KIMBERLY HOMESTEAD

One of the Picturesque Spots of Lake County--Beautiful "Hybla Hill"

The Quaint Cottage a Reminder of Pioneer Days--A Distinguished Family

Ages ago, long before Pierre Duque Boisbriant, knight of St. Louis, who, in 1722 governed the province of Illinois, in the American Empire Louisiana of the French King Louis XIV., from the great fortress of Chartres, opposite the present City of St. Louis, the region about little Honey Lake, was being planted with the flint arrow bars of the Miamis Indians, who then possessed the country west of Lake Illinois, now called Michigan.

In 1670, their chief metropolis was at Chicago, where Tetenchona, their venerable chief, was seated in royal state commander of 5,000 warriors, many of whom had, at seasons, their lodges at Honey and other lakes. Quantities of those Indian flints have been found, and a few years since a Spanish silver dollar of the revolutionary period was ploughed up in the orchard at Honey Lake.

In pioneer days hunters reaching the lake, whose banks were then covered by a dense growth of large trees, found one tree which had fallen and was partly in the water; from its hollow trunk honey was dripping into the lake, a large quantity was left, which they obtained. From this circumstance the lake was called Honey Lake.

The Kimberly place was named Hybla Hill by the late widow of Dr. Kimberly, as it was also the name of an old country seat of a great aunt of hers, to which she was attached.

The word Hybla is derived from the Greek and refers to Honey.

Arrowhurst, seated on a high elevation surrounded by noble old oaks, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. H. Kimberly, is so named from the many flint arrow points formerly found on its site.

Honey Lake.

The banks surrounding Honey Lake are very high and considerably more than a mile in circuit, forming a bowl, the lake the center. Its surface is 14 feet below Barrington to suicides' oak at Hollisters', and then descends by rolling plateaus to the lake forming then a valley. The prospect en route is charmingly sylvian.

Originally the lake was twice or more its present size, but time has lowered its outlet, which by again raising would expand its waters. Beavers and otters once abounded, and but a few years since a very large otter was taken just west of it.

Hybla and Arrowhurst embrace east part of lake and grounds. The scene is charming, constituting a natural park, the rolling divided by two ravines, through which during rainy seasons glide roaring, bubbling, over stony beds, the waters of two brooks that descend into the lake. Beautiful oak, walnut, hickory, elm, maple, pine, tamarack, cottonwood, willow, cherry, and wild fruit trees, cluster and grace. The grounds interspersed with shrubs, wild grape and other vines twine, clamber and droop in festoons from many large trees, wild and other flowers abound and grace the sward. In fact, nature has done what park commissioners expend vast fortunes to produce, but never surpass.

An Ancient Cottage.

About 33 feet above the lake, on its east bank, a short distance back from the road is the ancient old cottage—or bungalow—as the late Mrs. Kimberly some times called it. It is almost hidden by trees, here and there the peaks of its eight gables protrude, its dormers or bays, verandas or porch, odd shaped windows here or there, all appearing tells the story of long since, even within with its large odd rooms, closets, passages and stairways, all seems of a past, quaint, secluded and unpretentious.

In the life of the departed many enjoyed the hospitalities of the home. Men and women of fame from far away coming and going, so unostentatiously that other citizens never realized who had been among them.

The baying of the seven huge dogs of old at the moon is no longer heard, some of the beautiful flowers which the old mistress tended so carefully are not to be seen, but some of her rock work still remains. Yet all about is delightfully rural.

It was to this spot, nearly half a century ago, Dr. Edmund S. Kimberly and wife retired in their declining years from the activities and turmoil of Chicago life, where for a generation they had been prominent and influential.

A Pioneer of Chicago.

As a pioneer of that city Dr. Kimberly's labors in behalf of Chicago's interests in its infancy was well known to its old citizens, who duly honored therefore his enterprise, sacrifices, trials and triumphs with some others, in blazing the way, laying well the foundation of the present grand, great and peerless Chicago, and making easy the pathways for multitudes to follow, none of whom can properly realize the obstacles of that time that those pioneers had to overcome.

For the early days of Chicago were days that tried and proved the men's abilities and characters. The Chicago today is a glorious memorial, a pioneers victory.

Edmund Stoughton Kimberly, M. A. M. D., was born in Troy, N. Y., April 7, 1803, one hundred years since. Graduated with high honors from Lenox, Mass., Academy, in 1819. From Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., as M. of A. in 1822. Commissioned by Gov. De Witt Clinton, of New York, surgeon's mate, and about same time graduated as M. D. from New York College of Physicians and Surgeons. In 1832 he became a pioneer of Chicago.

On May 16, 1829, he was married to Miss Maria Theresa Ellis. When he located in Chicago it contained about 75 inhabitants, exclusive of the adjoining Fort Dearborn's garrison. He was there at the time of Black Hawk war.

In 1833 he was chosen Chicago's first village clerk for the purpose of establishing its civil government.

Member First Village Board of Chicago.

August 10, 1833, the election for its first board of trustees was held. There were 13 candidates, 28 votes cast, of which E. S. Kimberly received 20 and was duly sworn into office as a trustee on August 12th. The board immediately elected Col. Owen, Indian agent president; Isaac N. Harmon, clerk; G. W. Dole, treasurer. Kimberly being leader of the house in session. Thus Chicago had its first civil government.

In 1833 also, he was clerk of a public meeting in Chicago, held in favor of a railroad to La Salle on the Illinois river. Governor Reynolds was petitioned by it to call a session of the Illinois legislature to grant a charter for such road. He declined for financial reasons. Dr. Kimberly then became an advocate for the construction of the Illinois and Michigan canal, in place of the railroad.

This year he originated and became a principal stockholder through his commercial firm, with the Chicago merchants, a few in number, that printed Chicago's first newspaper. The Chicago Democrat, and the first number, was issued Nov. 26, 1833, and contained the ordinance fixing the boundary of the new Village of Chicago. It was introduced and passed by Dr. Kimberly's motion in the board of trustees, as he afterwards declared.

In September, 1833, "The Great Chicago Indian Treaty" was held opposite the Fort Northerly, five to ten thousand Pottawattamies, Chippewas and Ottawas were there, by it they relinquished their lands remaining west of the Mississippi, excepting a few small reservations.

Owned First Iron Safe in Chicago.

In 1834 Dr. Kimberly's commercial firm received the first iron safe ever known to be in Chicago. It became Chicago's first primitive bank for all the other merchants, and others, until 1835, deposited their money in it.

In 1834 he was Chicago's candidate

Four Hurt in Wreck.

Four persons were injured, one perhaps fatally, and many passengers badly shaken up in a rear-end collision on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad at Des Plaines, Ill., at 9 a. m. Monday. Henry Wakefield, of Chicago, employed as a baggageman, was the most seriously hurt. The others, after being attended by Dr. Earle, of Des Plaines, were able to continue their journey.

Carelessness, it is said, on the part of a freight train crew is responsible for the accident. The passenger train, west bound, ran into an open switch and crashed into the rear end of the freight train. Several cars were wrecked and the passenger engine was damaged. Those injured were in the first coach of the train. The way freight had taken a side track to permit the passenger train to pass. In some manner, yet unexplained, the switch was left open. Some excitement among the passengers followed the crash.

IS SHORT OF FUNDS

Lake County Has Liabilities Greater Than Reported.

The Waukegan Sun prints the following relative to the finances of Lake county. The Review does not vouch for the truth of the article as a whole, and it does not believe that the work of County Clerk Hendee is neglected. It seems hardly possible that bills of such importance could be overlooked:

Following their recent session the board of supervisors congratulated themselves that they had had sufficient money on hand to meet the bills for the term and a denial was made of what appeared to be an erroneous report that the county was considerably in debt.

Alas and alack! An accident had occurred which was not discovered until today, and which, when discovered shows that the county is about $5,000 in debt and has not enough money to pay it.

It seems that in going through the bills to be presented to the board some of the committeemen shoved aside a bunch of bills which became caught in a drawer in such a manner that they remained there unnoticed until today, when county clerk Hendee chanced to run across them.

The total amount of the bills reached about $4,000 and this added to what the county had on hand before when the other bills were paid, makes quite a difference.

The county ordered paid bills aggregating $11,772.03 and at the time had on hand to pay that amount $11,756.98, or $15.05 too little to meet the bills which had been audited. Then, adding the $4,000 worth which it has found were not in the bunch allowed together with a few others it makes a shortage of about $5,000 which cannot be paid until the county gets in more money from some source.

Among the bills which were thus lost, were all of the sheriff's, the bill for the heating apparatus at the poor farm and several bills of Waukegan people.

When the last trump sounds, some woman will ask Gabriel to wait a minute.

URNS TURTLE IN THE OCEAN

Crew of Coasting Schooner Cling to Bottom of the Uprturned Boat

SAVE EIGHT OUT OF SEVENTEEN

Nine of the Shipwrecked Persons Lose Their Hold and Drop Into Sea, While Survivors Drift Without Food Four Days.

Providence, R. I., dispatch: One of the most gruesome sea tragedies was told when the schooner W. S. Fielding reached this port from West Indian waters. Nearing Port au Prince on the outward voyage the Fielding ran near a dark object bobbing over the seas. It was found to be an overturned boat with seven men and one woman clinging to it, striving with the little strength they had left to hold on the slippery bottom. How they managed to do so is a miracle.

The coasting schooner to which they belonged had struck a rock and partly filled. Then it had suddenly "turned turtle." The crew of seventeen persons had all managed to get upon the bottom of the overturned craft. Then ensued four days of starvation and thirst, during which nine of the seventeen died, and then the fifth day came the thrilling scene of the eight survivors.

Three Grasp Life Line. The Fielding was about twelve miles distant from the island of Gonave when the boat was sighted by Capt. King, who was in command. He took a long survey of the object through his binocular and then had the course of his vessel changed. As the schooner drew near he saw a ship bottom up and the bleached arms of living persons clinging to the capsized thing. The dark hair of the woman was floating over the sea as the waves ran and fell along the bobbing keel.

Capt. King decided to run along close by. He had his life line ready and at the right moment threw it toward the wreck. Two men and a woman caught the line and held on. They were dragged aboard like so many fish. Fear of death in the hour of deliverance impelled them to hold on with so firm a grip that even when safely aboard they could hardly be persuaded to relinquish the line.

Boat to the Rescue. Capt. King decided it would be too great a risk to depend on the life line to save the other five men, who surely would be drowned if they released their hold upon the wreck. The Fielding's crew unlash a boat and put it overboard. The captain took the five men into it and carried them aboard ship. The rescued persons are in a serious condition, and had been without food or water for four days and nights.

Cut Off From Food. When a day out from Gonave the schooner struck a rock. All the schooner's company managed to cling to the wreck. So quickly had the boat turned turtle that not a mouthful of food or a drop of drinking water could be saved. The first day there was a hot and blinding sun and a choppy sea. Their hunger and thirst were bad enough, but added to these was the terrible pounding and scraping of their bodies on the ship's bottom as the waves lifted and dropped them. Their legs and then their bodies were beaten, scraped, and cut until the blood flowed freely.

Drop into the Sea. The men began to give out the second day. One by one they became exhausted, and, losing their hold, slipped into the sea. Others became delirious and, in their frenzy, dropped off to drown. The company dwindled to ten the fourth day, and the next morning only eight survived. These were about to give up their long and bitter fight for life, when one of them sighted the Fielding. The survivors were taken to Port au Prince.

On arriving in port Captain King delivered the shipwrecked persons to the authorities and before he left for Providence he received through the British consul general an official expression of the hearty thanks of the Haytian government for his rescue of the shipwrecked Haytians.

Kansas City, Mo., special: Frank James, the ex-bandit, has begun suit in the Circuit court against the management of the Gillis opera house of this city, the owners of the melodrama "The James Boys in Missouri," and the actors who take part in the production. He asks for $35,000 damages. He sets out in his petition that he is a citizen of the United States and a resident of Clay county, Missouri, where he has the respect of his neighbors and acquaintances; that he has for a "number of years been a man of good name." He avers that he is now lawabiding, peaceful and honorable and that the character portrayed as "Frank James" in the melodrama does his good name serious injury.

ARMENIANS MURDER A PRIEST

Victim Had Converted Villages to Orthodox Faith.

St. Petersburg cable. An orthodox archpriest, Vassilov, was stabbed to death in the streets of Alexandropol, Transcaucasia, Aug. 26. The murderer escaped. The murder is said to have been one of a series of assassinations committed by the Armenian Mafia. Vassilov had been blacklisted for converting the inhabitants of three Armenian villages to the orthodox faith. A correspondent recounts another recent brutal murder at the Alexandropol railroad station, in the presence of a crowd. In this case also the murderer easily escaped. Judicial investigation of the many murders committed, it is asserted, show that 80 per cent of the many recent Armenian murders have been the work of Armenians who immigrated from Turkey, inspired by fanaticism, and that the others were simply the crimes of paid assassins.

BULGARIA MAY WAR WITH TURK

Ferdinand's Troops Are Likely to Invade the Domain of the Sultan.

URGES INTERVENTION AT ONCE

Threatens to Begin Campaign Unless the Powers See Fit to Suppress the Turkish Rising by Legitimate Methods of Warfare.

London cablegram: It is unofficially announced that Bulgaria will go to war with Turkey unless the powers take some radical steps to put a stop to the atrocities now being committed against the Christians in Bulgaria.

The Sofia correspondent of the London Telegraph sends a dispatch, under Sunday's date, defending the policy of Bulgaria.

He says: "Bulgaria has displayed unexampled moderation. Her last urgent request to the powers was that they should compel Turkey to suppress the rising by legitimate methods of warfare, but to spare women and children from indignities and massacre."

Bulgaria Defies the Powers.

"But even this Christian Europe has refused and now Prince Ferdinand's government, having carefully considered the question and aware of the disastrous consequences with which the powers threaten Bulgaria if she intervenes, has decided that it cannot longer neglect its sacred duty to prevent the Christian population being done to death. In a couple of days more the die will be cast and Bulgaria will do her duty."

Turkey Prepares for War.

A dispatch from Constantinople to the Standard says large forces are being collected to the north and northwest of Constantinople, where in the event of war, the first fighting is expected to occur, and though allusions to any plan of campaign are strictly censured it may be assumed that German advice during recent years has not left Turkey unprepared at this time.

Writing from Sofia on Sept. 9, the correspondent of the Daily Mail gives reasons to support the probability that Serbia will ally itself with Bulgaria as against the Turks, neither excepting any territorial concessions as a result thereof, but both wishing to liberate the Macedonians.

Albanians Commit Outrages.

A Constantinople correspondent tells of the disgraceful conduct of two Albanian regiments in the vilayet of Adrianople. He describes them as being quite out of hand, pillaging and burning.

From Vienna comes the semi-official statement that Austria has again proposed to the power to admonish Bulgaria, but that so far nothing has come of the proposition.

The Neuspeter Journal, often well informed, accuses Russia of openly assisting the Macedonian revolutionists, even sending them arms, her object being gradually to exclude Austria from influence in Balkan affairs. The paper even alleges that the Austrian government has asked Count Lamdorff, the Russian Foreign Minister, to explain this ambiguous dealing.

CONGRESS TO ASSEMBLE IN SPECIAL SESSION

President Roosevelt to Call National Legislature to Convene the Second Monday in November.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., dispatch: The extraordinary session of congress, which will be called for the enactment of legislation making operative the Cuban reciprocity treaty will be convened on Monday, Nov. 9.

The president, it is said, has abandoned the idea which was suggested several weeks ago of calling a special session early in October. At the time when the suggestion of an October session was made the movement for financial legislation was being pushed hard by the president and others of his administration. It was said an early date of convening was desired, so the proposed currency measure which was to be taken up at an extra session might not suffer through lack of time to consider it in detail.

Some of the Republican leaders in congress favored the suggestion, but many, especially the members of the house, opposed it. They said an October session would take them away from their constituencies during election time—a time when their presence was most needed. Several of them protested against the change. The wishes of the representatives probably had a good deal to do with the final setting of the date on Nov. 9.

POLITICIAN DESERTS HIS BRIDE

Wife Secures a Divorce After Her Husband Disappears.

Fort Wayne, Ind., special: Florence B. Nicodemus has been divorced from Edward Nicodemus, former deputy county clerk, who has disappeared from the city. He was a candidate for the nomination for clerk before the last Democratic convention, but was defeated. He was married during the campaign. His bride testified at the divorce trial that she gave her husband $200 of her savings to make the campaign two weeks after the wedding day. On the night before the convention she gave him $500 more. He disappeared a short time after his defeat.

"Lee bow!" came down the answer, ragged with the wind, as the man, panting, made for the cross-trees.

When the brig soared to the height of the white-headed sea, the sail was visible in the glass. Pope looked and saw three spires rocking solemnly. A full-rigged ship was sailing southwest hull down, and Captain Pope called to the wheel:

"Let her go off a couple of points. Weather braces, Mr. Crystal! we'll take a look at that gentlemen."

Sail was trimmed; the brig rushed with each heave, roaring white into the green and freckled hollows. She left a path as brilliant as sunshine astern, and Crystal, watching the men drag upon the braces, marveled to himself that Pope should dream of doing business in the English channel.

But the truth is, Pope had come to sea ill equipped in his lazarette, by which I mean he was very meanly supplied with stores. Fresh water he had taken in abundance, but not very much to eat for the cabin or the fore-castle. He had therefore resolved that he would fill his larder as he went along by helping himself from the holds of vessels he passed or overhauled. This was quite consistent with the traditions of the pirates, and in sober truth Pope could not have determined otherwise, for after he had paid Staunton four hundred pounds cash and the bills, and advanced money to his sailors, purchased powder, rum and so on, the proceeds from the sale of the plate had dwindled alarmingly, and he was short of money when he began to think of provisions.

The vessel they had altered their course for held on very stately and tall, an English East Indiaman, and one of the finest specimens of her noble kind.

It had been imagined by the crew when the brig's course was altered

"We're not bound to the Bay of Campeachy to trade thence with the West Indies, but to plunder ships and enrich ourselves, so that we may disperse and settle down and live like gentlemen on our means. In a word," he shouted, flourishing his cigar, "we're a pirate!"

He ceased at this, running his eyes over the people among whom there was a considerable stir, indicative of a variety of sensations and passions.

A seaman shouted, "So much the better."

Another, "Ha' yer guns enough?"

And another, "What was the good of that roaring lie about Campeachy? I'd ha' been right to hear the truth," at which well-turned phrase there arose a murmur that lighted up Captain Pope's face.

"I understood you was a letter of marque, cap'n," said the boatswain Grindal, who stood a little forward of the others. "Not that it matters though."

"We're a pirate; all of you know what that means. I am a man of few words; this is what I stand here to say," said Pope, planting himself firmly on outstretched legs, "the terms are half the plunder for the crew and the brig herself when I've gone ashore and got enough. If we take ten thousand pounds out of a ship, five thousand is divided among you. Is that good enough? But who's going to stop at ten thousand pounds provided you're willing and prove yourselves men."

He paused at this, and a loud hum of assent went up. Captain Crystal, gazing anxiously, saw very easily that the hands were willing. No murmur or curse of resentment was audible as though the fellows had been duped. But in sober truth the majority had shipped with a clear conception that something more was meant by this cruise than Campeachy and the West Indies.

He drank their health.

for the ship behind the sea that something in the buccanering way was intended. The most eager of all who glanced aft, the most expectant in expression, was the boatswain. Happening to come near Captain Pope when sail was again being trimmed after the brig had been brought to her course, he said, "Had you meant to speak her, sir? She's a fine vessel. I'll allow"—here he swore—"that there's specie enough in her to sink us by a stroke."

Pope answered the boatswain Grindal thus "There may be gold in her to sink us by a stroke as you say; but our men are undisciplined; they are but thirty, and you may swear she's a full ship, and I have yet to find out that all hands of us will be willing to plunder her."

Grindal turned his evil eyes over the decks and answered, "I think you'll find 'em all willin'. Where's the risk? We've a letter of marque, ain't we, sir?"

"Now you shall hear the truth presently," exclaimed Pope sternly, with that strong air of command and power which rarely failed him when he dealt with seamen; and he gave Grindal an order which dispatched him forward.

Pope took some time to rehearse and make up his mind, and frequently stole a glance at the men. By this hour it was drawing on to four o'clock; the weather had improved. It still blew a fine sailing breeze, but the dingy thickness had been blown out of the sky.

"Mr. Crystal (he mistered his friend in times of duty in the hearing of the men; there could not be two captains), "tell the boatswain to pipe the whole ship's company aft."

In a few minutes all hands had assembled upon the main-deck—a formidable crowd, as they swayed in their varied, wild, romantic attire with the heave of the plank.

"I've called you aft, my lads," said Pope with a look round, "to explain the nature of this cruise. I am a gentleman of fortune; my friend, Captain Crystal, who is your chief mate, rows in the same boat, so does every mother's son of you."

At this a colored man's wondering face broke into a grin.

CHAPTER VI.

The Collision.

The Gypsy was now a pirate, recognized as such by her crew, with a black flag in her color-locker ready for hoisting when occasion required. And when Captain Pope ordered his men to reassemble on the main-deck, it was more with a view to holding a council than to making speeches.

First he told them he had put to sea so ill-stocked with provisions that in a week they must be in want; their immediate business therefore was to plunder a ship for food and drink. He stated that he had a sufficiency of powder and shot; more was always to be obtained by plundering small vessels. Next day, he said, the armchests would be brought on deck, and the crew drilled by Mr. Crystal and Matthew Grindal in the exercise of the cutlass and the cannon.

"There's few of us as wants drilling," broke in a harsh voice; "you lay us alongside, we'll know what to do."

Captain Pope received this interruption very affably. He then informed the men that he had obtained private but certain instructions from a friend of his who had been his shipmate in a privateer in 1814, of the dispatch of a rich Spanish ship from Cadiz for the Manillas. He named the date of her sailing, and said that it was his intention to cruise in the path of her course until he fell in with her. At this piece of news the seamen gave another loud cheer. Thus he detained his men while he communicated his intentions, and listened to their opinions, which most frequently took the form of huzzas, till it grew as dark as night, whereupon they lighted lanterns, that the crew might be divided into watches; and while this was doing Pope sung out to his servant to fill a bucket of rum and bring it on deck, and give it to the men that they might make themselves punch in abundance.

It was now the second dog watch; very dark but clear and finely spangled. The light of the lanterns sat like a square of luminous fog in the yawn of the main hatch, toward which Captain Pope advanced. He looked down, then seeing Crystal pass out of the companion-way, he put his log over and descended a flight of steps, from the lowest of which he sprang out to the deck or platform where his sailors were assembled.

The boatswain was at the head of the table, and he was in the middle of a story of some friends of his, sailors, who had been robbed of one hundred and forty pounds by two women and a young man desperately armed, dressed up as a woman, when his eye lighted on the captain, who stood under the main-hatch surveying the scene. The men, seeing their captain, raised a great, half-drunken noise of hurrahs, and Maddison of the squint cried out, "Will you drink with us, your honor?"

"I've come below to do it," says Pope, advancing to the table, and taking a pannikin with a little rum in it, he addressed the men. They were as silent as figure-heads while his words were being delivered. Nothing troubled the stillness but Pope's voice, the creaking of the brig's timbers, and once or twice the squeak of a rat in the hold below. His speech was very encouraging; he said he wanted them to make a home of the brig, and to live happily together. They should not want for leisure; he expected they would be always prompt in obeying orders; their lives would depend upon obedience and dispatch; he would try and provide them with plenty to eat and drink, and, as they sailed under the black flag, the usual sea discipline would be greatly relaxed. What they all wanted was plenty of money, and that they would get if they fought stoutly and feared nothing.

All sorts of roaring cries followed the captain's address. The men were flattered by his presence. He drank their health, then to the success of the cruise, which he promised them should be too brief to enable the British cruisers to give them any trouble.

"Now sing songs and be happy, my hearties," says he; and he went on deck, the men shouting their satisfaction after him and beating the table with their pannikins.

At ten o'clock Captain Pope went below. The cabin was warm though the little skylight was open. In a corner was a little table upon which were a small compass, a quadrant, and one or two other mathematical instruments of a primitive sort; close beside it leaned a bag of charts, one of which he extracted, and, carrying it to the table in the cabin, fell to gazing over it with a pencil in his hand.

All of a sudden, while he overhung the chart, thoughtfully considering the winds in that part of the sea according to his memory of them, he was startled by a loud and fearful cry on deck, quickly followed by a general uproar of voices, amid which he could hear Grindal roaring like a bull: "Where the devil are yer coming to? Starboard yer hellum!"

Pope sprang from the table, rushed to his cabin, seized his sword, and, thrusting a pistol into his pocket, bounded on deck. Scarce was his head clear of the companion-way when he was nearly thrown by a violent concussion. The little brig heeled, trembling to her keelson, with some noise of splintering aloft and the seething patter of fragments of timber, blocks and the like launched from a height into the quiet water. The night was extremely dark; the mist had thickened into something like a fog since two bells.

Shouts were to be heard over the side. A yelling and groaning of voices in an unknown tongue. Close aboard with her starboard bow caressing the side of the Gypsy, while her bowsprit carrying its black wing of jib shot over the brig's rail, like a branchless fallen tree, was a vessel somewhat larger than the pirate, apparently a schooner, but it was so dark that no one could have told you the true rig of her. A man holding up a lantern was shouting in some unintelligible language. Some men were hauling at the ropes, yelping in choruses. Others ran about the decks as though panic-stricken; in all there might have been some twelve or thirteen men visible in that ship.

Lesson the Bishop Needed.

Bishop Nicholson of Milwaukee has a story of personal experience to tell to those who seem swamped in worries. It happened, during the first years of his ministry, when he was rector of a Philadelphia church. The parish matters, social and financial, were in a bad way, and straightening them out was slow work. He was distinctly discouraged one day when, having gone to New York on business, he stopped to look at the Brooklyn bridge, then building. A man, covered with dirt, was working on the abutments.

"That's pretty dirty work you are engaged in," said the bishop.

"Well, yes," answered the laborer, "but somehow we don't think of the dirt, but of the beauty which is to come out of our work."

"It was the lesson I needed, and I went back to Philadelphia the better for it," said Bishop Nicholson.—Milwaukee Journal.

Easily Explained.

As Dr. Reginald John Campbell, of the City Temple, London, faced the densely packed throng of clergymen of three denominations assembled Monday noon at the Presbyterian building to do him honor, he turned to Dr. Bradford, who was about to present him, and said in an undertone: "How in the world do you account for such a multitude of preachers?"

"Easy enough to explain it," was the answer. "The Campbells are comin'."

"Only an American would put it as prettily as that," was the famous Britisher's response.—New York Mail and Express.

APPEALS TO THE STATE BOARD

Expressmen's Union Asks for Chance to Air Its Grievances.

The railway expressmen's union has officially appealed to the Illinois state board of arbitration to force the express companies to treat with the organization. National President F. E. Modie of the expressmen's union called upon Secretary Luke Grant of the arbitration board and requested that the officers of the United States Express company be summoned to appear at a public hearing to show cause why the demands of the union should be ignored. The union intends to make a test case with the United States Express company, claiming that that corporation has broken off negotiations toward an agreement and that the company refuses to recognize the union body. A state statute regulating arbitration permits the board to call before it for a public hearing any employer against whom more than twenty-five workers have a grievance on request of either party.

The fur company was not pleased with the advent in Chicago of a rival trader, and it was only after much difficulty that Mr. Galloway secured an abandoned cabin on the edge of the little settlement. Indians were numerous in 1826, and once Mrs. Galloway and Mary stood behind locked doors all night armed with axes ready to sell their lives dearly if a large band of howling savages outside broke in. In the morning it was discovered that the Indians merely wanted to get in to warm themselves, as the night was bitterly cold.

SOCIALISTS MAKE GREAT PROGRESS

Five Hundred Delegates Attend International Contest at Dresden.

NUMBER 3,000,000 IN GERMANY

Remarkable Growth in the European States Is Set Forth in Speech Delivered by Herr Kaden—Vote Shows Steady Advance Each Year.

Dresden cablegram: Five hundred delegates representing Germany, England, France, Spain, Austria, Switzerland and Belgium attended the inaugural congress of social Democrats.

At the reception Herr Kaden delivered an address showing the marvelous strides of socialism in Europe and the United States.

At the first congress of the social Democrats, held in Dresden in 1873, only fifty-seven delegates were present.

At that time there were only 100,000 socialists in Germany and the party had only two members in the reichstag. Now there are 3,000,000 socialists in Germany and eighty-one members of the reichstag.

Socialists Lead in Germany.

The social Democrats of Germany to-day form the strongest political party in the empire. They control seventy-six newspapers, of which twenty-two are dailies. The growth of the party is steadily increasing, the gain since 1898 being especially notable. In that year the party polled 2,120,000 votes and elected fifty-six members of the reichstag.

In France the several groups of the socialist party polled more than 1,000,000 votes at the last election in 1901, and control 149 seats in the chamber of deputies. In 1898 the socialists elected only fifty-seven members of the French parliament.

Gaining in England.

Socialism in Great Britain is of recent growth. The social Democratic party has 150 branches and a membership of 9,000. Allied to it is the independent labor party, with 200 branches and 12,000 members. The socialists elected one member of the house of commons at the last election.

In Austria the socialists control 10,000 votes. In Belgium thirty-four socialists were elected to parliament at the last election. There are 10,000 socialists in Norway and Sweden.

In Spain the socialist vote has grown from 5,000 in 1891 to nearly 20,000 in 1902.

In the United States 2055 socialist votes were cast in 1888. In 1898 the vote had reached $2,204.

Legislative Resolutions.

The present congress, will be in session a week. Of the many resolutions to be discussed three are most important, as follows:

1. That the social democratic party shall take the initiative in the reichstag in introducing political and social measures of reform.
2. That the party shall frame its own bills instead of leaving this work of introducing new legislation to the government as heretofore, and
3. That an agitation committee be formed to instruct the public by speeches and writings.

Special police arrangements have been made, but up to the present they have not been obtrusive. It is noticeable, however, that the sale of Vorwarts, the socialist organ, is not permitted at the railway stations here or in Berlin.

Sea Power Versus Brain Power.
Sir Norman Lockyer, president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, recently caused a sensation in England when he advised his countrymen to spend less money on "sea power" and more money on "brain power." Great Britain already has the largest navy in the world, and she is steadily adding to its size. The navy estimates of 1888-89 were £13,082,800, of which sum £12,999,895 was actually expended, and the estimates for 1902-03 are £31,255,500, or about $156,000,000. In fourteen years Great Britain's taxpayers have contributed the enormous sum of $1,379,033,150 toward the up-building of a navy.

Peary's Polar Quest.
Whatever may be the outcome of Lieutenant Robert E. Peary's attempt to reach the north pole, his perseverance and faith in his ability to succeed are of a high order, as is shown by his statement:

"I feel more confident of success than before any of the other trips I have undertaken."
It is not surprising, therefore, that the navy department has granted him three years' leave of absence for his next arctic trip. In his letter to the explorer Acting Secretary Darling thus deals with the old cry that arctic exploration is a "needless risk of human life."

"The discovery of the pole is all that remains to complete the map of the world. That map should be completed in our generation and by our countrymen. If it is asserted that the enterprise is fraught with danger and privation, the answer is that geographical discovery in all ages has been purchased at the price of heroic courage and noble sacrifice. Our national pride is involved in the undertaking."

As arctic expeditions in the past have been handicapped by poor vessels the intrepid Peary has acted wisely in deciding to use a staunch wooden craft, sheathed with metal and equipped with as powerful machinery as can be found. He will depend almost entirely upon steam as the chief motive power, and sails, if used, will be an auxiliary medium.

A striking feature of the expedition is the great esteem the lieutenant manifests for his trusted negro body servant, of whom he says:

"The only man I know positively will be in the last dash will be Matthew Hansen, the colored man who has been with me on former expeditions."
In fact, he declares he would not think of going without Hansen.

Peary's vessel in all probability will be named the Charles H. Darling, in honor of the acting secretary of the navy, who is one of the explorer's heartiest supporters. Whatever name his gallant craft may bear, let us here-with wish the "king of arctic explorers" all success in his quest, and may he and his colleagues return triumphant in their Darling to their darlings at home.

SOFT CORE
Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere. The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

There will be about as much demand for cod liver oil as there is for radium if the price of the former continues to rise.

Our neighbors the Igorotes of the northern province of the Philippines are said to consider broiled dog, fried dog and sundry other forms of dog as choice delicacies. Peck, at Baguio, Benguet, not to waste this "God given delicacy." It is not surprising, therefore, that the navy department has granted him three years' leave of absence for his next arctic trip. In his letter to the explorer Acting Secretary Darling thus deals with the old cry that arctic exploration is a "needless risk of human life."

"The discovery of the pole is all that remains to complete the map of the world. That map should be completed in our generation and by our countrymen. If it is asserted that the enterprise is fraught with danger and privation, the answer is that geographical discovery in all ages has been purchased at the price of heroic courage and noble sacrifice. Our national pride is involved in the undertaking."

As arctic expeditions in the past have been handicapped by poor vessels the intrepid Peary has acted wisely in deciding to use a staunch wooden craft, sheathed with metal and equipped with as powerful machinery as can be found. He will depend almost entirely upon steam as the chief motive power, and sails, if used, will be an auxiliary medium.

A striking feature of the expedition is the great esteem the lieutenant manifests for his trusted negro body servant, of whom he says:

"The only man I know positively will be in the last dash will be Matthew Hansen, the colored man who has been with me on former expeditions."
In fact, he declares he would not think of going without Hansen.

Peary's vessel in all probability will be named the Charles H. Darling, in honor of the acting secretary of the navy, who is one of the explorer's heartiest supporters. Whatever name his gallant craft may bear, let us here-with wish the "king of arctic explorers" all success in his quest, and may he and his colleagues return triumphant in their Darling to their darlings at home.

SOFT CORE
Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere. The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

Chickens Home to Roost.

The noble Serbian officers—the humane gentlemen who thought it consistent with their calling as soldiers to murder a half crazy, degenerate king and his spouse in their bedchamber—are beginning to believe that, after all, there may be something in the old saying about chickens coming home to roost. Having assassinated the king, it became necessary to have another monarch. They found one in the person of Peter, who gave promise of being a willing tool, and, indeed, he appears to have done all in his power to live up to the expectations of the blood stained gentry who elevated him to the throne. But the whole outfit reckoned without their host, for the Russian czar has assumed toward the murderous officers now holding positions of importance under King Peter an attitude which has become well nigh intolerable. Then, too, the few Serbian officers who possess some of the elementary instincts of gentlemen have determined to have the assassins kicked out of the army. Falling in this, it is their purpose to themselves resign. Furthermore, these aggressive gentlemen declare that, no matter what the outcome of the army tangle may be, it is their purpose to use every means within their power to send to prison the assassins of the late king and queen of Serbia. And now, to top it all off, comes the pathetic news that King Peter has made an earnest appeal to the czar to amend his demeanor toward the murderers and has even gone so far as to intimate that if he is obdurate he (Peter) will resign. This would indeed be a calamity—for the murderous officers—but we question greatly whether it would result in disturbing the equality of the czar or even of the high-muck-amuck of Patagonia.

Golf in America.
The recent victory of the all American golf team over the contingent of English players now visiting the United States was a striking illustration of the great advances made by our experts during the last few years. That the world's ablest players are Britains is not surprising, considering the fact the game originated on the "tight little isle" and that Englishmen and Scotchmen were ardent patrons of it years before golf was introduced into this country. Therefore a defeat of a representative team of Britishers by picked players of our own is an unmistakable evidence that we are approaching the highest standard of form and execution.

The recent defeat of the invaders marked the first setback a British team has ever received at the hands of Americans, and most of the credit should be awarded to Walter J. Travis, who recently won the championship of America for the third time. Mr. Travis was captain of the triumphant team, and after defeating John L. Low, the English captain, he acted as caddy for several other players, giving them valuable advice concerning their strokes. It is interesting to note that while Mr. Low has long been considered the world's greatest "putter," Mr. Travis outclassed him completely in their contest, which took place on the links of the Nassau Country club, Glen Cove, N. Y.

Americans are now patronizing golf to so great an extent that the game is as much of a national sporting factor as baseball, tennis, football, etc., and the fact that the Britons rightfully claimed to be our superiors has long been a source of discomfort to our ardent club wielders. Now, however, we have reason to congratulate ourselves that we are on the verge of wresting the Britishers' leadership from their clutches, and if Uncle Samuel's players continue their improvement in future years at a rate equal to their past advancement the time is not far off when John Bull will be sending his golfers over here to learn the fine points of the game.

Plainly we are not content with holding the America's cup, the Palma trophy for international marksmanship, running and jumping records, etc. We want the international golf championship as our next sporting asset, and then perhaps we'll send over to England winning tennis, polo and even cricket teams. Who can tell?

Can the statement that there are more men in Chicago than women be true? As the bargain counter flourishes more prominently in Chicago than in almost any other American city, it looks as if there was a mistake somewhere.

If the bicycle, motorcycle and automobile will be utilized in our next war, as General Miles says, it is to be hoped they will be equipped with nonpuncturable tires.

The Dead March is not necessarily the one that the musicians have murdered.

As a result of the most painstaking study by trained nurses and physicians the invention of a sanitary napkin, which meets with approval wherever introduced, has at last been successful. "Miss Koch, nurse, Milwaukee, Wis., writes: 'The sanitary contrivance, known as 'Dainty,' is all that the inventors claim of it, and every neat woman should be the owner of one. I would not be without mine for $50.00 were I unable to obtain another.'" The appliance is water-proof, fits snugly, prevents chafing, makes ladies feel at ease and enables them to dress with their expensive wearing apparel at all times regardless of the periods natural to their sex. Price, $1.25. Agents wanted. The Sanitary Mfg. Co., 518 Germania Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis. 36-64

Obituary.

Mrs. Dorothea Gieseler, aged 77 years, 3 months and 11 days.

Born in Hanover, Germany, June 3, 1826. Came to the United States about fifty years ago, in company with her husband, who died eight years ago, and resided in the vicinity of McHenry for many years, but, after the death of her husband, she went to live with her son, Rev. J. C. Gieseler, at Lena, Ill., where she died on Sept. 14, 1903. She had been sickly for the past two years, but not until three weeks ago did her illness prove serious. Word was sent to all of her children and all called to see her during her last illness. Mrs. H. Maiman went to care for her last Tuesday, Sept. 8, and remained with her until the Angel of Death called her home. Funeral services were held at Lena, Ill., by her son, Rev. Gieseler, after which the remains were placed on board train and taken to McHenry Tuesday afternoon to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers, accompanied by Mrs. Maiman, and at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning funeral services were held from St. John's Catholic church at Johnsbury, after which the remains were interred in the family lot beside those of her deceased husband. Mrs. Gieseler was a kind and affectionate mother and she will be greatly missed by all. She leaves six children, four daughters and two sons, Mrs. Henry Maiman, Wauconda; Mrs. George Scheunemann, Waukegan; Mrs. George Meyers and Mrs. C. A. Hapke, McHenry; P. J. Gieseler, Chicago, and Rev. J. C. Gieseler, Lena, Ill.

German Syrup.

We want to impress on our readers that Boschee's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market to-day that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasm of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much, 75 cents. H. T. Abbott, druggist, Barrington.

Now that the oyster has appeared on the menu again it might be well for lovers of the succulent bivalve to eat them cooked. The theories which became current last year as to the oyster being a vehicle of typhoid germs is being thoroughly investigated by English medical authorities, but it is understood, of course, that these germs can only be taken into our systems when the oyster is eaten raw. Many eminent physicians declare the oyster to be above associating with typhoid germs, but until science decides the matter they should be stewed, fried, boiled or cooked in any other way, thus effectively sterilizing them.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Such a Misunderstanding. "When I saw that she was almost beyond my control," said the railway engineer, "I threw her over"— "Brute!" ejaculated a gentleman wearing eyeglasses and grassy whiskers who was unintentionally straining his ears to overhear the conversation. "It didn't do any good," continued the engineer, "so I shut her off. But still she was jumping pretty hard and sliding around"— "Infamous!" said the grassy whiskered man. "Sliding around. So I give her air"— "Ah, then you have some little instinct of kindness," growled the incensed listener.

"But it wasn't any use, and so I jumped and got away just when she began to smash things."

"And I don't blame her one bit!" asserted the man with the eyeglasses and the grassy beard. "It's a pity she didn't smash you, so you couldn't come here and boast of your cruelty. I am not surprised at the number of divorces nowadays."—Judge.

The Old Excuse. She—A poor tramp stopped at the door today, and I gave him a good meal!

He—What did you do that for? You're the softest thing!

She—I just couldn't help it. He reminded me so of you. I asked him if he'd saw some wood for me, and he said he was too tired.—Philadelphia Ledger.

He Feared It.

"And how is your brother Johnnie gittin' along in New York, Mrs. Peachy, ma'am?" "He's gittin' along fast, Mr. Barclay. In his last letter he said he was in a skyscraper."

"That's too bad. I was afraid he'd get in some scrape or other 'fore he'd bin there very long."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Miss Thirtyodd—Cholly had the audacity to propose to me last evening. Miss Twentyseven—Indeed! And when is the wedding to take place?

So Full of Life. Mrs. Seldom-Home—Down, Fido!

Mrs. Jenner Lee Ondego—Don't scold him. He isn't annoying me in the least. I like little dogs. They are so full of life, don't you know.

At this critical juncture Fido begins to scratch himself with great vigor, and they hastily change the subject.—Chicago Tribune.

Preparations. "Young man," said the citizen who makes a specialty of good advice, "go west and grow up with the country."

"I'm going to do that very thing as soon as I acquire the necessary accomplishments."

"Can't you ride horseback?" "Yes, but I haven't learned to swim."—Washington Star.

The Recreant Lover. Bessie—My, but you look woozy!

What's the matter? Has Fred broken with you?

Tessie—Not exactly, but I'm afraid he's thinking of it. Here's two telegrams from him within the last half hour, and in neither one does he say a word about loving me.—Baltimore American.

All He Could Say. The Tar—Yer knows the difference atween windward an' leeward, don't yer?

Egbert—Why, I believe—aw—windward is where the wind comes from, but I—aw—don't just know what comes from leeward.—Puck.

His Future. Father—Well, how did you come out in the bean guessing contest?

Dull Boy—I guessed there was 150 beans in the jar, and there was 9,200.

Father (sadly)—I'm afraid you'll never be fit for anything but a weather bureau chief.—Youth.

SAD END OF BRAVE SOLDIER

Hero of Pekin Siege Commits Suicide at Chicago.

After distinguishing himself in two wars by acts of bravery, George King, 33 years old, took his life by cutting his throat with a razor in a Chicago saloon. He is said to have become a wreck from drink.

King did gallant service as an American soldier in the Spanish war, and under the walls of Pekin in the Boxer uprising. He is said to have been a member of the first company to scale the wall after Pekin had been cannonaded by the allied forces. There he received injuries that made the amputation of one of his legs necessary.

After being discharged from the service King began drinking, and his health was soon impaired and money lost. His clothing was tattered and soiled when he shambled across the salt-covered floor in the saloon where his companions were seated at tables drinking. Without noticing the loungers in the place he walked to the bar.

"No, thanks, no more drinks for me," he said. "I have drunk my last drop."

Then suddenly he drew a razor. Several of the men started toward him, but before they could interfere the former soldier had drawn the blade of the weapon across his throat. Instantly there was a panic in the big room. Chairs and tables were overturned in the excitement. The bartender summoned a policeman, who arrived to find King breathing his last.

New Spanish Premier.

Don Raimundo Villaverde, the new Spanish premier, was born of modest country parents, who were able to give their son good education. He started his manhood as a village lawyer and soon had a fine practice. Then he was elected to parliament, where his energy and eloquence gained him steady prominence. His marriage to the rich and handsome merchoness of Pozo, Rubio gave him assured social status and he was shortly called to the cabinet. He was finance minister during the Spanish war with this country.

Perform Great Swimming Feat.

Two Coney Island life guards, Edward Fuller and Phillip Fay, last week swam the distance between the battery seawall and the beach front at Coney Island, a feat which has not been attempted in more than ten years. The men finished close, Fuller winning by six yards, after swimming with the tide five hours and fifty minutes. It was the first completed race over the course since Johnson, the famous English swimmer and wrestler, made the distance in six hours and five minutes.

Noted Priest Comes West.

Rev. Patrick J. Murphy of New York has resigned from the Paulist order. Having been released from the obligations of the New York archdiocese, by permission of Father Deshon, superior of the Paulist order, and Archbishop Farley, Father Murphy has affiliated with the Davenport, Ia., diocese, and Bishop Cosgrove of that see has appointed him professor of history in his diocesan theological seminary.

WORK LIKE A MACHINE.

Telegraph Operators become Absorbed in Their Business.

Thomas A. Edison believes there is no worker as mechanical as the telegraph operator. In an argument over this point with a couple of friends the other day he told the following story:

"One night, when I was a 'cub' operator in Cincinnati, I noticed an immense crowd gathering in the street outside a newspaper office. I called the attention of the other operators to the crowd, and we sent a messenger boy out to find the cause of the excitement. He returned in a few minutes and shouted out:

"Lincoln's shot!"

"Instinctively the operators looked from one face to the other to see which man had received the news. All faces were blank and every man said he had not taken a word about the shooting.

"Look over your file," said the boss to the man handling press stuff.

"For a few moments we waited in suspense, and then the man held up a sheet of paper containing a short account of the attack on the president. The operator had worked so mechanically that he had handled the news without the slightest knowledge of its significance."

AMERICAN BANKERS' ASSOCIATION.

San Francisco, October 20-23, 1903.

The Santa Fe offers for the above named occasion rates so low as to make the trip possible for everybody. Ticket limits are ample, and full provision has been made for inexpensive side rides. The rates are open for all, whether delegates or not. For full particulars address Geo. T. Nicholson, P. T. M., Santa Fe Ry., Chicago.

Reached the Colner's Heart.

Lord Broughton, better known as Justice Hawkins, the distinguished English barrister and jurist, says that his first brief was to defend one of two men charged with coining and when they were placed in the dock he overheard a brief colloquy between them. Colner No. 1 told his comrade that he was to be defended by a very good man. Colner No. 2 said he also was defended. He did not know the gentleman's name, "but"—indicating—r. Hawkins—he added, admiringly, "he's a smart 'un. When I handed over the fee he put the thic 'un"—i. e., sovereign—"between his teeth and bit it. He's the chap for my money."

A New Oklahoma Line.

On Sept. 2, M. K. & T. Ry. will begin the operation of its new line from Oklahoma City, to Agra, Okla., a distance of 55 miles, through the towns of Witcher, Arcadia, Luther, Fallis, Carney and Tryon. The line opens up a magnificent agricultural country of surprising possibilities—a country bound to be the homeseekers' Mecca for several years. By October 1st the line will be completed through to Bartlesville, Indian Territory, giving the M. K. & T. Ry. a direct line between Oklahoma City and Kansas City, St. Louis and all important points north and east.

Objected to Vaccination.

Two Philadelphia mothers were discussing vaccination, its merits and demerits. One argued that it was all right; she had, in her own family, seen the most favorable results. "I don't believe it is any use to vaccinate," said the other woman, "for I had a child vaccinated, and he fell out of a window and was killed in less than a week after."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contains Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

One Apt Word in the Language.

It may not be generally known that the word "yacht"—the Reliance and the Shamrock III. are yachts—comes from the old Viking word "jagt," a chase. The races for the American's cup so far, with Sir Thomas' boat far astern at the finish line, show how marvelously apt some of the words of the English language are.—Indianapolis News.

Br'er Dickey Explains.

"Br'er Williams," said Brother Dickey, "you all time talkin' 'bout wantin' ter go ter glory in a chariot er fire. How'd you like ter try it in de middle er August?" "Br'er Dickey," replied Brother Williams, "we'n I made dem remarks we wuz deep in December, en de white snow wuz all over de ground!"—Atlanta Constitution.

To the housewife who has not yet become acquainted with the new things of everyday use in the market and who is reasonably satisfied with the old, we would suggest that a trial of Deffiance Cold Water Starch be made at once. Not alone because it is guaranteed by the manufacturers to be superior to any other brand, but because each 10c package contains 16 ozs., while all the other kinds contain but 12 ozs. It is safe to say that the lady who once uses Deffiance Starch will use no other. Quality and quantity must win.

We are but stewards of what we falsely call our own; yet avarice is so insatiable that it is not in the power of abundance to content it.—Seneca.

Tell me with whom thou art found, and I will tell thee who thou art.

GERMAN GENERAL WHO DIRECTS THAT COUNTRY'S MILITARY POLICY

GENERAL VON EINEM-ROTHMALER
GERMANY'S NEW MINISTER OF WAR

He virtually will be responsible for Germany's military policy in case of trouble in Europe.

CONVENTION WILL BE LARGE.

Christian Churches Expect Thirty Thousand at International Meeting.

When the international missionary convention of the Christian churches of the world convenes for the opening session at Detroit, Oct. 16, it is expected there will be in attendance at least fifteen thousand delegates and as many evangelists and laymen—swelling the total number up near the thirty thousand mark.

The first session of the convention will be given over to the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and the president, Mrs. N. E. Atkinson of Indiana, will read her annual address.

Following this will come the regular routine business and at the evening session W. M. Forrest of Calcutta, India, will deliver an address on "Our Work in Calcutta." Saturday, Oct. 17, will be devoted to the closing sessions of this society of the Disciples of Christ, which will include addresses by Miss Lora E. Squire, of Kansas; Mrs. G. P. Coler, of Michigan; Mrs. Jessie Brown Pounds, of Ohio; Miss Annie Davidson, of Illinois; Mrs. W. J. Russell, of Pennsylvania; Enrique Westrup, of Mexico; Mrs. Anna R. Atwater, of Ohio, and Mrs. Louise Kelley, of Kansas.

Monday will be devoted to the business of the auxiliary societies reports and addresses by Mrs. A. M. Harrison, Mrs. Fannie R. Thompson and Miss Mafie Pounds.

Saturday night, Oct. 17, will be what is known as a Good Citizenship meeting, Rev. Frank G. Tyrrell of St. Louis, Mo., speaking on "Twentieth Century Crusaders," and Senator Oliver W. Steward of Chicago, on "The Greater Governmental Problem."

Sunday, Oct. 18, will be one of the most impressive days of the convention. Besides preaching in every Protestant pulpit of Detroit by the ablest ministers of the Disciples church, there will be a monster communion service at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, which if present indications are to be relied upon will result in at least ten thousand people partaking of the broken bread and wine, representing the body and blood of the Savior.

Monday, Oct. 19, will be the first session of the Foreign Missionary Society, with addresses by W. P. Bentley, Shanghai, China; Miss Bertha Clawson, Osaka, Japan; J. J. Morgan, of Kansas City. Sessions of this society will continue until the close of the session. From Chicago such representative men of the Disciples of Christ as Dr. Herbert L. Willett, Dr. C. A. Young, Rev. C. G. Kindred, Rev. Bruce Brown, Rev. Edward S. Ames, Rev. C. R. Scoville, Rev. Dr. Ott and others will be present and add their influence to the great meeting.

Edgar Whittaker's Good Work.

The editor of the oldest English newspaper in Turkey, the Levant Herald, died recently. He was Edgar Whittaker and besides conducting his own newspaper at Constantinople acted as correspondent of the London Times. He was greatly interested in educational and musical matters. As an amateur conductor he created an orchestra and for several years directed concerts, which did much to develop a taste for high-class music among the educated Levantines as well as the European communities of the Turkish capital.

MADE QUAY PAY FARE.

Pennsylvania Statesman Has Some-what Novel Experience.

Senator Quay visited Gov. Pennypacker a few days ago, traveling on his annual pass over the Philadelphia and Reading road. In the course of his journey he was transferred to the Perkiomen Valley line, and the conductor said he could not recognize the pass on that branch. The senator tried to make his pass good, but the conductor demanded cash fare. "What if I refuse to pay?" said Mr. Quay. "The walking is good," answered the conductor quietly. "I have my orders and am only protecting myself." The senator handed over his fare—the first he has paid in some thirty-five years. On returning to Philadelphia he visited the Reading offices, but whether he called to get another pass, to make complaint against the conductor or to get his money returned has not been learned.

CROKER OUT OF POLITICS.

Former Tammany Leader Makes Declaration With Emphasis.

Richard Croker continues to rage at the authors of the reports published in this country that he has expressed a personal preference for this, that or the other aspiring Democrat as a candidate for the New York mayoralty in the autumn. Here is an extract from a letter received from him by a well-known Tammany adviser: "Next time any idiot tries to mix me up in the campaign by saying he had an interview with me in England and heard me mention names please do me the favor to tell the first newspaper man you meet that the informant is a liar from Liarville and a damphool into the bargain."

Vermont Centennial.

It is said of John Dunton of Lyndonville, Vt., whose townsmen are preparing to help him celebrate his one hundredth birthday, that he has never used tobacco and stopped drinking intoxicants at the age of 50—which was the time of the passage of the Vermont prohibition law. The first president he voted for was John Quincy Adams and the last was William McKinley. At the age of 99 he walked a mile to vote against the overthrow of prohibition.

Marchioness De Mores at Home.

For the first time in fifteen years the Marchioness De Mores is at her old home in New York. She is a daughter of A. L. Van Hoffman, a Wall street broker, and married the adventurous French Marquis De Mores in 1833. For several years past she has devoted all her energies to the pursuit of the Bedouins who murdered her husband in Tunis, and having secured their punishment has returned to her native land to lead a quiet life.

Premiers of Great Britain.

Among the ten men who served as prime ministers of Great Britain during Queen Victoria's reign three died at an earlier age than Lord Salisbury. Sir Robert Peel died when he was 62, Lord Melbourne passed away at 69 and Earl Derby at 70. Lord Aberdeen and Earl Russell lived to 76. Disraeli to 77 and Palmerston to 81. Mr. Gladstone was the oldest. The average length of life of Queen Victoria's prime ministers was 74.

THE LAWS OF COURTESY.

How to Reach Offenders Against Them is a Problem.

Courtesy forbids us to tell the exact truth; in fact, a judge gave as an official ruling recently the statement that the truth should not be spoken at all times, when he made it a crime to call a woman an old maid. Otherwise we might settle the case of self-invited guests by a few unpalatable, perhaps, but wholesome truths. There is no doubt that they would work a reform, but discourtesy should not be encouraged. There is already too much of it in the world, and to reach the common sense of the offenders against the real laws of hospitality is preferable, says the Boston Traveler. How to do it I am not prepared to say, for I was a victim of one of the number some time, because I found no pleasant way out of the difficulty. The offender was a critical friend who used to drop in at meal time and calmly announce her intention of honoring me. Distance finally solved this particular question—I moved away where she could not reach me in less time than a day.

A Boy's Victory.

Crossroads, Tenn., Sept. 14th.—Orbra Young, the ten-year-old son of Lester Young of this place, is a bright boy, and one who is very well liked by all who know him.

For some years Orbra has suffered a great deal with a form of Kidney Trouble which was very annoying, and which made him miserable all the time. He had to get up three or four times every night, almost all his life.

His father heard of a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought some for the little fellow with the result that he is now completely cured of the old trouble. He says:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills soon gave me great relief, and now I can sleep all night without having to get up. We will always praise Dodd's Kidney Pills."

There are many children suffering from Kidney and Urinary troubles. These disorders should be promptly corrected. Dodd's Kidney Pills is a safe and sure remedy for all such derangements.

Master Orbra Young conquered his troubles and made a well boy of himself by using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and any one may do the same by the same means.

Parents should see to it that their children are given a fair chance in life, and there is nothing that can undermine the health of a growing child as much as Kidney and Urinary derangements.

Rescued by Means of Kite.

F. Devillo Sanders of Belmont, Allegheny county, climbed the steeple of the Episcopal church in Genesee, New York, to examine the damage done by lightning. When he was near the top of the steeple his rope caught so that he could not move up or down, and it was necessary to get another rope to him.

The nearest place to Sanfers that could be reached was sixty feet below where he was dangling.

Ezekiel Willis, a boy, got out his kite and flew it so that Sanders could grasp the string. Then pieces of cord of gradually increasing size were attached to the kite string until Sanders got a rope and came down.

How Nice.

Gerald—You remember that you bet me a kiss on the election?

Geraldine—Yes, but I understand that an official count will be required to decide the result.

Gerald—Well, I'll pay the bet now and if it turns out later that I have won you can pay me back.—Brooklyn Life.

At present there are about seventy-five firms engaged in gem cutting in the United States, with not far from $5,000,000 capital invested. There are probably about 700 skilled lapidaries at work, earning an average of $1,000 apiece a year.

Superior quality and extra quantity must win. This is why Deffiance Starch is taking the place of all others.

RT. REV. DANIEL SYLVESTER TUTTLE
NOW THE SENIOR EPISCOPAL BISHOP

Right Rev. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, who has just become senior bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church by the death of Bishop Thomas Marsh Clarke of Rhode Island, was consecrated a bishop in 1866, with jurisdiction over Idaho and Utah, and his chief work in the early days was as a missionary among the Mormons of Salt Lake. Bishop Tuttle was born in New York in 1837, was educated at Columbia college in New York city, graduating in 1857, and earned his way through the New York Theological Seminary by serving as private tutor to the sons of a number of prominent New Yorkers. He has been bishop of Missouri since 1886.

MONEY MADE BY CONAN DOYLE.

English Author Has Been Well Paid for His Work.

Literary statistics have been computing that Sir A. Conan Doyle would be the most richly rewarded author in history, had all his works been paid at the rate quoted for his new Sherlock Holmes stories. "The Adventures of Gerard" brought him $2 a word. Up to and including "The Hound of the Baskervilles," and without counting the new book, which is now running serially, his takings would have come to something like $1,500,000. But the author has not always received $2 a word, or even the hundredth part of that. There is a letter in the possession of an American publisher embodying a proposition from the creator of Sherlock Holmes for a contract on the basis of a cent and a half a word. An interesting feature is that the contract was declined.

"Jim" Keene and His Employes. James R. Keene, or "Jim" Keene, as he is more familiarly known in Wall street, is by no means of a democratic nature in his dealings with his employes. This was illustrated some time ago when he discovered that in his daily trips from his country home at Cedarhurst, L. I., he was obliged to travel on the same train with many of the humble employes of his office. There is no Pullman on the morning trains, but Mr. Keene, who objected to the enforced association, upon a study of the time table discovered that an earlier train traveled between Cedarhurst and Long Island City, and it is stated that as a result orders were issued to the employes to take the milk train.

Russian Army Officers. At the end of the year 1902 the Russian army had 1,386 generals, of whom 129 were "poimjo generalus" (full generals), 387 lieutenant-generals and 870 major-generals. The average age of these generals was sixty-nine years for the "full" generals, sixty-two years for the lieutenant-generals and fifty-six years for the major-generals. Fifty-eight per cent of all the generals have seen active warfare, and four of them are over ninety years of age.

New Idea in Evolution. Prof. Moore, dean emeritus of the Missouri Bible college, is a believer in evolution in its extreme form. He has published an argument in which he attempts to prove that the soul of man will go on progressing through the cycles of eternity and that when he assumes his spiritual body at the resurrection he then will be prepared to inhabit some of the planets or stars which are now uninhabited.

Collects Royal Autographs. Mrs. Astor has lately developed a fad possible only to a woman of her wide foreign acquaintance. It is the collecting of autographs of royalty. A signed portrait of the king and queen is the latest addition to her gallery of sovereigns and a tete-a-tete picture of the duke and duchess of Orleans is another cherished souvenir of her European travels.

Rich Gift to University. President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university has presented to the institution as a gift his magnificent collection of books on the subject of ichthyology, on which he is one of the leading authorities of the world. The collection contains in the neighborhood of 3,000 volumes and is undoubtedly one of the finest in existence.

A Home Thrust.
"Pa, where do the cows get the milk?" asked little Virginia Markham as he looked up from a foaming pan of milk which he had been intently regarding. "Where do you get your tears from?" asked the author of "The Man with the Hoe" "Oh, do the cows have to be whipped?" commented the youngster, after a thoughtful silence. —New York Times.

Mothers, do you know that a perfectly healthy baby never cries. When the little one does cry there's something wrong, and generally it's the stomach. Purgative, Soothing Syrups, Cordials, Teething Syrups and Pain Killers contain opium and morphine. Don't use them. They are harmful—costly too. Such drugs constipate and derange the digestive organs.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

is pleasant to take, augments and supplies the natural digestive ferment, acts as a gentle laxative, makes and keeps babies in health and good humor. A trial will convince you.

GENTLEMEN: For constipation I would cheerfully recommend Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. My little girl, aged eight months, had been troubled since birth with constipation, and reading of your valuable medicine I concluded to try it, and I can recommend it highly to mothers for immediate relief. Only two teaspoon bottles cured my baby.

Your druggist sells it. If not send us his name and we will send sample bottle FREE. 50 cent and $1 bottles. It is economy to buy the $1 size.

We give space this week to a historical sketch of the Kimberly home at Honey Lake. There is much of the article that will prove interesting reading to the pioneers of this section who will remember the doctor and his cultured wife.

The cold wave which swept the far western states and threatened to injure the corn crop, but didn't, arrived here Wednesday morning. Overcoats were brought out and fires returned to make dwellings comfortable. This morning the first frost of the season made its appearance.

The Borden Condensed Milk company Tuesday contracted for milk for six months at an average price of $1.46 2-3 per 100 pounds to be delivered at various factories in Elgin and vicinity. This is about 5 cents more than was paid last fall, but farmers claim it is not in proportion to increase in cost of labor and feed.

Under the new wife abandonment law passed by the last legislature, a man convicted of this offense is put under bond to contribute such sum weekly to the support of his wife as the court shall deem just considering his financial situation. Under the old law they cooped him up awhile and then turned him loose to leave his trade mark on society.

The following teachers from the township of Cuba were present during the entire session of the Lake County Teachers' institute held at Waukegan: Misses Amanda Kampert, Anna Wolthausen, Lulu M. Nicolai, Mae Daley, Dora Rauch, Emma Welch, Lilah M. Golding. The institute was one of the most successful in the history of the county, both with respect to attendance and general interest.

An "unqualified success" is the verdict one hears on all sides when the recent Lake County Fair is the subject of discussion. The great crowds were pleased and well entertained, hence the many expressions of appreciation of the hard worked officer's efforts to make the "golden anniversary" the very best fair ever held in the county. President Miller, Secretary Churchill, the directors and superintendents all worked like Trojans with the resultant greater attendance, improved facilities for comfort and superior and diversified features of entertainment afforded.—Independent.

The Belvidere Daily and Weekly Northwestern, the oldest newspaper in Boone county, suspended publication Tuesday. The weekly edition of the paper was established in 1866 and R. W. Coon, ex-state senator from Boone, was its first editor. The daily was established in 1899. Al Keeler was the owner for many years, and until he took up politics as a profession, managed the paper successfully. Ira S. Carpenter, formerly of Michigan City, Ind., has been editor the last year.

The man of to-day who is up next to his opportunities is to be congratulated, says an exchange. While passing along a road a man was seen seated under a canopy erected over his sulky plow. The free rural delivery agent passed by and handed him a bundle of papers. He took out of the bundle his weekly paper printed that morning, which contained the news from far-off China and other parts of the world. He rode along reading the news while his faithful team was doing all the work. He looked over the market reports and finding a spurt he drove to the house and telephoned the market to find the price paid in the home market. A thousand conveniences are found to-day that were unknown to our grandfathers.

He Was Right.

A Sunday school superintendent, in talking to his pupils about cruelty to animals said: "Only a coward would abuse a creature that has no way of protecting itself. Why, children, I once knew a little boy who cut off a calf's tail! Think of it—took a knife and cut the tail right off! Can anyone tell me a verse in the Bible that would have taught this cruel boy that he should have not cut off the calf's tail." After a moment's silence a small boy held up his hand and when asked to quote the verse, ventured, "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

Golden-Gomm Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Anna Pauline Golden, daughter of Mrs. L. K. Golden of 6709 Emerald avenue, Chicago, to Charles Henry Gomm of that city was solemnized at the bride's home Wednesday evening, Sept. 16, by Rev. F. C. Brunner of the Normal Park M. E. church of which both young people are prominent members.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large assembly of relatives and friends. The gifts were many, costly and useful. A bountiful wedding luncheon was served at small tables decorated with ferns. Vocal selections were rendered by the male chorus of the Normal Park Choral union of which Mr. Gomm is a member. The bride is a sister of Mrs. J. F. Hollister of this place.

WOMAN AND BLOOMERS.

Bloomers Have One Advantage Over the Present Garb.

The time has been when woman was looked upon as man's inferior, and it is said that in some of the older countries she still occupies a secondary place, but here she can truly say—

I'm monarch of all I survey;
My right there is none to dispute.

And, although she does not yet wear the breeches, she is certainly progressing rapidly in that direction, and it won't be long before we men will have to sneak up in the chilly night and go through our wife's bloomers in order to secure the wherewithal to pay the household expenses.

I was in Boston this winter. You know the ladies greatly outnumber the men down there, and a truly modest man hates to go about without a chaperon. I got on a trolley-car filled with ladies. I was the only male passenger, and, being of a shy and shrinking nature, I was in quite a flutter for fear some bold female would stare at me. But, strange as it may seem, not one of them so much as looked at me or even offered me a seat. As I stood with averted gaze my eye was attracted by a sign in the car which read, "Half the people in this car are wearing Bunker Hill pants." That statement was incorrect, but it was the voice of prophecy.

To the married man who is commissioned to go into the closet and fetch his wife's purse, which he is to find in the pocket of her pink wrapper, any simplification of female attire might seem welcome, but we draw the line at bloomers. We don't mind being tied to a woman's apron strings, but we'd hate like thunder to be hitched to her suspenders. Bloomers may be all right to strike matches on, but the girls will find they are mighty poor things to make matches in.—From "A Few Remarks."

Confiscate Impure Milk.

City Chemist Bisbee, of Chicago, made an analysis of milk taken from the Chicago & Northwestern milk express on Wisconsin division Tuesday morning, and the result was the confiscation and dumping of seventy-two gallons of the fluid. Four eight-gallon cans containing preservatives were shipped by H. S. Meir of this village, two cans by H. F. Miller, of Palatine, and three cans from C. C. Schwartz, of Arlington Heights, held watered milk.

Authorities in Chicago propose to make a rigid investigation of the milk shipped into that city. The adulteration of dairy products has been carried to the extreme and inspectors say the practice must stop.

THE REVIEW CHIP BASKET.

Hewen by Hackney.

Don't criticize too harshly the woman who says things she shouldn't. No human mortal can talk all the time without making a mistake now and then.

Dowie will take away the breath of the New Yorkers when he begins showing them how to separate people from their money.

It is rumored that the juicy scandal noised around this village of late has culminated in a suit for damages. If the case comes to trial there will be a stench beside which a glue factory in full operation, would smell like an American beauty rose.

The average girl is so superstitious she would consider it unlucky to decline a proposal of marriage on Friday.

If the president wants to discourage race suicide he should write to the local authorities of various cities asking them to prevent young folks and old from singing "Hiawatha" on the streets.

Frank Lowden, the farmer candidate for governor, and author of that celebrated work, "Forty Ways of Setting a Hen," announces that his boom is cutting a wide swath through the back districts.

It is announced that Miss Golet paid only $4,000,000 for her British duke. As Miss Gould has already paid ten times that amount for her French count, with the prospect of paying that much more if her money holds out, it is evident that the price of British nobility is on the decline.

"So you think it is an advantage to a boy to be reared in the country." "To be sure," answered Farmer Corn-tassel. "A boy has a heap better chance in the country. For instance, when a boy is surrounded by orchards and melon patches he can have a stomach ache without the doctor jumpin' to the conclusion that he's got 'pendicitis.'"

For Lower Assessment.

Believing that Lake County has been unfairly assessed by the state board of equalization, the Lake county board of supervisors has decided to make a hard effort to have a proper adjustment made of its taxes. Ac-ording to the action of the board last week, Chairman Tiffany has been empowered to go before the state board of equalization and insist that the matter of revising the schedule on Lake County lands be given proper consideration.

Last year the state board raised the assessment on lands in Lake county 17 per cent and investigation shows that other counties with land just as valuable as Lake's for farming purposes have been even reduced.

For example last year McHenry's was lowered 3 per cent making general reduction on land of about $12 an acre.

Dr. Dowie's private carriage, in which the sheriff and state's attorney rode to Zion City yesterday, is one of the finest in the state. It is lighted by electricity and the cushion are deep enough to nearly hide a person from sight.—Important news item in the Waukegan Sun.

Of Interest to Members.

District Court No. 1070, of Detroit, Mich., announces that the Convention city of 1907, has nest-egg for five thousand Court of Honor members. What a glorious reception awaits the members of the next Supreme session at Detroit—if the egg hatches.

It is reported that Lounsbury Lodge A. F. & A. M. assisted by Lounsbury Chapter, Order Eastern Star, indulged in a most enjoyable meeting Saturday night at the close of conferring the third degree of masonry. The banquet, it is reported, was served in Sott's hall. The details of the affair are, probably, a part of the secret work of those ancient and honorable orders. At least the newspaper representative was not asked to give the occasion publicity.

The removal from Barrington of W. B. Shales caused a vacancy in the office of consul of Woodmen Camp No. 809. J. F. Hollister was elevated to the position for the unexpired term. Mr. Hollister also succeeds to the office of vice grand of the Odd Fellow lodge vacated by Mr. Shales.

With the opening of the social season will come renewed enthusiasm and activity within Court of Honor circles. Each member should be in the possession of an application card and be prepared to "write up" the stranger who appears at any social function given under the auspices of the District Court.

An Odd Fellow, when in a strange city, always finds friends and he need never feel lonesome. The most intense loneliness one can experience is to be a stranger in a great city—people people, people everywhere, but not a living soul to whom one may turn for friendship. It is a loneliness more severe than the hermit feels in his hut in the heart of the dense and uninhabited forest. There are few who have ever traveled who have not experienced this feeling some time or other. The mystic sign does away with the stranger, and two men, though having always lived upon opposite sides of the continent, becomes friends, even brothers. There is a feeling of satisfaction that comes to a member of this great fraternity that no money can buy; The fact that no matter where one's life may be cast, nor what the surroundings, he will have friends in every emergency, is worth much to his peace of mind.

Though a man may have millions of money at his command and every possible service and attention among strangers, there is not in it the same satisfaction that comes from knowing that the kindness received at the hands of others is born out of a deeper and more sincere fraternal feeling of the heart.

There is comfort in the home from which the wanderer goes forth in the knowledge that, no matter where he roams, true friends will always be near him to cheer him in health or care for him in sickness. If the work of Odd Fellowship amounts to nothing more than this, it is worth laboring for and encouraging in every possible way.—McHenry County Republican.

THE KIMBERLY HOMESTEAD

for the legislature, whose interests were opposed by Galena and other, older and more populous places. The district embraced half of Illinois from Danville on the Wabash and was a wilderness with a few small settlements.

In 1835 he managed to secure the election of Mr. Pruyne, his business partner, and manager, as a member of the Illinois state senate, and during the year following the Illinois and Michigan Canal bill passed. Chicago was wild with joy. Bruyne & Co. set 'em up for the boys. Settin' 'em up those days meant more than the conventional "have something" of today. The "restaurants" were opened wide to the inhabitants by the firm.

One of the Fathers of Rush Medical

In 1837, Mr. Pruyne, at the solicitation of Dr. Kimberly, secured for him the charter of Rush Medical College, of which Dr. Kimberly was a trustee. Owing to great financial depression throughout the country, Illinois was unable to raise a loan to carry on its canal and public works. Failures pros- trated Chicago business. It declined for quite a period in population.

In 1838 Senator Pruyne died suddenly.

In 1844 Dr. Kimberly was prominent in state affairs advocating provisions to make effective the public school system, and a leader in the great Peoria school convention held to effect the purpose. For several years previous to 1851 Dr. Kimberly was school inspector and president of the school board of Chicago. In 1847 Dr. Kimberly championed a provision for township organization in the state convention of 1848. In 1847 he was elected recorder of Cook county and in 1849 clerk of that county.

In 1860 the Chicago residence of the Kimberlys was abandoned for the home at Honey Lake. In the 60's the doctor was elected a member of the Lake County board of supervisors representing Cuba township. He was active in favoring a "short time bounty bond" to secure army recruits. The policy prevailed in the board saving Lake county taxpayers a large sum.

While living Dr. Kimberly advocated liberty, economy, fidelity, commerce, trade, low tariff, sound money, state sovereignty, national union, all under the Democratic label.

In 1873 Dr. Kimberly's health rapidly declined and on October 25 he expired in the the old homestead, entering the other life in the 72nd year of his age.

Of Puritan Ancestry.

The father of Dr. Kimberly was a native of Guilford, Connecticut, born in 1775, a subject of the British King George III, and voted in 1800 for Thos. Jefferson for president. His ancestor, Thomas Kimberly, was an original member of the colony of New Haven, of 1638. His son was the first male born in that colony and was speaker of his majesty's house of delegates in 1692; secretary of the province of Connecticut from 1696 to 1709. All the families from which Dr. Kimberly traced his origin in America were of Puritan-Pilgrim stock and distinguished in the histories of the original thirteen colonies.

A Distinguished Son.

Brightly embellishing the pages of United States naval history is the name and achievements of the late Admiral Kimberly, Dr. Kimberly's eldest son. There will stand his memorials so long as history exists. The battle of Mobile bay; storming of Carras Forts and Samoa hurricane. Fifty five years of distinguished services for his country was what he contributed.

The third son, John, was 40 years ago supervisor of this, Cuba, township and served his country in the Mexican and civil war.

George, another son, is an honored citizen of this township and resides in the old homestead surrounded by all those relics that are dear to memory of pioneer days. To Chicago people George Kimberly will be remembered as an active politician and president of the board of city assessors in 1863.

A. V. H. Kimberly, another son, who makes his home during the summer at Arrowhurst, on the estate, is a type of the retired New England land owner. He is one of the honored citizens of the township. By marriage he is directly connected with the present chief executive of the United States, his wife being a first cousin to President Roosevelt. In the office of Hon. Robt. B. Roosevelt, late U. S. minister to Holland, and father of Mrs. A. V. H. Kimberly, our "strenuous" president read his first law.

The late Mrs. Dr. Kimberly sprang from several powerful and influential families of the colonial period, when old feudal times of caste were still ruling, for a 150 years controlling factors of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania's history, except her father, a sprig of a family distinguished in Kent, England, upwards of 800 years. She was born in New York City, Jan. 4, 1810. Graduated from the famous select school of Madame Okill, a daughter of Sir James Jay, among her class was a daughter of De Witt Clinton. Miss Livingston, Julia Stevens, Mary Le Roy, daughter of West Indian grandess, etc. Their French teacher was a refugee from France during the reign of terror. A countess, who on restoration of the Bourbons, recovered her estates, returned to Paris and lived the rest of her life in great splendor.

Mrs. Dr. Kimberly died suddenly Dec. 22, 1890, at Hybla Hill, aged 81. By her marriage she bore seven children, four male, three female, four still survive. Her eldest daughter, Mrs. Donnelly, a lovely character, a widow of 46 years, has presided over the old homestead, a part of the time for several years.
