THE GREAT TRAIN ROBBERY

BY PAUL LEXINGTON FORD, Author of "The Hot Air Sedan" etc.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

Half a day served to see everything in Santa Fe worth looking at, but Mr. Cullen decided to spend the time they had to wait for his other son to join the party. To pass the hours I hunted up some ponies, and we spent three or four long rides up the old Santa Fe trail and to the outlying mountains. Only one incident was other than pleasant and that was my father as we were riding back to our cars on the second afternoon, we had to cross the branch road, where a gang happened to be at work tampering with the rails.

"Since you're interested in road agents, Miss Cullen," I said, "you may like to see one. That fellow standing in this ditch is Jack Druce, who was concerned in the D. & H. G. holdup three years ago."

Miss Cullen looked where I pointed, and seeing a man with a gun, gave a startled jump, and pulled up her pony, evidently supposing that we were about to be attacked. "Shan't we run?" she began, but then checked herself, as she took in the facts of the dress clothes of the gang and the two armed men in uniform. "They are convicts," she asked, and when I nodded, she asked, "How long is he in prison for?"

"Twenty years," I told her. "How harsh that seems!" she said. "How cruel we are to people for a few moments' wrongdoing, which the circumstances may almost have justified!" She checked her pony as we came opposite Druce, and said, "Can you use money?"

"Can I, lady?" said the fellow, leering in an attempt to look amiable. "Wish I had the chance to try."

The guard interrupted by telling her he wasn't permitted to speak to the convicts while out of bounds, and so we had to ride on. All Miss Cullen was able to do was to throw him a little bunch of flowers she had gathered in the mountains. It was literally casting pearls before swine, but the fellow did not seem particularly pleased, and when, late that night, I walked down there with a lantern I found the flowers lying in the ditch. The experience seemed to sadden and distress Miss Cullen very much for the rest of the afternoon, and I kicked myself for having called her attention to the brute, and could have knocked him down for the way he had looked at her. It is curious that I felt thankful at the time that Druce was not holding up a train Miss Cullen was on. It is always the unexpected that happens. If I could have looked into the future, what a strange variation on this thought I should have seen!

The three days went all too quickly, thanks to Miss Cullen, and by the end of that time I began to understand what love really meant to a chap, and how men could come to love each other for it. For a fairly sensible, hard-headed fellow it was pretty quick work, I acknowledge; but let any man have seven years of the life without seeing a woman worth speaking of, and then meet Miss Cullen, and if he didn't do as I did, I wouldn't trust him on the tailboard of a locomotive, for I should put him down as defective both in eyesight and in intellect.

CHAPTER II.

The Holding-Up of Overland No. 3. On the third day a dispatch came from Frederic Cullen telling his father he would join us at Lamoy No. 3 that evening. I at once ordered 97 and 218 coupled to the connecting train, and in an hour we were back on the main line. While waiting for the overland to arrive, Mr. Cullen asked me to do something which, as it later proved to have considerable bearing on the events of that night, is worth mentioning, trivial as it seems. When I had first joined the party, I had given orders for 97 to be kicked in between the main string and their special, so as not to deprive the occupants of 218 of the view from their observation saloon and balcony platform. Mr. Cullen came to me now and asked me to reverse the arrangement and make my car the tail end. I was giving orders for the splitting and kicking in when No. 3 arrived, and thus did not see the greeting of Frederic Cullen and his family. When I joined them, his father told me that the high altitude had knocked his son up so, that he had to be helped from the ordinary sleeper to the special, and had gone to bed immediately. Out West we have to know something of medicine, and my car had its chest of drugs, so I took some tablets and went into his stateroom. Frederic was like his brother in appearance, though not in manner, having a quick, alert way. He was breathing with such difficulty that I was almost tempted to give him nitroglycerine, instead of strychnine, but he said he would be all right as soon as he became accustomed to the rarefied air, quite good-pooling my suggestion that he take No. 2 back to Trinidad; and while I was still urging the train to start, he was giving him the vials of digitalis and strychnine, therefore, I went back and dined alone on my own car, indulging at the end in a cigar, the smoke of which would keep turning into pictures of Miss Cullen. I have thought about those pictures since then, and have concluded that when cigar smoke behaves like that, a man might as well read his destiny in it, for it can mean only one thing.

After enjoying the combination, I went to No. 218 to have a look at the son, and found that the heart tones had become very considerable, and leaving him, I went to the dining-room, where the rest of the party were still at dinner, to ask that the invalid have a strong cup of coffee, and after delivering my request Mr. Cullen asked me to join them in a cigar. This I did gladly, for a cigar and Miss Cullen's society were even more pleasant than a cigar and Miss Cullen's pictures, because the pictures quite did her justice, and besides, didn't talk.

Our smoke finished, we went back to the saloon, where the gentlemen sat down to poker, which Lord Raltes had just learned, and liked. They did not ask me to take a hand, for I was grateful, as the salary of a railroad superintendent would hardly stand the same they probably played, and I had my compensation when Miss Cullen also was not asked to join them. She said she was going to watch the moonlight on the mountains from the platform, and opened the door to go out, finding for the first time that No. 21 was the "under" train. In her disappointment she protested against this, and wanted to know the why and wherefore.

"We shall have far less motion," Madge," Mr. Cullen explained, "and then we shan't have the rear-end in our car at night."

"Now, Madge, don't be foolish," said Mr. Cullen, irritably. "You might just as well have the pleasure, and I'll only learn the game if you stay here making me uncomfortable by saying."

"By all means, Madge. That relieves us of the discomfort of being the last car, and lets you have the scenery and moonlight."

Miss Cullen looked at her father for a moment as if not believing what he had said, and Lord Raltes scowled and opened his mouth to say something, but checked himself, and only fang his discard down as if he hated the car.

"Thank you, papa," responded Miss Cullen, "but I think I will watch you play."

"Now, Madge, don't be foolish," said Mr. Cullen, irritably. "You might just as well have the pleasure, and I'll only learn the game if you stay here making me uncomfortable by saying."

"Now, Madge, don't be foolish," said Mr. Cullen, irritably. "You might just as well have the pleasure, and I'll only learn the game if you stay here making me uncomfortable by saying."

"By all means, Madge. That relieves us of the discomfort of being the last car, and lets you have the scenery and moonlight."

Miss Cullen looked at her father for a moment as if not believing what he had said, and Lord Raltes scowled and opened his mouth to say something, but checked himself, and only fang his discard down as if he hated the car.

"Thank you, papa," responded Miss Cullen, "but I think I will watch you play."

Announcement.

I wish to announce myself as a candidate for nomination for Representative in the General Assembly for the Seventh Senatorial District of Illinois.

The Seventh Senatorial District includes practically all of Cook County exclusive of the cities of Chicago, Oak Park and Evanston, and usually sends three Republicans to Springfield.

These three members have come for some years, one from the southern part of the district, one from the eastern portion and one from our own congressional district, comprising Palatine, Barrington, Schaumburg, Elk Grove, Hanover and Wheeling.

In presenting myself as one who wishes to represent the district, I ask you who are my friends and acquaintances to consider my candidacy, and give me your aid and support if you think favorably of my ability to represent you if elected.

I trust that such support may be sufficient not only to secure my nomination and election, but that I may be able to repay your efforts and to justify your opinion of me by being a worthy and honorable representative of you and of our district in the next General Assembly of the State of Illinois.

Respectfully,
LARRY L. PECK.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Collector for the township of Elia, Lake County, Illinois, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.

HENRY GIESKE.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of tax collector for the township of Elia, Lake County, Illinois, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.

F. C. MEYER.

HENRY KIRKSE.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of tax collector for the township of Cuba, Lake County, Illinois, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.

EMIL SCHAEDE.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Collector for the township of Cuba, Lake County, Illinois, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.

JOSEPH C. HASKELL.

I respectfully announce myself a candidate for the office of tax collector for the township of Cuba, Lake County, Illinois, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.

AGUST SIMPE.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Highway Commissioner for the township of Cuba, Lake County, Illinois, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.

CHAS. GROM.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Collector for the township of Barrington, subject to the choice of the voters at the caucus.
