commissioner of pensions, do you?" exclaimed Mr. Landis, this time an expression on his face which indicated that he had been familiar with "Ironquill" since boyhood days, but was surprised to know he had been selected for the office named.

After Mr. Calderhead had left, Mr. Landis remarked to Representative Hill, who was sitting beside him:

"I never heard of 'Ironquill,' but I didn't intend to give myself away."

. . . Senator Berry came down from the national capitol in a street car one afternoon, accompanied by a constituent. The senator paid the car fare. Senator Cockrell was on the car. He leaned over to Senator Berry and

"Don't you know senator, that you shouldn't waste your money like that? You shouldn't pay car fare for all these constituents that come along. You can't afford it."

"And don't you know, senator," replied Senator Berry, "that when a gentleman pays another gentleman's car fare the other gentleman is in honor bound to set up the drinks?"

. . . A man named Johnson was a candidate for a consulship and the Iowa delegation were backing him for the place. They finally found a vacancy to which the president promised to appoint their candidate. Thereupon Mr. Johnson went to the state department to undergo the usual examination as to his fitness. He had no trouble until he reached the sixth question:

"How many Hessians came to the country to fight for the English?" Johnson didn't know, but he did not propose to be left entirely. This is what he wrote for the answer: "A great many more than ever went

About a month ago a constituent of Senator Depew came to him to seek his influence in getting an office.

"You write a letter telling what you want, and I will forward it with my indorsement," said the senator when he had heard the man's story. Yesterday the man met the senator in the capitol lobby.

"You remember telling me to write you a letter," he said. "O yes," was Mr. Depew's reply, as he cordially grasped the visitor by the hand. "Let me see. You sent me the letter didn't you, and if I remember rightly I indorsed it strongly." "No," said the man. "I never wrote the letter. I've been sick."

Since the warm weather began there has been a startling array of brilliant waistcoats in the senate, when the average age of the members of that body is considered, together with the somber dignity which they are wont to sustain. The other day Mr. Harris of Kansas, populist and 61 years old, took his seat and threw his coat open, revealing a pale-blue creation embellished with old-gold stars embroidered in silk. Mr. Allison of Iowa, the same day, wore a yellow waistcoat of such a brilliant hue that it would feaze the ordinary young man who had just passed his majority. Mr. Allison is 73 years old, but he carries his age lightly. Senator Pettus displayed be-

UST before the president | sents a funereal appearance, got into the swim by wearing a black silk waistcoat, which was plentifully polkadotted with white silk. Fully twothirds of the senators wore white vests. It is noticeable that among the members of that body the young men dress old and the old men dress young.

> "I suppose you are in the harness all right by this time," said an Iowa man to Secretary Shaw.

"Oh, yes," replied the secretary, "I am in the harness all right, but the trouble is I don't know whether to use the hold-back straps or the collar."

When Ex-Speaker Reed came to town the other day he deserted the uptown hotel where he usually stops, and went to a newer and more fashionable resort down town. After he had been here three days a friend met him on Fifteenth street, carpetbag in hand, wending his way to his old modest quarters.

"Going back to your old place?" queried the friend.

"Oh, yes," drawled Reed. "I've got to. I was invited down to the hotel by a wealthy client of mine, and now he's gone back to New York."

The pioneer linen duster of this season has arrived in the house. It was worn by Mr. Selby of Illinois, a long: black, comprehensive creation, which nearly sweeps the brilliantly carpeted floor as Mr. Selby's portly form moves Naturally Mr. Selby eliminates a coat from his attire when he pulls on this long black linen duster. With it he has a glossy, velvet waistcoat, which likewise becomes his portly figure. It might be unnecessary in the sweltering climate of Calhoun county but it affords him fine protection from the cold of the federal capitol.

President Roosevelt, according to the latest report, is going to take a hunting trip with Harry S. New of Indiana, in the Big Horn Valley, out in Wyoming. This reminds Senator Warren of a story.

"In the campaign of 1896, when Wyoming went Democratic," he said. "everything depended upon the vote of Big Horn county. One of the candidates for the supreme court was especially anxious.

"'How are you coming out?' some one asked the judge, while we were all waiting for the returns.

"'I think I am coming out the little end of the Big Horn."

Why the Baby Bied.

A West Philadelphia physician vouches for the anecdote of a nineyear-old boy of the neighborhood whose parents had given him the usual explanation of a doctor's visit preceding the arrival of a new baby. The population of the block had been increased by one; and the artless lad joyfully clapped his hands as he told mamma, papa and everybody of his acquaintance that he had been playing in the street when Mrs. -- 's little girl arrived he had seen the doctor bring it in a bag. The little stranger tarried only a few days; and, when the lad asked why white crepe fluttered from the door, his mother told him the baby had died.

"I knew it would die, mamma-I knew it! Why, the doctor had no holes in the bag for the baby to breathe through!"

Jows Ever Wanderers. At Lord Rothschild's magnificent house, or rather, palace, in Piccadilly, as at his country seat at Tring, and in all the other Rothschild residences in England and on the continent, says London M. A. P., there is always in a conspicuous place, generally among the cornices, a piece of stone or marble left undressed, uncarved, and in a rough and unfinished state, which, by reason of the beauty and splendor of its immediate surroundings, at once catches the eye. This is in compliance with the rule among all orthodox Jews that they should have no permanent abiding place until they are restored to the Holy Land, and this unfinished bit of stone is to mark that the abode is merely temporary and incomplete.

AN IRISH MULTI-MILLIONAIRE.

Began Life at 15, Now One of the World's Greatest Shipbuilders. The Morganizing of the Atlantic ocean trade, as the consolidation of the leading steamship lines effected by J. Pierpont Morgan is termed, has brought to public notice another forceful character and a remarkably successful business man. He is W. J. Pirrie, of the Harland & Wolf shipbuilding plant, at Belfast, Ireland, one of the largest of the kind in existence.

Mr. Pirrie was born in Quebec, where his parents, who were Irish, had settled in hopes of bettering their fortunes. When he was a year old he was left an orphan by the death of his father and soon was taken back to Ireland by his disappointed and sorrowing mother. At the age of 15 he entered the employ of Harland & Wolfe, then a comparatively small shipbuilding concern, as a draughtsman. He developed wonderful aptitude and at the age of 27 was admitted to a managing partnership When he was admitted to partnership the concern employed 1,000 hands. Today there are 10,000 people on the payrolls and the buildings of the plant cover 100 acres. Mr. Pirrie is now many times a millionaire.

PLENTY OF BOYS IN BERLIN.

Peculiar Distinction Enjoyed by the German Capital.

In general statisticians have to complain of the unequal increase in the number of female children as compared with that of males. It is interesting, therefore, to note that Berlin, the capital of the military monarchy of Prussia, has always broken the record in that respect, so that Kaiser Wilhelm need not fear that the ranks of his legions will be thinned. Last year 52,245 children were born in Berlin. Of these 27,077 were boys and 25,168 were girls, showing an increase to the credit of the male population of 1.909. Berlin, for some reason or other, seems to have the privilege of turning out more boys into the world, for, taking the numbers from 1891 to 1900, we find there was an average annual increase in the male progeny of the city during the ten years of 1,361 over the female-in other words, out of every 1,000 infants born, 513 were boys and 487 girls. The year 1820 was the record year last century, when 525 boys were born out of 1,000 babies. LABOUCHERE AN ECCENTRIC.

One of the Most Picturesque Characters in England.

Probably there is no one in the pubic eye in either Europe or America who has as many eccentricities Henry Labouchere, the Anglicized Frenchman who has for so long been conspicuous in the journalism of London and the politics of Great Britain. "Labby," as he is familiarly called, does not care a fig for public opinionor for the good will of any creature under the sun, yet in some respects he is immensely popular.

He is a radical of the radicals and represents Northampton in parliament. He has been involved in many libel suits and at one time Sir Charles Russell accused him of wearing shabby clothes in order to reduce the damages in such cases of litigation.

Remarkable Feat of Surgery. Walter Duryea, the young millionaire, who, while bathing at Glen Cove several years ago, made a dive that broke his neck, and whose retention of life is the direct result of probably the most remarkable surgical skill in the country, is declared to have smoked his first cigar in several years on Sunday. While Mr. Duryea is entirely paralyzed from the arm pits down, as well as his arms from the biceps, he can move his head with comparative freedom and enjoys his meals with much relish. He thinks he will get well.

MINERS RESORT TO THE BOYCOT

Dealers Decline to Wait on Customers Who Are Not Union Men.

OPERATORS ARE SATISFIED

Issue a Statement in Which They Say the Pumps Are Manned and the Mines Are Being Kept Clear of Water.

The boycott is now the weapon the striking mine workers are using with much effect. The edict seems to have gone forth that there shall be no violence, but that the boycott lines shall be rigidly drawn, not only around those who work in defiance of the strike but about all their relations. It is now next to impossible for these unfortunates to make any purchases. The wise men refuse to serve them.

Wilkesbarre and its surrounding country seems to be the storm center of this form of warfare. The tradesmen apparently are overawed and lend themselves to the work of trying to starve out those who persist in working. In some instances this form of tyranny is having harsh results. A man employed by the Delaware and Hudson company refused to obey the strike order and continues at work. His brother, a cripple, is a school teacher and has been informed by the school committee that he must give up his school unless his brother quits work. Two other brothers and a sister have been discharged from places where they were employed.

A committee waited on the school board of Plains and demanded the discharge of Miss McCae, who has an uncle who is working as an engineer in pumping out one of the mines.

All Belong to Unions. Everybody who works here, including clerks, is a member of some kind of a union. This makes the boycott weapon a powerful one and it will be used from now on for all it is worth.

Mr. Mitchell said he had received some reports from the strike in the Virginias, but not enough on which to make a statement.

The following statement of the situation was authorized by the operators: "At the end of the first four weeks of the strike our position is very satisfactory. While we have no miners or other coal producers at work we have enough engineers, firemen, and pump runners to keep our mines from being damaged and are not only confident of keeping them. but are adding to the force as we need them. The position of the companies is perfectly secure, not a single one has granted any of the demands made by mine workers or steam makers, and not one intends to

There is no doubt that Mr. Mitchell is making a strong effort to induce the strikers to keep the peace, for he fully grasps the fact that a single serious disturbance would bring out the state troops.

DEATH ON EXCURSION TRAIN

One Man Killed, Three Fatally Hurt and Forty Seriously Wounded.

One man was killed, three probably fatally injured and over forty others more or less seriously hurt by the wreck at Black river of a Detroit and Mackinaw excursion train carrying over 500 people. The train, which was under the auspices of the German Aid society of Alpena, 'Mich., was made up of an engine and twelve coaches.

The killed: August Grosinski. Seriously injured: John McCarthy, Ernst Legatski, Jacob Mondorff, Otto Knowsky, Louis Peppler, George Boyne, Carl Beyer, P. J. Goldsmith, Ernest Des Jardins, Joseph Swallow, Thomas Connors, Christian Wolff, Jerry Sherrette, John Beck, J. C. Roison, Sylvester Klebba, Charles McDonald, Mrs. Charles McDonald.

At Black River the tender jumped the track, and when Engineer Hopper set the air brakes the sudden stop threw the first three coaches into the ditch. The first car was cut in two. and it was in this coach that Grosinski met his death. The escape from death of others was miraculous. Grosinski's little son occupied the same seat with him, but was uninjured.

Illinois War Claims.

Washington special: The comptroller of the treasury has reopened the claim of the state of Illinois for interest paid and discounts on account of bonds issued by the state for raising funds for arming, equipping, etc., troops for the service of the United States during the civil war and for expenses incurred in negotiating the sale of the bonds. The comptroller reverses the former decision made in 1889 and finds that there is due the state $774,650, which will be certified to congress for an appropriation.

FILIPINO AMAZON WITH A RECORD The Late "Macabebe Marie," a Warrior and Spy.

War is apt to produce eccentric and romantic characters. The names of Molly Pitcher of the revolution, and Belle Boyd, the confederate spy, are more firmly fixed in the minds of the readers of American history than some of the leading generals of the contending armies. The Philippine war is no exception to the rule.

"Macabebe Marie," who died recently, was known to every soldier in the Philippines, and was considered one of the shrewdest spies in the American service. At one time she was attached to Gen. Funston's personal staff. Originally this woman was an insurgent captain, but the government of Aguinaldo failed to keep its promises with her, and she left it to join the Americans. It seems that Aguinaldo, as commander-in-chief, issued an order that any officer who might be wounded while in service would receive fifty pesos. "Macabebe Marie" was wounded and claimed the bounty. Before she heard from Aguinaldo she received two more wounds and then asked for 150 pesos. Her claims were rejected and she deserted.

She is said to have been a very beautiful woman and quite accomplished. Her husband was killed by the Spanish forces and she took his place. When the American forces landed she was attached to Aguinaldo's personal command. Her favorite attack was from ambush, at which she became an adept.

After Twenty Years

Lusks Springs, Ind., June 9th .- It would be hard to find a happier man than Mr. William Catterson of this place has been for the last few weeks. For twenty years his wife has been an invalid with a complication of diseases. Neuralgia, Rheumatism and generally broken down constitution.

Mr. Catterson had done everything that loving care could suggest, but in vain-his wife only grew worse.

Recently, however, he heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills and determined to give them a trial, and was overjoyed at the splendid result.

From the very beginning of the treatment she commenced to improve till now she is nearly well and Mr. Catterson is rejoicing. He says: Nothing ever did her so much good. We will always praise Dodd's Kidney Pills for the good work they have done for us."

The Mesmerized Hat.

Provide yourself with an old hat and an ordinary black pin bent in the shape of the letter C. Put the hat on a table, crown upwards, and secrete the pin in your right hand. You will borrow the hat from somebody in the audience. On receiving it, take it in your left hand and while walking to the table place the right hand inside the hat, quickly push the point of the pin up through the crown and stand the hat on the table. You make a few passes over the hat as if you were mesmerizing it. Lay your left hand flat on the hat. Slip your second 11ger in the hook and slowly lift the hat from the table. After this bring the hat to the table remove the hand. and in returning the hat you can easily withdraw the pin.

Long and Short Sleeves.

Sleeves are striking. While many elbow sleeves are shown, long sleeves are equally as fashionable. Undersleeves are rather liked for the more expensive waists, and the plain bishop sleeve with narrow cuff is a general favorite. The puff is a trifle larger than last season; in fact, sleeves are a little larger all around.

husband's best target score, although he has the reputation of being a mighty hunter. Her record is by no means confined to target practice either. When she was Princess of Montenegro hunting was her favorite sport, and she has had many exciting adventures with big game.

When she went to Italy as Princess of Naples she missed her hunting more than any other feature of her girl life. The prince had targets put up in the gardens at Capo di Monte villa, and shooting matches were held there. The princess invariably carried off the honors, even when pitted against her husband's men friends or the prince himself. Still target practice did not quite take the place of real hunting, so her husband guessed

This time he gave his wife the Island of Monte Cristo, to have and to hold, as a happy hunting ground, and there she had glorious sport with her guns and her dogs, every season, until the assassination of King Humbert called her to a throne.

Now she has left off killing game and has gone back to target shooting, but she does not neglect her practice or lose her enthusiasm.

An Old Goose.

What is sauce for the goose is said to be, or should be, sauce for the gander, and that is generally apple sauce. But at Chapel St. Leonards in England a goose escaped all kinds of dressing and died at the ripe age of twenty-eight years. She hatched out nine goslings regularly year after year but few of her descendant survived her. As the mere man who owned her got eight shillings apiece for the brood she may be said to have laid silver eggs, if not golden ones. At any rate she yielded him the tidy sum of £100 16s., her family having reached the amazing total of 252. She was a familiar and respected figure, but it is hard to say why a burial service was held over her grave and the bell tolled.

Honor to Rosecrans' Memory.

With imposing ceremonies the remains of Major General William Starke Rosecrans were reinterred in Arlington cemetery, under the direction of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. The services were presided over by General David B. Henderson, speaker of the House of Representatives President Roosevelt, members of his cabinet, senators and representatives and a host of friends, including many of his old army associates, were present to pay their last tribute to the noted soldier.

Eight Messages Over One Wire

It is said that after prolonged experiments in sending four telegraphic messages each way simultaneously over a single wire, the German government has accepted the octuple transmitter invented by the late Prof. Rowland of the Johns Hopkins University. Between 300 and 350 words per minute were transmitted with success and it is understood that the German government will introduce the Rowland system between Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne, Leipzig and Frank-

The milk of his pocketbook containing over stand is to be removed to the site of $100, by Henry Roloff. The circumstances of the alleged hold up are, in brief, as follows.

Mr. Roloff purchased some goods of the company, signing an agreement presented by Mr. Medill. Mr. Roloff regretted signing the agreement and he met Mr. Medill and requested that Lake camp M. W. A., at Waukegan, he step to the rear of Schwemm's liv-

It is said that several papers which was accused, but the pocketbook, the money and papers were gone. The company offered to settle with Mr. Roloff without going into court but Roloff said he wanted to find out if he was guilty or not. The judge or justice in Chicago will enlighten Henry on the subject.

There is something queer about the matter. That Mr. Roloff would commit the act as charged, seems hardly reasonable, and if he did so it was not for the purpose of securing money, but simply his note. Anyway you look at the affair Mr. Roloff acted contrary to law, and circumstances are not favorable to his case.

William Meister, Sr.

William Meister, a resident of this vicinity since 1856, died Monday, June 9, at a hospital in Chicago, where for four years he has been under treatment for inflammatory rheumatism, a disease of which he suffered many years. Mr. Meister was born at Waldendorf, Grand Duchy of Anhalt, Dessau, Germany, Feb. 28, 1831. In 1862 he married Louise Lohse. Three children were born to them. His wife died in 1869.

He soon married again, his second wife being Mrs. Sophia Biefeld. This wife brought to him two girls and one son by her previous husband. They took the name of Meister. The second wife died in 1891. For four years of his illness Mr. Meister was cared for by his son William and wife at the old homestead, 21 miles north of this village, 80 acres of the original 160, being in name of decedent. Four years ago the old gentleman's condition become almost hopeless and he was removed to a Chicago hospital.

The funeral was held at St. Paul' church, this village, Thursday noon, Rev. Alfred Menzel conducting the service. Interment was in the German cemetery.

A Pleasant Outing.

The seventh and eighth grade pupils READING, Painter of Seville ... of the public school accepted the invitation of their teacher, Miss Minnie M. Batterton, and enjoyed an excursion to Chicago Saturday. The party while there visited the Field Columbian museum at Jackson park and the conservatory at Washington park. A picnic dinner, furnished by Miss Batterton, was served mid the beautiful surroundings of Washington park. A pleasant time is what the children report despite the heavy rain during the afternoon.

The party returned by the 7:45 train happy, though tired and somewhat disheveled. They have only words of praise for their teacher and the generous act which afforded all so much pleasure. The following were members of the party:
