Special Announcement.

Secretary Hunt of the McHenry County Fair association telephones the following announcement:

On account of unfavorable weather Wednesday and Thursday the management of the McHenry County Fair have postponed all events and exhibitions of those two days to Friday and Saturday of this week, when all races will be run and programs completed.

Wednesday the attendance was a record-breaker in the history of the fair association.

The date for the opening of the Fall Term of the Metropolitan Business College of Chicago is near at hand, and any of our young people who think of attending a school of this kind should investigate the Metropolitan at once. Present indications point to a very successful year's work and students who expect to enroll at the opening of the term should advise the principal a few days in advance of the 1st of September. There are a number of young men in Barrington who have neglected their opportunities and as a result are plodding along with no prospect of improvement. To the younger men just starting in life we would make this suggestion. Write at once and get a prospectus and other advertising matter with reference to the Metropolitan. The expense of a course in this college is within the reach of any young men of ordinary means. Address, Metropolitan Business College, New Powers Building, Chicago.

Must Revalue Real Estate.

By an error, probably, the amendment to the revenue act of 1898 makes it mandatory upon the assessors of Illinois to revalue real estate in 1904. Probably the amendment, which went into effect July 1 of this year, was intended to read "1903," but the copying clerk or someone else made an error, and the law plainly says the assessors must revalue real estate in 1904.

The original law called for a revaluation every four years, and real estate has been revalued this year in accordance with that law. The error noted above, making it necessary to revalue this class of property, means a lot of extra work for the assessors of McHenry and other counties next year.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, bitter are the uses of prosperity.

PASSING OF THE GOVERNOR.

Sidetracking of Richard Yates Calls Forth Much Newspaper Comment.

Although Governor Yates has been a staunch friend to the politicians who placed him in the executive chair, his makers have thrown him overboard and now refuse to consider him as a part of the Republican party of Illinois.

The Daily News in commenting upon the action of the bosses tells much which is true but does not give to the governor the full measure of credit to which he is entitled. It is no more than justice to the governor to say that he has been the victim of a set of political bosses and his mistakes have been not of his own making, but the carrying out of the demands of his henchmen. The Daily News says:

"There was once a candidate for governor of Illinois of the name of Richard Yates. At a state convention of the Republican party certain political bosses, failing to secure the nomination of their candidate, took up Yates and with their help he became the Republican nominee for governor. At the succeeding November election he won, though he ran behind his ticket, his loss of votes in Cook county being quite remarkable. Here are the figures for Cook county: McKinley, 203,760; Bryan, 186,193; Yates, 190,622; Alschuler, 198,195. This loss of votes was due in large measure to the unsatisfactory nature of the declarations made by the Republican candidate for governor in regard to civil service reform in the state institutions."

"But Richard Yates became governor by a large plurality over his Democratic rival. As governor he has served to the best of his ability the Republican bosses who nominated him. He has built up a personal machine by the aid of the state patronage. He has worked tirelessly, according to their narrow and selfish views, for the future career of Richard Yates. His work has been petty and disappointing from the public's point of view. The governor has not allied himself with any reform movement, but has been content to serve that bosses might reward his usefulness by keeping him in the governor's chair."

"What is the result? The governor of Illinois is searching everywhere through the state for evidences of a popular demand for his renomination. The search is in vain. His very office-holders cannot conceal the truth that there is no such popular demand. He has been told bluntly by the bosses who gave him the nomination before that he can hope for no favors from them in the next state convention."

"Behold the chief executive hurrying hither and thither with astonishment in his visage, wondering why he is not wanted in the governor's chair for another term. The spectacle is pitiable, but not surprising."

THE BOWMAN DAIRY CO

Selects Barrington as the Location For One of Its Modern Plants.

Construction of Buildings Will Start Next Week.

It is fortunate for the village of Barrington that so substantial and well known corporation as the Bowman Dairy company should choose to establish here one of its dairy product factories. The coming here of the Bowman company will prove of advantage not only to the farming community contiguous to Barrington, but to the business interests it will bring great benefit.

In establishing a plant here the Bowman company asked nothing unreasonable of our people—only that a guarantee be given that the plan of drainage arranged for the factory be not interfered with by village ordinance—that a pure water supply be assured.

The site for the plant is a good one, allowing of excellent shipping facilities on C. & N. W. and Outer Belt lines, and the factory will not be crowded up against a residence street depreciating property.

The buildings will be modern in every respect and constructed not only for present needs, but to meet future demands. Contracts have been let to L. St. Peter & Son, of Dundee, for carpenter work; L. B. Duntun, of Dundee, for the masonry, and work will be begun as soon as the side tracks now building are completed that material may be deposited on the site.

The plans for the buildings were drawn by Turnbull & Jones, the Elgin architects. The plant will be in operation this fall and will take the product of many dairy farms in this section which now ship to Chicago and deliver to Dundee creamery. In every place where corporations like the Bowman and Borden companies have established their factories the dairymen have profited largely because they receive the highest prices for their product and have no losses. They deal direct with the company and not through an army of agents, each one of whom demands a tribute.

The coming of the Bowman company within our limits is welcomed by all except, perhaps, a few who are always ready to buck against anything that may prove to Barrington's advantage in any way.

Face Another War.

The murder of an American official in Turkey stirs the nation. An American official, Vice Consul William C. Magelsen, in the discharge of his duty has been assassinated in the streets of Beyroot, Asiatic Turkey, and unless Sultan Abdul Hamid makes prompt apology and all amends demanded American warships may soon be hurling shot against the walls of his cities. The European squadron, consisting of three ships, has been ordered to proceed to Beyroot with all speed to back up the demands of Minister Leishman.

Minister Leishman has been instructed by the state department to demand a thorough investigation of the affair and the punishment of those involved in the crime.

TIRE OF FARM LIFE.

Why Country Boys and Girls Migrate to the Great Cities.

Many of our farmer friends wonder why it is their boys and girls want to desert the old farm as soon as they reach an age to choose for themselves. They seem to be surprised that their children are not like them, content with rural life, but express preference for city life. The farmer has been unable to solve the mystery. They do not, for a moment, consider that the fault lies with them.

It is a very common streak in human nature for children to desire some other vocation than that followed by their parents.

Many things conspire to make the energetic farmer's boy long for something different in occupation than that followed on the farm. There is about farm life, to the young folks of today, a wearing monotony, that is not conducive to contentment. The majority of young men of today have a desire to acquire wealth suddenly and are infatuated with the stories they read of how "the poor farmer boy" became a leader in the financial world, etc.

The girls get a glimpse of their city cousins, note their style of dress, milk and water complexion, hear recited the advantages of life in town, and resolve to end "drudgery," as they term it, in the old farm home.

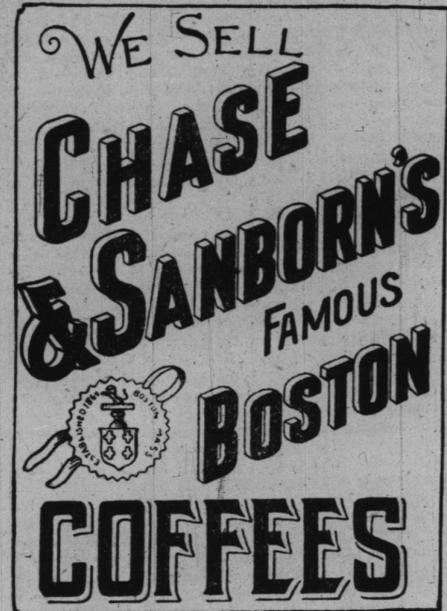

The farmer's daughter visits her friend in city and finds an air of refinement and neatness in the pretty cottage or flat with its dainty furnishings and modern conveniences. She naturally contrasts all these things that are to please woman's taste with the barrenness of the farm home.

Everything in the city home is toward saving labor. She looks at her home on the farm. She sees mother growing old before her time with hard work and but little effort made to lighten it. A windmill pumps the water for the stock but the wife and children must pump that for household purposes, and to do that must go out in the yard no matter what the weather may be. To make the work on the farm easy all the newest and most approved machinery has been bought—sulky plows, reapers and mowers, patent hay forks—but what has ever been purchased to make work in the house lighter? There is the old-fashioned cooking stove that in summer time heats the blood until appetite and strength are gone. When waste water is to be disposed of the wife or daughter has to carry it out some distance from the house, or throw it out the back door, there to make the ground unsightly.

The daughter sees all these things, and then thinks that such must be her life if she marries a farmer, and she begins to long for the city. She loves the beautiful as much as does her city cousin; she would enjoy a trip to the lakes or the sea shore as much. She is as worthy such a trip and she feels and knows it.

Let the farmer get rid of his selfishness and reach the conclusion that his family is as worthy of consideration as his stock; that if he hires help on the farm his wife is entitled to help in the kitchen; when he buys an improved plow or a self-binder let him purchase a range for the kitchen or a machine to lighten the drudgery of the laundry work, and then his sons and daughters will stay on the farm.

Here the conversation was interrupted by the arrival of supper, and the two men talked of trivial things until the conclusion of the meal, when Pope produced a bottle of brandy, filled a glass, and passing the bottle to the leveled arm of his guest, began in sober earnest:

"The idea of trying for my fortune as a pirate came into my head on hearing of Jackman's adventure. You have the spirit of the buccaneer and know something of the life of the pirate. Why should not a shrewd, resolute and fearless man easily fill his hold?"

"Given a ship, given a crew, there is plenty to be done, no doubt," said Crystal. "But it's perilous work; it's short shift if you're nabbed. But why won't you give me your scheme?"

"Captain Pope considered a little. 'If I satisfy you that it may be done, will you join me as second in command?'"

"Yes," answered Crystal like an echo. "See here," said Pope, in a low, cold, emphatic voice. "I want money to fit out this expedition. Now there is a deal of valuable plate in my family and it all went, in ways there is no need to describe, into the hands of an aunt of mine, a woman who lives on a small income in a little house called Updown, hard by Margate. A large portion of that plate is mine by right of my being my father's son. I choose to think it so, and I mean to have it." He clenched his fist and let it fall.

"The value?" said Crystal coolly. "All fifteen hundred pounds."

"That'll buy you the ship. Where's the cash to come from to victual her?"

"Stanton will take three hundred down and a bill for the remainder."

Pope Flourished His Hat.

Curse him! If he didn't give me that chance, he'll find his ship gone. For I've made up my mind. I'm a desperate man. The black flag flies aboard the Gypsy already, and I see plunder enough in our hold to maintain us as gentlemen for life."

"How dy'e mean to fetch this plate?" asked Captain Crystal.

"There be two ways," responded Captain Pope; "you may take it by road, or you may take it by water. My idea, Crystal, is to hire a ten or twelve-ton cutter, and sail to Margate, land, seize the plate, march with it aboard, and sail away across to Hamburg, where I know a merchant who would take the stuff off my hands at a good price. We should then return and there will have been no risk."

"It may be done," said Crystal, "but what with the burglary, and what with the bringing of the plate across country, and what with its shipment on a coast where the blockaders get the sight of lynxes and the smell of blood-hounds from the jobs the smugglers put 'em to, it'll prove as dangerous an undertaking as could ever make the stoutest heart pause."

"Do you pause?" cried Pope, wildly leaning forward and staring with desperate glowing eyes at the other. Crystal tapped here and there with his square foot.

"I don't pause," said he. "I raise objections to grease your keels with it. May be done, I say. Where do you look to find seamen?"

"I may profess a respectable voyage, and they'll sign for an honorable run. When we are at sea, I'll call them aft, and those who object I'll send adrift."

"That's it," said Crystal grinning. "I'll help ye to find some stiff 'uns. How many of a crew?"

"A hundred and eighty tons," mused Pope. "Allow for ten men to be sent adrift. What say to a company of forty?"

"Oh, plenty," echoed Captain Crystal swiftly, "but plenty if you please, Pope, for sharp work. This sort of cruise is not a thing a man extends."

"No, by heaven," answered Pope. "But I shall want ten thousand pounds out of it."

"A man must live," said Crystal. "I've fought for this country as a privateer, and as God is our saviour

I don't mean to starve for her. I'm with ye, Pope."

They sat drinking and talking until about the hour of eleven. Pope found the ideas, and Crystal the objections; and in this fashion they trimmed the sail of their ordinary project, till, with a strange hearty cry, Pope struck a powerful hand into his friend's, saying, "You see now how it may be done? To-morrow we'll dine together at the Mitre, and thence to Rotherhithe."

Mr. William Crossman was a well-known character at Rotherhithe in the early years of this century.

His public house was after the regular pattern of low taverns. It had a bar behind which stood sometimes Mrs. and sometimes Miss Crossman; and it had a parlor which was very comfortably fitted. The place smelled foully of acid ale, and was commonly full of seafaring men, some of them of a rather peculiar type.

Now, after dining at the Mitre, as had been prearranged, Captain Pope and Captain Crystal arrived at the Casperdown public house, and entered.

"This is Captain Pope, a friend of mine, Miss Angelica," says Crystal, and Pope flourished his hat to the lady, who bowed and simpered as she sank in a curtsey.

Pope was about to order two glasses of brandy, when Crystal stopped him by saying they would drink with Crossman, and as he spoke Crossman himself stood in his parlor door taking a view of the company with his one eye. He saw Crystal and nodded, and the two captains immediately made for him.

"We've come to have a yarn with you," says Crystal, taking Crossman's great fist. "This is my particular friend, Captain Pope. Shut the door, William, for we want to be private."

"But first, sir," says Captain Pope, "will you ask your lovely daughter to bring us something to drink?"

Miss Crossman placed a bottle of brandy upon the table and went out, languishing at Pope, who had a very good knowledge of the use of his own eyes.

"Crossman," says Crystal, opening fire at once, "I'll tell you what we've come here to talk to you about. My friend Captain Pope is the son of a gentleman who owned a quantity of plate. This fine silver plate found its way into the possession of an old lady, Captain Pope's aunt, but it don't belong to her, it belongs to Pope. He was at sea when the lawyers got finging the property, and, like all sailors he was robbed. My friend wants to recover his own."

"Very natural and proper," exclaimed Crossman. "What might be the value of this 'ere plate, sir?"

"From twelve to fifteen hundred pounds," answered Pope. "But it'll fetch, I allow, no more than from six to eight hundred."

Crossman nodded as though he should say, "Fire away, I don't see your meaning."

Pope then told him that the plate was stowed away in a lonely house, near Margate, occupied by the old lady, and maybe others—he could not yet tell; that he had once had an idea of fetching his property by road; but was hindered by the troubles and perils he foresaw when he and his companions left the house with the plate.

"In fact," he said, "we should be chased and captured."

"And hanged," said the ex-prizefighter.

"For possessing myself of my own?" cried Pope, with his eyes full of cruelty and temper, as he bridled and threw his strong arm dramatically on to the table.

"They'd hang us, Pope," grunted Crystal.

"Any way," continued Pope, flashing into cheerfulness and cordiality, "the road being out of the question, Mr. Crossman, nothing but the water remains; and we propose to proceed for our property by sea."

"How can I help you?" said Crossman, looking uneasily at Crystal.

"You may put me in the way of hiring a sloop of ten to twenty tons,"

Pope said; "but that's the least part."

"William," exclaimed Crystal, "the long and short of it's this—we want you to give us the names and the homes of three men who may not be wholly unused to jobs of this sort, and who, for a handsome consideration, will be willing to ship as our crew."

"Oh, that's your want," said Crossman thoughtfully. He put his finger to his nostrils, and striding to the door opened it, and stood looking forth upon the bar with its crowd of drinkers.

On a sudden the ex-prizefighter whistled and beckoned, and after draining a pewter pot, there approached him, with some marks of astonishment on his wicked face, a middle-sized man wearing an old beaver hat and a worn-out monkey-jacket.

"Bobbin," exclaimed Crossman, "step in here a minute. There's two gentlemen who want a word with you. Here's one man for your purpose, Captain Pope," he said; but he remained in the doorway.

"What's your name?" said Captain Pope to the man the prizefighter had summoned.

"Robert Bobbin," answered the fellow, in a rough, raw voice, with his head stooped, twirling his hat, his greasy black hair tumbling about his face, on which the devil had written the word rogue in eye, nose, and mouth.

Captain Pope began to talk to him in a very low voice, and Captain Crystal drew close, pipe in hand, and listened. Crossman, in the doorway, seeing this, directed his one eye at Captain Pope, to whom he said:

"There must be no arrangements made in this 'ere house, master. I'm willing to oblige my friend Crystal, but I can't allow myself to be involved."

Then looking at the fellows in the bar, all of whom were eagerly staring in the direction of the parlor, Christly wondering why Bobbin had been called in, he called out the names of two men, who instantly came tumbling toward him and lurched into the parlor.

Pope looked them up and down; one was a haggard man, of a broken and dangerous appearance; he was very dark, with a savage squint, and rolled on his legs as he stood, as though the floor of the parlor had been a heaving deck. The other was a little man, very thickset, pale, with brown hair that sat upon his head like a wig, and moist blue protruding eyes. He looked as harmless as the other seemed terrifying.

But they were three men, and very fit for the errand Pope and Crystal designed to carry them on. Beyond a few questions, however, and the taking down of a note or two, Crossman would not permit any conversation.

"No, you must settle your business out of my house," said he; whereupon the three men agreed to present themselves at Captain Pope's lodging next morning. Pope gave each man a guinea, shut the door upon them and the silence was charming.

"Can you put me in the way of hiring a little vessel, something fit to cross the Channel in?" said Captain Pope.

Crossman pondered; there was nothing sinister in this request. After a considerable pause he said:

"There's Jem Marling; you'll find him in Rock street, Greenwich. I know he has a little vessel in which he goes a-coasting, and I believe she'd suit your purpose. Tell yer what I'll do; I'll find out if she's in the river, and if you'll send here to-morrow afternoon I may be able to give you some particulars."

Nothing could be more satisfactory. Pope thanked the prizefighter heartily, and he and Crystal departed.

"Here you'll find your crew for the Gypsy," said Crystal to Pope, as they stepped into the street.

And Pope assented in loud laugh of satisfaction.

ODDITIES IN PET NAMES.

Varying Terms of Endearment in Different Countries.

"If a man in this country calls his wife a cat, the foundation is laid for a divorce suit," said the man who travels.

"But a French woman takes the same word as a term of endearment. It's odd how the choicest phrases in the vocabulary of affection of one people are used for quite an opposite purpose by another nation. One of the most familiar and most coveted phrases of endearment among the French, for instance, is 'my little pig,' and 'my little puppy-dog' is also well liked.

"But if the Frenchman were to call Mme. Narcisse 'duck,' as an American husband might call his better half, she would be very much offended. One of the oddest pet names that I ever heard of was that used by a famous German general, who always called his wife 'my little kernel of coffee.' They were divorced at last, however, and a cynic said that the general's pet name should have been 'my dear little stack of bayonets,' for the lady was said to have had a very sharp tongue. I know a devoted disciple of Walton, who, when writing to his wife while on a fishing expedition, calls her 'my dear little speckled trout.'"

MINING MEN TEST EXPLOSIVE

Substitute for Powder Is Said to Be Powerful and Safe.

A number of mine examiners and operators met in Springfield to witness a series of tests which were conducted at the mine of the Republic Iron and Steel company, to determine the value of a new explosive which is being placed on the market. The explosive is like dynamite, and is very powerful, but at the same time is safe. It will not explode from friction, concussion or contact with fire, a special explosive cap being required to ignite it. The tests made were not satisfactory, and a number of the mining experts are of the opinion that the new explosive will not prove to be practical.

SLEPT WITH LINCOLN.

Of the few now living who knew Abraham Lincoln intimately perhaps none is more prominently known than Col. William T. Baker of Taylorville. Col. Baker recalls that Lincoln was a frequent visitor at his home and often he would bring other friends of the family on business or pleasure. As the household furnishings in the early days were not so elaborate as at the present time, the hostess was compelled to make up the inevitable "pallet," with which the old folks are familiar. Mr. Baker recalls that Abe

Lincoln would pull off his boots and crawl under the covers with the boys. "Many a night," he says, "I slept with my head on the same bolster with Abraham Lincoln, and it was not always a feather bolster either."

Col. Baker was born in Kentucky in 1828 and recently celebrated his 75th birthday with his friends. The elder Baker was a messmate of Lincoln during the Black Hawk war and he held the rank of major during the conflict with the Indians.

In the fall of 1830 the family removed to Lake Fork, near Rochester, and there built a water mill, which is famous to this day.

Gov. Richard Yates has telephoned Lieut. Gov. Northcott that he will be in Greenville Saturday, Sept. 19, in response to an invitation of the Bond County Soldiers' Monument association, to deliver the principal address upon the occasion of the dedication of the monument at that time. Most Successful Session of Association Is Held at Jonesboro.

The seventy-third annual meeting of the Clear Creek Baptist association, which includes forty churches in the counties of Jackson, Union, Pulaski and Alexander, has just closed one of its most successful meetings in the history of the association at Jonesboro. The association is the oldest religious body in Illinois in point of continuous existence. There were present, out of a total of 117 messengers, 110. Rev. H. N. Wallace of Cobden was elected moderator for the ensuing year, and Dr. F. M. Agnew elected clerk for the thirty-ninth consecutive year. The next meeting will be held at Dongola. The association has an endowment fund, known as the Peeler, and Willis Rendlemen of Alto Pass, Wm. H. Peak of Jonesboro and F. M. Agnew of Makanda, trustees.

ESCAPES WITH LIFE, BUT BLIND

Sad Plight of Woman Once Tried for Murder.

Mrs. Delilah Henson, who figured prominently in a murder trial in Perry county eight years ago, has but recently returned to that section, a most unfortunate woman, entirely blind, without any means of support and a charge upon her relatives, who reside at Ava and Campbell hill. John B. Henson, husband of the woman, died in 1835 under peculiar circumstances. Suspicious relatives caused the body to be exhumed and it was found he died from arsenical poisoning. Evidence accumulated and Mrs. Henson was indicted for the crime, together with a man who had been employed by Henson during his lifetime. She was confined in jail several months and when brought to trial was acquitted. The property which was left her by her husband was all absorbed in the defense of her life.

Cache River Commission.

Under the law which went into effect July 1, providing for the appointment of a commission to have charge of the widening of the Cache river in southern Illinois, Gov. Yates has appointed Judge W. A. Wall of Mound City, Andrew Davidson of Metropolis and H. H. Capper of Marion as members of the board. The commission will be known as the Cache river drainage commission. The act providing for the new board was approved by the governor May 16, 1903.

Fancy Price for Redtop.

The redtop crop, for which Clay county is noted, is being sent to the markets, the seed in some instances selling for 80 cents per bushel. The yield of seed is not as heavy as in former years, but the quality is good, and, considering the good price paid, the growers will fare as well as in a heavy crop year. The seed crop of the Flora district, it is claimed, is worth $300,000 to the growers.

Bond County Old Settlers.

The executive committee of the Bond County Old Settlers' association met at the office of the secretary, R. K. Dewey and decided to hold the annual old settlers' picnic at Greenville Friday, Sept. 4. A committee composed of R. K. Dewey, Col. J. B. Reid and W. H. Taylor, was appointed to locate Hill's Fort in Mills township. It is probable that a monument will be erected there.

Woodmen's Picnic Society.

At a meeting of Woodmen of Jackson county, held in Murphysboro, a Woodmen's picnic association was organized for the purpose of holding a picnic every year. The first celebration will be held in Murphysboro in 1904. The exact date will be set by the board of directors.

BOOM IS ON AT CARBONDALE

Buildings Are Rented as Soon as Foundations Are Laid.

The great building activity which has been in evidence in all parts of Carbondale for two years still continues, with no sign of abatement. It is something remarkable the number of neat cottages and handsome residences in course of construction. At present nine business houses are building and all rented long before the first stone of the foundation was laid. Several others are contemplated. The Presbyterian congregations are to add another new modern church edifice to those already built. The railroad is extending its trackage and adding new facilities.

After Careless Mine Owners.

The coal miners in Sangamon county are approving of the determination shown by Coroner Baer to let no coal mining companies off easy when accidents occur in their mines which are primarily caused by carelessness on the part of the companies. In recent verdicts in coal mine accident cases the coroner's jury has surprised the coal companies by placing blame for mine accidents upon them. Resolutions indorsing the coroner's attitude and recommending similar action throughout the state have been passed by the miners' unions of this city.

The Macedonian Insurrection.

While the perennial insurrection in Macedonia is not expected to result this season in a general European war or in foreign intervention, for which the Bulgarians of Macedonia are said to be hoping, there is no doubt that it presents a serious problem to the governments of the various powers. It has already given the sultan more than a bad quarter of an hour, and with his troops in arrears of pay and almost at the point of mutiny, with the insurgents daily growing bolder and with Russian and Italian war ships lingering ominously in Turkish waters the Commander of the Faithful is not in an enviable situation.

Bulgaria wants only one word from Russia to pour her soldiers over the border into the disturbed province, and while Russia insists that she is going to make Bulgaria keep her hands off, the murder of the Russian consul at Monastir by a Turkish gendarme and the czar's demands for reparation give the excited subjects of Prince Ferdinand some reason to think that the leash which restrains them from flying at the Turk may soon be loosened.

Self interest has for a century kept the powers from lopping from the sultan's dominions his possessions in Europe, but the crisis may come when intervention will be inevitable and when the mutual jealousy of Russia, Austria, Italy and England over the division of the spoils will be turned into an amicable understanding. Then Allah help Abdul!

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria would like very well to reign over Macedonia and Bulgaria joined into one municipality. Some of the Macedonian Bulgarians seek an independent principality, and some of them seek only to flay the Turks in revenge for the atrocities from which they have suffered. It is conceivable that the sultan would be glad to get rid of such a hornet's nest as Macedonia has always been, peopled as it is by the three warring races of Bulgarian Christians, Mohammedans and Greeks.

It is even asserted in some quarters that the sultan is conspiring with Russia to deliver up Macedonia after enough show of force has been made to "save his face" with his Asiatic subjects, for he is forbidden by law and by his oath to cede any territory voluntarily. The next few weeks may bring the whole question near to a solution, but in the meantime massacres, burnings and rapine may be looked for from both the Turks and the insurgents, for the latter have had a bad example before them so long that their methods are far from humanitarian.

A Workingman For Second Place.

There has recently been a little—just a little—talk about the nomination of a workingman for the vice presidency of the United States in 1904. Those who have made and supported the suggestion, out of professed friendship for the workingmen, have not been partial to either of the leading parties, but want both the Republicans and Democrats to select prominent labor leaders for the second places on their presidential tickets.

As the Socialist party will undoubtedly place candidates for both president and vice president in the field in 1904 the nomination of workingmen as candidates for vice president by the Republicans and Democrats would introduce a new and enlivening element into the campaign.

The conviction and life sentence of Jett and White for the murder of Lawyer Marcum in Breathitt county, Ky., furnish gratifying evidence that feud promoters cannot always have things their own way in the courts, although it was necessary to have the trial in another county than that where the murder occurred in order to have the witnesses unintimidated. In the feud of which the murder of Marcum was an incident twenty-six persons have been killed without a legal conviction of the murderers until this one.

That heroism is not confined to the so called civilized nations was shown in the collision off Hongkong in which the Chinese cruiser Huangtai was sunk by the steamer Empress of India. All but fourteen of the ill fated vessel's complement were rescued, but the Huangtai's commander refused to leave his ship and went down with colors flying. Thus it appears that China can produce brave men as well as Boxers and laundrymen.

That Cupid laughs at poverty as well as locksmiths is again shown by the fact that Simon Thomas, aged eighty, and Mrs. Isabella Wells, aged fifty-five, inmates of the Jasper county (Mo.) poorhouse, eloped the other day and were married.

If there is to be no war between Japan and Russia the newspaper proof

England is talking of adopting our immigration laws to keep out undesirable aliens. The anarchist colonies of this country have shown the value of these laws.

Sex In Industry.

The Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics has lately issued an interesting brochure on "Sex In Industry," in which is shown the industrial progress of women in the Bay State. The report shows that many occupations which formerly belonged exclusively to men are now being invaded by women. Women are working in the following vocations hitherto monopolized by males: Auctioneers, baggage-men, brakemen and conductors, blacksmiths, boot-blacks, butchers, carpenters, civil engineers, charcoal, coke and lime burners, copper workers, teamsters, engineers, farmers, hostlers, laborers in coal yards, longshoremen, machinists, miners, oil well employees, pilots, plumbers, tillers, undertakers and veterinary surgeons. This well shows the changed condition of living, for women in many of these employments would have been viewed with the strongest disapproval a few years ago. There are now very few trades or industries closed to women, although, of course, they are less numerous in the harder and rougher branches. Indeed the increase of the number of women working as bread-winners and their invasion of new lines of trade and industry are striking features of the age.

Relative to the effect of the competition of female labor on the standard of wages, it is pointed out that the tendency has undoubtedly been to reduce the wages paid men. This has caused a great deal of apprehension, and it has been found that the competition of female labor would greatly and permanently depress the standard of wages. It is found, however, that it does not work as badly as might be expected. The wages paid women have steadily advanced, and, moreover, it is found that women wage earners as a rule are employed but a few years, when marriage removes them from the ranks of workers. But for the intervention of marriage the chances are that the feminine competitors would greatly depress the standard of wages, though as it is they apparently affect it but slightly.

The Jail Breaking Habit.

The tendency of events apparently unrelated to run in sequences is illustrated by the frequent cases of jail breaking that have occurred of late in widely separated sections of the country. The most notable of these were the "jail deliveries" at the Dannemora state prison in New York and at the Folsom prison in California, both of which places of detention were regarded as being about as secure as human ingenuity could make them.

It can hardly be supposed that prison wardens have suddenly grown careless or that convicts, have suddenly found confinement more irksome and unendurable than formerly. Probably the truth is that the inhabitants of any large prison are less the prisoners of the walls around them than of the distrust they have for each other and their consequent hesitation to unite against the guards whom they so largely outnumber. The intelligence to plan and the ability to execute an individual escape are lacking in most convicts, but whenever, as in California, a lot of them combine they can usually gain at least temporary freedom by sheer weight and strength. The news of one such achievement spreads by mysterious telegraphy to many prisons, and the power of suggestion does the rest.

In these days of quick communication and widespread intelligence the business of jail breaking is a most unprofitable one. In nine cases out of ten the escaping convict speedily finds that his energy has been wasted. For him there is nowhere safety, even though he goes to any place except the very ends of the earth, and life in such places is considerably worse than it is in an ordinary prison. However, the escaping prisoner has this consolation—he becomes the central figure of a newspaper sensation, which usually lasts until the publicity which the newspapers give him results in his recapture.

its highest point in 1892, was probably the most noteworthy of these efforts. But the political features overwhelmed the economic programme of that organization, and its decline was rapid. There are, however, still flourishing branches of the alliance in different parts of the country. The Patrons of Husbandry, the grange and co-operative societies, the most influential of the latter at present being that of the farmers of Kansas, have also attempted to increase the profits of farming by raising prices and abolishing the "rake off" of the commission man. In this connection the reader will recall the cry, "Hold your wheat for a dollar!" started by Ignatius Donnelly and kept up during several months some years ago.

But now there is a movement on foot for a broader and more far-reaching co-operation among the agriculturists of the country. A conference has just been held in Chicago looking to the combining of farmers, fruit growers, dairymen and all other producers of natural food products into one national organization. This movement has for its purpose the maintaining of prices, the control of distribution of products and the saving of large sums of money paid in commissions. The plan under consideration contemplates the erection of grain elevators and cold storage warehouses in all parts of the country where products may be held if necessary until such times as they can be marketed at a fair price.

As a result of the conference it was decided to hold a farmers' convention in Chicago Sept. 8 to consider detailed plans of organization. The call is signed by Robert Linblom, president of the Farmers' National Co-operative exchange, Chicago; J. A. Everitt, president of the American Society of Equity, Indianapolis, and D. L. Wilson, representing the dairy interests, Elgin, Ill.

No Cause For Friction.

The report that an American fishing boat had reached a port on Lake Erie badly riddled with bullets from a Canadian revenue cutter caused some little surprise and indignation, though it is hardly probable that it will cause any friction in the amicable relations of the United States and the Dominion government. There appears to be no reasonable ground for resentment on the part of this government. The captain of the fishing boat was poaching in Canadian waters, where, as he well knew, he had no right to be. He confessed this when he precipitately abandoned his nets and made for harbor on the Pennsylvania side of the lake.

It is simply a case of Canadian fish for Canadians, just as among us, for example, Virginia proclaims the doctrine of Virginia oysters for Virginians. Canadian fishermen would no doubt fare just as badly as did the American skipper who was fired on if they should be caught taking fish in our waters.

The following incident furnishes one of the reasons why men in the employ of Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph company, swear by him: Mr. Mackay was coming down in an elevator of the Postal building the other day and noticed the operator perspiring in his heavy gray uniform. "Why don't you wear a lighter coat?" he said. "I haven't any," was the answer, "and they wouldn't let me wear it if I had." That afternoon Mr. Mackay issued an order. The elevator men in summer were to wear black alpaca coats, and the coats were to be provided by the company. More frequent exhibitions of such consideration for the comfort of employees on the part of employing corporations would greatly lessen the friction between capital and labor.

French assassins are trying to rival French duellists as provokers of innocent merriment. The anarchist who was guilty of the recent attack upon M. Combes threw a ripe tomato at the premier as he was driving to a state function. It is probable that all the greengrocers of Paris will be arrested as accomplices.

Chicago's board of health having reiterated its advice to citizens to boil their water, without taking active steps to procure for them water which doesn't need to be boiled, it is now proposed to boil the health department for a change.

With dollar wheat the Kansas and Dakota farmers will soon be eligible for membership in the Millionaire club, filling the vacancies made by the demoralization of the Wall street people.

Like Mark Twain, Senator Matthew S. Quay rises to remark that the current report of his death is grossly exaggerated.

If the police of Indianapolis really think they can stop love making in the parks they don't know Cupid.

The woes of Armenia appear to have been lost sight of in connection with the Balkan problem, although it is not improbable that the Armenians will shortly become an important element in the struggle, not perhaps by joining hands with Turkey's Christian subjects in Europe, but by an uprising that will so complicate the whole problem that European interference will become inevitable. Deprived of their church funds by the czar, there appears to be no choice left to the Armenians except revolt or submission to extermination at the hands of the sultan's Kurdish soldiery.

Miss Lole Hall, of Elgin, returned home Monday after a two weeks' visit with the Misses Eloise Jenks and Lillian Tidmarsh, in our village.

Last Friday the Junior Base Ball team went to Lake Zurich and defeated the Juniors of that place by a score of 17 to 7. On the following day the Wauconda Regulars defeated McHenry on the locals' field by a score of 14 to 6. Saturday, August 29, will bring together Wauconda and McHenry at McHenry, and Sunday the locals will meet the strong American team at Lake Zurich. Warm games are expected at both places.

A Woman's Complexion.

It is rank foolishness to attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." The only safe and sure way that a woman can improve her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplished by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollution. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleanses and enriches the blood, purifies the complexion. It also cures constipation, biliousness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep. A single bottle of August Flower has been known to cure the most pronounced and distressing cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. New trial size bottle, 25 cents; regular size, 75 cents. At H. T. Abbott's, Barrington.

THE FORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. The Ford's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original The Ford's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Morgan, Ark., May 25, 1901.

I cannot recommend The Ford's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never gave my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me well.

A Communication.

of X-Ray machines and have been for some years and you can readily understand that I feel that these instruments are a very important if not an absolutely necessary part of every doctor's equipment. Believing this I have never considered it good business principles to hide my light under a bushel. While I am very sorry indeed if my article has had any bad effect upon Dr. Weichelt, still at the same time I am not sorry from my own standpoint that the article appeared in your paper, because I believe that an intelligent community is always interested in matters of this kind. Why should not the people of Barrington and vicinity be just as much interested in the latest developments in electricity as are the people of Chicago or any other vicinity? I am convinced from my experience at the Pan-American and other public exhibition places, that the people are interested in outfits of this kind, and deeply interested so that they not only read eagerly everything on the subject, but are anxious to see anything of the kind possible to be seen and to investigate the merits of such apparatus.

Now, Brother Lamey, I want you to help me to square this matter so far as Dr. Weichelt is concerned, and to assure your readers that he is not responsible for the article which appeared last week, and did not even know that it was coming out. At the same time I desire to state that I can see nothing wrong in the article, but quite the contrary, I consider it something which everybody in any community should be pleased to read and that everybody who did read it is glad he read it. Of course, I understand that every physician in good standing considers it unethical to advertise, but I believe that Dr. Weichelt is wrong in considering this article as an advertisement, and anyone else who construed it as an advertisement must either be influenced by prejudice or have a very vivid imagination. Our very best surgeons and in fact the best professional men we have are often mentioned in newspapers in connection with their work or their apparatus and when such articles are not written or paid for as an advertisement no exception can be had to them even by the most ethical. Very truly yours, C. E. CHURCHILL.

When Robespierre Was "Stung."

Under the terror Robespierre used to play a peaceful game of chess at the Cafe Regence, and the story is told of a youth who once challenged him and beat him twice. Robespierre, after his defeat, asked how much he owed, no stakes having been previously fixed. The supposed youth, who in reality was a girl in man's clothes, presented an order for the release of her lover from prison, and Robespierre signed it. Napoleon Bonaparte during his consulship was seen at the famous cafe, but he showed himself no tactician at chess.—London Telegraph.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Morning Gown.

Morning gown of blue Japanese linen trimmed with Japanese embroidery in white mercerized cotton. The embroidery occurs as inserted bands in bodice and sleeves. Yoke, cuffs and epaulets are plaited, and circular band of plaits adds additional smart touch to the skirt, coming just above the hem.

The Girl in White.

According to reports, there is an American girl who is much sought after in English society who never wears anything but white. Morning, noon and night she rings the changes in white serge, cambric, tulle, chiffon and satin. "Do as I say, and you will be beautiful," said the great man milliner in Paris. "But I love pale blue, and I love fawn, and you will be ugly." was the response. So the artist had his way. Few women realize it, but no beauty can rise superior to clothes and hair-dressing, and the greatest beauty may be absolutely disguised by the things she wears. "If I did not know how to present myself I should be hideous," declares the great Sarah.

Charm of Print Dresses.

Print possesses much simplicity and charm. The white print dress with red spots upon it or the white print dress with narrow black lines upon it may be converted into a thing of signal stylishness. The skirt should be plainly fashioned, bearing two very large tucks upon the hem, and, by the way, the very large tuck known as the lingerie tuck appears on many of the most elaborate dresses. The simple gathered bodice to that print dress might have a very deep yoke cut with a long shoulder seam made of Irish lace, and the waist would be encircled by a scarlet leather belt.

A Smart Hat.

Very smart among the late summer styles is a hat of thin white felt. The shape, which is very chic and jaunty, is covered with strips of the felt. At one side is a big black feather pompon, from which springs a stiff white aigret.

FOR LATE SUMMER WEAR.

Hints to the Wise.

The woman who cannot afford to buy a good veil to drape around her hat should not wear one at all, for a flimsy piece of chiffon dangling from one's hat is a sight to make the angel weep.

Another thing: Always fasten the back of your skirt. Nothing is so untidy as to see the placket of your skirt open.

Lace yokes, cut out embroidery and blouses, airy enough for a ballroom, do not look well in crowded downtown streets.

The girl who wears a trim, simple gown shows up much better after a day's shopping than her "airy fairy" sister who will look dowdy if not untidy early in the day.

The girl with "one frock" must have a care in the selection of the material, pattern and color.

What may be worn with good taste once in awhile is bound to prove unsatisfactory if put into everyday use. No matter how becoming a frock may be, resist the temptation to possess it unless it will bear the stress of everyday wear.

GEN. J. C. BLACK NEW CHIEF

Illinois Veteran Chosen Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic--Next Encampment in Boston.

Gen. John C. Black of Illinois, was elected commander in chief of the G. A. R., at the San Francisco encampment, and Boston was chosen as the place for the holding of the next encampment.

Gen. Black made a brief address of thanks to the convention, and of Pennsylvania; junior vice president, Mrs. James Smith of Ohio; treasurer, Mrs. S. M. Stewart of Gettysburg, Pa.; chaplain, Mary E. Lacey of New Jersey; guard, Mary F. Fox of New Jersey; conductor, Mrs. E. L. Chapman of Illinois.

In the executive session of the G. GENERAL JOHN C. BLACK.

pledged himself to work for the good of the order.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles was called upon as soon as Boston was chosen as the next meeting place, as the selection was taken as a declaration that it meant the election of Miles to the chief office in his home city in 1904. Gen. Miles made a speech that was cordially received.

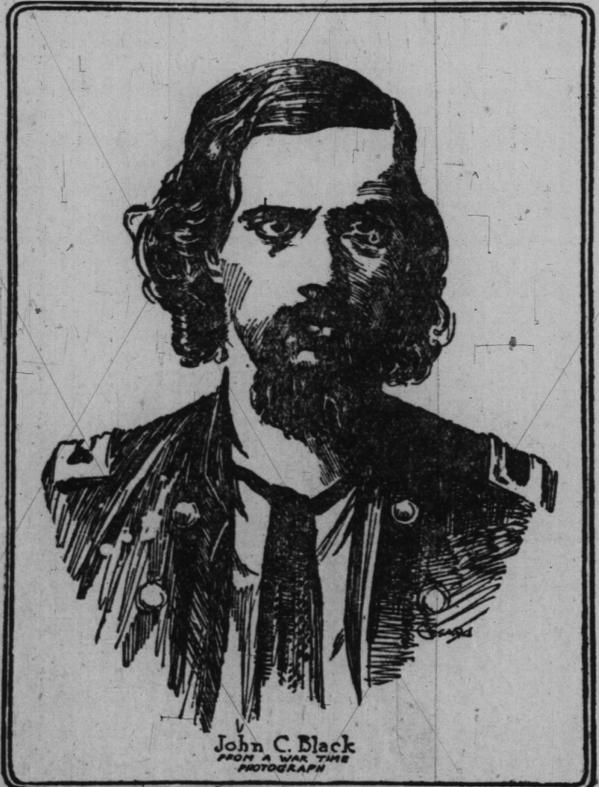

A proposition to admit sons of veterans into the Grand Army posts was strongly supported, but after an extended debate was defeated by a small majority.

The encampment adopted a resolution requesting congress to pass a bill pensioning all veterans who have reached the age of 62 years.

Roster of Officers.
The officers of the G. A. R., as elected, are: Commander in chief, Gen. John C. Black of Illinois; senior vice commander, Col. C. Mason Keene of California; junior vice commander, Col. Harry Kessler of Montana; sur-

A. R. all the outgoing officers read their reports. Commander in Chief Thomas J. Stewart in his report said that since the last meeting in California, seventeen years ago, the western boundary of the nation had been extended a long way across the Pacific. Regarding membership he said: "The gains in membership the last year were, by muster, 8,183; transfer, 3,602; reinstatement, 11,672; the losses by death, 8,366; honorable discharge, 730; transfer, 2,990; suspension, 13,513; dishonorable discharge, 76; delinquent reports, 5,022; net loss, 7,245."

In regard to a general pension scheme, Gen. Stewart said: "I believe it would be wise to appoint a committee whose duty would be to frame a proper bill and present the same to congress, providing for a pension of not less than $12 per month for all honorably discharged soldiers, sailors or marines who may choose to apply."

Southern Negroes Ride Wheels.
There are thousands of bicycles being sold this season through the Southern states, where the bicycle craze has struck the negroes, and the wheel has almost been abandoned by the whites.

The report of Inspector General F. A. Walsh contained the following figures: Number of posts, 6,711, a loss of five; members in good standing, 255,100, a loss of 9,162; aggregate of post relief funds, $300,069, an increase of $25,135; aggregate expenditure by posts for relief, $153,666, a decrease of $60,513.

Lazy Indeed.
"That is the laziest man I ever met," said the old parson.
"How so?" asked the friend.
"Why, I told him he could reach the seventh heaven if he only tried and he asked if there was an elevator."

WAR DANCE ON AN "L" CAR.

Inquisitive Lobster the Cause of Much Trouble.

The woman had smuggled a pet Skye terrier into an "L" car, and slipped the animal under a cross seat, where it went asleep. Presently a man carrying a small basket came in and sat beside her. He also stowed his burden under the seat. Ten minutes later the woman began to wriggle. She shook out her skirts and said in an audible whisper, "Don't be rude, Fido." Presently she turned pale, and, jerking the chain by which she held the dog cried, "Lie down, Fido! Behave yourself, sir!" Then she jumped up and began a war dance, striking at her skirts all the time. The man stared in amazement until an idea struck him. Reaching under the seat for his basket, he looked inside it, and a great light of intelligence overspread his countenance.

"Madam," said he without moving an eyelash, "when you have quite finished with my lobster will you kindly return it to me?"

The jaws of the lobster were wrenched apart, while the woman blushed and the other passengers tittered.—New York Press.

A Marvelous Accomplishment.

A noted New York chef, in speaking on the subject a few days ago, said:

"Did you ever stop to think what it means to serve from fifty to 125 people a meal in a dining car? The necessarily small space in which the meal must be prepared, the rapid manner in which it must be served, the fact that all the time the train is running at a high rate of speed, and that the diners are moving in and out of the dining car, in the very limited space allotted for the waiters to serve the meal, all add materially to the difficulty of the situation.

"In looking over a dinner menu in use on the New York Central's Twentieth Century Limited, I was surprised to find that this dinner would cost, at any first class hotel in New York, between $4 and $5. Of course, all of the dishes on the menu would not likely be ordered by any one person, but the fact that each patron has the entire menu to order from is the foundation for my estimate of what the dinner would cost in New York.

"Among the dishes served on the day I examined the menu were green turtle soup, shad, fresh mushrooms, spring lamb, teal duck, fresh tomatoes, strawberry shortcake, etc., etc."

A Moro Beauty.

The belle of Bongoa was a slave girl of 18, so graceful and lithe that her every attitude suggested a bird just alighted from a flight through space. Her dark eyes were fringed by the longest of black lashes, and even her stained teeth could not detract from the curves of her pretty mouth. She had a self-consciousness of her own attractions and was as imperious and overbearing as any American beauty, stamping her tiny foot in rage at the photographer's lack of haste in taking her picture, and once walking away from the camera with a disdainful toss of her head. When, after much persuasion, she was induced to return, it was only to scowl sullenly at everybody with the most bewitching ill-temper, poised so lightly that the very wind seemed to sway her slender figure back and forth like a flower on its stalk.—Everybody's Magazine.

May Arbitrate Their Disputes.

It is generally believed that England and France are on the point of reaching an agreement providing for the arbitration of differences independently of The Hague tribunal. Such an agreement would be no disparagement whatever to that court of arbitration, but rather an acknowledgement of its powerful influence in promoting the peace of the world. With The Hague court ready for business, the great nations will find it more difficult than ever to go to war.

Undoubtedly.

"The chronic kicker," mused the west side philosopher, "is a great benefactor."

"What's the answer?" queried the man who had wandered over from the north shore.

"He makes a man appreciate people who are good natured," explained the philosophy dispenser.

The Summer Bath.

Nothing is more refreshing or invigorating in summer than a daily bath. Use soft, tepid water and good soap. Ivory Soap is ideal for the bath; it is pure, lathers quickly and leaves the skin soft and white. The bath should be taken early in the morning or just before retiring at night. ELEANOR R. PARKER.

Facts and Figures.

Tom—"Nonsense nothing! It was told her by a mercantile agency."

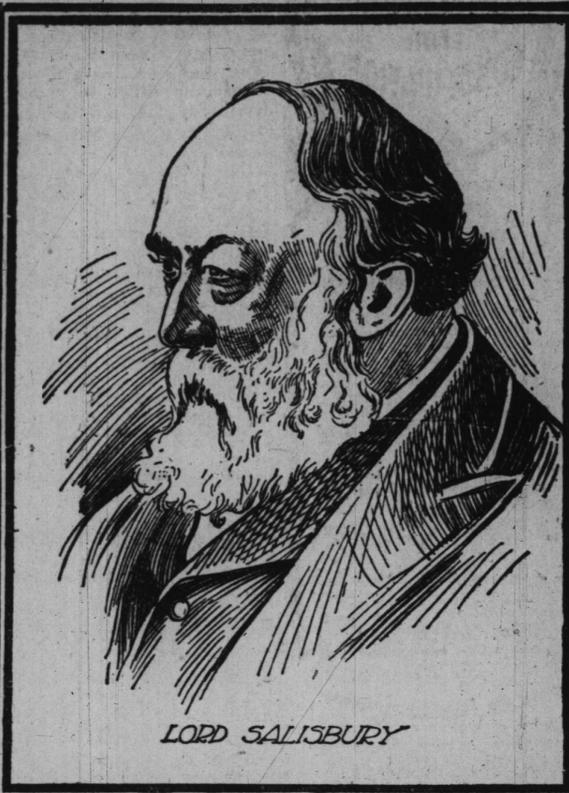

Insist on Getting It.

Some grocers say they don't keep Defiance Starch. This is because they have a stock on hand of other brands containing only 12 oz. in a package, which they won't be able to sell first, because Defiance contains 16 oz. for the same money.
Do you want 16 oz. instead of 12 oz. for same money? Then buy Defiance Starch. Requires no cooking.

A Tip on Stocks.

Hold on to your good stocks. This is sound counsel in windy weather. The man who has paid for his investments is not the one who is forced to sell when panic comes. It is a good time for men who have sand in their blood to show it.

LORD SALISBURY, DISTINGUISHED BRITISH STATESMAN, IS DEAD

LORD SALISBURY

Marquis of Salisbury, distinguished statesman and former premier of the British Empire, who has just passed away.

FORMER BRITISH PREMIER DEAD.

Lord Salisbury Passes Away at His Home, Hatfield, England.

Lord Salisbury, former British premier, died Aug. 22 at his home in Hatfield.

When news came of his fatal illness, the once all-powerful tory statesman had disappeared as completely from public life as if he were already a tenant of the grave. A few short months out of office sufficed for that, and the fact is interesting evidence of the immense influence of official notoriety upon the popular imagination. The indispensable statesman was reduced to a cipher, as most indispensable statesmen are when they retire voluntarily or involuntarily to make room for their indispensable successors.

It is true, nevertheless, that the fortune, the career and the abilities of the ex-premier were all very much out of the common. He came of one of the most illustrious houses of England, and the most uncompromising democrat must be affected to a certain extent by his family traditions. The Cecil certainly had reason to feel that they were born to rule, that the glories of their country were in a peculiar degree an inheritance of their own. Lord Salisbury himself was duly impressed by this feeling, and though he incurred the displeasure of his father by his marriage and was forced to writing for the periodicals as a consequence, he remained an aristocrat throughout his life. He was distinctly a governor from the classes with a contempt for the masses, and it is perhaps doubtful if another man of his type will ever succeed to his authority.

Whether he himself could have wielded that authority as he did except for a remarkably favorable combination of circumstances is also doubtful. He owed much to the radicalism of Mr. Gladstone on the Irish question, which made the British people turn instinctively to an ultra conservative. It is highly improbable that his service as premier would have been longer than that of any other Victorian statesman but for this fact. He owed much also to the favor of the queen, and though he fought Disraeli at one time he ended by courting him.

His ability was first manifested in the savage satire of his writings, which appeared again in his speeches in parliament. All the biographical notices that have been written of him abound in examples of this satire. His later fame depended chiefly on his reputation as foreign secretary, but it is too early as yet to say that it is firmly established. While he had an unusually comprehensive knowledge of international politics, his conduct of foreign affairs has led Englishmen themselves to turn against him the sneer of Bismarck that he was a lath pointed to look like iron. It will be remembered in this connection that he drew back in the Venezuelan dispute after a considerable show of resolution, and though the step was wise this can hardly be said of the diplomacy that led up to it.

Costly Sport.

One day last week Stephen Van Buren of Brooklyn went over the rivers to New Jersey, taking his gun and dog along. Somewhere not far from Paterson he saw a bird which he thought looked like a wild duck and he shot it. The farmer who owned the duck had him arrested and before noon he had been fined twice—once for killing the duck and again for being a nonresident gunner. The fines and costs amounted to something over $50, after paying which Stephen Van Buren tared back to Brooklyn.

HEART DROPS FOUR INCHES.

Peculiar Case of a New Jersey Boy Baffles the Physicians.

With his heart out of place and appearing at times to be twice its normal size, nine-year-old James De Groot is furnishing a case that is baffling half a dozen leading surgeons in Morristown, N. J. He is the son of George De Groot an inventor. The surgeons think young De Groot's heart dropped from its original position down back of the stomach and was carried over to the right side in the region of the liver. The boy is now in the Memorial hospital.

About two weeks ago his parents noticed that he had great difficulty in breathing. When the first physician was called the apex of the boy's heart was found to be about an inch and a half lower than it should be. It continued to sink until it was four inches out of place. Then he was taken to the hospital. It was only by constantly administering stimulants that he was kept alive. The pulse was intermittent, the beats sometimes registering only fifty to the minute.

But the lad is getting better. The apex of the heart is moving upward again until it is only about an inch and a half below the normal plane.

Venerable Hermit Dead.

John Viles, known to thousands of White mountain visitors as "English Jack," is dying in his lone cabin on the mountains near Crawford, where he has lived as a recluse for twenty-nine years. Soured on the world by the death of his fiancée, Jack enlisted in the English navy and served in the Crimean and Chinese wars and many other events of importance. Tired of this life, he came to America and settled down at Crawford, making his living selling birch-bark canoes, canes, etc., to hotel people who visited his cabin in the summer.

Millionaire Marries Nurse.

Otis Coxe of Philadelphia is the latest millionaire to fall in love with and marry a pretty trained nurse. When Mr. Coxe was ill of typhoid fever some time ago Miss Gertrude Jones of Knoxville, Tenn., watched over him. Her beauty and gentle manner won the rich patient, who proposed and was accepted while yet a comparative invalid. They were married quietly in Knoxville, only the bride's mother and one or two friends being witnesses of the ceremony. The couple have gone to California on a wedding tour.

Impertinence Rebuked.

The London Mail recalls a supper party given two or three years ago in honor of the birthday of Mme. Amy Sherwin, on whose menu card the late Phil May made an exquisite little drawing. This was seen by a wealthy woman present, who sent the waiter with a £10 note to the artist, asking him to do a similar drawing for her. Mr. May, disgusted at the woman's impertinence, took a good look at her and then made an appallingly truthful caricature of her features on the back of the bank note, which he returned.

A tall, handsome man, with a peculiarly winning smile and attractive manner, he gives no outward sign of a misfortune which would have shadowed a temperament less buoyant than his own. Sir Arthur is a famous globe trotter, a great part of his travel having been undertaken to study means of ameliorating the lot of those afflicted as he is himself.

Tug Bears Down on Man and Wife Struggling in Water, Separating Them.

HARSH WORDS FOR THE CREW

Rowboat is Overturned by Wash From Ferry and Husband Alleges Little Effort Was Made by Those on Board to Render Aid.

New York special: To battle in a strong tide for a mile trying to keep his wife from drowning, to see 300 men look on his struggle, and none to give aid beyond tossing life preservers that fell far out of reach, and at last to have the rescuing tug part him from his precious burden, was the experience that made Thomas F. Parent a widower and left him wild with rage against the ferry crew and the passengers, whom he blames for his loss.

"I would jump overboard to save a dog," he said, "but on that crowded ferryboat there was not a man brave enough to swim to me with a life-preserver or a line, though all could see I had barely strength enough to keep my wife afloat and could not swim against the tide to reach the one life preserver that they threw overboard."

He referred to the ferryboat Albany of the West Shore railroad. At the offices it was said every effort was made to save Parent and his wife.

Parent and his wife, with Michael Melton of Brooklyn and his son, Charles Melton, 17 years old, started from the foot of West Thirty-fifth street in a rowboat. They were bound to New Jersey for an outing. When off Thirty-first street the ferryboat approached. The wash from this and another vessel upset the rowboat.

Tug Separates Couple. Parent grasped his wife and kept afloat while the Meltons clung to the overturned boat. The ferryboat Albany bore down on the unfortunates. The crew threw a life-preserver, which fell short, and a line tossed did not reach. It would take too much time to take the lifeboat from the roof, the officers say. The whistle of the ferryboat drew the attention of a tug and the latter cut its tow and went to the rescue. In the heavy tide the bow of the boat struck between Parent and his wife and before the crew could grasp the pair the wife's body sank. The other three were rescued.

Heroic Rescue by Tugs. While his wife and four of his children looked on August Volkner of 1065 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, essayed to row on a Coney Island creek, accompanied by his 2-year-old son. The boat capsized near a bulkhead. Two boys, each about 12 years old, who were fishing from the bulkhead, dropped their lines and dived overboard to the rescue. They got the baby, and, handing him up to others, dived three times before bringing the father to the surface, but he died before help arrived. The boys refused to give their names.

STATE WINS TELEGRAPH SUIT

Western Union Must Obtain License to Do Business in Minnesota. Minneapolis, Minn., dispatch: The state of Minnesota has won an important suit against the Western Union Telegraph company when Judge Simpson sustained the demurrer which Attorney General Somerby interposed to the answer of the Western Union in the prosecution brought by the state because the company had not taken out a license and otherwise conformed to the Somerville law. The company claimed to be exempt from such a license because it operated under the interests of the interstate commerce law.

MOTH KILLERS A LOTTERY.

Our Grandmothers' Cedar Chests the Only Real Preventive. "Long experience has taught me never to recommend a preventive for moths," said a Lexington avenue druggist who has a window full of all sorts of them. "I have grown gray from women coming around to me in the fall and bating me because moths had eaten their furs in spite of a moth killer that I had assured them was all right. I once took home to my wife a moth bag which I had reason to believe was proof against the pests. She put some treasured apparel away in it, and when she took the thing out it had more holes than a sieve. I had no domestic peace for a month. Now I keep all sorts of moth killers for sale, but I never recommend one. A woman may buy camphor, moth balls, sulphur, moth paper or anything else she pleases, for all I care. As Capt. Cuttle says, it depends on the application of it. But let me tell you, my boy, when you want a dead-sure thing for moths just think of grandmother's old cedar chest. Where to get them now? Aye, there's the rub!"—New York Press.

The Question Answered. Estill Springs, Tenn., Aug. 24th.—Many questions are being asked of Mr. C. D. Holt of this place in regard to his wonderful recovery. For over two years he has been down with his back. He was so very bad that he could not even lace his shoes, and from this condition he suddenly appeared well and strong as ever.

He tells them all: "Dodd's Kidney Pills did it," and adds "This remedy is a genuine good medicine and one that I can heartily recommend to everybody."

"Everyone around here knows how very bad I was. I was so weak in my back that I couldn't do anything that needed stooping or bending over, and three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made me as you see, as well as ever I was."

"They certainly had a wonderful effect on my case."

The Best Short Sales. James Stillman, president of the National City bank, is a man of few words, but he makes those few count. A famous tip that he is said to have given a friend two months ago has leaked out in Wall street.

The friend in question wrote to him asking for advice concerning the market. He had $500,000, and wanted to make it a million. Here is the reply of Mr. Stillman, written in lead pencil on a sheet of paper three by four:

RED RIVER VALLEY FARMS FOR SALE AND TO RENT.

I have over 200 of the finest farms in the RED RIVER VALLEY of North Dakota and Minnesota. For sale or rent, of all sizes from 160 acres to 2,000 acres to each farm, with fine buildings. Most of these farms are located along streams, having all the way from 10 to 50 acres of fine timber. They are all near to railroad towns. Most of them are located in Cass, Traill and Steele Counties, North Dakota, and Clay County, Minnesota. I do not sell any lands in the northern or western parts of this state, nor in Canada, where drought and frost happen so often. Farmers in those remote parts of North Dakota and Canada have to pay too much freight on farm products to make farming profitable. The farms that I have for sale are located from 220 to 300 miles from Duluth, which is as good a grain market as Chicago. You will save commission by coming to me direct, instead of buying your land through an agent. When you get here, I will show you fine farm buildings, fine level rich lands, no stone, alkali or sand, and also fine crops of all kinds, including as good corn crops as you have ever seen in the State of Illinois.

For further information, write to or call on JOHN WYMAN, FARGO, NORTH DAKOTA.

Life is full of grief and trouble,
 Ills untold we have to bear;
 Hope at times seems but a bubble
 Even when our skies are fair.
 Yet we'd not be half so weary,
 Bravely could we bear each blow,
 Were it not for that most dreary
 Wretch who says: "I told you so."

A WORTHY OBJECT.

W. R. C. Plan a Social to Raise Fund to Aid Construction of Soldiers' Monument.

The people of Barrington and vicinity entertain for the soldier dead the full measure of veneration as each Memorial Day has shown. The beautiful and impressive custom of decorating the resting places of those who sacrificed that this union of states might not perish, attracts the attention of a civilized world. The sewing of floral offerings is but a part of our duty to those fallen heroes.

In every city, village and hamlet of this great land should rise a monument of imperishable kind to the memory of the patriots who fought and died in the cause of human freedom.

The question of erecting a soldiers' monument in this village has often been agitated, but so far no steps for furthering the project have been taken. Now the W. R. C. propose to take up the work and use every effort to carry it to completion. When a band of women will, they will, depend upon it.

To start a fund for this most worthy object the W. R. C. will give a social on the lawn at Mrs. James Sizer's residence, next Tuesday evening, Sept. 1, and will offer attractive amusements, music and refreshments. This affair deserves the liberal patronage of all the citizen of Barrington and vicinity.

The ladies do not expect to accomplish this work of love for the soldier dead alone, but rely on the support of the G. A. R. and public in general to further the laudable undertaking.

Give the monument fund a substantial start at the social Tuesday evening, Sept. 1.

The Review is in receipt of a communication relative to the needs of a new school building and a high school course of study here. The communication contains no suggestions but what have been threshed over and over again. Agitation of the question is not what is needed. It is prompt action.

Entertained the Dundee Corps.

The Dundee ladies said, "We had a royal good time even if we had to leave conveyances and walk part of the way here and start home in a rain storm."

WANTS A SWEETHEART.

A Novel Way of Finding a Girl Matrimonially Inclined.

When a young man wants a sweetheart, he wants one bad. If he is unfortunate in not finding one in his own town or vicinity he searches the wide, wide world.

A young man residing at Marinette, Wis., is employed in the paper mills there and he conceived the idea of sending a general invitation to the "pretty girls matrimonially inclined" of the world through the medium of a shipment of wrapping paper, which he probably packed for shipment.

The following letter was found in a roll of paper purchased by Alverson & Groff, and was written on a sample of the roll:

MARINETTE, Wis., July 30, 1903.

SWEETHEART WANTED:
I would like to hear from some young pretty girls who are matrimonially inclined. Hoping to get any early reply, I remain yours to be true.
JOS. WEMET, 1112 Oakes St., Marinette, Wis.

Mr. Wemet will, no doubt, receive many replies to his message. We have lots of pretty girls in Barrington, but whether they are "matrimonially inclined" we are not prepared to say. Joseph will discover like everyone else that advertising is a mighty good thing.

Life is a riddle that every mother's son of us must give up.

Repentance is a feeling of remorse that comes to a man after he gets caught at it.

Occasionally a steady stream of men may be seen going into a saloon, but the coming-out stream is apt to be a trifle unsteady.

Most of the bad milk is found by inspectors to be bad before it reaches Chicago. It further appears that the efforts of Chicago dealers to reform it are not crowned with glowing success.

It would be incorrect to say that the cases of Jonah and Governor Yates are parallel. No friendly whale hovers near the spot where the governor is to be cast adrift.

Wise highway robbers will confine themselves to robbing men. A robber who was not wise tried his game on a Chicago woman and she sat on him until the police came.

When you read of a case in which a button saves a man's life by stopping a bullet do you pause to think of the danger that is being run by the man who holds his trousers up with a ten-penny nail?

It has just been discovered that the cost of living is 15 per cent higher than it was five years ago. All who have been living during that period knew it before the discovery was made.

Instead of making eggs come to life let the professors tackle the practical proposition of making fresh eggs out of those on sale at the grocery stores.

In after years when a woman wants to take the conceit out of her husband she repeats some of the things he said during their courtship.

The only difference between white lies and black ones is that other people always tell the black ones.

An obnoxious form of light literature is the electric light bill.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following is a list of unclaimed letters remaining in the post office at Barrington, Aug. 28, 1903:

Walter Arp, Hiram M. Bryant, August Krackeberg, C. Wilhelm.
H. K. BROCKWAY, P. M.

Death is now picking off the G. A. R. veterans at the rate of over nine thousand a year. The inspector general's report shows the membership of the Grand Army to be 55,000, a loss of 9,162. The losses by death during the preceding year were 8,299. From this time on the percentage of loss by deaths will greatly increase until the last survivor of the great conflict is mustered out.

A. Sonnenberg offers his well-selected stock of boots, shoes, slippers, etc., at prices less than quoted by Chicago dealers. The goods will be sold at actual cost prices. Call, examine goods and be convinced. 32-1f

A minister in a neighboring town was recently delivering a sermon on "pride." After enumerating many of the shortcomings of proud people, he asked any sister who had not looked in the mirror before starting to church to please rise. One lady stood up and all eyes in the congregation were turned upon her while the preacher meekly said: "Lord bless you, sister, I don't blame you."

The appointment of a Waukegan man, Charles A. Partridge, to the office of adjutant of the National G. A. R. is received with much joy among Waukegan veterans and people generally. Mr. Partridge has long been one of the foremost workers for the G. A. R. in Illinois and his familiarity with the doings of the veterans' organization makes him well qualified to fill the office. The appointment is an honor to Lake county.

A COMMUNICATION

From Mr. Churchill Relative to Publicity Given Purchase of X-Ray Machine.

EDITOR-REVIEW:—Last Thursday I spoke to you, with regard to a little article which I would like to have printed in the Barrington Review on the subject of an X-Ray outfit which our house had just put into the office of Dr. Weichelt, and you suggested as the subject was unfamiliar to you that it might be a good idea for me to write such an article as I would like to have published; this I did and the article appeared in your issue of August 14th. It seems that exception has been taken to this article by some, and principally by Dr. Weichelt himself, for the reason that the doctor thought that it looked as if he were resorting to advertising for the purpose of increasing his practice.

Now I appeal to you to help me get this matter straightened out. You know as well as I do, that Dr. Weichelt had nothing to do with this article, but that the whole idea emanated from me and was carried out by me with your assistance. The reason perhaps, that I was so anxious to get a good article in your paper was because I have been living in Barrington for something over a year and during that time I have been the butt of a good many jokes, on the part of members of our house, because I was living in a town too small to use one of our X-Ray outfits. You may therefore understand that I felt quite a good deal of satisfaction in installing a machine in Dr. Weichelt's office and was very anxious indeed that this fact should be pretty well known in order to show those who had twitted me on the subject, that Barrington was plenty large enough and progressive enough for the best X-Ray outfit made.

I am interested in the manufacture
