Hold Ninth State Convention at the Salem Church, in this Village.

The Most Successful and Largely Attended in the History of the Organization.

The ninth annual K. L. C. E. convention has gone into history and its participants and friends rejoice in its success. The attendance was the largest in the history of such gatherings. The local society had looked forward to this gathering for months, because it represented the hest and most consecrated young people of the church, within the bounds of the Illinois Conference.

Salem church, in which the convention was held was tastefully decorated with the league colors, purple and white. Over the pulpit was the motto, "Welcome," under which was suspended the K. L. C. E. emblem. On one side of the pulpit recess was the motto of the society, "Always and All for Jesus," and its aim, "Study to Show Thyself Approved."

The common method of assigning a meeting to each member of the league was called in question. Special emphasis was laid upon "The Importance of Self Preparation." Rev. Rife read the following, gleaned from Winona Lake Conference:

"The prayer meeting is for everybody; presided over by somebody; monopolized by nobody; participated in by everybody, where everybody is somebody."

New York dispatch: Dun's Review, ssued by R. G. Dun & Co., the mercartile agency, says:

"Aside from a few strikes confined to minor interests, the industrial situation exhibits a gratifying activity, the manufacturing and distributing lines being fully employed and new business coming forward freely. Demand remains strong for finished products of the steel mills, and there is heavy buying of wire and hardware. Structural materials are in easier supply, but current buying is good, and there is much heavy work appearing for bridge building and railroad extensions. Foundrymen have all the business they can handle, and are large consumers of pig iron, the lowered cost of the latter material placing them in a position to undertake large contracts for future completion.

New Orleans, La., dispatch: Rejoicing because they thought they had evaded the rule forbidding the children to eat between meals, seven little orphans of the St. John's asylum stole some pieces of bread smeared over with rat poison and ate them. Two are now dead and the other five are in the charity hospital lingering between life and death. Inez Gauther, aged 9, and Sarah Wilkinson, aged 6, are the two who have already died. The asylum is conducted by the Sisters. One of the rules is that there shall be no eating between meals. The children like to steal out "snacks" and enjoy them. So when these seven little girls found nice, fresh slices of bread lying all around, with a thick paste spread over them looking like jelly and with sugar sprinkled on them they devoured them with a relish. The paste was deadly poison.

CHAPTER IX.

The Bellona.

The pleasure craft Pope had boarded was by no means a rich one. Her name was the Bellona; she was from Terceira; the countess and two nieces had been left to winter among the oranges and sweet winds of an island.

The Earl had several occasions to so home; one was a parliamentary need, and lot behold his lordship's stately figure in the thick of his dastardly crew, being rowed away by pirates to a little armed brig, while the two captains sacked his vessel.

But they found very little. The hairy scoundrels grew wanton in disappointment and roared out blasphemies as they smashed the mirrors and ripped through the cushions with their cutlasses. It was almost dark when they had secured the available plunder, among which was a considerable store of provisions, fine wine, brandies, and the felon he should have sentenced, champagne, and a small quantity of he drew off the splendid ruby, and live stock, chiefly poultry. The booty was taken on board the brig by Crystal.

Pope remained with a few men to provide for the extermination of the pleasure craft. In a small carpenter's chest in the forecastle they found an auger. With this tool one of the sailors who understood carpentry, was dispatched by Pope into the hold, there to drill to starboard and larboard, four holes under water in the vessel's side. While the wretch was thus employed, the others lighted a lantern and hoisted it by the signal halyards to the main topmast head.

After the holes had been bored, they all stood a minute at the coamings ofthe hatch to listen to the noise of the water running in. Then Pope sings out:

"In with us, men." And dropping into the boat, they rowed aboard the brig. The crew of the Bellona were adrift. I want more men."

would have been honored by the presence of so great a nobleman. You are doubtless fatigued after the events of the day; would your lordship like to withdraw?"

"Where am I to sleep?" says the Earl, with a start, revolving his great nose slowly in a survey of the plain interior.

"There," answered Pope, pointing, "is a comfortable little berth-your lordship is an old soldier-a bolster and a blanket----

Lord Fitzgibbon waved his hand, upon which Pope, strangely enough for the first time, took notice of a very handsome ring.

"My lord," says the captain with a change of face, "I must trouble you to give me that ring."

It seemed for a moment as though the Earl would expostulate, then with such a countenance as one might conceive on a judge who by some scurvy transition of fortune is convicted by Captain Pope with a bow put it in his pocket.

"See to his lordship's wants," said Pope to the cabin servant; "that's his berth." and he went on deck.

"Where are the schooner's people?" he asked. "Some are below in the 'tween-decks," was the answer.

Some, including the lord's valet, were forward. The captain of the schooner had been knocked about.

"On an empty stomach, as I reckon, the bloomed cuss had taken in half a pint of gin, forced to it by the good nature of our men. This set him abusin' of our callin' and I hope his left eye ain't been quenched."

"Did he make a good stand?" "As good as a man can make agin five too many, himself mucked up with liquor."

"He shall join us if he is a fighter," said Pope, "and we'll send John

The Earl bowed. Piracy was on stilts this windy morning. "What ring are ye talking of?" says

Crystal jealously. Pope pulled it out of his waistcoat pocket, and said: "Give it to his lordship when you have examined it."

"This is worth three hundred guineas," says Crystal, with greed in his eyes, while his strong jaws chewed like a bull's. Pope said nothing, and my lord, receiving the ring from Crystal, pocketed it.

"Who are your bankers, my lord?" said Pope, after a short silence.

The Earl, faintly smiling, answered, "Child's."

"I will at once," continued Pope, in his most affable manner, "explain Captain Crystal's and my intentions toward your lordship and your people. Such of your crew as will not join us will be transferred to the first vessel that will take them; but it is our intention to keep you with us for the present, and to part with you only on condition that you give us a draft. for two thousand guineas for your liberty."

"You shall have my draft," cried the poor old gentleman, suddenly losing his self-control; "but I implore you, for God's sake, not to detain me long in this miserable and terrifying situation."

"You shall be sent home," said Pope, 'and we two captains will trust the eloquent Earl Fitzgibbon up to the very hilt as a man of the strictest honor."

The old nobleman bowed his white head with a gesture of dignity mingled with indignation and grief. This extraordinary conversation then terminated.

When Captain Pope went on deck he found the breeze moderating, and, after searching the sea with his eye, he ordered the boatswain to make sail.

Then, standing at the main rigging, and looking at the people in the forepart, Pope spied the skipper of the schooner. The man's left eye was black, his face showed signs of his having been savagely knuckled, and one arm was slung in a piece of rope round his neck. Pope, roared out: "Send the captain and crew of the schooner /aft."

They arrived presently, and made a group close abaft the mainmast. After cool and critical survey, during which he molded a cigar with both hands. Pope sung out: "You look a likely lot; do you know our character?" The schooner's men made no answer, save that one broke into a low satiric grunt of laughter.

DOG CATCHERS ARE TOO FOXY | TROUBLE FOR NAVAL RESERVES | TAX DODCER GETS HEAVY FINE.

Work Endless Chain to Secure Money From Village of North Alton.

The North Alton village board has decided not to enforce the collection of dog taxes in the village, because of the difficulties attending it. It was voted to allow all the dogs in the village freedom and exemption from taxes, and to refund the money to the persons who had paid taxes for dogs. The reason for this action is that the village authorities were victimized by every person employed to catch dogs. The dog catchers, it was alleged by the village officers, would import a number of dogs to the town, catch them, collect for the work of catching, and, before the animals could be killed, liberate them and catch them again. Under such discouraging circumstances the village board decided not to try to collect dog taxes.

ENFORCING CHILD LABOR LAW.

State Inspectors After Violators at

State Labor Inspectors Davis and Fahn of Springfield, who have been in East St. Louis, cited eighteen factories as violators of the compulsory education law. The law, which became effective in July, provides that children under 14 years of age shall not be employed under any circumstances and that children between the ages of 14 and 16 must be provided with certificates from the superintendent of instruction, stating that they have attended school for ten months during each of the two preceding years and that they can read and write. The fine for violation of the law is $5 in each case, which was paid in a number of instances. It is reported that about twenty more cases will be cited.

Dissension in Ranks Over Domination by Chicago Division.

Unless Gov. Yates can do something to placate the officers and men of the Illinois naval reserve in the Alton, Quincy, Moline and Rock Island divisions, which comprise the old second ship's crew, dissensions are threatened, which may lead to disorganization. The trouble is the alleged discrimination against the Mississippi river divisions in favor of the Chicago divisions.

The last legislature passed a law abolishing the old organization, which consisted of eight divisions, divided into two ships' crews. The river divisions comprised the second, and the four Chicago divisions comprised the first. Under the new law the ships' crew organization was abolished, and all the divisions are controlled directly from Chicago. The men say that the Chicago divisions have received a majority of the favors and that the river divisions have suffered. They have lost nearly all their staff officers and all control of their own

A delegation of the former officers of the old second ships' crew, representing the four protesting divisions on the Mississippi, has visited Springfield for a conference with wov. Yates. A request was made that, in the interest of the preservation of the naval reserves organization in the state, something be done to placate the oftended men and officers.

Shower Money on Altar.

Rev. W. M. Rhoads of Upper Alton conducted the dedicatory services at a new Baptist church in Felter, Macoupin county, Ill. Instead of promises the friends of the new church took currency with them, and, when the dedicatory exercises were finished, the pulpit desk was piled with enough money to pay off the unsubscribed portion of the cost of the building and all contingent expenses, leaving a balance. Over 1,000 persons attended the dedication and there was great enthusiasm, the dedicatory exercises proper being preceded by three days of devotional services, conducted by Rev. Mr. Rhoads.

Judge Imposes Penalty of $1,000 After Plea of Guilty.

Leopold Knebel, one of the wealthlest citizens of Bond county, was fined $1,000 by Judge Charles Moore in the circuit court at Greenville as the result of an investigation conducted by the board of review, Knebel having made three different schedules of his property to the assessor, and having subsequently been indicted for perjury. He appeared in court with his attorney, Lieut. Gov. Northcott, and entered a plea of guilty to the lesser offense of "delivering false or fraudulent lists to the assessor," whereupon Judge Moore imposed the fine and costs, the total amount being $1,031.50. Knebel wrote his check at once for the amount and was released. The fine is the largest ever imposed in this county.

Miners Are Killed.

Two Bohemian miners were found dead beneath a fall of clod and coal in the Henrietta mines, near Edwardsville. . The men had not returned to their boarding house as usual and investigation at the mine developed the fact that their number pegs were not in their holes, showing that they had not come out of the mines with the other men. Further investigation led to the discovery of the bodies completely covered. They have not been here long and little is known of them. Their wives and children are en route here from the old country and are supposed to be in New York now.

Will Sell Ursuline Convent.

The sisters of Ursuline convent in Alton have determined to dispose of the convent property, which is the home of all the sisters of the order in that part of the country. It is proposed to purchase a tract out of the city and to establish a new convent and a more commodious academy for girls. The building has been occupied as a convent many years.

Fools With Fire.

John Sprow, indicted in the city court over two years ago, was caught in Alton and taken to the county jail in default of bail. Sprow has tantalized the police during the two years he was a fugitive by returning to the city and eluding officers sent to capstore.

massed in the forepart. It went swiftly about that the schooner had been scuttled; and the pirates overhung the bulwarks waiting for her to go down. At last she sank. She had filled rapidly, and the melting out of her shadowy shape, and the downward his gaze astern, and the first sight he flight of her lantern and its sudden extinction in the smoky gloom which overlay the sea, made an ocean vision that had enough of awe, mystery and terror in it to subdue into brief silence even the swarm of rough blackguards who watched.

The brig was rounded away for the course which John Spaniard was to traverse, and Captain Pope, stepping up to the Earl, made him a polite bow, and begged the honor of his company at supper in the cabin.

The nobleman followed the captain and they sat down to a meal of cold food which had been plundered from the snow. Champagne and wine were put upon the table by the cabin man: the Earl knew to whom those bottles had belonged.

"I would thank you, Captain Pope, as I gather your name is," he said, "to tell me how you propose I am to return home, and when?"

"We must wait upon the chances of the sea, my lord," replied Pope in his pleasantest manner. "Your person is safe."

The Earl made a stiff motion with his head.

"We're ill-used gentlemen," says Crystal, breaking in with a hiccough. "Would have us starve ashore when there are plenty of rich pearly oysters washing along at sea waiting for our cutlasses to open them?"

"You do not spare your fellow-countrymen?" says the Earl.

"We have none," answered Pope, grimly. "Poverty has no country. This is excellent champagne; let me fill your lordship's glass."

Where are you bound to, gentlemen?" said the Earl.

Crystal had been in charge from midnight till four. He was now turned in again, bravely snoring to the melody of the tiller ropes, and the ugly devil Grindal walked the deck. When the dawn broke he turned beheld was a large ship full-robed to the very height of her main-royal.

"Good thunder! A Yankee," says the boatswain; he had the most interpreting eye for a ship that ever villain winked. She was coming up hand over fist, a noble sight as her stirless sails, sweetly shadowed, soft as penciling at their leeches, by the growing light in the east, swelled like yearning breasts one above another, bowing stately to each white leap of water which blew in mist from the thrust of the stem, blackening the canvas forward. Many besides the boatswain were now watching her meteoric passage; among them was the Earl, who looked as if he had not slept, and Captain Pope.

"Captain Pope!" exclaimed the Earl, with majestic fervor, "would it not be possible for you to transfer me and my people to yonder vessel? She would receive me for the consideration I would offer."

"We will keep you for that consideration," answered Pope. "We are now your friends, and you know we are gentlemen in need of what yonder fellow has doubtless plenty of. Dollars, my lord, dollars! It shall not be long before you are sent home, and you are a man of great honor."

Lord Fitzgibbon stared at him like an eagle. He read some further intent in the tall and handsome pirate's face and his brows gathered into a bush over his great nose.

"No, by h-!" roared the skipper.

Pope looked in silence with a red face at the livid-eyed master, turned his head with a gesture of withering contempt, and, catching sight of the Earl, called out, "He runs too fast to make a pirate, my lord."

"He has a wife and children," answered the Eari, swaying to his clutch of the companion.

"There's a man that should join us," said Pope, pointing with an ironical forefinger to the valet, who stood among the little crowd, limp, yellow and shuddering.

"I am not used to fight, sir," cried the poor wretch. "I am his lordship's servant, and cannot desert him."

Pope gave a short laugh, which was echoed among his men, and turning to the Earl exclaimed, "He'll not desert you, my lord." The contempt in his tone was perhaps reflected in his lordship's silence and gaze. But not a man of the schooner's crew would join the pirates, and when this was made clear. Pope swung on his heel and walked aft to Lord Fitzgibbon.

Their Existence Believed in by Many Scientists.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and mediaeval natural history. Until comparatively recent time no scientist, ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that "in this year dragons were seen of many in England." Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gives a detailed description of the dragon, while Aldrovandus, in his "History of Serpents and Dragons," published in 1640, devotes fifty pages to the monster. A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, incased in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its back was serrated like a saw. It possessed a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet, a wolvine head the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed and fire and fury issued from the montser's mouth and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of crea-They could not walk that stagger- tures. Popocatepetl to Be Scaled.

The report having been confirmed that an American syndicate has purchased the great Mexican volcano, Popocatepetl, and details given of a plan for building a railway to its summit and opening the sulphur deposits in the bowels of the volcano, we may rest assured that before long any tourist of average means may be able to view one of the grandest prospects on this continent. Popocatepetl has been owned by one individual, General Sanchez Ochoa, for more than quarter of a century. He has tried many times to cast off the great burden entailed by the ownership of a volcano likely at any time to blow its head off and devastate the surrounding country, but hitherto has been unsuccessful. At one time it was given out that a company had. been formed to tunnel into the crater from Amecameca, through which town a railroad runs; but nothing came of that. Again, the vast sulphur deposits supposed to exist within the crater were to be exploited by another company operating over a tramway to be constructed from the great pine forests below the line of perpetual snow.

It is presumed that the railway people will provide a snow slide attachment to all their trains by means of which the passengers may "streak it" down the cone. Otherwise the climbing of the volcano would be robbed of half its pleasures.

As to getting out the sulphur in the crater, the first time it was tried was when Cortes and the other Spaniards invaded Mexico, about 1520, when a man was let down into the great chasm by a rope and obtained sulphur for making the powder used in the subsequent bombardment of the Aztec capital. Sulphur exists in the crater, but not in great quantities, being constantly sublimated in the orifices opening up from the nether world.

Leprosy In Colombia. Here is something that may throw light on the recent action, or, rather, inaction, of the Colombians with reference to the canal treaty. Professor Jonathan Hutchinson, the well known surgeon and expert on leprosy, in a letter to the London Times renews his former endeavor to establish the connection between the eating of decayed fish on religious fast days and the spread of that loathsome disease. He says that his attention has been directed recently to its prevalence in the United States of Colombia. It was in that region that the earliest Spanish settlements were made and where, according to tradition, the first cases of leprosy on the American continent occurred. Mr. Hutchinson has been investigating the case and directs attention to some suggestive facts. He quotes the figures of Dr. Ashmead of New York city to show that, while there are 200,000 lepers in India, 100,-000 in China and an equal number in Japan, there are 20,000 in Colombia. This, allowing for the difference in population, shows that there are about twelve cases of leprosy in Colombia to one in India. As a matter of fact, he says, thè excess in Colombia is probably much greater. In India, where in vast districts fish is forbidden food, the ratio of leprosy is six per 10,000. In Colombia, where the consumption of fish is stimulated by religious ritual, the leprosy ratio is nearly seventy per 10,000. It is becoming more and more apparent that English has actually taken the place of French in diplomatic intercourse and is 'rapidly climbing to supremacy. Without going into an analysis of the two languages or discussing the relative merits of either the diplomats seem to have arrived at the conclusion that for their purposes English is the better of the two. This would imply a radical departure by them from the recognized standards previously set up, for it has long been held by the old types that the language of diplomacy should be used to conceal rather than reveal your purpose. But if one will joyment of life of thousands of take the trouble to review some of the notable diplomatic transactions of recent days he will be impressed by the force and directness of the language used as contrasted with the old circumlocutory style when French was in vogue. In short, real "United States" English is being used in international discussions, as emphasized by the proceedings before the last Hague tribunal, when each advocate was allowed to use his own language in pleadings, and still more in the official announcement that English is to be the medium employed in the next. And why shouldn't English assert itself when 'there are more people speaking it in Europe alone than any other language, not to mention Great Britain

Philippine Population.

There are several surprises in the Philippine census just completed, the chief surprise being in the reduction of previous estimates of the population of the archipelago, which ranged all the way from 7,000,000 to 10,000,-000, while the actual enumeration shows 6,976,574. The Spanlards never took a careful census, guessing at the number of the Filipinos as they guessed at their capacity for fighting. They guessed wrong every time, and the result was that Uncle Sam in the role of champion guesser stepped in and did the job for them and did it thoroughly. S In the execution of the field work there were 56 supervisors, each with a clerk and messenger; 998 special agents, 61 special enumerators and 5,892 enumerators and as many enumeration districts.

The total of the wild tribes enumerated shows at about 600,000, though the returns from the official enumerators' reports are to the effect that the population generally were "wild" when commanded to stand up and be counted. They had never done it before, and having been so long under Spanish rule that they had acquired the habit of never doing anything they or their ancestors had not been accustomed to doing they, to put it mildly, shied at the enumerators. In the provinces of Bulacan, Batangas, Albay, Laguna and Rizal the officials were held up by ladrones, who took their pouches away from them, but, to the great astonishment of the census takers, "did not molest their schedules."

With not quite 7,000,000 Filipinos scattered throughout their 2,000 islands, extending over a distance equal to that between the north end of Maine and the south end of Florida, the archipelago is not so very populous after all.

There are rumors of an immense syndicate just formed for purchasing lands in Sonora, Chihuahua and Sinaloa aggregating some 6,000,000 acres, about 3.000,000 of which are owned by the Mexican government. But the latest achievement of the horse emphasizes the fact that he is still essential to progress and that if the traveling public in general can do without him the army cannot. In accordance with a series of tests projected by the government a dozen members of the Eighth cavalry, stationed in Oklahoma, started for West Point with a schedule to beat of forty-five days between termini. The distance was 2.000 miles, and it was covered by the winner in thirty-nine days, with an average of more than fifty miles per day. Relays were provided every thirty miles, and the riders were allowed to eat and sleep where they liked. This test of equine stamina is not for nothing, for it means that cavalry will continue to be of service for a long time to come. It should be a hint to horse breeders, especially as our government has no stud for remounts, unlike the French, who raise the finest horses in the world expressly for their cavalry.

JOKE ON A CONGRESSMAN.

Judge Gaines Tells How Burleson Found Our Legation In London. Representative John W. Gaines of Tennessee recently returned from a trip through Europe and tells of an interesting incident in London, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Herald. Judge Gaines says he met Representative Albert S. Burleson of Texas on the Strand in London, and the latter naturally was delighted to meet his old friend from Tennessee. "Come with me to the American embassy, Gaines," said Burleson. "I want to get my salary check, which has been forwarded there."

"Let's take a cab then," said Gaines. "It's a long way from here, and I'm tired."

"Oh, no; it's just down to Westminster abbey," said Burleson. Gaines protested that the American legation was not at that depository for England's famous dead, but the Texan insisted that it was and would only be convinced when he had persuaded Gaines to go there. Then, the Tennesseean says, he took Burleson to the legation, a long way distant.

As Burleson is a member of the house committee on foreign affairs there naturally was a laugh on him for supposing that America's legation is located in Westminster abbey.

Miss Elizabeth Camp's Daring Trip In a Naphtha Launch.

BAN INTO GALE ON LAKE ONTARIO

Young Heiress Piloted Her Own Craft For Eight Hundred Miles From Alexandria Bay to Norwich, Conn. - Boat Nearly Swamped In Going Through Big Hell Gate.

Miss Elizabeth N. Camp of Norwich has increased her popularity in eastern Connecticut and added to her athletic reputation by piloting her speedy launch Wizard from the Thousand islands to Norwich, a distance of 800 miles, says the New York Herald.

A young society woman of twenty years, educated by excellent private instructors and with a proud family record, Miss Camp is, as her friends express it, an "on the level girl."

Miss Camp spent the summer at Alexandria Bay and there saw the launch Wizard get all the racing honors. Having mastered all features of steering and running a launch, Miss Camp determined to buy the Wizard and take the launch to her home. Accompanied by Mrs. C. N. Cook, Captain Estes and Edwin Campbell, Jr., the former owner of the Wizard, all of Alexandria Bay, and Alfred Lillibridge of Norwich, Miss Camp started on the trip a few weeks ago.

While on Lake Ontario and far from a port the Wizard ran into a gale. Captain Estes' seamanship, combined with that of Miss Camp and the work of the whole party in bailing the water out of the nearly swamped craft, carried the Wizard through the Erie canal.

Captain Estes left the craft at Albany, and Miss Camp assumed full responsibility for the remainder of the trip. Going down the Hudson river, Miss Camp decided to take the Wizard around New York city and through Hell Gate instead of by the less dangerous Little Hell Gate route. Dodging through New York harbor, with Miss Camp at the wheel, the Wizard poked her nose into Hell Gate, encountering a head tide and heavy sea. It required several attempts to make the passage, the launch being nearly swamped.

The trip in Long Island sound to New London was made in a heavy blow. Miss Camp had only a small chart to guide her, but she piloted the Wizard through successfully. The party spent one night in the open cabin. From New London up the Thames river to Norwich the Wizard had a quick run. Including the stops and the delays caused by bad weather, the Wizard made the trip from Alexandria Bay in thirteen days. Sixty-one gallons of gasoline were used.

Great success regarding the introduction of seeds-and plants in the Philippine Islands for and production there of new food and forde plants is reported by the Philippine bur au of agriculture, says the Washington correspondend of the New York Tribune. The experiments already conducted demonstrate that many fruits and garden. vegetables heretofore unknown to the islands can be grown there. The new vegetables introduced include articrokes, asparagus, beans, peas, beets, brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, cucumbers, eggplant, endives, garlic, leeks, lettuce, muskmelons, watermelons, okra, parsnips, peppers, radishes, rhubarb, salsify, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips.

The results show both success and failure. As was anticipated, the results secured by the bureau were better than those obtained by the natives who had secured seeds for experimental purposes. Beans grew well in many places, while peas gave less satisfactory results. Experiments with pumpkins, cucumbers and melons show a long record of disaster, all practically confined to the ravages of insects or, fungous diseases, but it is thought that by planting in the dry season and by irrigation better results may be secured.

Eggplants, tomatoes and peppers, all of unrivaled size and excellence, were generally reported, both by natives and by the government agronomic stations. Okra, of tropical Asiatic origin, has given universally good results. The profitable production of beets, turnips lettuce, endives, spinach and radishes has been demonstrated and is assured by an intense high forcing system pursued from the day the seed is sown until the crop is secured.

Among oil bearing seeds seamum. rape, peanuts and sunflowers have done well, and there seems to be a valuable future for them in the islands.

Missouri is going to break another record this year with a bumper nut crop, says a Columbia special to the St. Louis Republic. There will be nuts to crack for every man, woman, and child in the state. For several years the crop has been short, and as a consequence the quotation on the general market is close around $2.50 per bushel mark. This season the hickory trees are loaded, and even the hazel bushes along the roadside are fairly clustered with nuts. The market price has not yet been established on hickory nuts, Hague.

The scandalized spectators fell back. Deacons and overseers gathered and discussed the situation. The master of Zion must know.

"Aye," said the healer to his brother, my hosts are obedient unto me. See how they shrink from the infected one. They will not be contaminated by him.'

The coach was stopped. The father sprang to the ground and with his strong hand chastised his son.

SIR HERBERT AT THE HAGUE

Late British Ambassador's Novel Presentation to Holland's Queen. The history of the late Sir Michael Henry Herbert, British ambassador to the United States, was not without its share of adventure, says the Philadelphia Press. Once, while in Holland, he was out walking near the royal country seat when he was startled by a furious beating of hoofs not far behind him. Looking around he saw a runaway horse attached to a heavy, old fashioned pleasure wagon. There was no one in the vehicle, and Mr. Herbert was debating with himself whether or not he should make an attempt to stop the plunging horse when all doubts of action were dispelled by the sudden appearance around a sharp corner of a young girl in white. She stood apparently fascinated by the runwalls built by his friend the enemy, it away, which was bearing directly is impossible for Israel to persist fur- down upon her. Englishman in India. A sambhur fawn I possessed in India, of the age of four to six months, made a practice of chasing all dogs that came into the compound, and did so with every appearance of consider ing it the greatest possible fun. The dogs, on the other hand, fled with their tails between their legs. This fawn evidently imagined itself to be the guardian and protector of the establishment. I have a vivid picture in my recollection of the gentle little breast transformed into a perfectly fury, its coat bristling on end to make it look twice its usual size, head and tail defiantly erect, stamping sharply on the threshold with its dainty forefeet, demonstrations intended to frighten away two pariah dogs who cringed before it on the veranda, yet showed a great desire to intrude into the house. . Pierpont, O., Oct. 5th.-Remarkable indeed is the experience of Mr. A. S. Turner, a man now over seventy-one years of age, and whose home is here. For many years this old gentleman had suffered with a very unpleasant form of Kidney Trouble, a kind that very often bothers aged people. He would have to get up four or five times every night, and this very tiresome disease was fast wearing him out.

At last after having almost made up his mind that he would never be able to get relief, he stumbled over a medicine which relieved him almost immediately, and has cured him permanently. It is so very easy to get and so simple that Mr. Turner thinks everyone should know of it. Every dealer in the country has it, and all you have to do is to ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Mayor Low of New York Talks of Franchise Thieves.

Mayor Seth Low, recently renominated by the Republicans and anti-Tammany men for chief executive of New York, declared before a Chicago audience that the great and subtle dangers confronting cities today were those arising from the efgrafters. The day of open robbery, he said, was gone, but an era of intrigue had replaced it. The remedy, he asserted. was to give the mayor of a city great appointive and administrative power and then to hold him to strict personal account.

Women Object to Statue.

The beautiful new statue on the top of the Kirkpatrick memorial fountain in Syracuse, N. Y., offends the women of that neighborhood, and they threaten to destory it unless it be clothed. The statue is the work of the sculptor, Jerome Connor, and is entitled, "The Boy and the Parrot." Both figures are clothed in the garb of nature. The women of the vicinity will not allow their children to play in Union park, where the statue stands. They will probably memorialize the common council regarding it.

Former Actor Plans to Empty Penitentiary of Its Prisoners.

VETERAN WARDEN DISMISSED

Inmates of Eastern Pennsylvania Prison Enjoy Too Many Privileges, Among Them Being a Private Still and a Counterfeiting Plant.

Philadelphia, Pa., dispatch: It has just come to light that a general jail delivery, planned by James Gentry, the actor who murdered Madge Yorke, an actress, was the direct cause for the dismissal of Warden Daniel W. Bussinger, who for twentyseven years has been an executive officer of Eastern penitentiary.

The institution has been undergoing a searching investigation for some weeks, and the inspectors found, among other things, a complete counterfeiting plant in operation in block 8 of the penitentiary; a miniature whisky still in block 6, and a shortage of over 60,000 cigars, mostly stolen by revenue officers, in the cigar factory.

Plot to Empty Prison.

Gross frauds and irregularities were found in every department of the prison, but the plot to empty the institution of its 1,100 desperate criminal's capped the climax.

By degrees a total of 348 convicts, out of a total of 1,100, secured "outside" jobs, the same being work in the yard, or in places other than their cells. Five of these men secured stations in the warden's quarters, where only one man stood between them and liberty. As many more found employment close to the single guard at the center gate, and others in the plot secured berths close to the real center of the prison, where only one man was always on guard.

Punish the Convicts.

With these preliminaries arranged there was never a time when, at given signal, the 348 men "outside" could not have overpowered the thirty-six guards on duty and been well away before outside help could have been secured.

Of the 348 "outside" men 200 were returned summarily to their cells for

KILLED BY A LAUGH.

It Set Off Some Nitroglycerin, and a Big Explosion Followed.

An accident, one of the most extraordinary on record, has just occurred at some new oilfields in the Baku district of Russia, on the borders of the Caspian sea.

One of the big "gusher" oil wells became choked, and, with a view of blowing it clear, a number of iron drums full of nitroglycerin were brought down from Derbend and deposited overnight in a large shed which was used by the men as a sort of canteen.

The steward of this establisment, a Greek named Darios, opened one of the drums for some reason best known to himself, and "decanted" a small quantity of the dangerous liquid into a long thin glass for mixing vodka. This he placed on a shelf behind the bar.

Shortly afterward there entered a workman named Borkovitch, who was famous for the boisterous hilarity of his manner, and especially for his loud, resonant laughter.

The sight of nitroglycerin in a vodka tumbler so excited his risibility that he gave vent to a series of stentorian guffaws. This set the half-filled glass "ringing," and the treacherous contents exploded.

The concussion sufficed, in its turn, to explode the rest of the stuff in the drums, entirely demolishing the shed and killing five persons, all who were in it at the time.

The barman escaped through having gone down into the cellar just previously, whence he distinctly heard the laughter, followed by the musical "singing" of the thin tumbler and the two explosions .- Stray Stories.

A Remarkable Clock.

August Mermet of North Adams, has built a clock which is 48 inches high and 12 inches leep. It is made of mahogany, white holly and white maple and is very pretty. It keeps good time and on the hour and halfhour strikes. A bell rings, fine electric lights light up and a trumpeter comes out of closing doors, which open in front. The clock is gilded with gold and silver, and it required three months of Mr. Mermet's spare time to build it.

THE MATTER OF NAMES.

Frequent Variance Between Spelling and Pronunciation.

A variance between the spelling and the pronunciation of a name has almost come to be a sign of aristocracy; orthographical representation of whose name was "Enroughty," but who insisted on calling it "Darby." But was there originally any satisfaction in seeing the family name mutilated in the popular mouth? Of course not; it is as certain that the first Dalrymples were outraged at seeing their proud designation corrupted to "Drumple" as that the tenth earl of Stair today would be horrified to hear it given the ancient sound. Mr. Roosevelt may prefer a certain pronunciation. His uncle is known to prefer still another -the strict Dutch. But when the Roosevelts came over they dropped their accustomed language: they submitted to the customs of this country; part of them consented to a modification of their name, though they do not appear to have agreed upon a settled form. The public will settle the matter for them.-Philadelphia Ledger.

The scene is in Clay County, Indiana. The tale begins with the idyllic love of a young farmer and a girl teacher, which culminates in a marriage that brings perfect bliss in spite of poverty and hard work. The development of an intricate plot, worked out in a masterly manner, keeps the interest of the reader at the highest tension, as one follows the awakening of ambition in the young man, his life in Chicago where he rises rapidly in his profession, his first downward step, the frightful entanglement into which his weakness leads him, up to the tragical end which brings into high relief the characters of two poble

Gentry was put on bread and water in a dark cell, and twenty of the other men in the conspiracy had their cells "chalked," which means that all privileges are to be denied them and that they are to have no work, which is by far the most severe penalty that can be imposed upon a convict.

Cells Are Searched.

Every convict in the prison was taken out of his cell and stripped immediately after the discovery of the plot. Everything was removed from the 700 cells and carried to the prison office, where schedules were made of the property found.

The list includes files, saws, tempered wire, chisels, hooks, hatchets, hammers, table knives fashioned into dirks, sandbags, slungshots, and knuckles fashioned out of lead pipe; whisky, money, counterfeit coins and iron bars.

The locks upon the cell doors were found-to-be defective, and it was discovered that-the prison telephone system was arranged so that the twentytwo-year man assigned to the job could dismantle the entire plant with a twist of the wrist.

Find Writ of George II.

A court document, issued in 1741 in the name of King George II of Great Britain, and bearing his seal, has been unearthed in an attic of an old house against one John Hyland, Jr., to satisfy a judgment obtained by James Otis of Barnstable, father of James Otis, the American revolutionary pioneer. It appears that the principal sawmills in this section were in those days located at Scituate, and there was much trading between Sandwich and Barnstable. Private documents and court records go to show that James Otis bought lumber of Hyland previous to 1737, and that when their business transactions closed there was a balance of £9 9s. 6d. in favor of Otis. Failing to get a settlement, Otis brought suit, and as the document just discovered shows, was awarded the full amount of his claim with an additional allowance of £3 for costs of court and the writ.

In the writ power is granted to the sheriff of the county or his under sheriff power to seize the body of Hyland, place him in the Plymouth jail and seize his lands, chattels and goods until the amount and fees mentioned are paid.

Two Men Looked for Reward for Gift to Church.

In speaking of the gratuitous supplying of electric current for the special illumination by the United Electric Light and Power company, Mr. Robert J. McCuen, superintendent of lamps and lighting, told recently a characteristic story of the late Col. Milton W. Offutt, who was vice president of the company.

It has been the custom of Col. Offutt to supply an electric light at the annual lawn fete of St. Pius' church. This year the ladies of the church wanted two lights, and not wishing to impose on the Colonel's generosity, they went to Mr. McCuen in their predicament.

Upon citing the circumstances, Mr. McCuen promised that they should have the lights. He called Col. Offutt by telephone and told him that he wanted him to install two lights at the St. Pius church lawn fete and charge in Sandwich, Mass. It is an execution the expense to him personally. Whereupon the Colonel replied:

> "They want two lights this year, do they? Well, they shall have them: but I can't allow you to pay for them. Bob."

> "But I want to," responded Mr. Mc-Cuen.

> "What's the matter with you, Bob?" called back Col. Offutt. "Don't you think I want to go to heaven as well as you do?"-Baltimore Sun.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9,: 1903.

The Autumn Mist. Mother Earth is dying. All the bloom of youth has left her. Withered are her wrinkled cheeks, and dull her once bright eyes. Winter's coming on apace; of hope he has bereft her. And her voice is harsh with grief and hoarsely now she sighs.

Death, the bridegroom, waits for her, and she fears to meet him Will he love her homely face once by beauty kissed? Hurriedly she takes a veil ere she goes to greet him.

And the face of Mother Earth's enveloped in a mist!

Death looks on the form unknown, puszled, hesitating This is not the Earth he knew, this sweet, airy thing

So he passes by, and she patiently in waiting
