

THE BARRINGTON REVIEW.

VOL 19. NO. 45.

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1904.

$1.50 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.

PALATINE LOCAL NEWS

Gathered and Compiled by A. G. Smith, Local Editor.

Horn cattle sale, Nov. 26.
Miss Della Smith spent Sunday at Janesville, Wis.

Miss Alma Othmer scolded her left arm very badly one day the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lincoln have been visiting the latter's father at Langenhelm this week.

Palatine High school vs John Marshall High school of Chicago on Nassau's Field Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. R. H. Lytle of Libertyville and daughter Mrs. F. E. Hawley of Barrington attended the W. R. C. Fair here Saturday.

Mr. R. Lewis has purchased J. Blom's painting business at Arlington Heights and will do work both there and here.

The suit against the village on the drainage question is again postponed and the opening of the case is liable to drag for some time.

The First Quarterly Conference of the M. E. Church was held at Dr. Wood's residence on Tuesday evening, Rev. Earnsey presided.

The Country Fair given by the W. R. C. was a big success in every way. The hall was hardly large enough to accommodate the crowds.

Dr. C. M. Sutherland son Ralph of Colorado and Edward H. Sutherland of Nebraska came this week to attend the funeral services of their mother.

Burning chimneys have caused a number of fire scares recently. The burning out of John Wilson's chimney Saturday night necessitated the calling out of the fire department.

The Epworth League is planning to send a Thanksgiving box of groceries to the Methodist Orphanage at Lake Bluff. Contributions for same will be thankfully received at the parsonage.

The Cook County Sunday School convention for this district will be held in the Sunday School room of the M. E. Church Wednesday evening Nov. 23. Several good speakers have been secured and a profitable evening is promised all who attend.

The Fellowship Dancing club will hold their Thanksgiving Eve dance in Stattermann's hall Wednesday night. The boys are sure of a crowd as their dances are becoming popular with the young folks for miles around. Turkey supper will be served at the Annex hotel.

Charles E. Watt the celebrated pianist and organist of Chicago will entertain in the Methodist church Thanksgiving night. Mr. Watt is one of the best players in Chicago and we are surprised to hear he is coming to Palatine. Admission only 10 and 20c. The church should be crowded.

Corner Stone Laying.

The corner stone of the new $5,000 Masonic hall will be laid next Sunday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies. The members of Palatine Lodge 314 A. F. & M. will meet at their old lodge hall at 2 o'clock p. m. and march to the new building. Worshipful Brother C. D. Taylor, President of the Palatine Lodge Association will request the Grand Officers, who have been deputized, to take charge of the ceremonies. Robert Moser will act as Grand Master and have charge of the program. Judge C. S. Cutting of Austin will act as Grand Orator and Rev. Young as Grand Chaplain, all representing the Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of the State of Illinois. Members from neighboring lodges are expected to attend and it will be a historical period in Palatine's history.

In the scaled box placed in the corner stone will be copies of the Palatine papers, business cards of the merchants, a few copies of the present year's mintage a roster of the lodge and other matter of interest.

Mrs. Nancy Sutherland, Another of Palatine's old pioneers away this week when Mrs. Nancy Sutherland died at her home in this village, Tuesday, Nov. 15, 1904, after an illness of three days of pneumonia. Mrs. Sutherland was born in Meredith, N. H., December 28, 1820.

In the fall of 1838 she came west with her brother-in-law, J. R. Rice, traveling by boat on the lakes to the port of Chicago. From there they came to Deer Grove, locating just north of the present village of Palatine. There she taught school for some time at a salary of $1.00 a week, there being but five or six families in the settlement at that time. It was while there she met and was married to Mason Sutherland, November 29, 1842.

Her husband enlisted in the war of the rebellion, was commissioned captain and died of typhoid fever at Young's Point, Miss., during the siege of Vicksburg, January 27, 1863.

To them were born six children, three of whom survive them, Mrs. Emma Matthei, Edward H., and Dr. C. M. Sutherland.

Mrs. Sutherland was an exceedingly courteous, generous and kind lady, one whom it was always a pleasure to meet. Of her younger life we have heard only good words, and in her ripe old age she maintained a lovely spirit. Although somewhat crippled by old age she was always active in mind and body.

Funeral services were held at the home this Friday afternoon, Rev. W. H. Smith of Park Ridge preaching the funeral sermon.

RUMORS ARE RIFE

Regarding Future of the Factory Plant at Chicago Highlands.

For months past rumors have been flying about thick and fast regarding the future of the big manufacturing plant at Chicago Highlands, formerly operated by the American Malleable Iron company. According to some of the reports the plant had been leased for a term of years to the American Car Equipment company of Chicago.

Another rumor was to the effect that a large corporation for the manufacture of wagons had secured a lease of the buildings and would remodel the plant to suit its wants.

Again it was said that the Gould Foundry company of Chicago had secured control of the property and "if Roosevelt was reelected would start the furnaces at once." Other rumors are afloat, none of which can be verified as containing an atom of truth.

For a year the Highlands Association, owners of the property, have advertised the plant for rent or sale, but up to the present time nothing satisfactory has developed.

The Association now is under a different management, Lewis Miller, who has been general manager since the syndicate was formed, having retired from that position.

It is hoped that some arrangement may be made whereby the extensive and well-equipped foundry plant on the Association's property will be re-opened. The business interests of the community are greatly interested in the property values at the Highlands increase rapidly.

HARVEST HOME RECEPTION

Tendered by the Ladies of the Thursday Club to Their Husbands.

"The Harvest Home" given by the ladies of the Thursday Club, in honor of their husbands was the first reception of the season. The spacious house of Mrs. Sanford Peck given for the occasion was appropriately decorated with corn, pumpkins, millet and apples.

One of the most original and the most laudable producing numbers on the program was the "Sun Flower Song," an original poem written by Mrs. Minnie Hawley set to music and sung by Mrs. Welch, Mrs. Powers, Mrs. Minnie Hawley, Mrs. Cullen and Mrs. Shipman, continued to represent a "Sun Flower." A reply sung by Philipp Hawley was a surprise to the ladies entertaining the answer having been written by Mr. Peck.

The gun modeling contest was won by Attorney Roy Peck with Dr. Welch's a close second. The nail driving contest was won by Mrs. Minnie Hawley and the needle threading contest by Dr. Welch's each receiving an appropriate prize.

The menu was printed on husks taken from ears of corn and was unique each guest being presented with one as a souvenir. The supper was in full accord with the "Harvest Home" and was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The gentlemen voted approval and lingered with their wives until a late hour enjoying the occasion.

Not a Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bates of Freeport, N. C., writes Oct. 20c at Geo. C. Roberts & Co., drugists.

Thanksgiving Day Morning On the Farm

IF there's won't thing morn's
As makes a chap feel kinder good,
It is Thanksgiving day!
For even if he's had hard luck
An' things ha'n't bin jes' right
There's lots o' folks has had it, too.
From mornin' 'till night,
An' 'w'en we kinder reckon up
Our pleasures with our pain
An' take the bull year 'round an' then
We surely can't complain!
We've had good health, snuff ter eat,
An' clothes enuff ter wear,
An' money there's a turkey left
'W'en Thanksgiving day's near,
An' then, thank God, the rent is paid,
The houses they've got hay,
The cattle ha'n't got no disease,
There's no old scores to pay!

THE TURKEY A LOOK AROUND.

This mornin' my old gal an' me
Jes' took a look around.

The same as we've done ev'ry year
Jes' took a look around.

Fore snow lays on the groun'
Ses I "There's Mister Gobbler there

A-struttin' round so gay,
But mebbe he'll forget ter strut

When 'tween Thanksgiving day."

Eggs it made me feel as proud
As any millionaire,

As Bess an' me walked round the farm
An' 'tuck the mornin' air!

I know her old heart jes' felt glad
For Fiskin's foot on Jim

A-comin' with his new made wife
Ter singin' Thanksgiving hymn.

An' so, altho' we ha'n't got rich,
We'll thank the Lord an' say,

For what we've, Almighty God,
We give these thanks this day.

The Democratic Outlook.

In many cases, alliance between Socialists, Populists and Hydrants is on the carpet. It is this prospect which makes the sweeping Republican victory ominous, says the New York Post.

Unless the conservative Democratic leaders far and near are prepared to keep up the fight there is serious danger that their party will once more become a grave menace, not merely to the business interests of the country, but to its social order and to the rights of property.

Already the cry is raised that the railroads must be nationalized. Mr. Bryan himself has declared for the ownership of the railroads by the individual states. If either plan should succeed there would not be lacking advocates of the nationalization of the telegraphs, telephones and the coal mines.

Republicans Hold Love Feast.

In order that the great victory won in the recent national, state and county election might be properly celebrated, Chas. W. Whitney and Secretary Morrow of the Lake County Republican committee invited the members of that committee and the township committees to assemble at Waukegan Thursday for a "love feast."

Congressman Foss, representatives of the republican press of Lake county and a few invited guests were also present.

The meeting was held in the court house at noon. The new districts were given representation on the central committee and vacancies filled. Resolutions were adopted favoring the new primary law as outlined by Governor-elect Deneen, and requesting the state senator-elect from this district to give his support for the adoption of such a measure.

After the business was transacted those present retired to the basement of the Methodist church where an elaborate dinner was served. Covers were laid for sixty persons.

After the banquet Chairman Whitney called upon Congressman Foss to state what he knew of landholders. The congressman responded in an able manner and gave some valuable information on important questions of the hour. He also said that increased power meant increased responsibility. However, he believed the republican party was able to show that the increased responsibility was not misplaced, and that it would be able to handle the important questions which are before the American people today in such a manner as to meet with their approval.

Rev. A. Whipple, Geo. R. Lyon, Senator A. N. Tiffany, A. A. Dunn, Judge Jones and M. T. Lamey responded to toasts.

PRICE OF TURKEYS

Is Placed Out of Reach of the "Common People."

The individual who can afford to have a luscious turkey served for the Thanksgiving dinner will be fortunate. If he has raised a bird himself he can laugh at his neighbor. If he wishes to purchase one he will have to give back references to show that he has sufficient funds on deposit to pay for the coveted bird before the marketman will enter his order.

Prices for the royal bird—young or old—have soared out of reach of the masses. Dealers say that never in the history of the American festival known as Thanksgiving was the price of the turkey so expensive as this year of pronounced prosperity. The retail rate will be, it is said 22c to 24c per pound.

After the quadrennial election for the presidency and governorship the thoughts of the masses turn to that day of feasting—Thanksgiving. They will not find that the great popular victory of Theodore Roosevelt and Charles S. Deneen in Illinois has helped anything in cheapening the price of the Thanksgiving turkey. On the contrary, it would appear as if the great "landslide" had an influence in booming turkey meat as well as the stock market.

There is one satisfaction, however, cranberries are cheaper. Potatoes and other vegetables are plentiful and also cheap compared with some years past. The beef trust has let up a little on prices, while chicken, duck and other fowl may be had at prices within the reach of the working classes.

SHOOTING AFFRAY AT BARTLETT

Wm. Pollworth Shoots and Fatally Wounds Conrad Broxmenn.

William Pollworth, 22 years old and an ex-convict, shot and fatally wounded Conrad Broxmenn, at Bartlett yesterday noon.

Pollman was recently released from the Joliet penitentiary where he had served a term for attempted murder.

For the crime committed yesterday there was no motive, except an imaginary grievance. Pollworth admitted the shooting and said: "I don't know why I did it. I had no object in shooting Broxmenn. It was some power I could not resist which made me want to kill him. I fought the power for weeks and finally gave away to it."

Broxmenn, the victim, cannot recover. He was engaged in the butcher business, married and the father of eight children.

What it Cost.

A merchant in a neighboring town states that the cost of last year's cost him 54 cents for every $100 worth of goods sold. He used half a page for his business announcement each week and says that as long as people read newspapers he will advertise.

There's a man possessed of a good head, just as soon as merchants begin to look upon advertising as a branch of business which requires as much care as any part of it, then will advertising pay. Honesty, force, originality and persistency in advertising makes a paying investment.

Doesn't Respect Old Age.

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. King's New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age.

WAUCONDA MENTION.

Succinctly Told by Our Regular Correspondent.

For coat season.
Do your duty on "Turkey" Day.

The campaign is over. Pay your election bets.
Mrs. L. E. Burdick was a Chicago visitor Monday.

Dr. J. L. Hobbs is on the sick list at present writing.

Harry Riley, of Chicago, spent the first of the week with friends here.

J. H. Miller, of McHenry, was a business caller in our village Tuesday.

Messrs. Geo. Glynn and H. T. Fuller transacted business in the city Monday.

Mrs. C. B. George, of Waukegan, is spending the week at the home of Dr. C. W. Sowles.

Miss Grace Cross, of Rockford, spent Saturday and Sunday with her father Rev. W. A. Cross.

Mrs. E. Senior, visited at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Luettich at Waukegan last week.

Miss Lucy Sowles returned recently after spending about three months visiting relatives in New York.

Wm. Tidmarsh left for Sandy Hill, New York, Wednesday, where he will spend the winter with his sons.

Mrs. Jas. Welsh and daughter, Miss Emma, visited with relatives and friends in the city Saturday and Sunday.

The Niagara Fire Department will give their annual ball in the Oakland hall, Friday evening, Dec. 9th. Good music has been engaged and a good time is assured.

The people of the M. E. church have installed a "Lawn Bros." Acetylene gas plant to light the church and parsonage. The plant was given its first test last Sunday evening and is pronounced entirely satisfactory.

The funeral of Thomas Moore, who died at Volo, Saturday evening, was held from the M. E. church Monday afternoon, Rev. Cross officiating and interment in the Wauconda cemetery.

Mr. Moore was one of Volo's old settlers and was very much esteemed by his countless friends a goodly number of whom were present to pay their last respects to him.

Willing to Sacrifice.

A lady residing in what some of our citizens term "the aristocratic quarter" of this village, advertised for a domestic some time ago. One of that class applied at Kenilworth-on-the-North Shore thought she would like to make a change to Barrington, and wrote to inquire about the situation.

She wanted to know as to conveniences, number of rooms, method of heating and lighting house; number of children in family; hours of meals, etc.

The lady wanted a servant and she wanted one bad. Her husband told her that the girl "evidently wore the Union garment," meaning that she belonged to a union.

"I don't care what kind of clothes she wears," replied the wife, "I am willing to sacrifice to get her," and she wrote as follows:

"In reply to your letter of inquiry. The house has eight rooms, but we can shut up one or two or if you wish can build on one or two. We have furnace heat and electric light but could easily change to some other system. Three in the family—husband, young daughter and self. Perhaps I might prevail upon my husband to take one of his meals at the chop house lately opened here. We can arrange time of meals to suit you. Never mind if you do wear Union garments. I am willing to sacrifice."

The girl has not put in an appearance as yet.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland of Amos, N. Y., "but we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery."

Our niece, who had consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. Infallible for Coughs and Colds. 50c and $1.00 bottles guaranteed by Geo. C. Roberts & Co., Trial bottles free.

Both accepted the invitation. For some moments after Mr. Hawkins had left no word was spoken between John Burt and James Blake. Each was busy with his thoughts, but John broke the silence.

"When is Miss Carden expected to return?" he asked, quietly.

"I'll try to find out to-night," said Blake, looking his partner full in the eyes. "My head has been so full of stocks that I've thought of nothing else. But I'll know all about it, John, before I meet you and Hawkins at dinner. Perhaps Jessie—no, rather, Miss Carden—is back now. Who knows? This is your lucky day, old fellow, and all kinds of things may happen before midnight. Won't it be great if I went up to the Blakes' house and found her there? Of course I wouldn't say a word to spoil the surprise you have planned. Well, I must be going. Hope I'll have good news for you when I see you later."

Early in the evening Blake rang the bell of the Bishop mansion, and was greeted by General Carden.

"It is a pleasure, General Carden, to tender you this check, which represents your share of the profits. Don't say a word of thanks to me, for I do not desire any credit. Is Miss Carden at home, and may I see her for a moment?"

"She will be delighted to see you. I will call her."

The general disappeared, and James Blake lay back in his chair, with his eyes fixed on the portrait of Jessie Carden.

He heard the faint rustle of a garment and turned to see Jessie Carden as she entered the room. A tender light glowed in her brown eyes, but there was something wistful in the smile; a blending of happiness, restraint and pity. The eyes dropped for a moment as they met his, and then, but her voice was clear and as she offered her hand and said:

"You have made this the happiest day of our lives, Mr. Blake. I don't know what to say."

"Not another word," interrupted James Blake. "You must not thank me. Please don't, Jessie. It's the only favor I ask."

"Why not?"

"The parted lips and questioning eyes were eloquent with surprise. "Because I don't know how to say it," he said, releasing the little hand. "His heart beat fast as he gazed into his face, but in that moment he gained the final victory. He did not remember the pain of wounded passion remained."

Less than a day had passed since he had resolved to surrender all hope for the love of Jessie Carden. Why had he done so? James Blake could not answer that question. He had not calmly weighed his chances of success against those of failure.

Like a flash it dawned upon him that he could not—that he must not—be loyal to John Burt. He did not reason it out—it was told to him in that voiceless, wordless language which has no name or key.

"You must make up your mind," he said, "that your father is under the slightest obligations to me. On the contrary, our firm is indebted to him. The stock which he has sold to me is the only thing that has saved us. Without it we could have done nothing. We have simply been able to verify the general's confidence in his value, and he is the one to be congratulated on the outcome."

"I don't believe a word you say," replied Jessie Carden, laughing. "I'm not so stupid about these Wall Street affairs as you imagine. I have not been for you, Mr. Morris would have defrauded you out of all his property."

"Speaking of Morris reminds me of something which has often occurred to me," said Blake, changing the subject. "It's about that portrait. The first time I ever met Arthur Morris I saw your portrait in his library room. It has always puzzled me. Some time I'll tell you why."

"My portrait in Mr. Morris' room?" exclaimed Jessie, in a voice quivering to her cheeks. "Surely you are jesting, Mr. Blake!"

"It was probably a very, though he told me it was the or 'real' portrait of him in Berlin, and that you resembled it. I saw this one first came here I saw this one thought it a remarkable coincidence."

"There is no mystery about it," said Jessie, her eyes flashing with anger. "Mr. Morris saw fit to take advantage of your bankruptcy, which gave him possession of our Boston residence. This portrait hung on its walls, and he doubtless had a copy made from it. This is consistent with other acts from which we have suffered at his hands."

"The portrait parted and Edith Hancock entered the room. Her eyes rested first on Blake and then on Jessie.

"Pardon this intrusion," she said. "There was a tremor in the voice, but a proud flash of the lovely eyes as Edith bowed slightly, and, brushing the portieres aside, left the room.

"Don't go, Edith!" cried Jessie. "There was no response, and Jessie was too wise to follow her fair cousin. For some moments no words were spoken.

Morris pushed his way through the crowd and was followed by young Kingsley. Not until he was within a few feet of Blake did he recognize his rival. Though anxious to avoid a meeting, Blake scorned to retreat or to turn his back.

Morris stood squarely in front of him. His lips parted in a smile, and his fingers toyed with a small walking stick. Blake leaned carelessly against a marble column, his eyes fixed on the other man. He had been in a Western mining camp his fingers would have reached for the feel of a gun, but in a metropolitan hotel he had no sense of danger. The incident was trivial, but disagreeable.

"Lend me a thousand, Blake," demanded Morris.

A whisper passed around the room and many turned to watch these two men, whose names had filled the public prints the day before.

"Certainly," said Blake, a strange smile lighting up his handsome face. "Is a thousand enough, Morris?"

Blake took a note from his inner pocket and handed Morris a bill.

"And a match," ordered Morris, advancing a step nearer.

a moment he was the careless, happy Blake, chatting lightly on trivial subjects.

"I must keep an engagement," he said, looking at his watch. "A friend of mine is here from California, and I'm to take dinner with him. He's a very good fellow, rich, handsome, cultivated, and—everything which a good fellow should be. I'd like to introduce him. May I call with him to-morrow evening?"

"Any friend of yours is welcome, especially a paragon with such bewitching attractions," laughed Jessie, good-bye, until to-morrow evening."

CHAPTER XXXII.

Through the heart.

It lacked several minutes of the hour fixed for dinner when Blake strolled through the hotel safe and thence into the lobby. The babble of voices, the gesticulations and the nervous energy which pervaded the atmosphere were not in harmony with Blake's feelings.

"Jessie was afraid I was going to say something to-night, and so she told me," he said to himself, as he mused, throwing away a half-smoked cigar. "Dear old John! Lucky old John! Hello, what's the row? That sounds like Morris! I suppose he's drunk. If he had a spark of decency he'd be with his father. Here he comes!"

Morris pushed his way through the crowd and was followed by young Kingsley. Not until he was within a few feet of Blake did he recognize his rival. Though anxious to avoid a meeting, Blake scorned to retreat or to turn his back.

Morris stood squarely in front of him. His lips parted in a smile, and his fingers toyed with a small walking stick. Blake leaned carelessly against a marble column, his eyes fixed on the other man. He had been in a Western mining camp his fingers would have reached for the feel of a gun, but in a metropolitan hotel he had no sense of danger. The incident was trivial, but disagreeable.

"Lend me a thousand, Blake," demanded Morris.

A whisper passed around the room and many turned to watch these two men, whose names had filled the public prints the day before.

"Certainly," said Blake, a strange smile lighting up his handsome face. "Is a thousand enough, Morris?"

Blake took a note from his inner pocket and handed Morris a bill.

"And a match," ordered Morris, advancing a step nearer.

Ice Made in Open Air.

Dr. Wells, a London physician, in 1818, in his published essay on dew, was the first to draw attention to the curious artificial production of ice in India. Shallow pits are dug, which are partially filled with cow dung straw; on the straw board, flat pans containing water are exposed to the clear sky. The water, being a wonderful radiator, sends off its heat abundantly into space.

The heat thus lost cannot be replaced from the earth, for this source is excluded by the straw. Before sunrise a cake of ice is formed in each vessel. To produce this ice in quantities clear nights are advantageous, and particularly those on which practically no dew falls.

Should the straw get wet, it becomes more matted and compact, and consequently a better conductor of heat, for the vapor acts as a screen over the pans, checks the cold, and retards freezing.—Pearson's Weekly.

Indians of Jewish Strain.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie had an idea that the Indians of the far Northwest were partly Jewish. In 1791 he set out at the head of an expedition "in a birch-bark canoe, 25 feet long, 4½ feet beam and 2½ inches hold, with 2,000 pounds of baggage and provision and a crew of nine French Canadians." He reached the Pacific coast and named the "Liberation" his vessel. "For the most part possessed of strongly religious instincts," said he in his report. "With regard to their origin all are prepared to admit, after a careful survey of their languages, manners and customs, is that they are undoubtedly of a mixed origin, come from the North-Northwest and had commerce in their early history, perhaps, through intermarriage with people of Jewish persuasion or origin."

Had Fun With the Umpire.

William Hayes acted as umpire at a ball game near Washington, Pa., last week. He was so much amused by the play to give himself satisfaction. Toward the close of the game he gave one decision which evidently gave great pain to the players on both sides. Half a dozen of them seized and carried him to a nearby river and tossed him in. Umpire Hayes scrambled out in a hurry, whereupon the indignant athletes threw him back and held him under water until he was nearly drowned. Then they rolled him on a beer keg, until he recovered, when they volunteered the information that he was not cut out for an umpire. On reflection Mr. Hayes is prepared to agree with the idea. However, he means to use a dozen of his assailants.

German Express Studies Medicine.

One of the most studious Germans in Europe is the German express, who carries very little indeed for pomp and ceremony. Her majesty's favorite study is medicine and she has instructed herself so well in the art of healing that she is regarded as quite an efficient adviser in cases of ordinary illness.

Dis of Blood Poison.

Robert Hoebler of Cowden died of blood poison, resulting from an injury sustained in a runaway accident. He was 45 years of age, and leaves a widow and three children.

Corn Show at Taylorville.

A corn show will be given at the army at Taylorville, Ill., 6 to 8 p.m. The Christian County Farmers' association.

Man Hunt Falls.

The "man hunt" on Rochester road for the lone highwayman who has been terrorizing the farmers has been unproductive.

City Marshal is Fined.

City Marshal Michael Alberts was fined $20 and costs at Belleville by Judge Burroughs on conviction of having attacked a prisoner with a deadly weapon.

Centralia Coal Output.

Since the settlement of the strike the coal mines at Centralia are holding 2,000 tons per day, most of which is used by the Illinois Central railroad.

Man Hunt Falls.

HUNGRY YOUTH HAS BREAKFAST

Policeman's Offer to Settle Is Refused by Restaurant Man.

After spending thirty hours without food, while making a fruitless search for work in Chicago, Paul Schaefer, 15 year old, stole a breakfast from S. Rothschild, a restaurant keeper. Policeman James Meyers, who after a chase, arrested the boy, offered to pay the bill, 20 cents, but Rothschild is said to have refused. Schaefer arrived in Chicago from Kansas City penniless, and hungry. He spent the entire day searching for work. He left a farm near Kansas City in the hope that he might secure employment in Chicago. At night, neither food nor money had been secured, and he slept in a box in an alley. Next day he again attempted to find employment, but with the same result. At last, in desperation, he entered Rothschild's restaurant, and ordered a breakfast.

QUAIL HUNTER LOSES HIS LEG

Surgeon Orders to Amputation in Endeavor to Save Life.

In an effort to save the life of Albert Blome of Belleville, who was accidentally shot in the calves of both legs, near Summerville, by George Krug, a West Belleville saloonist, while the two were quail hunting, Dr. A. M. Kohl amputated the right leg at the hip. Blome was very weak after the operation, and but slight hope for his recovery is held. At the time of the accident Krug was on the opposite side of a small ravine from Blome, who called him. Krug started across the ravine with the hammer of his gun raised, when the triggers became caught in some shrubbery and the gun discharged, the contents striking Blome's limbs. Blome is a young business man and has a wife and several children.

Vaughan, Dr. Hertel, W. C. Smith, L. M. Keough and Chas. Evans.

Increases Size of Trains.

The Illinois Central has increased the size of the south-bound trains out of Centralia. The tonnage for a loaded train is 1,550 tons, or eighty-five empty cars. The average car measures forty feet from coupling to coupling, making a train of engines 3,400 feet, or nearly three-fourths of a mile long.

His heart, just that as he gazed into her face.

Both accepted the invitation. For some moments after Mr. Hawkins had left no word was spoken between John Burt and James Blake. Each was busy with his thoughts, but John broke the silence.

"When is Miss Carden expected to return?" he asked, quietly.

"I'll try to find out to-night," said Blake, looking his partner full in the eyes. "My head has been so full of stocks that I've thought of nothing else. But I'll know all about it, John, before I meet you and Hawkins at dinner. Perhaps Jessie—no, rather, Miss Carden—is back now. Who knows? This is your lucky day, old fellow, and all kinds of things may happen before midnight. Won't it be great if I went up to the Blakes' house and found her there? Of course I wouldn't say a word to spoil the surprise you have planned. Well, I must be going. Hope I'll have good news for you when I see you later."

Early in the evening Blake rang the bell of the Bishop mansion, and was greeted by General Carden.

"It is a pleasure, General Carden, to tender you this check, which represents your share of the profits. Don't say a word of thanks to me, for I do not desire any credit. Is Miss Carden at home, and may I see her for a moment?"

"She will be delighted to see you. I will call her."

The general disappeared, and James Blake lay back in his chair, with his eyes fixed on the portrait of Jessie Carden.

He heard the faint rustle of a garment and turned to see Jessie Carden as she entered the room. A tender light glowed in her brown eyes, but there was something wistful in the smile; a blending of happiness, restraint and pity. The eyes dropped for a moment as they met his, and then, but her voice was clear and as she offered her hand and said:

"You have made this the happiest day of our lives, Mr. Blake. I don't know what to say."

"Not another word," interrupted James Blake. "You must not thank me. Please don't, Jessie. It's the only favor I ask."

"Why not?"

"The parted lips and questioning eyes were eloquent with surprise. "Because I don't know how to say it," he said, releasing the little hand. "His heart beat fast as he gazed into his face, but in that moment he gained the final victory. He did not remember the pain of wounded passion remained."

Less than a day had passed since he had resolved to surrender all hope for the love of Jessie Carden. Why had he done so? James Blake could not answer that question. He had not calmly weighed his chances of success against those of failure.

Like a flash it dawned upon him that he could not—that he must not—be loyal to John Burt. He did not reason it out—it was told to him in that voiceless, wordless language which has no name or key.

"You must make up your mind," he said, "that your father is under the slightest obligations to me. On the contrary, our firm is indebted to him. The stock which he has sold to me is the only thing that has saved us. Without it we could have done nothing. We have simply been able to verify the general's confidence in his value, and he is the one to be congratulated on the outcome."

a moment he was the careless, happy Blake, chatting lightly on trivial subjects.

"I must keep an engagement," he said, looking at his watch. "A friend of mine is here from California, and I'm to take dinner with him. He's a very good fellow, rich, handsome, cultivated, and—everything which a good fellow should be. I'd like to introduce him. May I call with him to-morrow evening?"

"Any friend of yours is welcome, especially a paragon with such bewitching attractions," laughed Jessie, good-bye, until to-morrow evening."

CHAPTER XXXII.

Through the heart.

It lacked several minutes of the hour fixed for dinner when Blake strolled through the hotel safe and thence into the lobby. The babble of voices, the gesticulations and the nervous energy which pervaded the atmosphere were not in harmony with Blake's feelings.

"Jessie was afraid I was going to say something to-night, and so she told me," he said to himself, as he mused, throwing away a half-smoked cigar. "Dear old John! Lucky old John! Hello, what's the row? That sounds like Morris! I suppose he's drunk. If he had a spark of decency he'd be with his father. Here he comes!"

Morris pushed his way through the crowd and was followed by young Kingsley. Not until he was within a few feet of Blake did he recognize his rival. Though anxious to avoid a meeting, Blake scorned to retreat or to turn his back.

Morris stood squarely in front of him. His lips parted in a smile, and his fingers toyed with a small walking stick. Blake leaned carelessly against a marble column, his eyes fixed on the other man. He had been in a Western mining camp his fingers would have reached for the feel of a gun, but in a metropolitan hotel he had no sense of danger. The incident was trivial, but disagreeable.

"Lend me a thousand, Blake," demanded Morris.

A whisper passed around the room and many turned to watch these two men, whose names had filled the public prints the day before.

"Certainly," said Blake, a strange smile lighting up his handsome face. "Is a thousand enough, Morris?"

Blake took a note from his inner pocket and handed Morris a bill.

"And a match," ordered Morris, advancing a step nearer.

Ice Made in Open Air.

Dr. Wells, a London physician, in 1818, in his published essay on dew, was the first to draw attention to the curious artificial production of ice in India. Shallow pits are dug, which are partially filled with cow dung straw; on the straw board, flat pans containing water are exposed to the clear sky. The water, being a wonderful radiator, sends off its heat abundantly into space.

The heat thus lost cannot be replaced from the earth, for this source is excluded by the straw. Before sunrise a cake of ice is formed in each vessel. To produce this ice in quantities clear nights are advantageous, and particularly those on which practically no dew falls.

Should the straw get wet, it becomes more matted and compact, and consequently a better conductor of heat, for the vapor acts as a screen over the pans, checks the cold, and retards freezing.—Pearson's Weekly.

Indians of Jewish Strain.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie had an idea that the Indians of the far Northwest were partly Jewish. In 1791 he set out at the head of an expedition "in a birch-bark canoe, 25 feet long, 4½ feet beam and 2½ inches hold, with 2,000 pounds of baggage and provision and a crew of nine French Canadians." He reached the Pacific coast and named the "Liberation" his vessel. "For the most part possessed of strongly religious instincts," said he in his report. "With regard to their origin all are prepared to admit, after a careful survey of their languages, manners and customs, is that they are undoubtedly of a mixed origin, come from the North-Northwest and had commerce in their early history, perhaps, through intermarriage with people of Jewish persuasion or origin."

Had Fun With the Umpire.

William Hayes acted as umpire at a ball game near Washington, Pa., last week. He was so much amused by the play to give himself satisfaction. Toward the close of the game he gave one decision which evidently gave great pain to the players on both sides. Half a dozen of them seized and carried him to a nearby river and tossed him in. Umpire Hayes scrambled out in a hurry, whereupon the indignant athletes threw him back and held him under water until he was nearly drowned. Then they rolled him on a beer keg, until he recovered, when they volunteered the information that he was not cut out for an umpire. On reflection Mr. Hayes is prepared to agree with the idea. However, he means to use a dozen of his assailants.

German Express Studies Medicine.

One of the most studious Germans in Europe is the German express, who carries very little indeed for pomp and ceremony. Her majesty's favorite study is medicine and she has instructed herself so well in the art of healing that she is regarded as quite an efficient adviser in cases of ordinary illness.

RAILROADS TO REPAIR BRIDGE

Alton Structure, Damaged by Floods, Is to Be Put in Good Shape.

The ten railroad owning the Alton bridge property have awarded a contract to the Illinois Terminal Railway company to make repairs of the tracks of the company leading from the Missouri end of the bridge to West Alton, which were washed out in 1903 by high water and, pending the sale of the bridge, were not repaired. Work will be started at once, in order to get the tracks in readiness for use in the shortest time possible. Only one of the double tracks will be rebuilt before spring. The earth to make the fill will be hauled from near Cotter's station, on the Illinois Terminal, where a short line is being built from Cotter to the Clover Leaf road. Extensive rework will be made to the approach, which is in bad condition. On Dec. 1 an arrangement will go into effect whereby the Clover Leaf will be the first to make extensive use of the Alton bridge property.

No Freight Car Shortage.

Telegrams from all the east reporting a shortage in cars on all trunk lines are denied by railroad men at Chicago. The Baltimore & Ohio reports freight moving freely in both ways. The Freight Superintendent Judson of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy said it was true that many freight cars were tied up just now because of the heavy grain trade, but that the national election, and cars were not yet unloaded. "The Illinois Central railroad has plenty of freight cars and we happen to know that the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific is similarly favored," said Asalet Freight Agent Garbrie. The Chicago & Northwestern has plenty of freight cars.

Burlington Man Weds.

Miss Lillian Ruth Pierce, daughter of John H. Pierce, president of the Illinois State Manufacturers' association, was married at Keosauqua to Robert Rice, assistant superintendent of the Galesburg division of the Burlington. Three hundred guests attended. After a month's visit in California, the couple will be at home in Galesburg.

On Eight-Hour Basis.

The Illinois Central shop force at Centralia has been put on the eight-hour basis. It has been the custom of the company at this season in four years to shorten the hours and reduce the force, but there is so much work in hand it is not likely that any men will be laid off this year.

Narrowly Escapes Death.

Section Foreman Pat McCarthy had a miraculous escape from death at Pana. In avoiding one train he stopped in front of another, which was backing up at a lively rate. He was thrown into the air about fifteen feet, falling just outside of the track and was not badly hurt.

Restaurant Man Seeks Relief.

George W. Gutwiler, restaurant keeper of Springfield, has filed a bankruptcy petition, and gives his liabilities as $1,455 and his assets as $160. He formerly did a flourishing business.

Danville Grocer Bankrupt.

Irving Carter, a grocer of Danville, has filed his petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court at Springfield. He says he owes $2,985 and has assets amounting to $152.

Speculate in Turkey.

Alton dealers say that all of the trucks in the surrounding country are being bought up, and that a very firm market will have been established before Thanksgiving day.

Miners Adjust Trouble.

Two hundred miners who have been on a strike at the Peabody Coal company's mine at Pawnee, have entered into an agreement with the operators and resumed work.

Pays Fine for Trespass.

The Quincey Hunting and Fishing club caused the arrest of Charles Schwigler for trespassing on the club grounds. He was fined $3 and costs.

Macon County Poultry Show.

The members of the Macon County Poultry and Pet Stock association have made plans to hold a fair and exhibition in Decatur Dec. 12 to 17.

Nine-Foot Coal Veins.

Coal has been struck at both the new shafts of Ward and Eaton and Forester at Duquoin at a depth of 400 feet. The veins are about 8 feet thick—nine feet—and of fine quality.

Letter to Childhood Friend Leads to Happy Family Reunion.

Florence Ball, who was recently taken from her foster mother, Mrs. William Ball of North Alton, because of inhuman treatment, to which Mrs. Ball pleaded guilty when charged in the police court by the humane society, has discovered that she is really Mrs. Denton, and that her uncle and mother are living. The girl has been taken possession of by her uncle, Samuel Ornelias of Jacksonville. She believed that she has been spending her life in an orphanage. After being taken from the Ball family the girl thought she could remember the name of a childhood acquaintance in Jacksonville, she had the name wrong, but a letter she wrote was properly delivered and the friend remembered who she was and turned the letter over to the girl's uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ornelias lost no time in hurrying to Alton and in taking the girl to their home in Jacksonville. Mr. Ornelias is comfortably situated and says that she has been spending large sums of money for five years trying to locate the missing children of his sister, Mrs. Denton, whom he has placed in a hospital at Peoria. Mr. Ornelias says he is more determined than ever to find the boy, of whom all trace has been lost.

Dedicate Society Hall.

Fraternity hall, one of the best structures of its kind in the section, devoted exclusively to the various fraternal societies of Mankana, has been dedicated, with appropriate ceremony. Addressed were delivered by D. L. Lence, Mrs. Edna L. Robert, Mrs. Margaret R. Ford of Great Springs and Frank Hopkins. The oration was delivered by Rev. J. N. Edmundson of Jonesboro.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

According to crop reports from Europe, the harvests in France, Austria-Hungary and Italy show the effects of the drought or extreme heat. In Austria-Hungary the wheat and rye crops are below the average. Oats and straw are bad, but hay good. Italy's corn crop is generally below the average and in some districts only one-fourth of last year's yield. In France, where heat prevailed during the growing season, the wheat crop averages well and is of excellent quality, but oats are not remarkable, and the later cuttings of fodder are bad. In Russia the fodder crop is bad, and the wheat crop varies from good to satisfactory. The world over the wheat crop runs from "very good" to "very bad" in different countries.

The late Episcopal general convention passed a constitutional amendment permitting special forms of service at special cases. It is thought that many Lutheran bodies may be brought over to the Episcopal church by this concession. The Episcopal authorities are working for a union of the two churches. There are five general bodies of Lutherans in America, besides sixteen independent synods and many independent congregations. A general movement of Lutherans to the Episcopal ranks is not probable, but many of the independent synods and congregations may unite in order to strengthen church affiliations.

If we cannot all enjoy a season of grand opera it is pleasant to know that some of our favored countrymen and countrywomen can. The American musical circuit asserts that this country will have more first class artists on the boards the coming winter than will be heard in the great music centers of Europe, notably Berlin. Of course it is American cash that does the business, but it is a step in advance to be certain of getting good music for good money.

The new Russian railroad around Lake Baikal is a triumph of engineering. The section along the lake is mountainous, the rocks in some places extending into the lake. On this strip of fifty miles there are thirty-two tunnels and 210 bridges and viaducts. The construction of this line was the most expensive bit of railroad work ever undertaken in Russia.

England is agitated over the discovery that emigration of her sturdy native stock to the United States is increasing and that her pressure in crowded cities is not relieved thereby, because of an influx of aliens from eastern Europe of a class not desirable.

Punishment by Demand.

A conspicuous case of international demand for the punishment of violation of neutrality at sea was that made by Brazil of the United States government in 1864, when the Federal gunboat Wachusett attacked the Confederate cruiser Florida at Bahia. A Brazilian corvet took station between the belligerents to enforce neutrality, but the captain of the Wachusett, under pretense of an accident, ran his ship past the corvet at night and with a full head of steam on, crashed into the Florida. Finding that the cruiser did not sink, he opened fire and caused her to surrender. The emperor of Brazil immediately demanded reparation, the captain was court-martialed, and the United States consul at Bahia, who had advised the outrage, was summarily dismissed. Furthermore, the Brazilian flag was saluted at the scene of the attack, the captured crew released, and the cruiser would have been surrendered to the Confederacy but for the fact that she had been accidentally sunk in Hampton Roads, where she was held as a prize of war.

A Badly Battered Warship.

The effect of big gun fire upon modern warships was seen in the case of the Russian vessel Askold in the battle of Port Arthur. The Askold led the sortie from Port Arthur Aug. 10, and although shells were rained upon the vessel, she was able to pierce the lines of the enemy without excessive damage. Then a struggle ensued between the two fleets up to the time when each vessel of the Russian fleet looked to its own safety and tried to escape. The Askold was pursued by the cruiser Kamakura and a gunboat, but she was unable to shake off her pursuers and reached Shanghai, at which port she was placed in dry dock. It was then seen that the ship was as full of holes as a sieve. On the starboard side there were wrenched away a portion of her side six feet in diameter above the water line, the hole having been plugged with mattresses, barrels or whatever lay at hand. Two of the funnels were held in place by a thin sheet of metal, while the rest of the poop was nothing but a mass of broken, dislodged and hanging pieces of iron. In the interior of the vessel the bursting shells had transformed everything into a mass of ruin, four boilers were irregularly damaged, one of the great cannon was twisted as if it had been a straw and its shield destroyed. The battle casualties among the crew was slight, only twelve killed and forty wounded.

The current year gives weather students food for speculation. The vagaries of the past twelve months upon some of the old axioms, especially that "an early winter means an early spring" and that "a cold winter means a warm summer." Cold set in early last year and was intense as well as prolonged. The summer was only moderately warm. It is said that cold, heat, rainfall and snow maintain an average year by year. If the sun has to keep up an average in heat distribution the coming winter should be moderate. At any rate, there ought to be a store of heat due to this globe, for its average has not been delivered.

A "hospital car" attached to each through passenger train, with attendants trained in giving first aid to the injured, is the device one great railroad adopts to measure a timid public in these days of frequent accidents. For people taking travel by rail and for the friends left behind this plan has its good points. But people merely anticipating a pleasure trip may take second thought at sight of the ambulance attached and stay at home.

Belligerents and Neutrals at Sea. There are so many knots in the neutrality laws, which are rather a set of customs and precedents than a code of specific enactments, that every warship captain would need an international jurist at his elbow if he would avoid infringing upon the rights of neutrals in every emergency. For instance, it is a rule that a belligerent shall not attack the enemy on neutral waters. But sometimes it is extremely difficult to determine just what constitutes an attack in the meaning of that ruling.

It has been held that where two vessels are fighting at open sea and one goes to neutral waters the other may follow up and continue the fight—virtually make attack—under the plea of pressing necessity. A vessel so fleeing from an opponent after showing fight confesses to defeat, and the victor is entitled to his prize. Some interesting points were raised by the action of the neutral yacht Deershound during the famous Kearsarge-Alabama fight. The Alabama formally surrendered to the Kearsarge and, being in a sinking condition, was abandoned by her officers and crew. The Confederate commander, Captain Raphael Semmes, twelve of his officers and some sailors were picked up by the Deershound, sailing under the English flag. Captain Semmes said to the officer of the yacht, "I am now under English colors, and the English flag is a triumph of engineering. The section along the lake is mountainous, the rocks in some places extending into the lake. On this strip of fifty miles there are thirty-two tunnels and 210 bridges and viaducts. The construction of this line was the most expensive bit of railroad work ever undertaken in Russia.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny for a sample free. See that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of the bottle you buy. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409 Pearl St., N. Y. City, and in all drug stores.

sooner you put me, with my officers and men, upon English soil the better." The Deershound at once steamed away for Southampton. The underwriters of the Kearsarge supplied to the commander, Captain Winslow, to be allowed to fire a shot at the Deershound to bring her to, but he declined because he believed that the yacht was simply taking sea room "to come around" and deliver up the Confederates.

The rule is that a neutral ship has no right to rescue the drowning sailors of a belligerent, but it happened in this case that Captain Winslow asked the Deershound to save the Alabama people from drowning. Having taken them on board by Federal authority, it would have been a breach of neutrality toward the Confederate government for the yacht to surrender them. Had the Kearsarge attempted recapture this act would have constituted a double breach of neutrality—first, in attacking an enemy on neutral territory; second, firing upon a neutral flag. Captain Winslow's instincts were chivalric, but his technical judgment was in error and robbed him of the best fruits of his victory. The United States demanded the surrender of the Confederates, but England firmly refused for the reasons above stated.

Japan's Industrial Future. War inevitably changes the face of things, and nowhere is the change felt so keenly as in the nation that exerts itself prodigiously and to which war is a comparatively new experience.

The thankful heart. If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, it might look for them with my eyes and search for them with my clumsy fingers and be unable to detect them, but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how it would draw to itself the most invisible particles by the mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no needles, but let the thankful heart sweep through the day as the magnet feels the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessing, or only the iron in God's day is gold—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Arrival of the Pilgrims.

Two hundred and eighty-four years have passed since the faint line of the Atlantic coast shimmered before the straining eyes of the Puritan forefathers. It was on the 21st day of November, in 1620, the first New England Thanksgiving day, that the Mayflower, with its little company of pilgrims, there were 102—came to anchor at Cape Cod. They had had a stormy voyage of over nine weeks from the time they sailed from Leyden, the "goodly & pleasant city," which had been their resting place near 12 years, to seek "from God a straight way for themselves, for their little ones and for all their substance," and more than once had the small and overladen vessel been threatened with shipwreck.

Dinosaur Wrecks.

Carelessness is responsible for many railway wreck; and some causes are making human wrecks of sufferers from Thrust and Lung troubles. But since the advent of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, even the worst cases can be cured, and hopeless resignation is no longer necessary. Mrs. Lois Craig of Dorchester, Mass., is one of the many whose life was saved by Dr. King's New Discovery. This remedy is guaranteed for all Thrust and Lung diseases by Geo. C. GEORGE SHOT TURKEYS.

A Mighty Hunter Was the Father of His Country.

The following history of the origin of the name "turkey," as applied to the American bird, Meleagris gallopavo, is given in a note by the editor of George Washington's "Journal of a Journey Over the Mountains in 1747-48," where under date of March 20, 1748, may be found this record: "This morning went out and surveyed 500 acres of land and went down to one Michael Stump, on the South Fork of the branch (of the Potomac); on our way shot two wild turkeys."

The wild turkey is the largest and finest of game birds, and, although native to North America, it bears a foreign name from the following circumstances: Specimens of the living bird, as well as its eggs, were sent by the early Jesuit missionaries from America to the old world on Spanish and Portuguese ships, entering Europe through Portugal. It was as yet unknown to the Europeans, and was at first referred to by writers of that period merely as the "Jesuit bird." As it became known the demand for the stranger was supplied chiefly by the "Turkey" where it thrived exceedingly well, and in time it came to be familiarly spoken of as "the turkey." It gradually became time and money to be quite profitable, was recognized as a great addition to the luxuries of the table—Washington Star.

The Thankful Heart.

If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, it might look for them with my eyes and search for them with my clumsy fingers and be unable to detect them, but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how it would draw to itself the most invisible particles by the mere power of attraction! The unthankful heart, like my finger in the sand, discovers no needles, but let the thankful heart sweep through the day as the magnet feels the iron, so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessing, or only the iron in God's day is gold—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The Modest Career.

"Henry, at our next little dinner we won't have any carving done on the table." "Good! That's where I generally do it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A prominent Southern Lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dear Mrs. PINKHAM:—I gratefully compel me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pain in the back and lower limbs, and sleepless nights. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering for me.

After health all I wanted, and cure if possible. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness and gave me my life back. I feel like a new person now. My aches and pains have left me. Life seems so sweet and so good to me, and everything a new pleasure and ease.

My bottle brought me health, and was worth more than months of doctoring. I wish really to do good to others. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick women as your Vegetable Compound. I advise it to my lady friends in need of medical help.

Mrs. A. B. BLANCHARD, 622 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Mrs. PINKHAM:—I have been suffering for several years from backache, dizziness, and irregular periods. I have tried many remedies, but nothing has helped me. I have heard of your Vegetable Compound, and I have decided to try it. I have just received my first bottle, and I am sure it will cure me. I am sure it will cure me.

High-class journalism merits the patronage of the best people, and for this reason The Chicago Evening Post is the one paper that goes into the best homes of Chicago and the suburban towns.

The Evening Post is the only Chicago paper making a feature of suburban news. This high-class paper is read in the best homes of Chicago and the suburbs. The paper is delivered by carrier everywhere for twelve (12) cents a week.

The editor of a country paper recently told his cow to obtain money with which to go to the St. Louis exposition. His wife has announced for sale the household furniture so she may witness the great sights and scenes there.

A study class has been organized among the teachers of the M. E. Sunday School. The first meeting will be held on next Monday evening at the residence of Mr. Geo. Lytle. The study of Japan will be taken up by the members.

Barrington Camp M. W. A. will hold its election of officers at the first meeting in December. It is said that Miles T. Lamey, who has been clerk of the camp for two years has announced that he will not be a candidate for reelection to that position.

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day. While the price of American Turkey will prevent many from enjoying the usual feast off that royalty of the poultry yard, everyone has at least cause to be thankful that the price of codfish remains within reach.

A grade meeting for the county teachers in the vicinity of Barrington was held at the Barrington school building Monday. Assistant Superintendent Farr presided at the meeting. All the rooms were visited during the day but the interest was centered chiefly in the primary and lower grades.

It is surprising how some young men aspire to gain notoriety. We have in mind one who was but little spoken of until recently. Now he sports a diamond, purchased probably from Loftus Bros. on the 22nd week plan, displays it to the best advantage to gain comment. Shoddy aristocracy does not wear well.

People go to the city to purchase goods thinking they can buy them cheaper. Ordinary prices are higher in Chicago than in this village and the only reason a large number of our people go there is because they think they are securing a bargain. Advertising by the home merchant will obliterate that "think."

That the importance of Barrington is acknowledged by the outer world is proven in the fact that Prof. Smith formerly of here says that our election returns were flashed forth by the Daily News search light on Nov. 8 between those of New York and St. Louis and at the same time with the country's largest cities.

A. S. Henderson, who has been the night watchman in this village for a number of years past, has resigned. Mr. Henderson expects to go to Harvard, Ill. where he will make his home and assist his son Bert, who recently purchased a cigar and tobacco store in that city. Mr. Henderson has long been a resident of Barrington and his large array of friends here wish him success and prosperity in his new home.

A concert will be given in the M. E. church on Friday evening Dec. 2nd, under the auspices of the Lend a Hand girls. The program will be given by Miss Florence Chase, vocalist, of Chicago Musical College, assisted by other talent. Miss Chase possesses a cultivated voice of much sweetness and power, and the musical people of Barrington will greatly enjoy hearing her. Tickets for the concert can be procured from the work of the Hand girls next week. Remember the date Dec. 2nd.

Pleasant Afternoon Meeting.
Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 9th, the W. R. C. enjoyed a very pleasant and profitable meeting. The inspector, Mrs. Arps of Palatine, was present to inspect the work of the corps. A new member was admitted. After the session refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

A drawing was made for the W. R. C. quilt and Prof. Ranta proved to be the fortunate possessor.

What He Wants.

Barrington boys of the age of ten or 12 years are just like the general run of boys when it comes to selecting things to satisfy his stomach. One young fellow on the North side has been worrying considerably lately in regard to his Thanksgiving dinner because his mother had informed him "we shall not have guests at Thanksgiving Day, nor make any extra effort for the occasion."

The boy didn't like the arrangement a little bit, and said so more than once. His mother tired of what she termed his "whining about it," and finally told him to make out a menu and she would consider the matter.

The following is what he wants:

Menu for Thanksgiving
First Course.
Pumpkin Pie and Turkey.
Second Course.
Lemon Pie, Turkey Cranberries.
Third Course.
Custard Pie, Apple Pie, Mince Pie, Chocolate Cake, Ice Cream.
Fourth Course.
Pudding, Dessert.

Lacking in Respect.
"I have a great respect for gray hair," said the humorous barber as he raised his eyes from his plate.

"That's very creditable of you, Mr. Jelly," said the landlady.

"But I have no respect," said the humorous barber, "for gray feathers!" And he tapped viciously on the tough fragment of turkey that lay before him.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Up to Date Turkey.

Papa—In what way, Willie?
Willie—Why, it has drumstick drumsticks—New York Times.

No Tabloid Birds.
"There are only three of us in the family," said the customer, "and a five pound turkey for Thanksgiving would be all we could possibly manage."

"You'll have to take a real turkey," briskly replied the dealer. "We don't keep 'em in tabloid form."—Chicago Tribune.
