DRAGGED TO HIS DEATH

Fred Smith, Residing Near Wauconda, the Victim of Runaway Three Year Old Child.

Animal Becomes Unmanageable and Drags Body Over a Long Distance—Found by Wife.

A most terrible death was meted out to Fred Smith, a tenant on the Fletcher farm near Wauconda, last Friday forenoon. The man came to his death while leading a three year old colt about the barnyard. When found his body was badly bruised and had been dragged a long distance into an adjoining field. The strap of the colt's halter was found knotted about the victim's hand.

Mr. Smith had been confined to the house for sometime by illness, and on Friday forenoon went out to the barn to see his stock, leading his favorite colt out for exercise. His absence from the house was not noticed until noon, when the hired man, who had been absent, returned and inquired of Mrs. Smith as to the whereabouts of his employer. Search was at once begun and after looking about the barn and other buildings they went out toward the pasture yard. They heard a dog barking which attracted their attention to the field nearly a mile away. They saw the dog and colt there and started to investigate.

They noted the ground showed that something heavy had been dragged along and following the trail brought them to where the dog stood guard by the side of the dead body of his master. The victim's face was badly battered, showing the marks of the colt's heels, and bruised almost beyond recognition.

Coroner Taylor was summoned and the inquest held Saturday, the jury returning a verdict of death by accident.

Mr. Smith was 40 years of age and leaves behind the wife five children, the oldest being ten years old and the youngest one year.

Will Assume Office January 2th.
Charles S. Deane will be inaugurated governor of Illinois Monday, Jan. 2. Mr. Deane's friends are planning to make his inauguration memorable to the history of the state, as he is the first republican of Chicago to be elected governor of Illinois.

Since 1818 only two Chicago men have sat in the executive chair at Springfield. John L. Beveridge of Cook county was elected lieutenant governor in 1872 and became governor when Richard J. Oglesby was elected to the senate. John P. Altgeld of Chicago was elected governor in 1892 as a democrat.

The Significance of Christmas.

The Chicago Daily News some days ago displayed an amusing cartoon relative to Christmas giving wherein an American father appeared with a lengthy bill to be settled by himself for presents given by his family to one another and friends. He is placing it with national bills likely to be presented to this session of congress and appealing to "Uncle Joe" Cannon, speaker of the House, for jurisdiction against the custom of gift presenting. Underlying the humor of the picture is seen a fact worthy of consideration—the extent to which Christmas giving is being carried and increasing each year is going beyond all reason.

The old sentiment of thinking of the giver and not the gift, is about banished, and the obligations incurred by receiving must be settled by presenting, until the growing list each year of individuals to be remembered is such a tax on the family funds and time and nerves that the holiday season is welcomed with relief.

The spirit pervades all classes not in need, but who dare to stand the criticism hurled at one who refuses to remember others materially at Christmas time.

Children used to be pleased with a few trifles, today they insist for many and expensive things. The question is "Whither are we drifting and where is the end?"

A Frightened Horse.
Ranney like mad down the street dumping the occupants, or a hundred other accidents, are every day occurrences. It behooves everybody to have a reliable Salve hand, and there's none as good as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Burns, Cuts, Sores, Eczema and Piles, disappear quickly under its effect. 25c, at G. C. They know how to punish crime in Iowa. A man who bilked a bank for $250,000 was sent to jail for three months; another man who embezzled $25,000 was given thirty months in the penitentiary, and then a village marshal caught a poor devil stealing a dollar and the district judge soaked the fellow for ten years. Those Iowa people know what to do with a thief all right.

FIGHT FOR A BABY BOY

Dr. Dalton and Wife Separate But Their Troubles Continue and the Law is Invoked.

The Wife Leaves Her Stitzer, Wis., Home, Takes Baby Boy and Hides Him Here.

Is marriage a failure? Dr. Charles C. Dalton of Stitzer, Wis., formerly of Barrington, has tried the experiment for over two years and says there is naught but trouble in married life. His wife Alvin, also a medical practitioner, has indulged deeply in the matrimonial business and after three trials says that marriage (no matter what kind of a man you get) is a gigantic fake.

The Daltons are engaged in a domestic imbroglio and they are not the only characters in the play, a number of Barrington people also being star performers. There are suits, lawyers, deputy sheriffs, a kidnapped baby boy and a prominent Barrington merchant and his wife supporting the principals in this domestic drama.

Dr. Dalton and his wife came to this village early last spring, opened offices in the Lageschulte block and began the practice of their profession. They formerly resided at Sixth Chicago. They were students at the same medical college and soon after graduating from the institution were married. That was over three years ago. All was not serene in the Dalton house, hold from the start. Matters were "patched up" and they got along in an endeavor to do the best they could toward each other. The wife admitted a former matrimonial alliance. A son was born to them and from that day, over a year ago, the wife, so Dr. Dalton alleges, has formed an aversion to him and the child.

A month or so ago Dr. Dalton decided to leave Barrington and located at Stitzer, Grant county, Wis. Mrs. Dalton and boy followed there. Two weeks ago there was a domestic misunderstanding. The husband discovered that his wife had been twice before she plighted her troth to him, that she had children living in the east, whom, the doctor says, she deserted. There was a stormy scene and a separation followed.

Mrs. Dalton left Stitzer in the night taking the infant alone and coming to this village where she found refuge with A. W. Meyer and wife. It is said that Mrs. Dalton reported that her husband had assaulted her and driven her from their home. Thus the husband vigorously denies.

Dr. Dalton at once began a search for his infant son and traced the boy to the residence of A. W. Meyer here. He demanded the child and was told, he says, that he could not take the infant from the custody of Mrs. Meyer without the consent of Mrs. Dalton, whom, Mr. Meyer said, had returned to Stitzer.

Tuesday Dr. Dalton went to Chicago and secured a writ of habeas corpus for service on Mrs. Dalton and citing A. W. Meyer, Samuel Lupofsky and Mrs. Generous to appear and produce the child. Deputy Sheriff Kriebler came here Wednesday to serve the writ on Mrs. Dalton but she eluded service, having been informed by her friends here of the officer's presence in this locality.

It was found Wednesday that the baby had been taken away from the Meyer residence and secreted at the home of J. E. Heise, but it remained there only a short time when it was smuggled out of the village and taken to the hiding place of a mother, reported to be at Dundee.

The case is now dragging along before Judge Clifford. A writ has been issued for the body of the child and until the same is returned nothing can be accomplished except a compromise between husband and wife.

While the parties concerned in aiding the keeping of Mrs. Dalton and the child from the officers of Judge Clifford's court may think they were acting the part of Good Samaritans and performing a very cute trick, they will no doubt discover before the curtain falls on the final act in this domestic drama that it is best to not interfere with the order of a circuit court judge or troubles of a misnamed couple.

The underclothing is of stouter grade material than that of the outer garments, and consists of shirts and drawers for summer and a thick knitted woolen jersey or sweater and pants for winter. The ribbed woolen stockings are made without heels, and warm toe caps are issued in the coldest weather to wear over the stockings to prevent chafing. The soft material like that of a baby's foot wear material like very thick lint, the soft surface being inside. A roll of fine striped flannel of very good quality and about a yard and a half long is issued to be wound round the abdomen and takes the place of a corset band.

The ordinary army boots give the impression of comfort and durability. In general appearance they resemble the boot issued to the British soldier, but
