

THE BARRINGTON REVIEW.

VOL. 17. NO. 37.

BARRINGTON, ILL., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1902.

$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

PALATINE HAPPENINGS.

Events Past, Present and Future of Village and Vicinity.

Gathered and Compiled by A. G. Smith, Local Editor.

L. Peck will make cider every Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bicknase returned home Saturday.

Dean Lockwood has returned to Harvard college, where he enters his second year course.

John Umbdenstock will build a house on his lot, next to Mrs. Bierman's place, this fall.

Guy Baker of Columbus, O., returned to Palatine Wednesday for a short visit with his parents.

Henry Julian of Kansas visited his brother, Charles E. Julian, and family in this place last week.

Charles Julian, Jr., has gone to Indianapolis, where he will live with relatives and attend school.

Mrs. Shaddle started for Indiana Saturday to visit friends. Her sister of Chicago accompanied her.

A. S. Olms presented the Palatine band with a new set of music books, which they highly appreciate.

Mr. Bier is having his house, which he lately bought of Miss Garlip, remodeled and fixed up in nice shape.

We re-published the assessment ordinance for the year 1902, as many failed to notice same when published.

FOR SALE—My home in Palatine, lot 156x254 feet, 10 rooms. Five minutes walk from depot. Price $2,500.

DOLLIE B. WEST.

Mr. and Mrs. James Morris started for Vermont last week, where they will visit with old acquaintances and relatives. They will be gone two or three weeks.

There is more building going on in Palatine than for several years. Five houses are in course of erection and we understand others are to be built this fall and next spring.

Mrs. C. E. Julian's mother, Mrs. Vandergrift, who has been visiting with her, has returned to her home in Indianapolis. Misses Laura and Ella Martins and Miss McClellan also returned home Saturday.

George Fletcher of Chicago, brother-in-law of Frank Keyes, has secured the contract for white-washing most of the big exposition buildings at St. Louis. He has already made contracts for $30,000, and will probably get more of the smaller buildings to whitewash.

The board of directors of the Palatine cemetery have found that they have but little jurisdiction over the cemetery and have decided to try and incorporate as was intended by the donors of the property. Many lot owners have already signed a petition for incorporation.

The 113th regiment Illinois volunteer veterans' association will hold their reunion at Watseka, Ill., Wednesday and Thursday, October 1 and 2. A. R. Baldwin of this place is secretary of the association, and the Relief Corps of this place will ask the regiment to come to Palatine next year.

The surveyors for the new electric line have been surveying here all week and seem to be in earnest about the matter. They have decided to enter Chicago at 47th avenue, instead of Oak Park, as the latter place is not in sympathy with electric roads. This changes route from Palatine through Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Park Ridge and on into Chicago.

Strike at Zion City.

Zion City is but worldly after all. It is in the midst of its first strike. The steam fitters went on strike because their promised increase in wages was not forthcoming. Their demands were taken under advisement, but their pay envelopes were not fattened and Saturday the men struck. A couple of the "faithful" went to Milwaukee to get steam-fitters to take the place of the strikers, but were unsuccessful as the scale of wages paid in Zion City was too low. The men of strike say they will not return to work until they receive the advance.

It is reported that nearly all the building crafts at work in Zion City made a demand for increased wages several weeks ago, and their action will be guided by the result of the steam-fitters strike.

What We Wear.

One of the "prosperity" claims is that clothing is cheaper than it was ten years ago. This is true as to some lines of clothing, but there is reason for it. It appears that the trusts are not only selling their products at a cheaper than at home, but also are furnishing a poorer quality of goods for home consumption. The truth of this as to clothing is set forth most explicitly and emphatically in the census bulletin on woolen manufactures, just issued. In speaking of the great hosiery and knit goods industry this bulletin says:

"Formerly the larger proportion of the raw material consumed in this industry (hosiery and knit goods) was wool, so that it was proper to combine the reports of this industry with those of the wool manufacture. At the present time the cotton fiber predominates so greatly that the industry can hardly be considered as a branch of the wool industry, but should be treated as an independent or cognate industry."

Novel Courage in the Pulpit.

The action of the Lexington, Ky., clergymen in excommunicating from his pulpit the prominent and professedly christian men who allow their names to figure in bogus investment concerns and quick-rich enterprises is a refreshing example of courageous and outspoken denunciation of a present-day evil which might well be followed by other men of the clerical profession. The occasion for these remarks arose from the published report of a certain investment company which had just appeared, showing that the stockholders did not put up a dollar of alleged capital stock, and had created an expense fund of the funds of the company, the surplus from which was divided between them. The brave preacher's condemnation derived particular force and point from the fact that several men in the congregation addressed where known to have figured in the concern in various capacities. These were advised to pay back the money they had taken unlawfully, and the brothers and sisters who had sought to get money quick and easy to pray for forgiveness instead of grieving over their losses.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, the new justice of the supreme court, is said to have used this language in a judicial decision: "If workingmen may combine for getting the most they can for their labor, just as capital may combine with a view of getting the greatest possible return, it must be true that when combined they have the same liberty that combined capital has to support their interests by arguments, persuasion and the bestowal or refusal of those advantages which they otherwise lawfully control, so long as they do no violence."

WOODMEN WAR IS ON

First Gun Fired Last Week at Peoria, Illinois.

C. T. Heydecker of Waukegan Candidate for Head Consul.

The formation of the Illinois Woodmen's Protective association, with C. T. Heydecker of Waukegan at the head, has aroused much interest in Woodmen circles throughout the state and its purpose is to oppose the adoption of the re-adjustment plan, which is indorsed and agitated by Head Consul Northcott and the officers of the Modern Woodmen.

Two years ago the question of a reserve fund was voted on by every camp in the country and the proposition was defeated by an overwhelming majority, which is an indication that the delegates against re-adjustment will control the next convention.

The meeting at Peoria was called by D. A. Nauget of Princeton, publisher of the True Woodmen, and the principal address was made by J. G. Johnson, general attorney of the order. He said that similar organizations had been effected in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Michigan. The following are the officers of the permanent organization:

President—C. T. Heydecker, Waukegan.

Vice-president—G. Morgan, Aledo.

Secretary—E. E. Hank, Peoria.

Executive committee—C. T. Heydecker, M. H. Cleary, M. H. Goodrich and H. Ritchmeyer.

The most important business was the unanimous adoption of the following resolution.

WHEREAS, The present executive officers of the M. W. A. are exercising all the influence of their positions and are using the financial resources of the order to secure the adoption of a financial policy of the order in radical opposition to its parts, be it

Resolved, That there be and is hereby organized an association to resist and defeat such purpose, the organization to be known as the Illinois Woodmen Protective association.

Resolved, That the purpose of the organization is to unalterably oppose the financial policy of the present executive officers of the M. W. A. known as the re-adjustment plan, in the present form or any modification thereof, heretofore, or that may be hereafter proposed.

Resolved, That the organization is opposed to any departure from the present financial plan in force, that will in any way alter or change the relative financial burden of the members.

Resolved, That this organization is opposed to what is known as the step rate method of assessment.

Resolved, That this organization is opposed to any plan that will create a reserve fund, but is favorable to such a financial administration of the M. W. of A. affairs as to always maintain a conservative financial balance to meet all exigencies.

Resolved, That this organization is opposed to the present expenditure of the general fund of the M. W. of A. for a partisan presentation of the present readjustment plan advocated by the executive officers of the M. W. of A. at the expense of the general membership.

Resolved, That each camp of the M. W. of A. in Illinois may become a member of this organization by adopting resolutions showing approval of the principles and purposes herein set forth and notifying the secretary of this association.

MATTERS POLITICAL.

A. K. Stearns Out For Representative—Outlook for McDermott.

The report which was started some time ago that A. K. Stearns was circulating nomination papers preparatory to an independent race for the state legislature, is given another boost by the Belvidere Daily Northwestern which says:

"A. K. Stearns of Waukegan is out with nomination papers as an independent candidate for the legislature in this district. Stearns was until recently editor of the Waukegan Sun, selling that paper to Frank Fowler of Chicago. He was a candidate for the republican nomination against George R. Lyon, and alleges the latter won the nomination through trickery, stultifying the wishes of his constituents. It is claimed that Lyon agreed to support Mason at the Lake county convention and violated his pledge at the senatorial convention. Stearns will be a Mason candidate and expects to poll a large vote in each of the three counties in the district."

Mr. Stearns' expectations as to the support he will receive are of the imaginative kind. We have no means of knowing the sentiment of Boone county republicans regarding the candidacy of Mr. Stearns, but here in his home county he will have but a small share of the republican support.

The Waukegan Gazette would like very much to have the democrats of this senatorial district nominate Ald. Peter McDermott of that city for the position of minority representative. The Gazette says:

"The unequivocal and united support given McDermott in the convention at Libertyville last Thursday in again making him the choice of Lake county democracy for representative in the general assembly makes his chances for nomination brighter than at any time since the first session of the late remarkable deadlock senatorial convention. Besides the certain assurance thus given that Lake county democrats intend to stick to McDermott till the finish, there is evidence of nervousness on the part of democracy in both Boone and McHenry counties. There is among the masses the outspoken opinion that the next convention will result in the easy and speedy nomination of Mr. McDermott."

After commenting on Lake county re-instructing for McDermott, the Belvidere Republican says: "That means McDermott will be the next representative whom the democrats will send to Springfield," said an active and well-posted Belvidere democrat when shown the telegram. "He will get the votes necessary to win from McHenry county. In that county Desmond will withdraw in the open and Johnnie Donnelly will go after it in the dark. They won't all support him. Just put it down that Peter McDermott will get the nomination."

GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS.

After All Said and Done, They Are the Only Girls Who Can Make a Happy Home.

To fit herself for married life every girl should learn to fulfill the duties of a good housekeeper. No matter how old she may be, if she is not capable of managing a house in every department of it, she is not old enough to marry. When she promises to take the position of wife and home-maker, the man who holds her promise has every right to suppose that she is competent to fulfill it. If she proves incompetent or unwilling, he has good reason to consider that he has made an unwise contract.

No matter how plain the home may be, if it is in accordance with the husband's means, and he finds it neatly kept, and the meals, no matter how simple, served from shining dishes and clean table linen, that husband will leave his home, morning after morning, with loving words and thoughts, and look ahead with eagerness to the time when he can return.

Let a young woman play the piano and acquire every accomplishment within her power—the more the better—for every one will be that much more power to be used in making a happy home. At the same time if she does not go to kitchen if necessary and cheerfully prepare an appetizing meal and serve it neatly after it is prepared she had better defer her marriage until she learns.

If girls would thoroughly fit themselves for the position of intelligent housekeepers before they marry, there would be fewer discontented, unhappy wives, more happy homes and contented husbands.

Ferris Wheel Park

Week of Sunday, September 14, will be the last vaudeville show of the season at the Ferris Wheel Park. The wheel will run until October 1. For the last week the vaudeville program will consist of the following: Delmare sisters, Irving Jones, last of Jones, Grant and Jones, Kent and French, comedy singing and dancing; Ruth Nelta, Schaefer and DeKamp, vocalists; Carmontella, equilibrist; Ray Steinman and Connelly and Kane. This is a very strong bill and should draw large numbers to the popular north side place of amusement.

If you need a manager to look after your affairs, run your business and handle it successfully, the place to find him is around on the sunny side of any store in the town. You will find him there telling how somebody else's business ought to be run to make it go, rehearsing all the gossip that is rife about town, and doing many other little things that are useful to people generally. Usually a visit to his home will reveal his wife at the wash tub or wood pile, the fence down, and the place out of repair in general. This is a picture of what can be seen almost any season in the year.

ODD PHENOMENA IN ST. VINCENT

Stream of Fire Supplants Water in the Bed of the Rabacca River.

SOUFRIERE SUMMIT CHANGES

Aspect of the Mountain Differs Materially From Its Appearance Before the Eruptions of Sept. 3, New Ridges and Valleys Having Formed.

The sights in the Windward district of the island of St. Vincent, resulting from the eruption of the Soufriere volcano Sept. 3, are very interesting. The Rabacca river is a stream of fire a quarter of a mile or more wide.

The greater part of the Rabacca estate is wrapped in vapor and there are mimic eruptions everywhere. The river bed is continuously throwing up columns and dense clouds of steam, mud and pebbles.

Eruption Makes Land.

The land has spread farther seaward and is changing considerably the appearance of the district from what it was prior to Sept. 3. This was probably caused by the ejecta that flowed down the slopes filling the sea about the coast.

Fifty laborers, deceived by the apparent quietude of the volcano, were working within the fire zone at the extreme north end of the island, when they suddenly saw evidence of an approaching disturbance of the mountain.

Electric flashes and an outpour of gasses drove them to their shelter, where they remained, at the base of the mountain, throughout the terrible night, while forked lightning darted in all directions around them. The men escaped unhurt.

Electric Display.

The port officer of Chateau Belair, who saw the Soufriere from the sea, made the following report:

Mountain Is Lower.

"The mountain is considerably lower than before Sept. 3, and the appearance of the summit has changed. A large proportion has evidently been blown off and the hill has a much more jagged contour. The neighborhood is altered.

"New ridges, valleys and a strange ravine have been cut in the west side of the volcano down to what was formerly the Carib settlement of Haracal, where liquid matter was seen flowing during the afternoon of Sept. 3.

Crops Are Ruined.

"The northwest estates, Petit Hordelle and Sharpes, are covered with from ten to twenty inches of gritty substance. The crops of arrowroot and cocoa are ruined."

"During the night of Sept 4 there was a terrific storm, accompanied by blinding lightning and terrible peals of thunder and a moaning sound from the agitated crater.

CLEAR MEN UNDER ARREST

Leaves a Note Stating That Thompson, Claffy and Counselman Had Nothing to Do With the Crime, Which He Admits Perpetrating.

Riceville, Iowa, special: That it was William Bartholin whose body was found in a field near this place last Friday was proved beyond possibility of doubt when the remains were exhumed in the potters' field. Identification was made easy by the fact that the teeth showed the same dental work that was described by a Chicago dentist as having been done for Bartholin and by William Mitchell's instantaneous recognition of the dead man's features.

Takes His Own Life.

Thus, exulting by suicide the double crime of murdering his mother, Mrs. Anna Bartholin, and his sweetheart, Minnie Mitchell, young Bartholin, who fled from his home Aug. 5, has finally solved his own part in one of the most puzzling mysteries that have ever confronted the Chicago police department.

Letter From a Woman.

Burdened with remorse, shaken by the constant fear of capture and driven to distraction by the discovery that a man for whom he was working had read a mysterious letter from a woman which may have disclosed his identity, Bartholin had gone to a corner of a lonely field, propped himself against a shock of grain and, presumably with the same revolver that ended Miss Mitchell's life, put a bullet in his brain.

Accuses Minnie Mitchell.

In the confession which he left behind him the desperate fugitive admitted his crimes and in addition left an imputation upon the character of the girl he had slain. This was an insinuation that Minnie Mitchell had more than an innocent knowledge of the killing of Mrs. Bartholin at 4310 Calumet avenue on the night of July 7. The words bearing this blind intelligence are:

"It was all Minnie and I could do."

Body Is Bartholin's.

"It is Bartholin without possibility of mistake," said Mr. Mitchell, brother of the murdered Chicago girl, as soon as his gaze rested on the swollen, discolored face.

Bartholin came and lived here unsuspected. He died partly solving partly deepening the mystery of his tragedies, and a mysterious woman forced the climax. This woman lives in Chicago and she has friends who are still Bartholin's friends.

Adds More Mystery.

Somewhere in Chicago to-day that woman mourns the death of her sweetheart, though he died a murderer and suicide. It is this woman, one who has known Bartholin's movements since he fled from the scene of his outrages, that hastened the self-destruction of the young criminal. The police have never known of her existence. She is the missing link in the chain of evidence that all efforts to complete have failed.

Bartholin's Confession.

Following is the confession found in a pocket of a coat Bartholin wore when he killed himself:

"To Whom It May Concern: I wish to state that I am the Bartholin the police are looking for. I also wish to certify that I had no assistance of any kind from anyone. Thompson, Claffy and Counselman are all as innocent as an unborn child and should be freed at once.

"I cannot go into details in regard to the crime. They were not planned. It was all Minnie and I could do. My mind is wandering. Such a drop in life in so short a time, two months ago traveling in the best company, to-day leading the life of hoboes, a murderer.

"I intended to go into details and tell all, but I can't get my mind centered. Even my handwriting is disgraceful, but above all things I ask clear everybody from under suspicion, there is no second party and I am the last. William J. Bartholin. Riceville, Ia., Aug. 31.

NEGRO PURCHASES A VAGRANT

Black Man Is Sold Into Servitude for One Year for $20.

Shelbyville, Ky., dispatch: Fisher Milton, a negro convicted of vagrancy, was sold into servitude for twelve months at public auction to David Murphy, a respectable negro farmer. Murphy bid $20 for the prisoner and stated that he was not governed by sentiment in making the purchase, but that he thought he was getting the worth of his money, and that he intended to force Milton to work hard.

Shah Causes Arrest.

Paris cable: As the Shah of Persia was returning to his hotel a man who claims to be an Armenian was arrested for trying to approach his majesty's carriage. The prisoner said his only intention was to ask charity.

Illinois Leaves England.

London cable: The United States battleship Illinois, flagship of the American squadron in European waters, with Rear Admiral Arent S. Crowninshield on board, left Sheerness for the Mediterranean.

RAIL INTERESTS GET TOGETHER

Rockefeller and Gould Join in Pact of Vital Importance to Both.

COMPLETE MERGER MAY COME

Likely to Form One Gigantic System of Their Holdings, Thus Forming an Organization That Would Possess Great Power in Its Sphere.

New York city special: Gould and Rockefeller in a community of interests is the next great railway combine. The plans involve a close working alliance between the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Missouri Pacific, involving the possible merger of the entire Gould system and the Rockefeller railways. Reports of an actual merger sent the Missouri Pacific and St. Paul stock booming skyward on the stock exchanges of the country, and at many places it is believed that more than the offensive and defensive alliance of the two railway powers is under way.

Gets Chicago Entrance.

George J. Gould, by the alliance with Rockefeller, gets a better entrance into Chicago for his western roads, and Rockefeller secures a southern outlet for the St. Paul system. The Missouri Pacific and St. Paul come together at Omaha and Kansas City, and the alliance of the systems means a huge saving in traffic business and greater rapidity in handling freight from the Dakotas to the Gulf.

Keep Their Own Counsel.

Those in control of the two great systems refuse to talk of their plans. Railroad men and stock market leaders believe that an actual merger is not intended, but that the agreement entered into will bring the roads into as close relations as those now existing between the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington.

The Rockefeller or Standard Oil interests have controlled the Milwaukee and St. Paul for the last two years, and they also control the Missouri, Kansas and Texas.

Advantageous to Both.

The Milwaukee and St. Paul has no independent outlet west of the Missouri river, and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas has none east of Hannibal, Mo.

The Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain and other Gould roads on the other hand have no other important outlet east of the Mississippi river than the Wabash, which does not afford them all the facilities they need, especially to territory in the north and northwest.

With the lines controlled by the Rockefellers allied closely to the Gould lines, the latter would be placed in a most advantageous position to meet the competition of the Rock Island, the Santa Fe, the Harriman and the Hill systems.

Close Relations Prevail.

Close relations between the Rockefeller and Gould have prevailed for some time, and the Missouri Pacific and Milwaukee and St. Paul have for years been working together in harmony.

The Milwaukee and St. Paul will give the Missouri Pacific a much shorter line from Kansas City to Chicago than it has by the Wabash, and it will give a good line to St. Paul and the Dakotas. The Wabash of course would continue to be the direct outlet for the Missouri Pacific to the east from St. Louis, the Milwaukee and St. Paul having no St. Louis line.

Would Reach 'Frisco.

In connection with the Missouri Pacific and the Rio Grande, which is a Gould road, the Milwaukee and St. Paul would secure the shortest line to Salt Lake City, and from that point to San Francisco the Central Pacific branch of the Southern Pacific, a Harriman road, would undoubtedly furnish the desired outlet to San Francisco.

DEPOSITORS ARE TO LOSE $44,000

Examiner of the Defunct Chamberlain Bank in Nebraska Reports.

Lincoln, Neb., dispatch: Examiner Hartwell has filed with the state banking board his first report of the condition of the failed Chamberlain bank of Tecumseh. He finds apparent assets of $137,315, but of these he believes $110,651 to be worthless, leaving in round numbers but $27,000 to pay claims of depositors and others of $71,617. In other words, the loss to depositors is $44,000, to say nothing of losses to stockholders.

Santa Fe Advances Wages.

San Bernardino, Cal., special: Division Master Mechanic Park of the Santa Fe shops here has officially announced that hereafter the machinists on this division will receive $3.50 instead of $3.25 a day, as heretofore.

New Sewer for Waukegan.

Waukegan, Ill., dispatch: The council has ordered the construction of an extensive sewer system to drain the south part of the city, which is thickly settled. It will cost about $30,000 and will empty into Lake Michigan.

Ants Invade Village.

Paris cable: The village of Nerac has been evacuated for perhaps the most peculiar reason on record. An army of ants invaded the village in such great numbers that the inhabitants were compelled to leave.

GERMANS SINK REBEL GUNBOAT

Firminist Vessel Sent to the Bottom by the Warship Panther.

ESCAPING CREW STARTS FIRE

United States Not Likely to Be Involved in International Difficulties With Kaiser's Government, as Monroe Doctrine Is Not Affected.

The gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot, which was in the service of the Firminist party, has been sunk at the entrance of the harbor of Gonaives by the German gunboat Panther. The crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot left her before she went down.

The Panther arrived at Port au Prince Sept. 5 and received instructions from the German government to capture the Crete-a-Pierrot. She started immediately for Gonaives, the seat of the Firminist government.

Demands Surrender.

The Panther found the Crete-a-Pierrot in the harbor of Gonaives and the commander of the German gunboat informed Admiral Killick on the Crete-a-Pierrot that he must remove his crew and surrender his vessel in five minutes time. Admiral Killick asked that this time be extended to fifteen minutes. This request was granted on the condition that the arms and ammunition on board the Crete-a-Pierrot should be abandoned when her crew left her.

Rebels Fire Vessel.

The crew of the Crete-a-Pierrot left that vessel amid great disorder. At the end of fifteen minutes the Panther sent a small boat, carrying an officer and twenty sailors, who were to take possession of the Firminist gunboat. When these men had arrived at a point about thirty yards from the Crete-a-Pierrot flames were seen to break out on board of her. She had been fired by her crew before they left her.

Sunk by the Panther.

The Panther then fired on the Crete-a-Pierrot until she was completely immersed. Thirty shots all told were fired.

There is much feeling at Cape Haytien against the Firminists, and their cause is considered to be a bad one. Soldiers are leaving there to attack St. Marc. Port au Prince is calm.

NO FEAR OF A MIX-UP.

United States Not Likely to Be Involved in the Trouble.

No international question of moment is likely to result over the destruction of the Firminist gunboat by a German warship. No official report of the incident has reached Washington. Therefore the few officials who are in the city are unable to discuss it intelligently.

The disposition of the question ultimately depends upon conditions which will be definitely ascertained before any action whatever is taken. It is assumed that the German naval officer acted under a construction that the Haytian gunboat was a pirate. The Haytian revolutionists have not been recognized as belligerents, and their rights upon the high sea under international law is a complex question, which, following precedent, will be decided by each government concerned. It is not believed that the Monroe doctrine will enter into any controversy that may arise, or that the United States will be directly interested.

NEELY FACES MORE TROUBLE

To Be Prosecuted on Embezzlement Charge in Federal Courts.

New York city special: Edward K. Jones, special assistant attorney general of the United States, who has been retained by the Cuban government in the prosecution of Charles F. W. Neely, charged with embezzlement while chief of the bureau of finance of the postoffice department in the island, gave out a statement concerning the action that will be taken in order to recover the funds. Mr. Jones said that the amnesty guaranteed by the Cuban government extended only to the criminal offense. Neely when first apprehended had $6,000 on his person. This was confiscated and is now in the hands of the government at Washington. His $20,000 bail was attached, and he is bonded for $50,000 by the Fidelity Surety company of Maryland. The first hearing in the proceedings against him will be held in the federal court in this city some time in October.

LITTLE MISS MILLIONS

OR,

THE WITCH OF MONTE CARLO.

A ROMANCE OF THE RIVIERA.

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE.

Author of "Miss Pauline of New York," "The Spider's Web," "Miss Caprice," etc., etc.

Copyright, 1900, Street and Smith, New York.

Really it mattered little to her whether empire or republic ruled in France; her despotic sway could go on just the same, in Orient or Occident, wherever men with enormous bank accounts and hearts to break could be found.

She cared more about breaking the cool disdain of Mark Merrick and bringing him to her feet than for the Orleanist cause.

Merrick did not know what it was all about.

He was soon to learn.

When those men began to close in like dogs around the quarry at bay, Merrick discovered, to his intense disgust and chagrin, that he was almost in the center of the disturbance.

Of course, his only thought was of Constance and his fear lest she should be injured in case of any rioting or bomb-throwing in the direction of the heir apparent to the Russian throne.

"Have no fear, darling," he said, steadily, perhaps glad of a chance to address the alarmed girl so tenderly, and again thrust his personality between her shrinking form and danger.

The princess, eagerly watching every move, saw that the man they had believed to be the President made no attempt to fly—that he showed no sign of fear, but calmly awaited the coming of the advancing royalists.

There was something so nonchalant about his manner, so unlike the demonstrative Frenchman, that the keen-eyed Russian woman had her suspicions aroused.

"He acts like a man who has expected just such a thing to occur. Mon Dieu! It may be a Waterloo for Count Leon yet. Monsieur Jones is going to be heard from before the curtain falls upon the last act."

She ended her soliloquy with a cry, for her gaze had wandered to the other quarter just in time to see Merrick send one man headlong to the ground because he had dared to lay a hand upon Constance, and then placing the now thoroughly frightened girl behind him, face the eager crowd with a weapon in his hand.

CHAPTER XVI.

Of Course.

The men who were opposed to Merrick had seen firearms before; some of them had doubtless fought through the bloody Franco-German war under the banner of Louis Napoleon, and hence they were hardly to be deterred in their purpose by the fierce aspect of a love pilgrim at bay, and leveling a little pocket revolver.

True, it looked serious enough with so determined a foe man facing them, but there was no coward present. Merrick might have done much more damage had not luck been against him.

His intentions were of the best, but it was perhaps fortunate in the end that some one struck his arm just as he let fly his first shot, which went wide of the mark and wounded where he grimly meant to kill.

Constance shrieked as she saw them bear down upon her lover; when his weapon was torn from his hand in the scuffle he still struck out manfully, and gave a warm welcome to those who closed in.

It was of short duration, of course, since Mark did not possess the powers of a gladiator, and those who engaged him were seven to his one.

Panting for breath, with his coat half ripped from his back, his hat lost and hair disheveled, while blood marked several scratches upon his face, he finally ceased to struggle.

Count Leon saw that thus far his game, so boldly wrought, had met with complete success.

Jones was still missing, and by this time the doughty count had about come to the conclusion that it had all been a false alarm with reference to the ability of the wonderful Yankee to interfere with their grand scheme.

The natural pride that causes man to puff out and strut like a king when his plans are successful was again taking hold upon the African explorer. An exodus at once began.

There was no attempt of any kind made to prevent the triple abduction.

The whole army of Monaco's princeling could not have stayed these desperate cavaliers, and surely it did not behoove any of the cosmopolitan guests of Monte Carlo to interfere at the risk of their lives.

So the good people flocked about the gardens again; the buzz of eager conversation arose, very like the drone of a great hive of bees, and many eyes were glued upon the star-lit harbor, where the rocky promontory of Mentone ran like a great scimitar into the sea.

Meanwhile, the last scene in the exciting drama was being enacted below.

Jones had bided his time, knowing that he held the trumps with which to sweep the board. Some men take the keenest satisfaction in allowing matters to almost reach a victory for the opposing forces ere showing an invincible hand.

Merrick was grinding his teeth in anger because he found himself unable to assist Constance down the steep path that would take them to the beach.

He knew now that the sensation he experienced at sight of the English boat had some foundation; and he was far from being a superstitious man.

He did not intend to give up without one more desperate struggle; they had torn half of his coat from his back, and might as well finish the job.

At the same time he was fully aware how hopelessly such a battle must be, with such tremendous odds against him.

The descent of the steep path had been accomplished in safety, and now they stood where the little wavelets washed up on the pebbly strand; in the daytime it was a beautiful spot, and even in the starlight, with numerous boats drawn upon the beach, it presented an attractive appearance.

This was where Jones had marshaled his forces and lay in wait like a huge spider, ready to pounce upon his foe.

Count Leon's first intimation of danger was when a voice called out suddenly in French:

"Make ready!"

The awful clicking, as of many hammers belonging to firearms being drawn back, sounded from the darkness around, from behind adjacent boats and bathing houses.

It was so terribly significant that the whole of the little company came to a sudden halt, and their blood seemed to run cold.

"Take aim!" came a second methodical order.

Good heavens! were they to be mowed down like cattle in the shambles, without the chance brave men demand of at least seeing their foes?

Count Leon, desperate fighter that he was, could not stand this.

Perhaps the spark of chivalry within his nature arose in rebellion at the idea of one so innocent and fair as Constance being made a victim to a tragedy; and yet this same man was in the act of carrying her off to become his unwilling bride. The motives of Frenchmen are and always will be pretty much of a mystery to Anglo-Saxon intellects.

At any rate, he had the good sense to avert what threatened to be a tragedy by exclaiming:

"Hold! do not fire! We have a lady here!"

"Do you surrender, then?" demanded the voice.

"On what terms?"

"That you give up those you hold." The count now knew with whom he had to deal.

There was a mighty struggle in his mind, but he realized the game was lost, and nothing could be gained by a desperate battle, since the hour for the Orleans prince had not yet come.

"I agree to the terms, monsieur, providing not one of us is detained," he answered, steadily.

"Then it is settled. Release your prisoners and disperse before we change our minds."

"Ah! Monsieur Jones, I hope we may meet again," he said, moodily, thinking what pleasure it would be should he run across the wonderful Yankee somewhere in the Soudan.

"And do not forget Stromboloff, monsieur, for he has sworn to be the death of you one of these fine days," called out the raging Cossack, who but for Villebois' restraint would have run madly in the direction of the hated voice and taken his chances.

"Au revoir, gentlemen; call on me when you please, and you will find out how we do certain things over in dear old America. You will find me in gay Paree. Come, now, your room is better than your company, so kindly make your exit."

Jones' advice was worth following; several of them entered a boat and put out over the starry waters for Sir Lionel's yacht, while the rest scattered about the grounds under the belief that their identity was unknown.

So that glorious scheme of the Orleanists fell through, and carried with its ruins the wreck of Count Leon's private enterprise.

It was a case of too much Jones.

Of course, Constance had flown to her lover, anxious to console with him concerning his wounds, and to assure him of her sympathy.

Then Jones and his "army" appeared, mustering only five souls in all; but even five men may, when they so desire, make an imposing display of sound by repeatedly drawing back the clicking hammers of their weapons.

Of course, Merrick was greatly amazed when later on he learned what a double role Jones had been playing; but as happiness had been granted to him, such outside events only created a momentary ripple in the steady current of his life.

A strange thing had happened, however, the magic cryptogram, the wonderful paper bearing the intricate formula whereby the chances of the gaming table could be invariably thrown against the bank, was lost!

Jones, fearing lest he might be robbed of the priceless document, had seen it under the lining of Merrick's coat for safe keeping, and as luck would have it, the paper was in the half that had been torn from the back of that individual during his desperate struggle with the royalists who obeyed the will of Count Leon.

Jones searched for the remnant of that coat far and wide, but it was never found.

And thus Monte Carlo's doom was indefinitely postponed; the day of wrath failed to appear, since no living man possessed a complete copy of Darragh's intricate and wonderful system that had wrought so baleful a terror in the minds of the usually iron-nerved croupiers of the bank.

Long would the doings of those two nights be the theme of eager conversation over the green-baize tables, and while the illustrious name of Jones might not go "thundering down the ages" as a liberator of enthralled mankind, it would ever be held in remembrance as belonging to the man who, aided by some astonishing good fortune, together with a magnificent "system," had broken the famous bank at Monte Carlo two nights in succession.

Perhaps the actual result trended the other way, and there was more extravagant play the balance of the season than ever before; since a practical demonstration had proven that the long-sought system was possible, every one who had ever bucked against the tiger returned to the charge refreshed and invigorated, and many a unique set of figures, long since discarded as hopeless, was made to do duty again.

Jones, in his official capacity, might have rejoiced to lay hands on Villebois, but the count vanished from the scene, and was next heard of in equatorial Africa, where he joined his fortune as an exile from France with the two daring captains who aspired to found a new nation among the refugee blacks of the great Soudan.

Merrick having endured so much for the girl he loved, was very urgent with regard to a speedy wedding; perhaps he still entertained some faint fear lest his old dread of seeming to be a fortune hunter should overwhelm him, and bring about fresh troubles.

Nor could Constance, whose very existence was now wrapped up in his, say him nay; so when they reached London, in company with the genial old colonel, the knot was tied securely that made him the happiest man on earth.

Having followed their fortunes thus far, and witnessed their safe arrival in the harbor of matrimony after a stormy voyage over the uncertain sea of courtship, it would be folly to spend any further time over their joys and their sorrows, from which even the most favored individuals may not be wholly free.

While doing the great city of New York some months later, Merrick received a communication from an old friend so characteristic of Jones in his happiest mood that it afforded him more than a little amusement, even while he mourned over the weakness of poor mankind. The letter was extremely brief and pithy, being directly to the point:

"Your prophecy, my dear boy, was, alas! fulfilled. The wonderful princess charmed me as she has done many a better man, wound me around her finger like a piece of silk, made love to me one day and laughed at me the next, until I fell into a fever and threatened to cross the Styx, only for once Jones, he wasn't able to pay the freight. The Cossack and I fought a duel, do you mind, and I'm nursing the poor devil even yet in a hospital; we've sworn eternal friendship, and plan to go to China to win fortune there. Confession is good for the soul, dear Mark, so hear me out. Every Napoleon I won at Monte Carlo went to the siren for diamonds and rubies et al.; then, when the end came, she married a rich old Brazilian banker and is now on the high sea, bound for Rio Janeiro. Poor devil, how I pity him! I think if the Cossack fails to keep his word I shall get me to a nunnery or accept an offer from Kruger in the Transvaal. Yours humbly, Jones."

(The end.)

NEW IMPLEMENT OF WARFARE.

Filipino Bolo May Replace the Bayonet in the United States Army.

As a result of the war in the Philippines the armies of the civilized world may have a new implement of warfare. The bayonet now carried by American soldiers is practically of no value, and many officers think that it is simply loading down the soldier with useless weight to make the bayonet part of his equipment.

But the bolo used by the Filipinos has commended itself to many officers as a sensible weapon, and on the recommendation of these officers, Gen. Crozier, chief of ordinance, has had made 50 bolo bayonets, which have been issued for experimental purposes. This bolo bayonet has two cutting edges, like the native weapon, and is much more formidable than the present service bayonet. The more progressive officers advocate abandoning the bayonet, as they point out that the day of the bayonet charge is over and there will be no more hand-to-hand fighting.

In the South African war, the war officers made the British officers abandon the sword and carry rifles, so that they might not be distinguished from their men, the Boers making special efforts to kill the officers.

The sword was of no practical value and was simply an insignia to denote command. In the next great war many officers believe there will be seen neither the sword nor the bayonet.

The British Cabinet.

T. P. O'Connor in his London weekly calls attention to the fact that all members of the present British cabinet have been in office nearly seven years—a tremendous strain on anybody, no matter how robust in health or ardent in ambition. Most of them, too, are so well off that they do not care for the big salaries they draw. Curiously enough, Mr. Chamberlain is now one of the men to whom the $25,000 a year that goes with his office is a consideration. He was worth about $3,000,000 at one time, but he bought a costly property and has lost a good deal in speculation. Consequently, he is not by any means so well to do as he was when he entered the cabinet.

Most Complete System Being Installed in Washington County.

The Southern Union telephone company has a force of men extending its line in the western part of Washington county. When completed, Washington county will have one of the most complete telephone systems in the state. The western part of the county has been without means of rapid communication with the county seat and other important points. The line is being constructed from Venedy station, and thence to Venedy, Stone Church, Lively Grove and Oakdale. From the latter place it will be extended to Coulterville, in Randolph county. Direct communications will also be made with the Nashville exchange.

Lutheran Pastoral Conference.

At the annual session of the pastoral conference of the Evangelical Lutheran church of southern Illinois, held at Nashville, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. E. Flach of Hamel; financial secretary, Rev. E. Koch of Okawville; corresponding secretary, Rev. W. Schwermann of Covington; superintendent of missionary work, Rev. W. Von Schenk of Belleville. Disorder at Eldorado.

The residence of Prince Albert Green, the colored parson of Eldorado, which has been guarded every night by the state militia for two months, was stoned. The guards were on duty as usual. Parties came from two directions toward the house. They were halted by the guards, when they commenced throwing rocks at the house. The guards fired several shots at the mob and the fire was returned, but no one was hurt.

Will Purchase Land.

Messrs. Hersh and Calvin of Newton, who have options on about 5,000 acres of land three miles south of Benton, have just finished boring the first hole and have started on two more. They have not stated whether or not they found coal, but the fact that they have notified a number of farmers that they would buy their land indicates that they found what they were boring for.

Gathers the Premiums.

J. C. Brunk of the Cotton Hill stock farm near Springfield has just returned from the Iowa state fair at Des Moines, where he exhibited animals from his stud of registered Morgan horses. He took five first premiums in this class, Ella Allen, a 2-year-old filly, being pronounced a perfect type of the breed. Mr. Brunk also showed the unbeaten show stallion Jubilee De Jarnette, 5105, son of Lady De Jarnette.

Old Settlers' Officers.

The Montgomery county old settlers' association has selected as officers for the ensuing year: William Vawter, president; Elmer D. Marshall, secretary. The retiring president, William C. Young friends of C. C. Grosclaude and Miss Hetrick of Rushville, who were married in Denver, Colo., gave them a charivari. To frighten the young men, Grosclaude fired a rifle three times, one of the bullets striking Arthur Thompson, producing an injury which may cause his death.

Advance in Price of Whisky.

Whisky prices were advanced 1 cent at Peoria, bringing the quotation for the basis of the finished product up to $1.32. The only reason assigned is the scarcity of corn. Farmers are refusing to ship, and distillers are experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining a sufficient supply to keep them going.

POPULAR POSTMASTER.

WILLIAM E. HULLEY.
(Who has charge of the Peoria office.)

May Lose a Hand.

John Kennedy of Springfield was severely bitten by a bulldog. The bull got into a fight with a dog belonging to Kennedy and was getting the better of it, when the man attempted to separate the combatants. He was seized by the left hand, and it was necessary to pry the dog's jaws apart with two pairs of blacksmith's tongs before he could be released. Kennedy will perhaps lose the hand as a result of the injury.

Coincidence.

When President Roosevelt comes to visit the Illinois state fair at Springfield he will be the second executive of the nation that has been the guest of this institution. President and Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes attended the fair one day in 1879, and, singularly enough, the fair in that year fell on exactly the same days as the one now approaching, September 29-October 4.

Insane Negro Deals Kindly with Policemen Who Arrest Him.

Acting under the hallucination that he is president of the Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis railway, a negro giving his name as Maj. Stewart, is holding his office in the Sangamon county jail at Springfield and is issuing orders for the conduct of the road from cell No. 16. He was taken in charge at the Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis shops after becoming quite abusive when his private car was not produced as requested. The man is entirely unknown to the authorities.

Uncle Sam's Reindeer Experiment.

The announcement made a few days ago by the Rev. Sheldon Jackson, educational agent for Alaska, that the United States government intends to increase the number of Siberian reindeer there to 15,000 comes in the nature of a surprise to many people. It marks the successful culmination of a purely philanthropic and benevolent act on the part of this government.

It is only a matter of about ten years ago that Mr. Jackson first began his campaign for the introduction of the Siberian reindeer. He called attention to the fact that whole villages of Eskimos had died from starvation principally because of their improvident slaughter of the native reindeer, which had previously existed in Alaska. His efforts were at first poohpoohed as impracticable, but Mr. Jackson kept hammering away on the same line until, in 1892, he was allowed to take sixteen reindeer into Alaska.

At the present day the herd has increased to 5,000 head, but the Rev. Mr. Jackson says the demand for the deer as beasts of burden alone far exceeds this supply. The deer have amply proved their usefulness and the wisdom of the government in its humane undertaking. The reindeer is the arctic beast of burden and lessens the possibility of starvation to a minimum.

The government has expended so far in the introduction and care of the reindeer in Alaska about $120,000. That the amount of good done has more than exceeded the monetary expenditure is evidenced by the comparative comfort which has been enjoyed by the native Eskimos and the large numbers of American miners in the district the past couple of winters.

Apropos of the attempts of M. Santos-Dumont to navigate the air, which attempts have been to some extent successful, an article by Henry Harrison Dupree in the Forum contains an interesting statement. Mr. Dupree, who is a scientist of standing, evidently doesn't expect the efforts of M. Santos-Dumont to meet with complete success, at least not at a very early day. He says: "Although it is more than a hundred years since the first montgolfier made its initial ascent, the problem of navigating the air is still unsolved, and there is every reason to believe that it will not be solved by any startling invention, but rather by the general progress of engineering development, carrying this undertaking and many others along with it."

The story which recently came from Russian Poland to the effect that a three-month-old boy, baby had given utterance to a startling prophecy has already borne fruit in this country. We now hear of a Texas infant that had developed a prodigious intellect and splendid conversational powers before it reached the age of four months. It is not unreasonable to expect that within a few weeks we shall hear of infants in different parts of the country who, at ages varying from ten days to two months, have exhibited not only a complete command of the English tongue, but who are proficient also in French, German, Norwegian, Gaelic and Hebrew.

Strange indeed is the plight of Herman Rudolf of Milwaukee. He is restricted by law from speaking to his own wife. A court has so decreed. For one year or ten years, whatever the time may be, he must address to her no conversation whatsoever until the divorce petition which he has filed against his spouse shall have been passed upon.

Every day there come reports of drownings at seaside resorts. It is always so, year after year. Most of these fatalities are due to the folly of the persons who lose their lives. A desire to show off as bold swimmers is the cause of many of them. No one with sense, however good a swimmer he may be, will take unnecessary chances with old ocean. Keep close to the shore and within easy distance of the boats of the life savers.

A man who has served his country in a foreign land so long, so honorably, so effectively as our ambassador to Germany, the Hon. Andrew D. White, is entitled at the age of seventy to release, if he desires it, for return to his home among us.

Is the fact that our army is using balloons in its maneuvers to be taken to indicate that we are all "up in the air" in regard to recent military science?

There is a fine opportunity for some experienced syndicate organizer to take up the South American revolutions and put them on a systematic basis.

If the Rockefellers and Rothschilds effect a merger of their capital, there will be no place big enough to hold the goods.

GULF STREAM MARKS.

The Course of the Flow Through the Ocean Plainly Indicated.

The color of the stream is perceptibly deeper blue than that of the neighboring sea, this blueness forming one of the standard references of the nautical novelists. The depth of color is due to the high percentage of salt contained as compared with the cold green water of higher latitudes, observation having shown that the more salt held in solution by sea water the more intensely blue is its color. Thus even in extratropical latitudes we sometimes observe water of a beautiful blue color, as for instance, in the Mediterranean and in other nearly landlocked basins, where the influx of fresher water, being more or less impeded, the percentage of salt contained is raised by evaporation above the average, says the National Geographic Magazine.

Another important fact in connection with the stream is its almost tropical temperature, due to the fact that its high velocity enables it to reach the middle latitudes with very little loss of heat. Upon entering its limits the temperature of the sea water frequently shows a rise of ten degrees and even fifteen degrees. It was this fact that gave to the stream in the later years of the eighteenth century and the earlier years of the nineteenth an importance in the minds of navigators that it no longer possesses. In those days the chronometer, invented by Harrison in 1765, was still an experiment. Instruments were crude and nautical tables often at fault.

The result was that the determination of the longitude was largely a matter of guesswork, a vessel after a voyage from the channel to America often being out of her reckoning by degrees instead of by minutes. The idea, first suggested by Benjamin Franklin, that the master of a vessel, by observing the temperature of the surface water, could tell the moment of his entry into the gulf stream and could hence fix his position to within a few miles was hailed with delight.

The method was published in 1790 by Jonathan Williams in a work lengthily entitled "Thermometrical Navigation: Being a series of experiments and observations tending to prove that by ascertaining the relative heat of the sea water from time to time the passage of a ship through the gulf stream and from deep water into soundings may be discovered in time to avoid danger." In this work he makes a patriotic comparison of the gulf stream to a streak of red, white and blue, painted upon the surface of the sea for the guidance of American navigators.

Don't Be a Second Class Man.

You can hardly imagine a boy saying: "I am going to be a second class man. I don't want to be first class and get the good jobs, the high pay. Second class jobs are good enough for me." Such a boy would be regarded as lacking in good sense if not in sanity. You can get to be a second class man, however, by not trying to be a first class one. Thousands do that all the time, so that second class men are a drug on the market, remarks Success.

Second class things are only wanted when first class can't be had. You wear first class clothes if you can pay for them, eat first class butter, first class meat and first class bread, or, if you don't, you wish you could. Second class men are no more wanted than any other second class commodity. They are taken and used when the better article is scarce or is too high priced for the occasion. For work that really amounts to anything first class men are wanted.

The Home of England's Wealth.

The Bank of England generally contains sufficient gold in sixteen pound bars to make 20,000,000 sovereigns. The bank, which stands in three parishes, covers three acres of ground, and, as the current price of land in the vicinity works out at £1,000,000 an acre, it is easy to form an idea of the money value of England's wealth. The ratable value is about £1,000 a week. The bank employs about 1,000 people, pays a quarter of a million a year in wages and £35,000 a year in pensions. There are £25,000,000 worth of notes in circulation which have been handed over the bank's counter.—London Globe.

Starting the Conversation.

"I don't know what the trouble is," said the hostess in a tone of great annoyance. "My guests seem very distant and unsocial. I wish I could think of some way to start them talking to one another." "That's very easily done," answered Miss Cayenne. "Is there a musician present?" "Yes." "Get him to play or sing something."—Washington Star.

The Lapse of Time.

When two married men who haven't seen each other for some time meet, one of them always says before they separate, "Let's see—how old is your oldest now?" And then, after he gets the answer, he adds, "It is astonishing, isn't it, how time does fly?"—Somerville (Mass.) Journal.

A Soft Answer.

"Keep yer temper, laddie. Never quarrel w' an angry person, especially a woman. Mind ye, a soft answer's aye best. It's commanded, and, forbye, it makes them far madder than anything else ye could say."—London Tit-Bits.

PLACEBO PRESCRIPTIONS.

An Old Doctor Tells a Secret of His Profession.

"Never tell a patient that there is nothing the matter with him," said the old doctor, who was revealing the secrets of his profession. "If you do, you make a lifelong enemy and lose your patient, who sends for another doctor. Give him something, if it is only flavored water. If the disease is only imaginary, cure the imagination with a harmless dose, and your patient gets well. In the profession we call such prescriptions 'placebos,' and more wonderful cures are effected by placebos than the world wots of. So, also, when you run across a patient who announces the first thing that he cannot take certain sorts of medicine, don't tell him he must. Agree with him and give him the medicine, if he needs it, in a disguised form.

"There are thousands of people who labor under the conviction that they cannot take quinine and will tell you that they have never taken it in their lives, while at the same time they may be taking large doses of it. The taste of quinine is hard to disguise, but if administered in a pill the patient can be made to take it and never suspect what he has swallowed. The trouble is the patient is apt to recognize a quinine pill by its appearance, to suspect, bite into the pill and thus discover your ruse. To obviate this difficulty druggists now have pills of quinine made in odd shapes and colors. Pink pills, containing nothing but quinine and a little harmless coloring matter, are a favorite form for use in cases where an antipainfuler crank has to be medicated. In giving a placebo it is not wise to have it taste too well. The patient is apt to suspect if you do. And be sure that you gravely impress upon the patient that only a teaspoonful is to be taken at a time and that at stated intervals. The whole virtue of a placebo exists in the solemnity and importance with which you surround it."—New York Press.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Salpiglossis is a pretty, showy annual, easy to raise and worthy a place in the garden.

The birch grows farther north than any other tree. Next comes the Siberian larch and then the fir.

The dark spot in the center of a bean blossom is the nearest approach to black that occurs in any flower.

Sunflowers may be transplanted quite easily if the work is done on a rainy day or in the cool of the evening.

Preserve a green lawn in the center of the garden, however small. This is needed to set off the flowers and for purposes of relief.

Mignonette is so unobtrusive that its presence is often betrayed by its sweet scent merely, but a large bed of mignonette should be in every garden.

Dissolve fresh lime in water, allow sediment to settle and saturate earth in which small, white worms have been noticed with the clear solution thus made.

That "it is never too late to set out roses" is a true word about gardening. But "the earlier the better, so long as the frost is out of the ground," is a maxim no less worthy of dependence.

A Spiny Monster.

For sheer ferocity of appearance, unredeemed by any milder facial attributes, a lizard called after "Moloch horridus" Moloch horridus is pre-eminent among reptiles. The body of this Australian reptile is so covered with spines that, as it has been put, nature seems to have endeavored to ascertain how many spines could be inserted on a given area. But, unlike its tutelary deity, who seems really to have spelled himself Moloch, the lizard does not demand the blood of children. It is, indeed, vegetarian and only fiery in that it has a curious faculty of absorbing and drying up water. A specimen placed in a shallow dish was observed to attract the water like a piece of blotting paper.—Westminster Gazette.

Ancient Trades Unions.

Seven thousand years ago there were trades unions in Nineveh and Babylon, and so strict were their rules that in some cases the penalty of death was inflicted for infringing them. Each man's work was strictly defined, and even the number of hours that he was allowed to work was stated in the charter of his guild or union. Later exactly the same state of affairs existed in Pompeii, and inscriptions have been discovered stating specific appointments of officials to trades unions. The most powerful of these appears to have been that of the Fishermen's guild.

Deceptive.

"Dey oughter pass a law," said Hungry Higgins, nursing his leg, "ter compel people ter call deir dogs be appropriate names." "Wot's de matter now?" inquired Dusty Rhoads.

"Why, a woman down de road said if I didn't git out o' her yard she'd call Fido. O' course I laffed. Den she called Fido, and Fido didn't do a t'ing. He was a big brindle bull!"—Chicago Tribune.

A "Bird" Anyway.

Mrs. Spenders—That's what I call a "duck" of a bonnet. Mr. Spenders—Yes! I'd call it a "pelican."

Mrs. Spenders—A "pelican?" Mr. Spenders—Yes; on account of the size of the bill.—Philadelphia Press.

The records left by the Phenicians, Assyrians and ancient Persians show that among all those nations the use of perfumes was very common.

The cost of producing and planting young salmon is under $1 per 1,000.

SIGHTS OF OLD PANAMA.

City Once as Beautiful as Any Depicted in Storied Romance.

Following the English style, dinner is a full dress and ceremonious affair. After dinner comes the promenade along the esplanade, a charming walk around the old battery overlooking the prison, says the Catholic World. Our way borders the sea; behind us lies the city, with its Moorish towers, its red tiled roofs; back of it rises Mount Ancon; to our left is the little Indian hamlet of La Boca, at the mouth of the Rio Grande, and the green hills of the Andes in the distance; along the horizon oceanward stretches the bay. What words can describe it? A study in color as the rays of the setting sun turn to crimson, green and gold its islands; the stately palmetto trees that fringe its banks, the white beach and far away the ancient towers of San Anastasius, sole landmark of the once beautiful city of old Panama.

The story of this beautiful city, old Panama, reads like one of the romances from the "Arabian Nights" that so delighted our childhood. Its houses of aromatic wood, hung with costly tapestries, adorned with paintings and sculptures that a king might envy; its 800 magnificent churches, with their services of silver and gold, their frescoes of pearls and precious stones; its pleasure gardens; its broad driveways, chief of which was the king's highway, over which the royal horses bore the treasures to Puerto Bello and the ships ready to sail with them to Spain. Into the midst of this Asiatic splendor came Morgan and his buccaneers, and this struggle, one of the most memorable on our continent, the first of white against white, led to the destruction of the flower of Spanish chivalry and the capture of Panama. So pass the glories of the world!

SWIMMERS' CRAMP.

It Is Not So Very Dangerous if the Victim Will Keep Cool.

If swimmers could be trained to keep cool under all circumstances, there would be comparatively little drowning among bathers and summer pleasure seekers. Cramp is usually assigned as the cause when some good swimmer drowns. But cramp ought in reality to be nothing serious. Usually it affects only an arm or a leg or maybe only a hand or foot. Any moderately good swimmer can keep afloat with one arm or even without the use of that, yet good swimmers drown often as a result of cramp. If such fatalities were analyzed, they would be more properly classed as drowning from fright and loss of nerve. This comes from the fact that every one is taught in childhood to fear the water and comes as a grown man and a swimmer to fear cramp. The average opinion is that the man who is attacked when swimming in deep water is as good as drowned. Therefore, when a swimmer feels a leg or arm begin to cramp he is frightened in most cases entirely out of his wits. He loses his head, begins to splash and paw and struggle and then goes down.

What the swimmer should remember is that he can keep afloat with very, very little effort if he will turn on his back and keep his chest inflated. It is the simple matter of floating, which every swimmer knows and finds very easy. If the swimmer will keep cool and float, the cramping limb will frequently relax after a little and he will find himself as well as ever.—Outing.

Pat's Trouble.

Pat had come over to America with the expectation of finding money lying around loose, only waiting for some one to pick it up. Of course this was long ago. Pat had soon become disillusionized and was always glad to get hold of odd jobs which would net him a little something to help him keep body and soul together. Finally, becoming tired of the struggle, he decided to end it all and was very industriously tying a rope around his waist when his landlord happened in on him. After watching him curiously for a few minutes he asked:

"What's up, Pat? What are you trying to do?"

"Troyn' to choke meself, av coorse," was Pat's answer.

"Choke yourself? You can't do it that way. You'll have to put the rope around your neck."

"Sure an' I tried that, but I couldn't breathe."—New York Times.

On Sure Ground.

A well known artist overheard a countryman and his wife ridiculing his picture, which represented a farm scene. He was so indignant that he at last interposed with the remark:

"That painting is valued at £100. Allow me to ask if you are familiar with works of art?"

"Not very familiar with art," replied the farmer, "but I know something about nature, young man. When you make a cow that gets up from the ground by putting her fore feet first, you do something that nature never did."—London Answers.

J. S. Haas was an Elgin visitor last Tuesday. On his return he was accompanied by his wife and son, who have been visiting friends there.

Miss Eloise Jenks was reported seriously ill last week. Dr. Taylor of Elgin was summoned in consultation with Dr. Dawson. She is now reported on the gain.

Milo Price and wife of St. Paul arrived in our village Sunday and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Price. Milo will eventually take his father's place in the store and make Wauconda his permanent home.

Misses Vera Geary, Gertrude Sullivan and Edith Turnbull began teaching for the ensuing year on Monday. Miss Geary at Wait school, Miss Sullivan at the Roseville school and Miss Turnbull at Mullen school.

J. W. Turnbull and family moved to Union Monday, where Mr. Gilbert has purchased a hardware and furniture store and will make Union his permanent home. We wish him the best of success in his new location.

Sid Rommel and family, who have resided at Waukegan for the past few years, moved back to Wauconda, and occupy the house on the old Ladd farm north of town, being unable to find a house in town. Wm. Tekampe is also contemplating returning to our village, but has been unable to secure a house.

The Wauconda Juniors returned home from the fair Friday night in good spirits, having secured 2nd money, although they made a good showing for the last game with the West Ends, Waukegan, but the team was too heavy for the boys. Although the team comprised the best players Waukegan could boast of, they scored in but three innings and our boys deserve credit for their good work.

Leo Maitman entertained ten of his friends Tuesday evening, it being the 16th anniversary of his birth. Caroms, cards and crokinolee were indulged in until 10:30, when all fled into the dining room and did ample justice to the array of tempting eatables. After supper the games were again resumed, followed by several local selections until about 11:30, when all adjourned, declaring they had enjoyed the evening and wishing their host many happy returns of the event.

Mrs. Freeman, wife of Dr. Freeman, passed away Saturday morning. She had received a stroke of paralysis a week previous from which she did not regain consciousness, and from the first her life was despaired of. The funeral was held from Baptist church Monday, Rev. Mayhew of Barrington officiating, after which the remains were interred in Wauconda cemetery. Mrs. Freeman has been a resident of our village two years and leaves a husband, son and daughter, besides many relatives, to mourn her loss, to whom we extend our sympathy.

THE COOKBOOK.

In baking bread it is better to overdo rather than underdo the work.

To make a good digestible pie crust use cream instead of lard, and it will be light and healthful.

If there is not batter enough to fill the gem pan, put cold water in the empty space before setting the pan in the oven.

The rich cheeses, which have the largest percentage of fat, are those which blend well with bread in sandwiches or with macaroni or rice.

For a quick cake beat until thick four eggs. Add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, half a cup of flour, a little cinnamon and lemon rind. Beat well and spread on a baking pan. Bake in quick oven and cut at once.

Sweet potatoes are much richer twice cooked. Baked or boiled merely, this vegetable is good, but when the baking or boiling is followed by a subsequent cooking in the pan or in the oven they are far better.

A fine cheese pudding is made by grating five ounces of bread and three of cheese. Warm two ounces of butter in a quarter of a pint of fresh milk and mix thoroughly. Add two well beaten eggs, salt and bake half an hour.

KISSING THE HAND.

The Practice Was Instituted by the Early Roman Rulers.

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Caesar the custom was kept up, but only for a time.

These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

No such restriction, however, was placed on the emperors themselves, who, if they wished to confer signal honor on any of their subjects, kissed either the mouth or the eyes of those they wished specially to favor, the kiss generally intimating some promotion or personal satisfaction for some achievement.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his worldly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.

A PANTHER'S DEN.

Clean and Bright, In Decided Contrast to the Popular Idea.

It was my good fortune to discover the newly abandoned lair of a cougar family and further and to me new evidence of that fastidious cleanliness which is a marked characteristic of the animal. This retreat was not at all the typical "panther's den" of tradition, but a bush grown harborage under the edge of a rock with just enough of shelf to keep off the rain. I should not have found this breeding place but for a certain well gnawed array of bones scattered over a little smooth bench above a creek channel. From this boneyard there was a very traceable path leading through grass and brush to the retreat where the dam had housed her young. The evidence here told plainly of the cougar's long immunity from annoyance and attack and of a thoroughly cleanly habit of life. There was no bone or other sign of feasting about the lair. The dam had carried her kill to the creek bench in every instance, and the children had been called to the dining room. As bones which would have been crunched or eaten by grown animals had been perfectly cleaned by the kits I was able to judge of their summer's diet. This had consisted mostly of minor game, rabbits, marmots, grouse and the like, with an occasional small deer. At least one whole family of badgers, old and young, had been served, pussy having probably lain for them at their hole until they were all in.—Franklin Welles Calkins in Outing.

The Horse Is Useful Even if Dead.

The whale can be put to a great number of uses when dead, as can also the horse, the various parts of which are utilized as follows: Hair of mane and tail for haircloth, stuffing mattresses and making bags for crushing seed in oil mills, etc.; hide and skin tanned for leather for covering tables, etc.; tendons used for glue and gelatin; flesh for food for dogs, poultry and man; fat used for lamps, etc.; intestines used for covering sausages, making gut strings, etc.; heart and tongue for food; hoofs for gelatin, prussiate, fancy snuffboxes, etc.; bones for knife handles, phosphorus, superphosphate of lime and manure; blood for manure and shoes for reuse or for old iron.—Spare Moments.

ARMY AND NAVY MANEUVERS END IN A DECISIVE VICTORY FOR THE NAVY

The great game of war, the first ever played by the army and navy, practically ended Sept. 5 by a spectacular attack on the forts guarding the entrance to Narragansett bay.

Three battleships and cruisers ran the guns of Fort Adams and Wetherell, getting within broadside range for all their guns before they were discovered.

The exploit was so daring, so reckless (theoretically), and so well executed that it is the general opinion that Rear Admiral Higginson is entitled to the credit of winning a brilliant victory.

The army and navy experts declare that nothing short of actual war could be more spectacular than Rear Admiral Higginson's attack on the Narragansett forts. He had been defeated in a well planned attack during the afternoon. The army looked for a second attack, but was not expecting it so early in the night.

The searchlights were kept at work in the perfunctory way, however, and a little before 10 o'clock they picked up the ships standing into the harbor under full head of steam. They came in by the Narragansett Pier, and it was not until they had passed Beaver Point that the forts picked them up.

The Brooklyn, which was supposed to have been seriously injured by striking an obstruction in New Bedford harbor the other day, was leading. Behind came the famous Olympia of Manila days. Then followed the Kearsarge, Admiral Higginson's flagship. Behind the Kearsarge was the Alabama, one of the most efficient of the big fighters, and the Massachusetts, which throughout the maneuvers has made a proud record for itself, brought up the rear. They were steaming at better than ten knots, which perhaps accounts for the absence of the Indiana from the column, for that battleship is not in condition to make any speed.

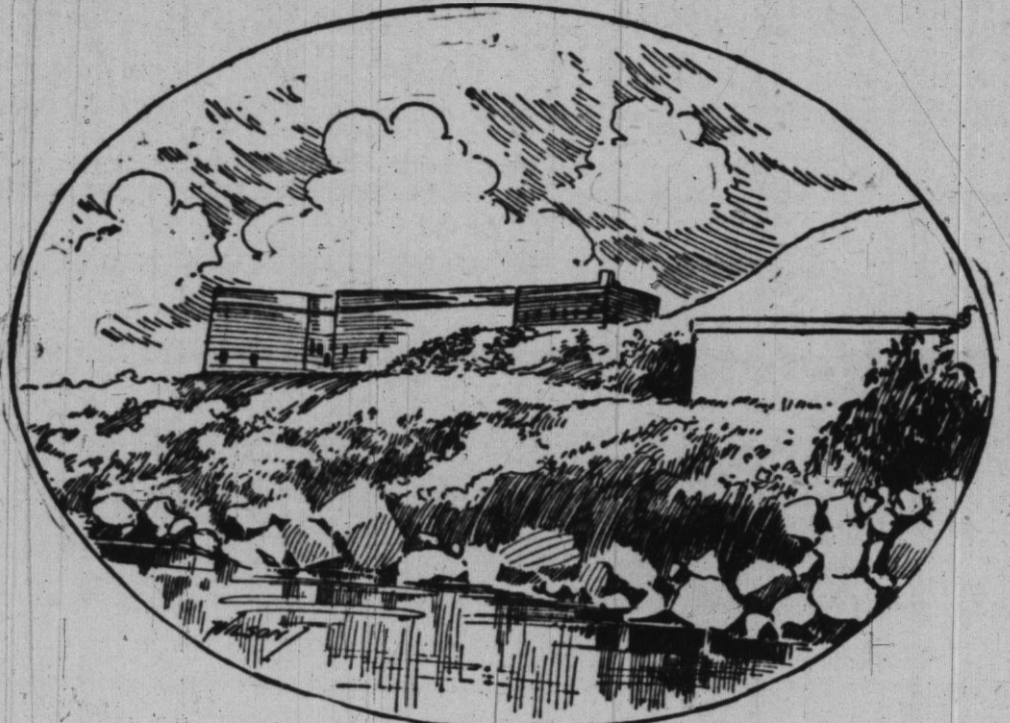

At top speed they came on, and held their fire until the forts opened on them. Instantly the Brooklyn replied with its forward turret guns. The range was then 3,900 yards. It was just 10 o'clock. The forts fired with tremendous rapidity.

Each ship came into action as soon as the forts opened, firing with the starboard battery at Fort Adams and with the port battery at Fort Wetherfact that heretofore the enemy had concentrated their efforts upon the race off Fisher's Island, the weak point in the defense line.

It was 2:30 p. m. when the first gun was fired from the Marblehead, which, with the Mayflower and Scorpion, took up position 500 yards off the signal station at Price's Neck. It was seen that an attempt was to be made to land and destroy the station. Capt. Jackson, in charge of the ing little water at frame No. 37; bearings taken and position accurately determined every few moments. Do not consider blame attaches to any person concerned. Recommend that ship go to navy yard for docking and examination. Have ordered investigation and informed the commander-in-chief. Shall proceed to Block Island, and if he (Rear Admiral Higginson) cannot be found will go to Tompkinsville for orders."

station, immediately sent word to Fort Adams, and three batteries of artillery under Maj. Dyer were rushed to the scene. When the ships had got in position well in shore they opened fire on the station, and after a short engagement two boats from the Mayflower started for the beach and landed on the rocks in front of the life saving station. As they came in the two galling guns were brought into play, and the troops gave the landing party a flank fire from shore. The marines, 100 in number, landed, in spite of the heavy fire and went through the movement of cutting the cables and destroying the searchlight. After all was over the umpire, Lieut. John L. Purcell, U. S. N., decided that the landing party had been repulsed.

Hostilities ended officially at noon Sept. 6. The distribution of glory will come later, when the board of arbitration meets at the naval war

Orders were sent forward to the Brooklyn to proceed to the New York navy yard, where the extent of the damage could be ascertained definitely. Without a better defined idea of the character of the injuries, naval officials were not prepared to give an estimate of the time during which the Brooklyn must be laid up or of the cost of repairs, but it was thought that the cruiser would be in dock anywhere from three weeks to two months and that the cost of the accident probably would total upwards of $50,000.

The big cruiser already had an unenviable record for striking snags. While the north Atlantic squadron was lying off Cuba it struck a rock near Guantanamo. When hardly out of its builders' hands it struck in the Delaware river and punched a big hole in its bottom, and once again on the East river the vessel encountered an unlooked for obstruction.

The presence of the Brooklyn in the engagement off Newport caused army officers to declare that the injuries to the ship had been exaggerated in an attempt by the navy men to deceive their opponents on shore.

A Big Pigeon Ranch.

There are eight acres of sandy ground near Los Angeles, Cal., devoted to pigeon raising. Fifteen thousand pigeons cover the ground and the immense pigeon loft. If the demand for pigeons should fall, the owner of this ranch would have in two years 1,000,000 birds on his hands. Fortunately for him the demand is greater than the supply, and the pigeon ranch sends out about 40,000 squabs a year to market. The estimated output of the ranch for the month is 3,000 birds. The average price per dozen for birds ranges from three dollars up to ten dollars. The birds are fed three times a day, each meal costing about five dollars. The food consists mainly of wheat screenings, boiled meal and stale bread. The daily consumption is about twelve sacks of screenings, eight sacks of wheat and many gallons of boiled meal. The bread is an additional fattener given at intervals.

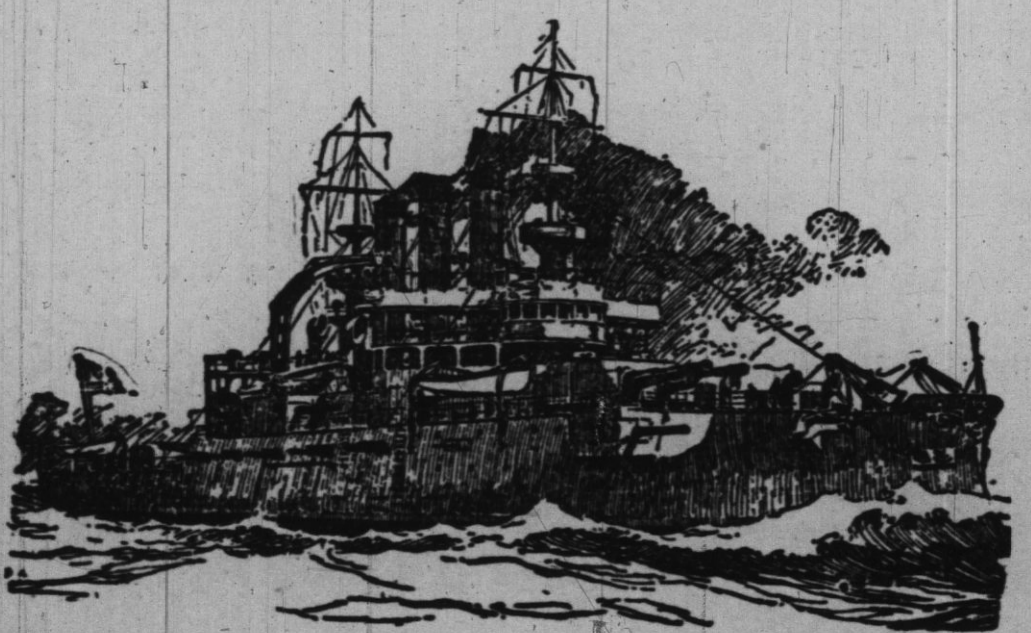

Champion Woman Rifle Shot.

Miss Minnie Schenck of Williamsport, Pa., is declared to be champion woman rifle shot of the world, having just established a record of twenty consecutive bull's eyes at 200 yards. Miss Schenck, who uses a .32-caliber rifle, is a terror to sparrows. Out of fifty-six shots at these marauding birds in one day recently she did not miss once, using a .22-caliber rifle.

CORN RETARDED BY LIGHT FROST

Despite Copious Rainfall and Low Temperature Grain Is Doing Well.

WILL BE SAFE BY SEPT. 20

Spring Wheat Threshing Has Made Favorable Progress—Cotton Has Been Maturing Too Rapidly—Condition of Apples Differs in Various Localities.

The weekly crop report of the weather bureau shows generally favorable conditions for maturing crops throughout the country. Light frosts and lack of moisture in some districts have delayed maturing of corn and it will not be all safely garnered until the 20th of September.

Notwithstanding the prevalence of low temperatures throughout the corn belt and copious rainfall in portions of the upper Mississippi valley, the corn crop has made satisfactory advancement toward maturity and wholly escaped injury in the states eastward of the Mississippi river from frosts on the 4th and 5th, with slight injury in the states to the westward.

Corn Is Backward.

The bulk of the corn crop in Missouri and Kansas and much of the early planted in Nebraska and the states of the Ohio valley is now safe. In Iowa, where corn has ripened slowly, two-thirds of the crop will probably be safe by Sept. 20, and the balance will require ten days longer.

The thrashing of spring wheat, although further retarded, has made more favorable progress than in the previous weeks.

Predictions of a normal corn crop are made for Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas, while in Missouri the crop is expected to be 102 per cent of normal as compared to 32 per cent of normal last year.

Cotton Opens Fast.

The general summary of the cotton crop is that it is maturing faster than it can be gathered, but will be large.

Texas and a large part of the central and eastern districts of the cotton belt have received abundant rainfall during the week, but it is doubtful whether the beneficial effects of these rains to late cotton will offset the injury done to the open staple. Cotton has opened more rapidly than it could be picked. In portions of the central and eastern districts many fields are already nearly cleaned, and the reports generally indicate that the crop will be gathered much earlier than usual.

Tobacco and Apples.

Late tobacco has experienced a general improvement in the middle Atlantic states and Ohio valley, and cutting and housing have progressed under favorable conditions in all tobacco states.

In the states of the upper lake region the reports respecting apples are favorable, while those from New York and New England are variable, indicating a light crop in some sections, with plentiful yields in others. In the Ohio valley and most of the middle Atlantic states the outlook continues poor.

Plowing for fall seeding has made more favorable advancement in the southern states and Missouri valley, but in the Ohio valley and portions of the middle Atlantic states and lake region the soil is too dry for this work.

Barker, who, it is also understood, will be assigned to the command of the north Atlantic squadron when Rear Admiral Higginson's term of sea duty expires.

MR. WALTON MUST BE DEAD.

Designer of an Angler's Retreat Did Not Know of the Esteemed Izaak.

A gentleman who has spent part of his vacation season in a Canadian town has just returned home for a rest before resuming his labors and relates his experience thus:

"I went off the beaten path for a few days' fishing. In a small village not a great way from Quebec, I stopped at a small inn to get a drink. The name of the inn was the Izaak Walton. I said to the man who brought me the drink:

"Does Izaak Walton keep this place?"

"No," was the answer. "Mr. Smith keeps it."

"Then why does he have the name Walton hung out there?" I went on.

"The drink man looked at me as if I had said something derogatory to the establishment."

"Can't say, sir," he replied. "Mr. Smith has had the place only this season. I suppose he hasn't had time to take the former owner's name down yet. I'm a newcomer myself, but I think Mr. Walton died."

Some "Woman's Work."

Women in America, it is thought, are now engaged in men's occupations to an astonishing degree, but the innovation seems to be carried still further in Europe. In Germany, Switzerland and Holland women take part in the labors of agriculture. They till the field, cut the corn and gather the crops. On the streets of Munich women are employed to keep the car lines clean and they are specially uniformed for the purpose in short skirts. Bavaria being well supplied with forests, wood is largely used for fuel and along the curb of Munich's streets women frequently sell their firewood. In Zurich the railway stations have women ticket agents and women are custodians of museums in many foreign capitals.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered with inflammation of the ovaries and womb for over six years, enduring aches and pains which none can dream of but those who have had the same experience. Hundreds of dollars went to the doctor and the druggist. I was simply a walking medicine chest and a physical wreck. My sister residing in Ohio wrote me that she had been cured of womb trouble by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and advised me to try it. I then discontinued all other medicines and gave your Vegetable Compound a thorough trial. Within four weeks nearly all pain had left me; I rarely had headaches, and my nerves were in a much better condition, and I was cured in three months, and this avoided a terrible surgical operation."—MRS. Fife Dog Story.

Here is a dog story which deserves to be embalmed in type:

Mrs. Dowine, widow of Capt. William L. Dowine, owns a large bulldog named Judge. She lives on one of the high hills, with a sheer descent of over 100 feet directly in front of her premises.

Lately neighbor dogs have been annoying Mrs. Dowine by overrunning the premises. Judge stood this as long as he could. Then he picked up one of the offending curs by the scruff of the neck and carried it out to the street. It came back yesterday, when Judge deliberately picked it up in his powerful jaws, walked to the edge of the cliff and dropped it over. It will not return.

Judge then went back home and lay in the yard, with his head on his paws, as if pondering on his act.—Pomeroy (O.) dispatch Cincinnati Enquirer.

CURE FOR ASTHMA.

Sufferers from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchitis will be interested to learn that Dr. R. Schiffmann's "Asthma Cure" instantly relieves the most violent attack, insures comfortable sleep and has effected cures in thousands of cases that had previously tried every other remedy in vain. No waiting for results. Its action is immediate, direct and certain. So firm is his confidence that the doctor requests this paper to announce that he has sent to druggists of this town, as well as to all other druggists in this country, sample packages of his remedy which will be given free to sufferers of above complaints, who apply promptly, thus offering an opportunity to such as have not yet tried the remedy to make a personal test which will convince the most skeptical. Persons failing for any reason to receive a sample package from their druggist will receive one free by mail by sending name and address (enclosing 2 cent stamp for postage) to Dr. R. Schiffmann, Box 814, St. Paul, Minn.

What She Wanted.

There is a young shopman in Duluth who makes it a special hobby to say bright things. But he has met his or entered the building in which he works last Saturday, and asked in a most innocent way for a bow.

"I am at your service," replied the clerk.

"Yes," said the young lady, eyeing him closely, "but I want a white one, not a green one."

Then a sepulchral silence fell upon him.

To the housewife who has not yet become acquainted with the new things of everyday use in the market and who is reasonably satisfied with the old, we would suggest that a trial of Defiance Cold Water Starch be made at once. Not alone because it is guaranteed by the manufacturers to be superior to any other brand, but because each 10c package contains 16 ozs., while all the other kinds contain but 12 ozs. It is safe to say that the lady who once uses Defiance Starch will use no other. Quality and quantity must win.

BRAGGIN' 'BOUT OUR KIN.

Oh, how I love to talk and brag with my wife about our kin! I tell of dad with pride and glee—how smart he'd alter him! I tell about how he cud shoot, as far as he cud see.

An' bore a woodcock through the neck upon the highest tree. Then I just spank my knee, An' shake all o'er with glee.

I tell about how Uncle John cud give a yell an' leap Into a crowd an' scatter them jest like a pack o' sheep; How, if a man who knowed him not would try his ground and stay, Would get knocked in to-morrow morn, then back to yesterday!

Then I jes' pound my knee, An' wife she laughs with me.

All grandads, uncles, aunts—jes' all the kinfolks I kin brag From out the years I foteh 'em forth an' on 'em brag and brag— Big lawyers, statesmen were my kin—prize-fighters, bankers rich, Knife swallowers, an' hunters great—big Injun chiefs an' sich— I brag on all with glee, An' wife she joins with me.

But now an' then I do git tired a-talkin' 'bout the kin

I find no trait to be admired in ennything they'd bin;

I yawn an' gape an' stretch my arms an' vow I must turn in

When we—no, she—begins to brag, and brags about her kin!

Then nerry little glee From her, an' none from me!

Ignorance of Ourselves.

Practically every man knows the size of his collar, practically no man can name the sizes of all his other habiliments. This is the mature judgment of a haberdasher's clerk of long experience. "Nine men out of ten we have to measure for their gloves. As to socks, the average man knows that his size is neither the largest nor the smallest, and that is about all. Cuffs we guess at, and in underclothing there can be a good margin of error without any serious consequences. Some of the stores give away little souvenir tablets on which a man can make memoranda of the sizes of all his clothes, but I never knew but two men who carried them after the first week. Another queer thing which I had occasion to notice in another way is the number of men who don't know their height and weight, things which you would think every one would keep track of."—New York Post.

MEN PROFIT, WOMEN SUFFER.

How Frank Stockton Got Prize and His Sister Did Not.

When years ago a juvenile magazine offered two prizes for the best stories written by a child under 12 and by one between the ages of 12 and 15, Frank R. Stockton competed for the latter prize and his sister Louise for the former and both children succeeded in writing the best stories in both groups. But the editor of the magazine did not much like the idea of giving his two prizes to the members of one family. He was afraid it would be said that the winners were relatives or intimate friends of him. So he wrote to Louise and told her that hers was the best story in the under 12 years' group, but, nevertheless, he would not give a prize to her, because if he did it would make talk and he would be accused of partiality. Frank got his prize, but someone else got the little girl's. Miss Louise Stockton, who lives in West Philadelphia, often tells this story, which taught her, she says, her first lesson in the world's injustice, and which showed her how out of this injustice men profit and women suffer.

Morenci, Mich., Sept. 8th.—Mr. J. S. Whitehead of this place has given the following letter for publication:

"Unsolicited I wish to recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills and to return thanks for the great benefit I have derived from a few boxes of this splendid remedy.

"I had kidney trouble very bad, in fact, I suffered so much that for days at a time I could not get out of the chair where I had been sitting without assistance.

"I cannot describe the pains I suffered for they were something fearful. "About seven or eight months ago I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills and very soon found that they were helping me.

"I can truthfully say that they have done me more good than all the other medicines I have ever taken.

"I have been greatly benefited by them and it is my desire to let others know so that if anyone is suffering as I suffered they may know where a cure may be found."

BARRINGTON LOCALS.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wonderous wise;
He swore by all the fabled gods
He'd never advertise.
His goods were advertised ere long,
And thereby hangs a tale;
His ad was set in nonpariel,
And headed "Sheriff's Sale."

The cool weather of the last few days has caused our city cousins to leave their summer homes and hurry back to steam heated flats. Those tender buds are much alarmed at indications of frost. When the robins nest again they will return to us.

The music of the threshing machine is again heard in the land, and notwithstanding the hard-luck stories heard before the crop was harvested, the threshers say there is a fair average crop, oats running from 40 to 60 bushels per acre, and that's not so bad.

James A. Dufield of Woodstock departed this life at his home in that city, September 9th. Mr. Dufield was well known to the residents of this section having resided in McHenry county since 1837. He was the father of Editor Dufield of the McHenry County Democrat.

Help a dog out of a ditch and no matter what kind of a dog he is—a town dog, a country dog, educated or illiterate, aristocratic or plebeian—he will wag his tail to paralysis and exhaust every drop of blood in his veins at your command. Help a man out of a ditch and what follows depends very much on his breed. The more we see of some men the better we like dogs.

A story is told of how Mrs. Caroline Corbin of Chicago became an active anti-woman suffragist. She was a school friend of Miss Susan B. Anthony. In later years the two women met in Washington. "What have you been doing all this while?" asked Miss Anthony. "Bringing up four boys," was the answer. "Boys!" exclaimed the out-spoken Susan. "What under the sun is a woman like you doing with four boys?" "I don't know. Would you expect me to strangle them?" "Bosh!" was the reply. "You should never have had them. They will be nothing but men."

Two farmers who reside near Algonquin, were in Chicago recently. They had neither one ever seen a fire engine. During the day Smith (that is not his name, but will do) was standing by a window in the Atwood building when a fire engine went by, the horses on the run and smoke and sparks pouring from the stack. A moment later a second engine came in sight tearing down the street. This was too much for Smith and he yelled to his companion, who had entered the clothing store: "Come here, Jim! They're moving hell, and two wagon-loads have just gone past."

Ends Life with Shot from Revolver—Ill Health Cause of the Deed.

Charles S. Jayne, a well-to-do retired farmer living 2½ miles east of Algonquin, shot himself in the right temple last Friday morning at 6:15, with a 22-calibre revolver. He lived about an hour, and died without speaking. Ill health is assigned as the reason for his act, as he suffered greatly of late from rheumatism.

Friday morning Mr. Jayne arose as usual, dressed and conversed with his wife and daughter. He complained of a severe headache, and entered a bedroom on the ground floor of the house, where his wife, from another room, noticed him applying liniment to his head. Mrs. Jayne's attention was drawn elsewhere for a short time, when she was startled by the sound of a pistol shot and rushed to the bedroom to find Mr. Jayne lying across the bed, grasping a revolver and his life-blood flowing from a wound in the temple. Gus Berkley, a neighbor hurriedly summoned Dr. Nason, but Mr. Jayne died ten minutes before his arrival.

Financial matters could not have been the cause of the suicide, as Mr. Jayne owned a fine farm and on his person was found over $1,300 in cash.

Deceased was born in the state of New York, but had lived in this vicinity over forty years. He was an uncle of William Jayne and Mrs. Shales of this village.

Mrs. McIntosh's Readings.

The Atlanta, (Ill.) Argus of yesterday contains the following relative to an entertainment given by the Epworth League there Wednesday evening:

"The main responsibility of the evening's entertainment naturally fell upon Mrs. McIntosh. Many of our people heard her readings given here a year ago, and were out in force to welcome her back again. Mrs. McIntosh as a reader meets the very best requirements of the work, because she does it from pure love of the art. She is utterly free from all the extravagancies which so easily creep into this line of effort, and wins all hearts by the true and lifelike qualities of her portrayals. She gets thoroughly 'inside of' the varied characters she assumes and carries her audience with her. She read some of the very best of modern selections, both humorous and pathetic, and won deserved warm approval. Mrs. McIntosh responded gracefully to numerous recalls, and may always feel sure of a warm greeting and plenty of admiring friends in our city."

Wealth of Cook County.

Totals completed in the board of review office Wednesday indicate an assessed value of about $397,000,000 real estate, personality, capital stock and railroads for Cook county this year. This estimate is partially based on anticipated action by the state board of equalization, which assesses the capital stock of corporations, the railway stock and the right of way of railroads.

Reviewer Roy O. West has estimated the total assessed value at $405,000,000, but said the figures did not appear to fully bear out the expectations of the board. The total of the country towns is $3,970,952. The personal property of Barrington township is placed by the board at $104,907, Palatine township at $63,967.

District Court of Honor, No. 373, held its annual picnic at Comstock's grove today. The weather was not what the committee ordered or expected, but despite the chilly wind and cloudy skies a goodly number attended. Overcoats and winter clothing was in demand, but everybody endeavored to look cheerful. Ice cream and lemonade found ready sale, although something not quite so frigid would have been more in season. The management deserves credit for carrying out the program and no in sense disappointing the people.

We are informed that at a meeting of the Conference at the Methodist church, Monday evening, Rev. Tuttle was invited to remain as pastor for another year. This will be pleasant news to the large number of Rev. Tuttle's friends outside of his own religious faith. Rev. Tuttle is a gentleman who has room in his friendly regard for those who differ with him on theology.

A redwood tree fifty-one feet in diameter has been discovered in California. Most fortunately it happens to be on government land, and thus it will stand to interest travelers, for otherwise it would not likely be spared by the unsentimental woodman's ax.

The Congressional Record is still making occasional belated appearances to remind us that the oratory of a session may live long after the measures and occasions which inspired it are forgotten.

The Cubans, having got their independence all right, now want to borrow $35,000,000 to live up to it.

THIS IS THE LAW

Passed by The Village Board of Trustees Relative to Sidewalk Repair.

The sidewalk question is still under discussion. There is a diversity of opinion as to whether the ordinance is good, but there is no diversity of opinion as to the ordinance having been properly passed approved and published. That it was patterned after the ordinances in force in other villages is clearly shown; that other villages have no trouble in enforcing the provisions of that ordinance is not denied. Why its enforcement is not demanded here is a question remaining unanswered.

The Review has no disposition to "nag" the board of trustees about this or any other matter. As a representative of the people this paper has only one object and that is to present the facts and discover where the blame should be placed.

Every member of the board is ready and willing to admit that a large number of sidewalks and crosswalks are in need of repair. For the condition of the sidewalks the property owners are censured. For the condition of the crosswalks "existing conditions" is said to be responsible.

We give it up, but before so doing we present the ordinance and say that it is good law it is deserving of a test and if it is not it should be wiped off book of village ordinances. The supreme court of Illinois has decided time and time again that a city, village or township is liable for all damages which may accrue from defective streets and sidewalks. Barrington has tasted of such damage suits, and as an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure it stands the village authorities in hand to lessen liability and avoid litigation. The following ordinance, if put into effect, will relieve the village of considerable responsibility and add much to the convenience of the public:

It shall be the duty of the owner of each lot or parcel of ground within said village of Barrington to keep in good repair at his own expense, any sidewalk now existing or which may be hereafter laid along any line of such lot or parcels of ground, BY ORDER OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OR OTHERWISE, and whenever the owner, or in case the owner is a non-resident then the occupant or the agent of the owner shall be notified by the clerk or street commissioner of said village in writing to repair the same at once and such owner, occupant or agent so notified failing to immediately repair any sidewalk upon any premises so owned, occupied or controlled by him or her, then in such case it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner to FORTHWITH make the repairs or improvements in said notice specified and report to the Board of Trustees all his actings and doings in the premises together with an itemized bill of all costs and expenses of such improvement which costs and expenses shall be made a charge against said property by levies of special taxation or by special assessment.

It will be noticed that the ordinance provides that repairs shall be made "immediately," and that the officer in charge of the street work shall "forthwith" (that means at once) cause the improvement to be made.

Wishing to allow property owners a chance to do their own work, the trustees cause to be sent out the following notice, which is ordered by the Committee on Streets and Alleys upon report of the street commissioner or any member of the committee:

To—, owner or agent of Lot No.—, Blk.—. You are hereby notified that the Village Board of Trustees have passed a resolution for the repair of a sidewalk on the property owned, occupied or controlled by you. You are, therefore, by law required to repair said sidewalk in conformity with the ordinances. If same is not repaired within ten days from the date of this notice the work will be done under supervision of the Street Commissioner and the costs assessed to your property.

—Clerk.

This notice may also be issued by the street commissioner.

The foregoing is the law and all it requires is to enforce it once and note the effect. We believe it would work to the benefit of all.
