

PROF. BANTA WILL LEAVE

Has Secured an Excellent Position With a Prominent Financial Institution at a Handsome Salary.

At a meeting of the Board of Education held Friday evening of last week Prof. N. M. Banta made an official announcement to the effect that with the close of this term of school he would retire from school work, thereby giving the school board ample time to look around for a new principal.

Prof. Banta has accepted a position with the Fidelity Trust and Receivers Co. of Chicago, to take effect immediately on completion of his term here as principal of the Barrington Public Schools, where he has faithfully and successfully served for the past three years.

The increase in salary by making the change of position is considerable, and is an item which Prof. Banta, with his ability, could not overlook. He is a gentleman who has done much to advance the interests of the school while here, and he and his family have made a host of friends, who will be sorry to hear of his departure, but will gladly know that he has bettered himself financially.

Prof. Banta and family will remove to Arlington Heights as soon as school closes.

IT WAS A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The Barrington Woman's Club's Phenomenal Growth.

On March 22nd the first annual meeting of the Barrington Woman's Club will be held to elect officers for the ensuing year and to transact other business for next season's work. The club was organized one year ago at the home of its president, Mrs. M. C. McIntosh, and has grown from a charter membership of twenty-nine to forty-five active members.

In the membership will be found a large number of women who are active in the social, educational and church work of our town. During the past year many high class programs have been given which could well have been given to any audience with appreciation. They include musical and literary work and programs of a practical nature arranged by the department of domestic science. The philanthropic department has been active in doing many deeds of kindness and thoughtfulness which have been outside of the regular club work. Two social evening programs have been given to the gentlemen and friends of the club by the social department.

The club joined the State Federation of Woman's Clubs in May, 1905, and has taken up as far as possible their share of work laid out by the State Committee, the chairman of the club being a member of the Library Committee and assisting with that work. Every program in the first year book has been fully carried out and many additional numbers given.

For the balance of the year the programs are especially full of interest, including "Reciprocity Day" on March 29th, when a large number of guests will be entertained in Odd Fellows' Hall. The guests will represent a number of delegations from other clubs and will assist on the program in telling of the work their clubs are doing. Among programs to follow during the next two months will be "Mothers' Day," a Cooking Class, Musical, a "Japanese Day," "Emerson Day," and on April 24th a parlor drama will be given by the social department under the direction of the president of the club. The season will close in June, when a banquet will be tendered to the husbands of the club members. The officers for the past year have been: President, Mrs. M. C. McIntosh; Vice President, Mrs. T. J. Reid; Secretaries, Mrs. M. T. Lamey and Miss Jennie Fletcher; Treasurer, Mrs. Leroy Powers.

GIVES VALUABLE ADVICE.

Prof. Banta Addresses the Mothers' Meeting.

Mr. Banta to Mothers of the Public School Children: Years ago not much was done to make school rooms beautiful. There was not a great deal of discussion about school rooms and school grounds. Some, perhaps, have been overzealous, collecting too great a number and variety, thus making the room seem to be in a cluster.

All advertisements should be barred from the school room. Yet sometimes they are better than the walls. First of all the walls should be properly tinted. Then a few well chosen pictures, if it can be afforded. Beautiful pictures on dingy walls are out of place, and it is not the number of pictures but the quality and character which count.

A strong point was made concerning simplicity and harmony of color in decoration. Mr. Banta had objects which were arranged on the piano to illustrate this point.

All present thoroughly enjoyed the address.

Notice.

The legal voters of the township of Cuba are hereby notified that a town caucus will be held on Friday, March 16th, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m., in the Lundy Building, for the purpose of placing in nomination the various town officers to be voted for at the township election to be held on the third day of April, 1906.

FRANK H. PLATON, Town Clerk.

"GRANDMA" JACKSON DEAD

Passes Away Peacefully Monday at the Home of Her Son.

George—Was an Old Pioneer.

Word came to the many friends of "Grandma Jackson" on Monday morning that she was dead.

Hannah Merwin Jackson was born in the state of New York, near Syracuse, in the year 1814, and died March 12th, 1906, making her 92 years and 20 days old.

She, with her husband, George Jackson, and two children came west in the year 1842 and settled on the old farm four and one-half miles west of here, where she died.

George Jackson and his wife came to the village of Barrington in 1871, where they lived until the time of his death two years ago last December. She continued her home here.

At the time of her death she was visiting her son, Geo. M. Jackson. She leaves to mourn her death two children—a daughter, Catherine Ann De Vol, and son, Geo. M. Jackson; eight grandchildren, and eight great grandchildren, beside a host of friends.

With hearts full of gratitude the near relatives recall the birthday anniversaries when the kind friends came to cheer and brighten the last days of the dear old people.

Hannah Jackson was converted when about eighteen years old and continued true to the faith up to the time of her death.

The Methodist pastor of Barrington, with friends and relatives of "Grandma" Jackson, were out to call upon her a few days before her death.

They found her trusting in God for salvation. She was greatly rejoiced to hear the old hymns and called for her favorites, sometimes quoting a verse of some of the hymns most dear to her.

The funeral services were held at the home on the farm on Wednesday afternoon.

Wins Two Suits in One Day.

Two quite important lawsuits were tried in the local justice court here Saturday, March 10th. Jenkins & Proulx vs. William Gothard was taken from Justice Fox by change of venue to Justice Lines' court. The plaintiff was represented by L. H. Bennett and the defendant by Howard Castle, of the firm of Castle, Williams & Castle, of Chicago. After hearing the evidence the court found for the plaintiff in the amount of $127.50 and costs of $10.00.

August Scharf vs. Charles Ben was tried before Justice Fox and a jury. The plaintiff, represented by L. H. Bennett, and the defendant by E. B. Quackenbush, of Elgin. After due deliberation the jury found for the plaintiff in the sum of $15.00 and costs of proceedings.

MAKING A GOOD CANVAS

E. J. Heydecker Flanking a Clean But Strenuous Fight for the Nomination for County Judge.

Edward J. Heydecker, republican candidate for County Judge, was born on a farm in the Town of Newport, on the 3rd day of August, 1855, where he grew to manhood and resided until the autumn of 1888. He attended the rural district school of that town and afterwards the Waukegan High School. After leaving the farm he pursued the study of law, and was admitted to practice by the Supreme Court of this State about fifteen years ago, and is now one of the leading attorneys at the Lake County bar.

Mr. Heydecker has always been an ardent supporter of the republican party, having cast his first vote for Rutherford B. Hayes, as president in 1876, and has ever since affiliated himself with and supported the regular republican nominees, both by his labor and influence.

His first public office was that of city attorney, of the city of Waukegan, a few years ago, where he made an excellent record for efficiency and honesty. He never asked the voters of Lake county, for a county office until two years ago when he ran for the office of State Attorney, and made a phenomenal race that his friends and opponents alike were surprised at his strength and influence. In that campaign it will be remembered that L. P. Hanna, received 52 delegates, E. J. Heydecker, 35, A. E. Buckley, 12, and P. L. Persons, 3 delegates.

Mr. Heydecker was the first to announce himself as a candidate for the office of County Judge in this campaign and has been making a very clean and aggressive fight for the nomination which he hopes to win at the next republican convention to be held at Libertyville. One of Mr. Heydecker's campaign measures is a little vest pocket primary digest of the new Primary Election Law, which has been generally distributed throughout the county.

His friends feel that they have in him an able, efficient and honest candidate, who deserves the warm support of every loyal citizen of Lake County.

HE KNOWS HIS BUSINESS.

Fox River Ideas Are Excellent and Valuable to All Who Read Them.

The second number of Fox River Ideas, a neatly printed and well-edited publication devoted to the mail order business has been received. L. R. Paddock, son of Wm. Paddock, living in the northern end of the township of Cuba, is the editor and publisher. Among the wise things he says in regard to advertising, are the following wise suggestions:

"You must insert your ads in papers that will reach the class of people with which you wish to deal. It would also be a good thing to hire a professional ad writer to write your ads. Always insert your ad at least three times in a paper before condemning either the paper or the ad. Another thing—always use good printing. Remember your prospective customers judge your business by the printed matter you use."

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

The following letters remain unclaimed in the Barrington Post Office for week ending March 15, 1906:

BAD NEWS FOR THE YOUNG

Rockwell's Skating Pond is to Be Drained and Thus Be a Thing of the Past.

W. H. Holmes, who recently took possession of the Sandman farm, northeast of town, which he purchased, and on which is located the pond which is known to every youngster and some older ones, too, as "Rockwell's skating pond," has decided to drain the miniature lake as soon as the weather moderates sufficiently. This will no doubt prove bad news to our young population, as it has been the only skating place near this village.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The basket social given by the Y. M. C. A. in the city hall Wednesday evening was a decided success both socially and financially. A large number were present, and the baskets furnished by the young ladies were eagerly sought by the young gentlemen present, baskets bringing as high as $2.50 each. Some of them represented a ship, another a balloon, etc. Geo. Lytle, Geo. Stiefenhofer and Harry Meek made a few short appropriate remarks. A general good time was enjoyed by those present.

An interesting talk was given at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Sunday afternoon by Rev. Ford, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Arlington Heights, who took for his subject "The Bible and the Spade." It was an interesting historical talk which was highly enjoyed by those present. The gentleman was accompanied by Alderman Henry Lorenzen and Supt. Fuller of the bible class of his church.

Several good speakers are in contemplation for next Sunday's meeting, but up to the time of going to press no definite selection has been made.

Chorus Class to be Organized.

A wide-awake chorus-class, conducted by a wide-awake and up-to-date man, is just the thing needed in every up-to-date town. The opportunity of attending such a class is now here. Prof. Stackman has had large experience in the work and comes well recommended. We clip the following endorsement from the well-known composer, eminent writer, lecturer and musical theorist, Dr. H. H. Palmer, of New York city:

New York, March 25, 1901.

I take pleasure in saying that I have been acquainted with Prof. Julius Stackman many years, and that I regard him as a very energetic, painstaking and unusually successful teacher of music, a high minded christian gentleman and one whose influence is always in the right direction.

Prof. Stackman attended the Chautauqua summer school of music during the season of 1900, and by diligent, faithful work showed himself determined to be not only abreast of the times, but in the front rank as a teacher.

H. H. Palmer.

MISS ANTHONY'S LIFE WORK ENDS

Noted Suffragist Is Dead After Long Struggle With Disease.

DEATH DUE TO HEART FAILURE

Had Overcome Attack of Double Pneumonia but Weakness of Vital Organ Prevented Recovery of the Aged Patient.

Rochester, N. Y., dispatch: Miss Susan B. Anthony is dead. The long and eventful life of the noted suffragist closed at 12:40 o'clock Tuesday morning. She was peaceful. She had been unconscious practically for twenty-four hours and her death had been momentarily expected since Sunday night. Only her wonderful vitality kept her alive.

Mrs. M. S. Ricker, her attending physician, said Miss Anthony died of heart failure induced by double pneumonia. She has had serious valvular heart trouble for the last six or seven years. Her lungs were practically clear and the pneumonia had yielded to treatment, but the weakness of her heart prevented her recovery.

Heart Action Is Weak.

Miss Anthony was taken ill while on her way home from the national suffrage convention in Baltimore. She was her last appearance in public. She stopped in New York, where a handreded of the mine disaster in the Courtes district of the Pas-de-Calais is told in the figures which make up the dead. Of the 1,500 men who were in the mine when the explosion occurred 769 have been accounted for, alive or dead. This leaves 1,631 dead in the ruins of the mine.

The recovery of bodies is proceeding slowly. Only sixty were brought up Sunday, but in the evening the rescuers reported that a hundred more had been found.

Chief rescuer Leon, who headed the first rescue party in shaft eleven, which was the least damaged, says it was not until 5 o'clock in the afternoon that it was possible to descend as far as the first gallery. The sight there was awful. There was a confused mass of beams, rubble, corpses, dead horses and cars. The rescuers heard feeble groans and dashed at an obstruction with axes. They released twelve men who were in the last gasp. Then they were obliged to return to the surface. Another party of rescuers soon descended and returned with twelve corpses. All the dead were completely carbonized. One was headless, while the arms were torn off another. There were also two men whose lives were near the shaft, but the rescuers could not reach them, as the air was so bad. No one could venture more than a few yards from the shaft.

Give Life for Life.

At 5 o'clock Sunday night the minister of commerce, the minister of public works and Col. Kerandran, representing President Fallieres, were at shaft three. An engineer was let down, but he found it impossible to breathe when a little more than half way down. He reported not a sound could be heard from below.

Between midnight Saturday night and Sunday morning only two men were brought up alive, and by a strange irony of fate exactly the same number of rescuers lost their lives in the same pit, victims of the poisonous gases.

Replying to an inquiry as to whether hope remained for the finding of more men alive in the mine, M. Leon said:

"It is scarcely possible. The state of the galleries is such that clearing them will be a difficult task, while the flames were so fierce that many of the victims must have been reduced to ashes."

Words cannot describe the scenes at the mouths of the pits, where 25,000 men, women and children were standing, waiting for news of the victims of the catastrophe to give expression to their feelings. Now and then a woman faints and is carried away, but for the most part there is a calm. The miners' families are in a state of intense excitement. They claim fear this apparent quietude is only a prelude to a violent outburst directed against the mine owners. Signs of restlessness become so pronounced that the prefect has summoned reinforcements of troops and gendarmes.

Leaves Legacy of Freedom.

"On Sunday," Rev. Anna Shaw said, "about two hours before she became unconscious, I talked with Miss Anthony and she was very calm. She had more than sixty years of hard struggle for a little liberty and then to die without it seems so cruel."

"I replied: 'Your legacy will be freedom for all women after you are gone. Your splendid struggle has changed life for women everywhere.'"

"She replied: 'If it has lived to some purpose, and she begged me to promise that I and her niece, Miss Lucy Anthony, would stand together until the end of our lives and work faithfully for the cause, as she and her sister Mary had."

"Miss Anthony said to all workers: 'Their faces pass before me one by one. I cannot even call their names, but they are a host of loyal, splendid women and I love them every one. How good everybody has been to me. I wonder if we shall know in the hereafter. If we do I shall be with you when you win Oregon and in every campaign for victory.'"

"Then she added with a smile: 'Perhaps I can do more over yonder than I did here.' Her work was her one thought."

St. Paul, Minn., dispatch: The Minnesota supreme court has declared the $20,000 school bond issue valid. It failed to secure the necessary two-thirds of all the votes cast in 1904.

Mr. Highbotham says his personal taxes in Will county should be $61.39, whereas he is called upon to pay $2,383.50. In his bill Mr. Highbotham says that since Jan. 1, 1905, he has been a resident of Chicago. In 1905 he gave a schedule of his personal property subject to taxation in Will county to Assessor Morrison, listing five horses, forty-five head of cattle, five carriages, one piano, $500 worth of farm implements, and $1,500 worth of household furniture. The total valuation was $5,150 and the assessed valuation $1,020. But the board of review concluded that Mr. Highbotham was a resident of Chicago for his stock holdings on the ground that he was a resident of Will county. Accordingly stocks of the value of $19,000 and of the assessed value of $38,000 were charged against him.

GIVES UP DOUGHERTY ESTATE

Property Valued at $300,000 Turned Over to Peoria School Board.

Property of the N. C. Dougherty estate given a face value of $300,000 has been turned over to E. D. McCulloch, trustee for the Peoria school board, by T. W. Lewis, attorney in fact for N. C. Dougherty.

The property consists of real estate valued at $127,000 and stock with a face value of $174,000 but a present market value of less than 75 per cent. Mrs. Dougherty still retains a dowry interest in the real estate, but it is expected that she will waive this interest within a few days. It is possible that the other property, aggregating $40,000, may be recovered soon.

Kiss Is Not Worth $4,000.

The recent verdict of a jury in the superior court at Chicago, awarding Mrs. Lilly Davis $4,000 damages against Townsend Smith, a real estate dealer, for a kiss which the latter is alleged to have stolen from her, has been set aside by Judge Wright. Judge Wright did not deny that Mrs. Davis was surreptitiously kissed by Smith, but stated that he did not think the evidence was sufficient to warrant so large a verdict, and granted a motion for a new trial. In the suit the plaintiff alleged that some months before her marriage Smith sought to embrace and kiss her in his office. She refused for $10,000, and a verdict for $4,000 was returned.

CITY SUIT PAPERS ARE STOLEN

Theft Acts to Extend Contract With Springfield Gas Company.

The bill in the suit between the city of Springfield and the local electric light company has been stolen from the files in the circuit court. The effect is to carry the litigation over another six months, thus extending the present favorable contract for municipal lighting which the company holds. Officially the city attorneys declare none of the theft and say it looks suspiciously like a scheme of the municipal ownership faction in local politics. The city and the light company so it can be made an issue in the next election. They say they would rather have a settlement than a few months' delay of the present lighting arrangement.

RIVAL RAIDS TO SEE IF LID IS ON

Mayor and Sheriff at Rock Island
Make Many Arrests.

Having reason to doubt the assurances of Mayor McCaskin that the lid he put on three months ago was still firmly in place, Sheriff J. G. Hedd and a force of 25 men returned in a dozen disorderly houses at Rock Island and arrested thirty keepers and inmates. Learning what was going on the mayor had a later started another raid and rounded up eleven other disorderly places. Sheriff Hedd took the prisoners before Judge Magistrate Elliott and all were fined. Judge Magistrate set up an opposition court and the mayor's prisoners were brought before him and also heavily assessed.

Fireman Goes Mad.

Seized with a sudden frenzy, George Guenther, until recently employed as a fireman at the plant of the Rock Island Iron Works at East St. Louis, suddenly sprang aboard a locomotive standing on a side track near that company's plant Friday, jerked open the throttle, and sent the engine plunging ahead. It jumped the track and tore through a fourteen-foot brick wall and came to a stop by crashing into heavy machinery inside the works. Unharmful, Guenther started another run, and drawing a revolver, threatened to shoot the first man to approach him from the crowd assembled. Police were sent for but they failed to arrive in time. W. E. Moore carried up behind the frenzied man and knocked him down. Guenther was subdued and finally taken to the police station.

GET FEW RECRUITS FOR NAVY

Officers Are Unable to Get Men in Trip Through Illinois.

Illinois and Adjoining Western states are becoming poor recruiting ground for the United States Navy. A life on the ocean now appears to have lost all attraction for the youth of the middle states. A corps of recruiting officers has just completed a tour of this state, spending a week in each city of importance, and from here went to Iowa to work that state. Reports from Illinois cities showed that one of two in each were all that could be secured as the navy's recruits. In each city there are quite a number of applicants, but most of them are unable to pass the physical examination. In fact, gone by the gaily lit, the navy's recruits are fairly poor upon the Illinois coast. They have been successful in attracting many recruits, and a month's tour of Illinois would usually result in securing at least a hundred enlisted men. This has all been changed apparently, and the field is now barren. Just what has caused the falling off cannot be explained by the recruiting officers sent to the West, but they admit that it is very difficult to secure desirable young men for the navy.

BARES PLOT TO BRIBE JURY

Judge Orders Inquiry into Recent Sanitary District Case.

Judge T. N. Green, presiding in the circuit court at Peoria, has instructed the March grand jury to investigate serious charges of jury bribing in connection with the recent trial of the $50,000 damage suit of Congressman Grant and Judge Curran against the sanitary district of Chicago. Judge Green told the jury that one of the jurors, whom he did not identify, had personally told him that he had been offered $500 by an agent of the sanitary district living in Peoria and that other similar charges had been made. State's Attorney Robert Scholes has in his possession the testimony of one witness who claims that a resident of Joliet who acted as a witness in the recent case at Peoria held a conference with two jurors at a room in the National hotel on the day that the closing arguments were made in the case. A verdict of $75,000 was returned in the case and this verdict Judge Green branded as "outrageous." He declared it to be a compromise verdict and said that he would gladly have let it stand if either side had entered such a motion.

BANKS OF CANADA GAIN;
PEOPLE'S SAVINGS BIG.

Record of Financial Institutions for the Year 1905 Shows Remarkable Prosperity All Over the Dominion. Ottawa, Canada, March 1.—The year which has just closed has been one of the most satisfactory and progressive with the financial institutions of Canada, and the business of the chartered banks reflected the unprecedented prosperity enjoyed throughout the country during the year 1905.

The increased demands made upon the banks of the Dominion by the commercial and agricultural expansion of the year were provided for without the slightest disturbance sometimes noted in the United States. Whatever options may be held as to the composition of the Canadian banking system, it is claimed that its flexible currency has many commendable features, and without which the last few months of the year must have produced a money stringency with probably disastrous results. It is felt that a wider field of credit in the Dominion is needed, and consequently the capital of many existing banking institutions has been increased and several new banks are in progress of organization.

The chartered banks of Canada today enjoy the confidence of the general public to a greater extent than ever before. The total deposits of the people in these institutions last year were $2,317,000, which shows an increase of over $55,000,000 for the year. In actual money in bank probably no other country in the world, comparatively speaking, can make a better showing than Canada.

Equal to the Canadian people is the Government savings banks, in special savings institutions, and in the chartered banks alone amounted last year to the enormous sum of $100,000,000. This represents an average credit balance of over $100 per head of the population of the Dominion, and it is stated that the only other country in the world that approaches this record is Denmark, where the average credit balance is about $95.00 per capita. The above figures, however, do not comprehend money deposited with private bankers, loan companies, mortgage corporations and trust companies, or what is hoarded up in secret hiding places.

The annual report of the Dominion finance department, which has just been issued to the public, shows a surplus in the Dominion treasury for the fiscal year of $7,862,000, and refers to the remarkable increase in the public revenues during the year.

Fighting Chinese.

Ever since "Chinese" Gordon made as good troops as ever handled a gun out of the peace loving Celestials, western people have been thankful that China was not left a way to raise up Gordons of her own. The Chinese have produced good war leaders. There were some to give a good account of themselves in that Taiping rebellion which called Gordon to the field nearly fifty years ago. And the men of China have proved their mettle in war without foreign troops, as witness the record of the rebel rank and file in that very uprising, which lasted eleven years.

But China is not a military power. Her regular army establishment has been a joke for a century. The reason is not far to seek, and it cannot be argued from that that China is an important nation. Leaders of China thought have deprecated war for many generations. It has been their policy that the civilization of China had progressed beyond the gunpowder stage. Actuated by a dread of standing armies and the power of military navies, the usurping Manchu rulers have fostered this peaceful cult to the extent that military character has long been held in contempt by the philosophic Chinese.

But the Chinese masses are not saints or cowards. Whenever they have taken a notion to do things to their hated rulers, native or foreign—as, for instance, the French in the Tonquin—they have been notoriously willing to fight. Recent accounts from China show that the rulers have changed their policy and are either leading or falling in with the current of public opinion in this matter of "keeping swords bright and powder dry," as the Kaiser puts it. Already China has a corps, drilled and equipped up to date, that would astonish "Chinese" Gordon could he see it at practice maneuvers. It comprises ten divisions of 50,000 to 60,000 men, and the plan of the government is to add corps after corps until the nation is ready to fight at a moment's notice the most puissant of her neighbors. For officers she takes an endless supply of the aristocrats, and all over China there are families or clans, innumerable in extent and of fighting blood, who will be glad to swap the uncertainties of a civil career for the certainty of army pay and support for life for themselves and their families.

The old tradition about the fighting capacity of the yellow races was not alone cracked, but smashed, when the Japs punctured Russia's armor of supposed invincibility. Perhaps there is more of the same kind of prowess in Japan's limitless cousin. If so, China may at an early day be independent and able to keep the peace at home and defend her own "territorial integrity." Backward nations are a nuisance to nations still in movement, for they tempt assaults and interfere with the progress. China strong armed will no longer be the China fighting, which has periodically set her face to the sun since first her ports were opened to the world.

A "Mexican Washington."

At the time of the birth of Benito Pablo Juarez, which took place March 21, 1858, there was little in the political conditions in Mexico or in the ideals of her people to indicate that at the end of a century the United States would have a republican neighbor on the south of her at once peaceful, prosperous and sufficiently enlightened to hold in grateful memory a leader who in some respects was entitled to comparison with Washington. A hundred years ago Mexico was in the plight of Cuba at her worst. She was a Spanish colony, ruled from Madrid. Society consisted of four classes of opposite temper, tendency and interest. Government was exclusively in the hands of Spaniards of European birth. The Indians were lowest in the social scale, being held in peonage, all but the nobles. Mexican Spaniards were held in contempt by their foreign born rulers, and the people of mixed Spanish and Indian blood were but little better off than the mass of Indians.

Napoleon Bonaparte's usurpation of the Spanish throne upset the whole realm of Spain, and the excitement which followed the upheaval did not subside in Mexico until the day of the Montemorelos took place in the family of nations as a republic. Juarez sprang from the better class of Indians and was given a fair education. At the age of thirty he was of sufficient importance to be thrown into prison as a rebel against the government of Santa Anna. He continued to fight Santa Anna and even acted independently for the defense of his state, Oaxaca, during the war with the United States. Being finally driven out of Mexico by the dictator, Juarez lived in New Orleans from 1853 to 1855, when he returned to Mexico and joined Santa Anna's opponent, Alvarez. He was a stormy career in the cabinet and as leader of parties, now with and now against the ruling power, sometimes issuing manifestos from a prison cell, his government was recognized by the United States in 1859, and from that time Juarez, in 1872, he was the head of the social and political reform forces of Mexico. The United States saved Juarez, and Juarez saved Mexico from reaction and chaos.

Juarez's administration led to foreign interference in the affairs of the republic. Driven from the City of Mexico by the French, he was driven from place to place by foreign arms or the uprisings of his own people, but in 1867 he recovered his capital and was re-elected president. In one crisis he took refuge on the United States frontier, having with him but twenty-five faithful followers, afterward known as the "Immortals."

Notwithstanding the complete exhaustion of the national treasury, Juarez suppressed by military power tamorous revolutionary attempts to overthrow him. He died suddenly after a short illness. Judged differently by admirers and enemies, this extraordinary man had at least the quality of honesty of purpose and perhaps for this alone deserves the name of "the Mexican Washington," which some of his people have bestowed upon him. He overcame the Mexican people to the rule of a civilian, and if not the founder of modern Mexico he was at least the road breaker for her political progress.

As to William R. Hearst.

It is the popular belief that William R. Hearst is training for the New York gubernatorial race with a view to strengthening himself for the contest of 1908. Seated in the statehouse at Albany, he would undoubtedly be a force in the presidential fight and compel his party to give him the nomination for president. Even should he fail in the race for the governorship, he might still remain the controlling influence in a powerful organization in a state indispensable to Democratic success.

It is said that in the field of journalism Hearst is working new cards in several cities throughout the country. For ordinary men this would mean desperation and a confession of weakness. But Hearst knows how to handle the power of the press in a political campaign. He can afford this adjunct, and no man can play it better than he for its full value.

Already the criticism is heard in France that President Fallieres is merely following in the course of his predecessor, Loubet, which is a very sensible thing to do if he wants a quiet, easy time. It shows that he has read Pastor Wagner's "Simple Life" for some purpose. President Roosevelt read it, too, and boomed it as good stuff for the other fellow.

From the inner Chinese circles there leaks out the information that 10,000 young Celestials in this country are to return at once to their native land. Why they go no Chinaman will tell, so just what this begins at this particular time means is left for the white man's guessing.

If Uncle Sam keeps up this business of practicing marches 500 miles over land and dale for the artillery it won't be long before the soldiers will strike for an eight hour day change in their enlistment contracts.

ORIGIN OF BAGPIPES

IT IS FOUND IN THE ANCIENT REED, OR SHEPHERD'S PIPE.

In Early Times There Were Many Different Kinds of Bagpipes in the European Highlands, Lowland and Irish Varieties.

According to the encyclopedia, the bagpipe is a wind instrument the fixed characteristic of which has always been two or more reed pipes attached to and sounded by a wind chest, or bag, which bag has in turn been supplied either by the lungs of the performer or by a bellows. The original instrument was presumably the simple reed, or shepherd's pipe, which was well known to the Trojans, Egyptians, Greeks and Romans. But the strain of blowing these ancient pipes was so great that some genius conceived the idea of having a reserve supply of wind in a bag attached to the pipes, and hence the bagpipe. The first real instrument is believed to have been a skin of a goat or kid, with two pipes, through one of which the bag was inflated, the other emitting the sound.

In early times the bagpipe was common in Great Britain and abroad. At one time there were five different kinds known on the continent, some inflated by the mouth and others by bellows, while in the British Isles three kinds were known—the great highland bagpipe, the lowland bagpipe of Scotland (which closely resembled the Northumbrian) and the Irish bagpipe.

In the great highland bagpipe, which originally had but one drone, a valved tube leads from the mouth to an air tight bag, which has four other orifices, three large enough to contain the bases of three fixed long tubes, termed drones, and another smaller, to which is fitted the chanter. The three are thrown on the shoulder, while the latter is held in the hand. All four pipes are filled with reeds, but of different kinds. The drones are tuned by means of sliders, or movable joints, and this tuning or preparation for playing, which generally occupies a few minutes of the player's time before he begins the tune proper, is heard with impatience by those not accustomed to the instrument. Indeed, it gave rise to the saying, applied in Scotland to those who waste time in such matters, "You are longer in tuning your pipes than in playing your tune."

The Scottish lowland bagpipe, like the Northumbrian pipe, was in two forms, one consisting of a smaller and milder toned edition of the highland instrument and the other a miniature of this and having the same relation to it as the fife has to a piper's drum. Its great drawback, from the point of view of the devotees of the highland bagpipe, is that it is reputed to perform what they consider the perfection of pipe music—the pibroch. These small pipes were, however, gentler than the highland, having the same tone, but less sonorous. It was to the strains of such a bagpipe that Chaucer tells us the company of pilgrims left London, and it is the same instrument that is alluded to in Shakespeare as the Lincolnshire lute.

The Irish bagpipe is the instrument in its most elaborate form and is supplied with a wind chest of leather. The drones are all fixed on one stock and have keys which are played by the wrist of the right hand. The reeds are soft and the tones very sweet and melodious. There is a harmonious base which is very effective in the hands of a good player. The Irish instrument is fast dying out.

The bagpipe, though at one time fairly common, never obtained a firm hold in England. It lost favor and gradually deteriorated until it is now practically extinct. The average Englishman neither appreciates nor understands it. A famous poet irreverently compared its notes to "the shrill screech of a lame goose caught in corn." It is a strange ironic writer like this to sound to a "horrible, noisy, mad, Irishman" or to the cries of the "eternally tormented." To the Irish people it appeals more strongly. They still retain in a degree the feeling of attachment to the bagpipe which is so general among Scotsmen. But it is undoubtedly more closely associated with Scotland, both in the highland and lowland, than with any other country, the particular instrument in use being the great highland bagpipe, which, as already explained, consists of three drones, including the bell drone, which was added about the beginning of the last century. It is this type which has gradually superseded the lowland pipe. There is no doubt that the bagpipe was in use in Scotland from a very early period, and it is in Scotland that it has been brought to the highest degree of perfection. Its music distinctly connects it with Scotland, as is clear in the pibroch, the strathspey, the reel, the march and other popular melodies. There are proofs that the instrument was cultivated in Scotland certainly in the twelfth century and of its universal popularity as early as the fifteenth century, while in the seventeenth century nearly every town in the highlands and lowlands boasted of its pipe—London Globe.

The Mystic Workers will initiate six new candidates Wednesday evening, March 21st, and a banquet will be spread after the initiation. All members are requested to be present.

A. T. Gilbert is experiencing a rapid recovery from his recent fall, and is able to be about our streets again. Tyler says that he will fix the wind mill as soon as he is able to climb.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins, former residents of our vicinity, mourn the loss of their 2-year-old daughter, who died at their home at Waukegan last week. We extend our sympathy.

Almer Baxter has returned from North Dakota, where he went to file upon a claim. Upon arriving there, he learned that the quarter section which he had in view had been taken just four days prior to his application. Being unable to procure any other land in the immediate vicinity he decided to abandon the project.

H. K. Harris requests us to announce that he is willing to be accommodating to a reasonable extent to those who visit his chickenhouse at their own discretion, but thinks that he has received more than his share of calls from this caller. Wouldn't it naturally seem to you that a person who would steal from a poor man, is not the sort of individual wanted in this community? And might it not be well for this chicken-thief to be rather cautious about his marauding, lest he meet with an unexpected surprise?

thing will be in readiness, but they hope to be able to open the doors for business on April first. The market will be run upon the same economical and painstaking basis as their dry goods and groceries department, and patrons are assured of fair dealings always.

The Town Caucus will be held in the Village engine house Saturday afternoon, March 18th, for the purpose of placing in nomination the following officers: One supervisor, term 2 years; one town clerk, term 1 year; one assessor, term 1 year; one collector, term 1 year; one highway commissioner, district 3, term 3 years; one justice of the peace, N. E. to fill vacancy, term 3 years; one constable, N. E. to fill vacancy, term 3 years; one constable, S. E. to fill vacancy, term 3 years. Polls open from 2 until 5 o'clock p. m. There seems to be but one office which is causing any excitement at the coming caucus—that of town collector. There are three candidates in the field, viz: Clyde A. Goding, Page A. Smith, and Will Hironimus. All are trustworthy young men, deserving of support, and it is a difficult proposition to name the people's choice.

GROVER'S GLOVE

By COLIN S. COLLINS

Copyright, 1936, by Beatrice Bland

It was all because Grover, in a sudden fit of sentimentality, had annexed Miss Leuhart's glove. On the football field, in the woods in the morning season or at polo Grover was afraid of nothing, but there was something about the five foot daintiness of Laura Leuhart that made Lloyd Grover blush and stammer like the rawest schoolboy in the maddest stages of his first love affair.

He never would have dared to annex the glove had he not been certain that Miss Leuhart was unaware of her loss, and he stuffed it in his deepest pocket, trembling from head to foot lest some one suddenly appear and demand that he restore the souvenir to its owner. Later on he participated in the general hunt for the glove, and none was more eager than he in the search. Even after Miss Leuhart laughingly declared that it did not matter he kept up the pretense and made that the excuse for reporting at her side as often as her partners left her alone for a moment.

Dropping in at his club on the way home, Grover could not resist the temptation to draw the glove from his pocket and gloat over his good luck. He even pressed it to his lips, after making sure that no one was looking, but he crushed it hurriedly in his hand at Jack Turner's approach, and as he did so for the first time he realized that there was something inside the glove.

With the perspiration standing cold upon his forehead, he realized that it must be a ring, and his active imagination at once busied itself with plans for returning the jewel undetected. He could never bring himself to confess the theft of the glove. He could not pretend to have found the ring without being forced to explain why he had not returned it at once, and a thousand and one suggestions, all equally impossible, rushed through his mind. All the time he was keeping up a conversation with Turner, and he knew surprised that young man by answering, "My registered name," when asked how he was going home.

"I was going to walk," laughed Turner, "and suggest that I keep you company as far as your door, but if you are going by registered mail I think I will pass."

"Registered mail won't do," the absent reply. "You see, I'll have to give my address to the postal clerk."

"You'll be giving your address and other details to the desk sergeant," laughed Turner, "if you try to get home in this state." And he left the smoking room fully convinced that for the first time he had seen Lloyd Grover intimidated.

For an hour Grover sat and pondered the situation, and at last, without having arrived at a satisfactory solution, he went out in the hope that the fresh air might stimulate his faculties to some plan of escape.

So engrossed was he with his thoughts that he did not realize how far he had walked until, with a start, he found himself several miles from home and in a most unenviable quarter of the city. He turned to retrace his steps, and in an endeavor to reach a car quickly he took a short cut through an alley.

ed with assault and battery, and when he was searched the glove with its ring was brought to light.

"One of the warden's chaps," was the grinning comment of his captor. "I'll bet that sparkler is worth $500."

"That is the ring Miss Leuhart lost," he declared emphatically. "Her telephone headquarters are on horse and an alarm was sent out. They think one of the waiters at the Colwell hotel stole it."

"This chap looks like a waiter," suggested the policeman, surveying Grover's lathered face. "Guess we'll hold him."

They laughed at his request that various influential persons be sent for. It was then 4 o'clock in the morning, and a sergeant would not call any one out of bed to come to the relief of a waiter who had been found fighting in "Bloody alley," so they confiscated the ring and thrust him into a cell with scant ceremony.

For the rest of the night Grover paced the narrow limits of the cell or sat on the edge of the iron bunk and thought. He had heard of men who had gone to prison and had concealed that fact. It would be a good idea in his case. It would be better to pass three months in jail and give it out that he had gone abroad than to face the jeers of the fellows, and when in the morning Laura came to the station house to identify her property he would Grover would be able to stand silent while she sought to identify him as one of the waiters.

With his blackened eyes and cut lips it was difficult to tell what he looked like, and she turned away with a shake of her head. Grover's heart leaped as he realized that so far his scheme had worked successfully. Now all he would have to do would be to plead guilty and take his three months' sentence. But his hopes were dashed by Laura's next remark.

"Will the man get a long sentence?"

"Not very long," was the careless reply of the warden. "As far as we can make out, it's his first offense, and he'll get off with five or six years."

It was too much. Grover started forward. "Laura," he called. The girl turned in astonishment, while her father made a step forward as if to resent the familiarity. "Just you recognize me?" he pleaded. "Don't mention my name, but for heaven's sake let me see you for a moment in private!"

"Where?" she asked uncertainly.

"There's the captain's room, miss," suggested the detective. "If you need help I'm right here. Just call."

As the door closed on them the girl turned. "Lloyd?" she asked curiously. "What does this mean?"

"I didn't steal your ring," he said desperately. "I did steal your glove. The ring stuck in one of the fingers, and I never found it until I got to the club. I was wandering around trying to find some way of getting it back to you when some rough tried to hold me up. Only thinking of the ring, I went for him and just had him beaten when they arrested me. Then they found the ring, and you know the rest."

"But what on earth do you want of the glove?" she asked. "If you stole one I would have given it to you."

"I couldn't ask," he stammered. "Don't you know? Don't you understand? I mean—well, when a fellow loves a girl he doesn't care a lot of things. I've coveted that glove ever since you wore it at the Gardens' ball last winter. That was the first time I knew that I loved you. My love made me a coward. I could no more ask for the glove than I could have asked for your heart."

"Yet you might have had both for the asking," she said tearfully.

Doctors Are Puzzled.

The remarkable recovery of Kenneth McKee, of Vancouver, B. C., is the subject of much interest to the medical fraternity and a wide circle of friends. He says of his case: "Owing to severe inflammation of the throat and lungs, three doctors gave me up to die, when, as a last resort, I was advised to try Dr. King's New Life Pills. Cures the worst coughs and colds, hoarseness and influenza. Guaranteed at Barrington Pharmacy."

Josephine Shaw Lowell, who died recently in New York, lost a brother killed at the start of the Wagner in 1892 and a husband killed at Cedar Creek in 1862. She was something of a heroine on her own account, too, for she devoted the whole period of her widowhood, over twenty years, to charity and philanthropy.

A Scientific Wonder.

The cure that stands out in credit make Bucklin's Astringent Salve a scientific wonder. It cured E. R. Mulford, lecturer for the Patrons of Husbandry, Watertown, Pa., of a distressing case of piles. It heals the worst burns, scalds, boils, ulcers, cuts, wounds, chilblains, hemorrhoids, etc. Price 25c at Barrington Pharmacy.

"Of course," grumbled the professor. "There's always room at the top."—Chicago Tribune.

A WONDERFUL PROOF.

The Burning Glass as a Demonstrator of the Sun's Heat.

"The sun's heat is so great," said an intelligent young woman interrupted the scientist impatiently.

"After all," she said, "it is guesswork, to talk about the excessive heat of the sun. You can't prove any of your claims."

He was disgusted. "Why, it is the easiest thing in the world to prove that the sun is hot enough to melt iron, granite, the hardest substances known, into liquid, into steam."

"How would you make such a proof?" she asked incredulously.

"With the burning glass," said he. "A burning glass is slightly rounded. Thus it bends into a focus—it concentrates upon one small point—a number of sun rays. The tiniest burning glass, catching only a few rays, will light a fire, set off a gun or bore a red hole in your hand."

"Yes."

"The solar heat which the burning glass collects for us is the tiniest fraction of the sun's total heat. We can prove this by focusing with our glass rays from a powerful lamp or a great fire. We get a small, bright spot, a little heat, but the heat is nothing to compare with the heat of the lamp it self."

"So, knowing, now, that the solar heat which the burning glass gives to us is but a fraction of the heat of the sun, we take a burning glass a yard in diameter—such glasses have been made for the sole purpose of convincing skeptical persons, you see—and this glass concentrates many hundreds of sun rays for us, and it gives us a heat greater than we can obtain in any furnace, a heat that will melt rock into vapor."

The scientist smiled triumphantly. "There is your proof," he said. "The burning glass will only collect a tiny portion of a burning object's heat, and the tiny portion of the sun's heat that it gives us is yet sufficient to change in a jiffy a block of granite into a puff of steam!"—Exchange.

A FEARFUL PEST.

The Ferocious Mosquitoes That Swarm in Scandinavia.

Hunters find the mosquitoes a terrible pest in parts of northern Scandinavia. One writes: "The warmth of the sun is raising our deadly enemies, the mosquitoes, into active warfare. Attacked as we are by a few score of viciously plumping skinners from the night sky, we have before advancing to look for the joints of our harness and our gunnights; then in descending the long slope toward our bivouac the scores of the foe are gradually multiplied. In hundreds, then in thousands, the thousands to myriads till we are at length enveloped in a dense cloud of winged pests. The horses are a distressing sight. From nose to tail from head to withers, their unfortunate bodies are covered with what might be taken at a casual glance for gray blanket clothing, but which is really a thick mass of stinging living life, so closely set that you could not anywhere put the point of your finger on the bare hide."

"For such small creatures mosquitoes—these surrounding swarms of other—after and diabolical intelligence. They dash through smoke, creep under velvet or scribbled like a ferret into a rabbit hole and when they can neither dash nor creep will bite their time with the cunning of a red Indian. We were stung dozens of places, articles with which they could have had no previous acquaintance, and yet they would follow each other by hundreds in single file up and down the seams, trying every stitch, in the hope of detecting a flaw."

And the same writer concludes: "The problem presents itself. Why are these pests so horribly bloodthirsty and so perfectly formed for sucking blood? It is one of the great mysteries of nature. On the uninhabited stretches of Finland they must as a rule exist on vegetable diet, the chances of blood so rarely occur."

Torture By Savages.

"Speaking of the torture to which some of the savage tribes in the Philippines subject their captives, I remember that the late-suffraged I endured for three months from inflammation of the kidneys," says W. M. Sherman, of Cushing, Mo. "Nothing helped me until I tried Electric Bitters, three bottles of which cured me. Cures liver complaint, dyspepsia, blood disorders and malaria; and restores the weak and nervous to robust health. Guaranteed at Barrington Pharmacy. Price 50c."
