

PEARY MAKES RECORD

Thousands of women suffer daily backache, headache, dizzy spells, languor, nervousness, and a dozen other symptoms of kidney trouble. It is due to other causes. Make no mistake. Keep the kidneys well, and these aches and troubles will disappear.

Mrs. Anthony Cadet, 77, Mechanic Street, Worcester, Mass., says: "My right failed. I had sharp pain in my back and bearing-down pains from the hips. I was nervous, fretful and miserable. The urine was greatly disordered and I began to have the swellings of dropsy. I was running down fast, when I started using Dr. Williams' Pills. A wonderful change came and after a month I faithfully for a short time I was well."

Keeping Parents in Subjection.
In the life of the very rich some parents still seek to resemble those of olden times in how little we know the girls at home and the boy out of the barracks. Middle life and old age are too hidebound to get accustomed to the manners of the new generation of young men who are old and worn before they graduate and of young women who win or lose large sums at gambling. Children have a right to expect from their parents the old ways. At first this may be difficult, but, as Aristotle says, "Virtue is a habit," and it can be acquired. —N. Y. Evening Post.

SKIN ERUPTIONS 35 YEARS.

Suffered Severely with Eczema All Over Body—A Thousand Thanks to Cuticura Remedies.

"For over thirty-five years I was a severe sufferer from eczema. The eruption was not confined to any one place. It was all over my body, limbs, and even on my head. I am sixty years old and an old soldier, and have been examined by the Government Doctor and others, and they said there was no cure for me. I have taken all kinds of medicine and have spent large sums of money for doctors, without avail. A short time ago I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, two months in all, I am now entirely and completely cured. A thousand thanks to Cuticura. I cannot speak too highly of the Cuticura Remedies. Joan T. Roach, Remondale, Ross Co., Ohio, July 17, 1905."

Proposed to Honor Engineers.
A proposition in honor of John A. Roebling's memory by the erection of a monument in Trenton, N. J., is taking a new turn and the citizens may build a new school of industrial arts and dedicate it in his name. Mr. Roebling was the builder of the Brooklyn and other suspension bridges, and one of the foremost engineers in the country in his day.

"Cat Tails" Have Value.
Make extra money by gathering the downy or fibrous part of cat tails. Strip the down clean from the stem and be sure it is dry. After the first frost it peels from the stem very easily. THEY CURE RHEUMATISM

A Particularly Painful Form of This Disease Yields to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Of many forms which rheumatism takes, that which is particularly known as sciatic rheumatism probably tortures its victim more than any other. That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured this stubborn as well as painful trouble is a fact which has been well known, and no sufferer who reads this will afford to let prejudices stand in the way of trying these blood-making pills.

Rheumatism is now generally recognized as a disease of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make—act—make—purify blood. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism. Mrs. Thomas Brown, of 54 Mill street, Watertown, N. Y., says:

"My trouble began with a severe cold which I took about a week before Christmas in 1904. I began to have rheumatic pains in my back and limbs and after a time I could not straighten up. I suffered the most awful pain for months and much of the time was unable to leave the house. I had to take a chair in an effort to walk and sometimes I could not stand up at all."

"The disease was pronounced sciatic rheumatism and, although I had a good physician and took his medicine faithfully, I did not get any relief. After some time of such terrible pain I suffered, I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it is the medicine that cured me. After a few boxes the pain was less intense and I could see decided improvement. I continued to take the pills until I was entirely cured and I have never had any return of the trouble."

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or the retail price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $3.00, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

ARCTIC EXPLORER NEARER THE POLE THAN RIVALS.

DOGS SERVED AS FOOD

Caches Destroyed by Ice Floes, Compelling Members of Party to Subsist on Such Provisions as Presented Themselves.

New York. — The world's polar exploration record has been broken by Commander Robert E. Peary. The intrepid American has gone 34 miles nearer the north pole than any man who ever went into the Arctic region. Peary started his late 87,000, and history of incredulous hardships and dangers made him a telegram to Herbert L. Bridgeman, secretary of the Peary Arctic club.

Message Tells of Great Feast.

The message follows: "Hopedale, Labrador, via Twillingate, N. E., Nov. 2—Roosevelt wintered at coast Greenland, but went north to winter quarters. Went north with sledges February via Hecla and Columbia. Open water between 84 and 55 degrees. Beyond 85 degrees, Gale disrupted ice destroyed caches, cut off communication with supporting parties and drifted east. Reached 87 degrees six miles, north latitude over ice, drifting steadily east. Reaching 87, eight days. Drifted delayed by open water, reached north coast Greenland in straightened conditions. Killed musk oxen and returned along Greenland coast to ship. Two supporting parties driven on north coast Greenland. One rescued by me in starving condition. After one week's rest, continued to Greenland and west, completing north coast Greenland and reached other land, near one hundredth meridian. Homeward voyage incessant battle with ice, storms and headwinds. Roosevelt magnificent ice fighter and sea boat. No deaths or illness on expedition."

Did Not Expect News.

After furnishing press the contents of Commander Peary's report, Mr. Bridgeman said that the receipt of the message surprised him, and he was quite a surprise to him, because he had supposed it had become too late in the season for Commander Peary to send news of his venture. Mr. Bridgeman added that the message spoke for itself and that since he did not know more of the results of Commander Peary's effort to reach the pole than he did, he could not make much comment upon the dispatch. There was little doubt, however, he said, that Commander Peary was coming home. This seems to be borne out by the routing of the dispatch. Hopedale and Hoffenthal is a Moravian mission station on the east coast of Labrador. Twillingate is a port on the east coast of Newfoundland. The message was probably mailed by Commander Peary from Hopedale to the most accessible cable point.

Nansen and Abruzzi Outdone.

In 1896 Nansen reached 86:14 north latitude, and his exploit was hailed as a tremendous exploit, for that was 196 miles farther north than Greeley had gone in 1882. Nansen held the record for only two years, until in 1900 Cap. Cagni, of the crew of Abruzzi's expedition, pushed his way north, and after almost incredible hardships reached a point 22 miles farther north than Nansen had gone.

Until now the Italian explorer has held the record for farthest north. Now it is shattered by an American. News from Commander Peary has been awaited with anxiety for several weeks, and when the date had arrived for the end of the "dash" across the ice cap surrounding the pole, the commander, when he sailed from New York more than a year ago, fondly hoped that the end of the dash would carry him to the pole itself.

ASKS INTERNATIONAL HOLIDAY

Anniversary of Sailing of British Ships from England for Virginia.

Washington.—Secretary Bonaparte has received a letter from Mr. N. Darrell Davis, auditor general of British Guiana, calling attention to the 300th anniversary of the sailing of the Saraw Constant, Goodspeed and Discovery from Blackwall, England, for Virginia, being the inception of English colonial enterprise of the United States.

Mr. Davis suggests that in commemoration of the event all the vessels of the United States navy, whether at sea or in port, shall "dress ship" on that occasion.

Mr. Davis has already made the suggestion in English newspapers that Great Britain recognize the birth of its "eldest daughter" by a similar action on board their British vessels of war.

Romance in Writers' Lives.

A strange comedy and tragedy was woven into the lives of Isen and Bjornson. As young men they were great friends; then politics flung them apart; they quarreled and never met for years and years. Strange fate for the two children of these two great writers. Isen and Bjornson's daughter married Isen's only child. The fathers met after a quarter of a century of separation at the wedding of their children.

The Ideal Family Laxative.

One that can be used by the entire family, young and old, and is safe and strong without any danger of harmful effects. It should have properties which insure the same dose always having the same effect, otherwise the quantity will have to be increased and finally lose its effect altogether. These properties can be found in that old family remedy, Brandreth's Pills, as I can assure you. Its ingredients are of the purest quality and are well known. It has been used for three years before being sold, which allows them to mellow. We do not believe there is a laxative on the market that is so carefully made.

Brandreth's Pills are the same fine laxative tonic pills your grandparents used.

They have been in use for over a century and are for sale everywhere, either plain or sugar-coated.

When a girl's thoughts become sluggish, her headach, dizziness or a disposition to sleep, pain in back or lower limb, or any desire for sleep, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, her mother should come to her aid, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best. This time, however, reverse the system for the coming change, and start this trying period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Hundreds of letters from young girls are sent to Lydia E. Pinkham, expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them; have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., at Lynn, Mass.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Mothers Should Watch the Development of Their Daughters—Interesting Experiences of Misses Borman and Mills.

Every mother possesses information which is of vital interest to her daughter.

Too often this is never imparted or is withheld until serious harm has resulted to the growing girl through her ignorance, naivete, and nervousness and modesty.

Girls' over-sensitivity and modesty often puzzle their mothers and baffle physicians, as they so often withhold their confidence from their mothers and will not even admit the symptoms which might be of value to the physician at this critical period.

When a girl's thoughts become sluggish, her headach, dizziness or a disposition to sleep, pain in back or lower limb, or any desire for sleep, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, her mother should come to her aid, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best.

But since taking the Compound has entirely left me, my periods are regular and my complexion strong and well.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me what I could not do for myself.

Miss Borman writes Mrs. Pinkham as follows:

BELL'S LASTING MONUMENT

Something About the Inventor of the Telephone and the Remarkable Success It Achieved.

Our telephone exchange is growing so steadily and telephones have become such an important factor in our village life that a little intelligence concerning the history of the phone called from Scribner's, seems not amiss.

Alexander Graham Bell, the legally recognized inventor, is still living in Washington, D. C. He is nearly as well known as a philanthropist, as an inventor, and is especially interested in deaf-mutes. He is 58 years old. He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and was well educated there and in London. The family moved to Canada and settled on a farm. Before he was 30, Bell became Professor of Vocal Physiology in Boston University.
While experimenting with an apparatus to assist the deaf to hear, the idea of a telephone came to him. In 1876, just 30 years ago, the telephone was born.
His patent was received in March, 1876. Probably no other private document has ever caused so much litigation.
The higher courts sustained Bell's claims, although various instruments had been experimented with for 38 years previously, by scientists of various nations. In June of '76 Bell was married to a daughter of G. G. Hubbard, a rich Bostonian. Hubbard was one of the Massachusetts commissioners to the Centennial Exhibition held in Philadelphia that year. His wife and daughter went there to visit him and Bell decided at the last moment to go, jumping on the train with no baggage.

His brother-in-law sent a trunk after him and thoughtfully put in the latest model of the phone. This was finally exhibited at the Centennial although the judges regarded it unfavorably until the Emperor of Brazil who was there became interested and the "speaking toy" was accepted. The telephone proved to be a star exhibit.

The mechanism and gradual improvement of the telephone is too technical for a mind unaccustomed electrically, but we are all interested in its development.
In two years it became a public utility and the first long distance line was built from Boston to Salem, 16 miles. Today if the telephone bell should cease to ring, thousands of persons would be thrown out of employment.
(The Bell Co. alone employ 57,000 people. It is estimated that 200,000 depend on the phone for their daily bread. In 1895 there were 5,000,000 Bell phones in use and 4,475,500,000 conversations on Bell phones. Today we have 26,000 miles. Longer distances were wired on the Pacific coast earlier than in the east. In October, 1892, Bell spoke the first message from New York to Chicago. Business was once the slave of the telegraph, but in 1905, 41 times more messages were sent over the telephone than over the telegraph.
Iron wire was first used and trouble was had with all other metals until a hard drawn copper wire was invented by T. B. Doolittle of the Bell Co. in Bridgeport, Conn., and but for research long distance would be unknown. The first poles were very high, 80 ft. Now days they are 30 to 35 ft. and are set usually 132 ft. apart, 40 poles to a mile.

The Bell Co. uses a million poles a year. The wire often weighs 435 lbs.
to a mile.

The city exchanges are marvels of improved methods and our old-fashioned crank turning is almost unknown in large exchanges. Tiny colored electric signals and storage batteries located in the central building have done much to give better service than we in Barrington know of, although we consider ourselves lucky in such a small town to have the good service accorded us. A phone is now a necessity, not a luxury.

Telephones are common in Japan,
China, Siam, Burma, Hindustan and Abyssinia which countries we are apt to regard as half civilized. Africa is becoming a net-work of phones and even in Turkey the phone is allowed although typewriters are not. In Europe Germany ranks first in the number of phones, France, second then England. According to the ratio of population Sweden has the most phones.
In America New York has one to every 12 families. In 1905 there were 26,000 miles of phone. Outside of cities, already, the telephone has little known but in America they have extended from lumber camps to rice swamps and western ranches. Telephony is a new art and has opened avenues of employment, especially to women, some 20,000 are employed, earning higher wages than in any other occupation.

The world cannot forget its obligation to the inventor of the original telephone. Posterity will honor no name higher than that of Alexander Graham Bell.

Patsy Doodle

By Harriet Batchelor Bradner

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

Hadley's horse was stepping slowly down the country road, with an occasional toss of his high bred head whenever a familiar fly alighted on his glossy coat. The reins lay inertly in the young doctor's hands, for his mind was far afield. After a long silence he turned to the girl beside him and asked in a voice that he could not keep quite steady:

"Your answer is final, then? You won't marry me? And you—you don't love me?" he added, with a helpless movement of his head. "Why, Elizabeth, I can't realize it; I really can't."

"—Edward," she began. "Edward, I can't bear to hurt you, but—And her voice lost itself in a quick sob.

The young man put a quivering hand over the ones she had locked in her lap.

"Don't cry, little Bess," he said huskily. "It hurts me terribly to see you. If you don't love me, I'll helpless. I suppose I have to leave it to another man. But I—well, I loved you so much that it didn't seem possible that you could help liking me—just a little."

That thin, humble, suffering man could be the same cold, unmoved person who had, only a short time since, with such reluctance, left her for a visitation to a drier old woman—seemed incredulous to Elizabeth. But she clung to her decision to give him up, a course of action made imperative by the dictates of her reason, so she answered hesitatingly:

"I am so sorry, Edward, but I can't."

They rode along in silence, the thoroughbred moving with nearly noiseless steps, and as they were turning an abrupt bend in the road half a mile further down a thin groan struck up from the tall wayside weeds. Hadley brought his horse to a standstill by a violent jerk.

RAISED HIM WITH A GENTLENESS OF MOVE-MENT WHICH WAS A REVELATION.

"What's that?" he asked sharply.

"Again the sound was repeated—a faint, piteous note of pain."

"It's a baby," declared Elizabeth, trembling, "and it's hurt."

Hadley had been poised and in an instant was striding through the long grass, which he suddenly stooped to part. After an appreciable space he straightened up and held out a hand to Elizabeth, who had followed him, and the girl's fingers closed tightly over it as she leaned forward to peer into it as she learned how to peer into the grass.

"We're too late," she exclaimed, relief and fresh pity blending in her voice, for at their feet lay a poor little morsel of a dog. His little black nose was dry and bloated with pain, and the soft curly white of his hair, through which the skin showed faintly pink, was soiled by blood and dirt, and, saddest of all, one tiny hind leg lay shattered and limp in a pool of blood.

"We'll run over him and chuck him in the guitar to death," Hadley said between his teeth. "I only wish I knew what it was."

In a moment he stooped and, slipping his hands under the little creature, raised him with a gentleness of movement which was a revelation to Elizabeth and which filled her eyes with sudden tears.

"I'll have to ask you to drive," said the doctor as he got in the rumblette, "but it would hurt cruelly to put him down." And then as he saw the anxious questioning of her eyes he answered: "I think I can fix him up all right. The leg is badly broken, but he's so young I think it will mend quickly." He fell to watching the quivering heart beat against the ribs. The tip of a pale little tongue just showed in the dry mouth, and a great broad ear fringed with black droops. Battishly against the white pulsing throat.

"Isn't he beautiful?" sighed the girl. "How like a little hurt child he looks! What does make people so careless and so cruel?" As she turned her head sorrowfully, her glance fell upon a small boy standing by the roadside.

"Little boy," she called, stopping the horse. "Do you know whose dog this is?"

A pair of stolid eyes were obediently focused upon the puppy.

"Yep," he announced after a moment's survey; "that's Sammy Case's Patsy Doodle. You can't find him in my. His man his maw moved to Plattsburgh last yester'day. She's a widow now, and her boy didn't know where his dog is too easy, and they had 'ough to part along' without Patsy Doodle. Why, they had three—But, her interest in the Casers' movements having been satisfied, Elizabeth finally touched the horse with the whip, and in a moment they had left the discursive urchin behind.

Once in Hadley's office the little dog was deposited on the table and his broken leg bound with a bandage by tender fingers. With the intelligence often vonchanted his kind, Patsy Doodle seemed content to lie quite still and relaxed in the atmosphere of sympathy. So motionless was his attitude that they thought he was sleeping, but when Elizabeth withdrew her hand from his head he had been softly stroking the great broad eyes with his bloodshot paw, opening immovably with an anxious expression, and the puppy lifted his drooping ears inquiringly.

"See, Bess; he misses your touch," said Hadley, dropping the towel with which he was drying his hands. Elizabeth slipped her hand under the little head, and after a snuggling movement of the nose, which was becoming moist again, Patsy Doodle gave a little breathing of content and, closing his beautiful eyes, fell asleep, like a tired child.

When the office had been restored to its former quiet, doctor and patient walked to the open window and stood looking moodily out upon the sunlit street, but when Elizabeth stirred in her chair he turned quickly, for his mind was centered only upon the occupants of the office. She beckoned him and he came across at once, seating himself on a corner of the table.

For a moment neither spoke; then the girl lifted her face and said in a voice that thrilled her companion:

"No, dear, I've done you a horrible injustice."

Hadley leaned forward suddenly. "How?" he asked, with eager eyes.

Elizabeth caught a fluttering breath. "You remember the night they brought you the message that that old lady was dying and how you hated to go?" Well, I thought your profession had made you a man and unfeeling, as it has so many men, and after you had gone I—I decided that I couldn't love a man like that—" Her voice trailed off uncertainly.

The doctor's eyes darkened. "That's another and the worst of the tricks that miserable old woman has played me!" he declared hotly. "Sweetheart—his eyes clamed her attention—'I know when there's a thing on earth the master of it is here.' That's what it meant for me. Some member of her family had probably got up sufficient nerve to put into execution a long cherished plan or something of that sort. She'd been dying regularly for the last two years whenever things didn't go to suit her. And to think she came home again separating us!" He slipped his hand under the one in which Elizabeth's fingers closed tightly over it as she learned how to peer into the eyes of Sammy Case's Patsy Doodle."

"Our Patsy Doodle," gently corrected Elizabeth.

A Difficult Matter.

There was a strong family feeling in Brooklyn whenever any question affecting a member of the little community arose. The master of Abel Wood's artfully illustrated an opinion to the effect that all he knew had been dislodged in his dealings and that he'd ought to put away for a spell, and the warrant was issued," said Mr. Hall, explaining to a visitor what seemed like an unnecessary delay in a simple process of the law, "but 'twas kind of hard for us to settle the best place to arrest him."

"You see, he had got to be done either at his mother's—that's the only good reason for extra scrubbing in the place—or else at his uncle's—that's the express agent, and none too obliging even when he's feeling pleasant—or else at his brother-in-law's—that's the only man in town that's got a fast class carpenter's set-out, monkey wrench and all. Anyway, the sheriff, being his brother-in-law, was the only one who was hostess of the two preceding meetings and good programs, and attendance marked them."

To Run the Gauntlet.

"To run the gauntlet" originated in Germany and traveled thence to England, finally becoming domesticated in America. In both the Old and New World the game and names about the setting of a punishment for misdeemeanor, the soldiers of a company or regiment being placed in two lines facing each other, each man armed with a switch. The culprit ran between the two files and received upon his bare back the switches of his comrades. An officer stood by to see that the punishment was properly enforced, and if the soldier failed to do his duty he was himself liable to make the journey between the two files. The Indians along the coast of Virginia are said to have observed this punishment inflicted upon some sailors of an English man-of-war and immediately adopted the idea for torturing their enemies; hence came the belief that the punishment or torture was peculiar to the aborigines of North America.

"Isn't he beautiful?" sighed the girl. "How like a little hurt child he looks! What does make people so careless and

All old school books exchanged at A. W. Meyer's.

The family of Lewis Gieske are preparing to move to Elgin.

Born on Tuesday, Nov. 6, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wessel, nee Laura Boehmer.

Fred Klein visited his sister, Mrs. Stearns in Chicago Sunday. The lady has been very ill.

You can buy fine Florida oranges at 30¢ a dozen, at Roy C. Myer's, also Red Tokay grapes 10¢ a pound. Fine candies.

Mrs. Ellen Haines of New York arrived Friday of last week and will pass the winter with her sister, Mrs. T. Dolan.

Arnold Schaubel has orders from four different towns for six of his reliable and celebrated "Barrington" gasoline engines.

Lamoy Harris, a vocal teacher from Chicago, gave the concert Monday evening in the Baptist church which was announced a week ago. The attendance was not large but the gentle succeeded in securing the names of fifty persons who will take the course of ten lessons offered by him at low rates. This class will meet on Monday evenings in the church and be instructed in choral work with a view to give an oratorio at the end of the term. Mr. Harris sang several songs with Miss Nettie Lombard accompanying.

A wedding occurred on Monday evening, October 29th which was not publicly known for several days, hence our failure to chronicle it last week. The couple are widely known here and the young lady is actively engaged in the work of the Salem church. The bride was Miss Louise Meier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Meier and she became the wife of Elmer Frey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Frey.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. N. Lapham at his home on Cook street and was very private owing to a recent death in the Meier family. Mr. and Mrs. Frey are living in the home recently occupied by Mathew Hurter on Hough street.

Mrs. Henry Donles gave a card party Friday evening at her home on Main street to the members of the Friday club, their husbands and a few friends. Six tables were in the game of progressive euchre and by an amazing coincidence both the host and hostess secured second prizes which were presented by the club. Mrs. John Sutherland and Mansfield Bennett were winners of the first prizes. Mrs. Donles served a midnight supper in four courses. The crepe paper favors were in pink and white and were very attractive for their daintiness among them being pretty little baskets made by the lady herself in which Saratoga chips were served.

Mrs. Ezra Cannon received the Barrington Woman's club at her home on Cook street Thursday afternoon. A large membership attended and eight invited guests. Mrs. C. M. McIntosh, the president, who now lives in Chicago, was present to preside. Those who assisted on the program with readings on "The Woman who is Busy" and "The Training of the Child" were Mesdames John Schwemm and D. H. Richardson. Miss Elmer Araps sang two numbers and Miss Beulah Ots played beautiful and classical selections. If all our days were crowned with success life would be an endless drudge.

Many an unsuccessful man would rather preserve his dignity than drudge.

Many a boasted family tree looks to others rather more like a scrub oak than is dying at the top.

Almost any married man can manage his wife without trouble—if she will only let him.

Being forced to work and do your best will breed you a hundred virtues which the devil never knew.

With hazing abolished and football denatured, how may a college youth get even with his enemies?

A new malady is called the auto heart. There is an auto heart that sometimes needs treatment.

The man who fears he will do more than his salary calls for will never have much salary to call for.

A Cleveland girl wants to enlist in the navy. Most girls are willing, however, to join the navy by marriage.

Better do the little thing you can do to-day than wait for the great thing you would like to do tomorrow.

The poorest people on earth are those who make the most of what they have and the least of what they are.

Those Ohio girls who are asking to enlist in the navy would, if their request should be granted, become tar-tars.

It is proposed to declare that automobile is interstate commerce, and to grant national licenses. Sensible move.

Russia is to build a battleship of the type of England's Dreadnought, one that need fear nothing but its own crew.

Five submarines have sunk with their crews in the last four years. There seems to be a fatal significance in the name.

The automobile accidents make the reckless driving for which horse owners used to be so severely punished like child's play.

The marriage of a couple in St. Louis was prompted by a joke on matrimony. It is dangerous to joke about matrimony.

The Cognac is the name of one of 17 balloons which started in the great serial race from Berlin. That name should have stayed it.

A Pittsburg millionaire eloped with a 17-year-old girl the other day. It is alleged that she was not a member of any of the choruses.

Never use what is not your own, never buy what you cannot pay for, never sell what you haven't got, is a pretty good rule to go by.

HEARST ONLY LOSER IN NEW YORK STATE

Hughes Plurality of 60,432 Due to Heavy Scratching by Democrats in Greater New York, Where Head of Ticket Was Slashed Without Mercy.

Election returns show that the next congress will be Republican in both branches. The political complexion of the Senate shows a Republic gain one in Colorado. The Senate has three close legislative contests, but they are chiefly between individuals, and the Senate will stand nearly as at present, with 58 Republicans and 32 Democrats, leaving a Republican majority of 26. The returns indicate a Republican membership in the house of representatives of about 223, which is a majority of 64 over the Democrats.

HEARST IS ONLY LOSER.

Rest of Fusion Ticket Appears to Be Elected in New York.

New York.—The entire state Democratic ticket with the exception of Hearst, has apparently been elected by the following pluralities:

Chanler, Lieutenant governor, 3,694.

Whalen, secretary of state, 9,844.

Jackson, attorney general, 9,029.

Hauser, treasurer, 15,263.

Glynn, controller, 4,394.

Skene, state engineer, 12,308.

Hughes, plurality for governor is not placed at 60,432.

There is a faint possibility that Whalen, Republican candidate for Lieutenant governor, may be elected by the complete official count.

The vote in Greater New York shows that Hearst was beaten unmercifully by the Democrats. He ran far behind the rest of his colleagues, though the Democratic ticket had a defeat coming up all the higher. He is $12,000 votes below the lowest man on the Democratic ticket and 70,000 votes below the highest.

The plurality for the Democratic candidates in Greater New York shows these figures:

Chanler, Lieutenant governor, 139,

Whalen, secretary of state, 142,032.

Jackson, attorney general, 139,369.

Glynn, controller, 144,153.

Hauser, treasurer, 159,139.

Skene, engineer, 145,100.

Hearst's plurality is 75,655.

State Senator Thomas F. Grady, of Tammany hall, has been reelected over Thomas Rock, who has been known in the campaign as "eighteen-year-old Rock," and who claimed he had been "tricked" by the Independence League.

Throughout the state there has been a notable falling off in the vote from 1904, which was a presidential year. The Republican ticket showed the greatest loss in this respect, especially in the cities.

In claiming the election of Mr. Hughes by a large plurality, Republicans Chairman Warner said:

"I knew all along we had lost the labor vote. Every possible thing was done to stop it, but I think it went out avail."

OHIO REMAINS REPUBLICAN.

Losses in Cities Are Overcome by County Vote.

Columbus, O.—The indications are that the Republicans have elected Carmi Thompson, secretary of state, and their entire state ticket at a safe plurality.

Full figures are not obtainable, but increasing Republican gains as the country precincts are reported more than balance earlier losses in the cities and other districts, and the entire Republican state ticket is indicated.

While Chairman Garber of the Democratic state committee, said that he would be unable to give out any state statement, owing to incomplete reports, a statement was given out by Chairman Dick, of the Republican state committee, in which he said:

"Reports from Republican county chairmen show the election of the entire state ticket by a plurality exceeding 10,000."

A few congressional districts reported, but in none of these has there been announced a Democratic victory. However, the districts first reported are those concededly Republican.

GOV. HOCH REELECTED.

Later Returns Show Republican Candidate Ahead in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan.—The reelection of Gov. E. W. Hoch, Republican, seems reasonably certain, although the Democratic committee still claims the state for William A. Harris by a plurality of 3,300. According to figures received Hearst to Continue Fight.

At 2:15 Wednesday morning Mr. Hearst made the following statement:

"In view of the result I have only to repeat what I said in my speeches. I am enlisted in this fight against the control of the government by the trusts, the great corporations, and I will fight it to the end."

"But I will serve in the lead or in the ranks, just as easily as the people desire, and as earnestly and loyally as he does in one place as in the other. The people will be with me."

In the first eight months of 1905 our trans-Pacific trade amounted to $197,791,041. In the same period of the current year we exported to that market only $156,719,963 worth of goods. The Japanese victory over Russia in the far east seems to have been a commercial triumph over us as well.

by the Republican committee, 97 counties out of 105 give Hoch a plurality of 4,150. The Democrats claim that their figures on the same counties give a result plainer still, and that the official returns will give him over 3,000. The eight counties still missing are in the western part of the state. The Republican figures are partially confirmed by special press dispatches.

Marion county, Hoch's home, was carried by Harris by a majority of 129 votes, while Douglas county, Col. Harris' home, was carried by Gov. Hoch by a majority of 129.

Aside from the head of the ticket, there is no question as to the election of the entire Republican ticket.

Big Democratic gains have been made in the lower house of the legislature, but that body will still be overwhelmingly Republican, and a member of the dominating party will be elected United States senator to succeed Mr. Benson, who himself is a candidate for reelection. The candidates are Congressman Charles Curtis, of the First district, and Joseph L. Britton, formerly fourth assistant postmaster general, who won prominence a few years ago, by his activity in suppressing postal frauds.

REPUBLICANS HAVE INDIANA.

Entire State Ticket and Legislature Won by Party.

Indianapolis.—Republicans have elected their entire state ticket in Indiana by an estimated majority of between 40,000 and 50,000. The next legislature will be Republican. Republicans have elected six congressmen in the First, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh districts.

The Democrats have elected two, in the Third and Fourth districts. Frederick Landis, Republican can-have decided to retain the Republican party in power. I will make my fight in the ranks therefore, and as a private citizen of my state, I will promote the interests of my fellow citizens."

Hearst Carries Brooklyn.

In Brooklyn Senator Patrick H. McCarran made a bitter fight against Hearst, the latter carried the borough by a small plurality, probably 4,000. At one time it seemed that Hughes had been successful in Brooklyn, but the late returns were in strong favor in his favor.

Mr. Hearst has been given a majority of nearly 70,000 in Manhattan and the Bronx. Queens county, which includes Long Island city, has gone for Hearst by from 6,000 to 8,000, and Richmond (Staten Island) has also given the Democratic candidate a plurality.

As was generally expected, Mr. Hearst showed his greatest strength in the cities, and in the state at large, took the Democratic column, a number of the more important municipalities which heretofore have been Republican. Among the cities which gave Hearst a plurality were Buffalo, Rochester, Utica, Troy, Elmira, Rome, Little Falls and Johnson.

All of these except Utica and Rome were Republican two years ago. Mr. Hughes did not gain a single city. The Republican ticket was successful, but the Democratic ticket was not, the defeat coming up all the higher. He is $12,000 votes below the lowest man on the Democratic ticket and 70,000 votes below the highest.

As a result of the scratching and the voting for the same candidates under different party emblems, the returns for the subordinate officers on the various state tickets are complicated.

Fusion Judges Win.

Great interest was shown here in New York in the campaign waged for the judiciary ticket named by a committee of lawyers, headed by Joseph H. Choate and former Judge Alton B. Parker. The Tammany and Independence League joint ticket has won over the nonpartisan candidates by big pluralities.

State Senator Thomas F. Grady, of Tammany hall, has been reelected over Thomas Rock, who has been known in the campaign as "eighteen-year-old Rock," and who claimed he had been "tricked" by the Independence League.

Throughout the state there has been a notable falling off in the vote from 1904, which was a presidential year.

The Republican ticket showed the greatest loss in this respect, especially in the cities.

In claiming the election of Mr. Hughes by a large plurality, Republicans Chairman Warner said:

"I knew all along we had lost the labor vote. Every possible thing was done to stop it, but I think it went out avail."

He has refused to follow Chairman

Hughes' loud cry of "Fraud" and "Robbery" and "stands pat" on the statement he issued, which conceded defeat, and was virtually a promise to abide by the result.

New York.—Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate for governor, has been elected by 50,000 or more plurality. Outside of Greater New York, with 169 election districts missing, Mr. Hughes gained a plurality of 10,000.

In Greater New York, with 69 election districts missing, William Randolph Hearst, the Democratic and Independence League candidate, had a plurality of 75,036. Mr. Hearst carried all the boroughs of the Greater city, despite the fact that he early returns seemed to indicate that he had lost Brooklyn.

The remainder of the Republican ticket is to be elected, although Mr. Hearst ran behind the rest of his colleagues, though the Democratic ticket had a defeat coming up all the higher. He is $12,000 votes below the lowest man on the Democratic ticket and 70,000 votes below the highest.

Full figures are not obtainable, but increasing Republican gains as the country precincts are reported more than balance earlier losses in the cities and other districts, and the entire Republican state ticket is indicated.

COURAGE, MY HEART.

Courage, my heart, amidst the battle here;
Ever its winter season hath the year;
Arouse thy self and fight on without fear;
At last the favored springtime will appear.
Courage, my heart!

Courage, my heart, and fall not in the fight;
The fight is courage, and the bonds of strife;
Yield not one step; may, dare all in the might;
The hours are counted that shall bring the light.

Courage, my heart!

Courage, my heart, and let deed follow deed;
How is the increase of the long-sown seed;
How are no words, and no forebodings need;
The harvest days will come and bring the need.

Courage, my heart!

Courage, my heart, and let deed follow deed;

Remember that thou hast been bold and free;

The ship at last shall in its harbor be.

Courage, my heart!

Courage, my heart, and be thou strong;

The things of man that would work the wrong;

Best bravely now, and meet thy foes;

For thou shalt triumph. Sing the victory song!

Courage, my heart!

"But, Mrs. Dremler, there's that poor girl—she cares for me, and I like her immensely, you know—truly I do—and she's a trump—see where she says here she couldn't possibly leave her people now they've come down—even if matters were not otherwise impossible."

"Well, you see they're not only otherwise impossible, but even with impossible, what could you do? Go to Montana with your old team to be a teamster? And don't for heaven's sake, sentimentalise! Go home and sleep like a rational creature. Come in by 11 to-morrow. Even without the title you'll be a splendid match for Mrs. Wybert, and she must have a tidy lot of millions after this deal."

Sorely distressed, he walked back to his lodgings in Thirty-second street. Wild, quixotic notions of sacrifice stoned his mood of dejection. If the worst came, he could go west with the family and learn how to do something yet. But he was a man of 40, and he must do that. The other idea was absurd—too wild for serious consideration. He was 30 years old, and there was only one man for an English gentleman to live—even if it must break the heart of a poor girl who had loved him devotedly, and for whom he had felt a steady and genuine affection. He passed a troubled night.

Down at the hotel of Peter Bines was an intimation from Mrs. Wybert herself, bearing on this same fortuity. When Uncle Peter reached these at two a. m., he found in his box a small, scented envelope which he passed with wonder.

The letter had fallen out. One was a clipping from an evening paper, announcing the birth of twin sons to Lord Casselthorpe. The other was the card he had left with Mrs. Wybert on the day of his call; his name on one side, announcing him; on the other the words he had written:

"Sell Consolidated Copper all you can until it goes down to $2. Do this up to the limit of your capital, and I will make good anything you lose." —PETER BINES."

He read the note:

"Arlington Hotel—7:30."

"Mr. Peter Bines—You young cuff, you. I don't pretend to understand your game, but you may rely on my secrecy. I am more gratified to than words can utter—and always have been to do anything for you. Yours very truly,

"BLANCHE CATHERTON WYBERT."

"P.—S.—About that other matter—him you mentioned with the friend you got from the paper, the party won't get any time at all now, so a dead swell New York man is in every way more eligible to be a husband for you. You'll be married for one moment, as I am positive you would agree with me."

He tore the note and the card to fine bits.

"It does beat all," he complained later to Billy Bruce. "Put a beggar on horseback and they begin right away to fust around because the bride ain't set with diamonds—give 'em a little, and they begin to beat all."

"That's right," said Billy Bruce, with the quick sympathy of the experienced. "That guy that dopey, he wasn't satisfied with my good $20 wad. Not by means! He had to go take my breakfast bumper from the Early Bird."

At 11 o'clock the next morning Mauburn waited in Mrs. Dremler's drawing-room for the news and might have.

When that competent person salled in, he saw temporary defeat written on her brow. His heart sank to its low level of the night before.

"Well, I saw the creature," she began, "and it required no time at all to see her very definite understanding with her. I had feared it might be rather a delicate matter, talking to her at once, you know—and we needed to hurry—but she's a woman one can talk to. She's made heaps of money, and the poor thing is society-mad—so afraid the modish world won't take her at her true value—but she talked very frankly about marriage, really, she's determined to marry some one of the smart men here in New York. The creature's fascinated by the very idea."

"Did you mention me?" "You may be sure I did, but she'd read the papers, and, like so many of these people, she has no use at all for an Englishman without a title. Of course I couldn't be too definite with her, but she understood perfectly, and she let me know she wouldn't hear of it at all. So she's off the list. But don't give up. Now, there's—"

But Mauburn was determinedly downcast. "It's uncommon handsome of you, Mrs. Dremler, really, but we'll have to leave off that, you know. If a chap isn't heir to a peregrine or a city fortune there's no getting off that way."

"Why, the man is actually discouraged. Now you need some American pluck, old chap. An American of your age won't give up."

"But, Uncle Peter, an American knows how to do things, know how, like as not he's nothing to begin with, by Jove! Now I'd a lot to begin with, and here's it all taken away."

"Look at young Bines! He's had a lot taken away, but I'll wager he made it all back again and more, too, before he's 40."

"He might in this country; he'd never do it at home, you know."

"This country is for you as much as for him. Now, there's Augusta Hartong—those mixed-pickles millionaires, you know. I was chatting with Augusta's mother only the other day, and it's a fact she's off the list."

"Awfully kind of you, Mrs. Dremler, but it's no use. I'm fairly played out. I shall go to see Miss Bines, and have a chat with her, you know."

"Now, for heaven's sake, don't make a silly of yourself, whatever you do! Mind, the girl released you of her own accord!"

"Awfully obliged. I'll think about it jolly well, first. See you soon. Good-bye!" And Mauburn was off.

He was reproaching himself. "That poor girl has been eating her heart out for a word of love from me. I'm a brute!"

CHAPTER XXV.

THE GOD IN THE MACHINE.

Uncle Peter next morning was up to a late breakfast with the stricken face of a poor soul, with the stricken face of a poor soul, but not less convinced in his despair. The young man himself had recovered his spirits wonderfully. The utter collapse of the old man, always so reliant before, had served to fire all his latent energy. He was now volatile with plans for the future; not only determined to reassure Uncle Peter that the family would be provided for, but not a little anxious to justify the old man's earlier praise, and refute his calumnies of the night before.

"Mrs. Bines, so complacent overnight, was now a picture of despair. She was regarding the loss of the fortune as a calamity to the worthy infants of her own chosen field."

"And there, I had promised to give $5,000 to the new home for crippled children, and $5,000 to St. John's Guild for the floating hospitals this summer—just yesterday—and I do declare, I just couldn't stay in New York with my money, and set those poor babies suffer."

"You couldn't stay in New York without money, Mrs. Good-thing," said he, "so not even if you couldn't see a thing; but don't you wish on any of your plays—we'll make that ten thousand good if I have to get a sandwich, and lay out a few of these lads around here some dark night."

"But anyway you can't do much to relieve them. I don't know but what it's honest to be poor while the authorities allow such goings on."

"You have the makings of a very dangerous archæologist, Uncle Peter. I am sure that for some time. But we're an honest family all right now, with the exception of a few properties that I'll have to sit up with nights—sit right by their sick beds and wake them up to take their meury every half hour."

"Now, my son, don't you go to going without your sleep," began his mother.

"And wasn't it lucky about my sending that note to George?" said Psyche. "Here in this morning's paper we find he isn't going to be Lord Casselthorpe after all. What could I do? Done if we hadn't lost the money?"

"I might have inferred that certain people who had declared Miss Bines to be very hard-headed were not so far wrong as the notorious 'casual observer' is very apt to be."

"Well, I'm glad it's over, Mr. Bines. Of course you concede the relative insufficiencies of money to a young man of his qualities."

"Not its relative insignificance, Mr. Peter—It's plain damned insignificance, if you'll excuse the word." If that boy'd gone on he'd 'a' been one of what Billy Bruce calls them high-collared Clarence—no good for any thing but to spend money, and get apoplexy or worse by 40. As it was, he'll be a man. He's got his health turned on by a steam radiator, he's full of resiliency, and he's really long-headed."

"How did he take the loss?" "He acted just like a healthy baby when you take one toy away from him. He cries a minute, and grabs up something else to play with. His other toy was bad. What he's playin' with now will do him a lot of good."

"He's not discouraged, then—he's really hopeful."

"That ain't any name for it. Why, and substance as phenomena not necessarily related."

"But give me a chance, Uncle Peter. Just don't jump on me too hard for a moment."

"Well, I know that country. There's big chances for a young man with brains—understand—that has got all the high-living nonsense blasted out of his upper levels—but it takes work. You may do something—there are white blackbirds—but you're on a waste of time—wasted—on the roads—curves all down on the outside—wheels flattened under every truck, and you've been to Africa where that was the frontier. I seen some hard times myself, and this boy's father was a fighter, too. So I know the boy was in him, all right. He's got his faults, but they don't hurt him none."

"Will he return west?" "He will that—and the west is the only place for him. He was gettin' bad notions about his own country here from them folks that was always crackin' up the 'other side' 'till there wasn't any 'this side' worth speakin' of in company. This was no place for him."

"Thank the Lord, we didn't have to go to Welsh either, any more than Mrs. Givens up there."

"You won't touch any more stock; you won't get that money from Shepler's."

"I won't; I won't go near Shepler. I promise you. Now you'll believe me in one thing, I know you will, Uncle Peter." He turned over to the old man.

"I want to thank you for pulling me out of that place. You saved me, and I'll never forget that."

"Awfully kind of you, Mrs. Dremler, but it's no use. I'm fairly played out. I shall go to see Miss Bines, and have a chat with her, you know."

"Now, for heaven's sake, don't make a silly of yourself, whatever you do! Mind, the girl released you of her own accord!"

"Awfully obliged. I'll think about it jolly well, first. See you soon. Good-bye!" And Mauburn was off.

"Well, I'm glad you got some sense," answered the old man grudgingly. "It's always the way in that stock game. There's a lot of it in a big killing made in Wall street to-morrow, only to-morrow never comes. Reminds me of Hollings' old turtle out at Spokane—Hollings that keeps the Little Gem restaurant. He's got an enormous big turtle in his cellar that he's kept to my knowledge for 15 years. Every time he gets a little turtle from the coast he takes a red paint down over his cellar, and touches up the old one. He's got a turtle now, and it's a good one, and he's got a turtle in the west better you can have in New York. You got a fine, handsome horse here. It's a cokin' good place to see—and get out of it; but it ain't any breedin' place—there ain't the room to grow. Now we produce everything in the west, includin' meat. Here you don't do anything but consume—individually. If the west stopped producin' food, you can't grow a big man on this island any more than you can grow wheat out on Broadway. You're all right. You folks have your uses. I ain't like one of these crazy fools that thinks you're rascals and all like that; but my point is that you don't get the fun out of life. You don't get the big feelin'. Out in the west, they're the flesh and blood and bone; and your people here need no discrete—no distinct line and wrinkles and—the waris. You spend and gamble back and forth with that money we raise and dig out of the ground, and you think you're gettin' the best end of it, but you ain't. I found that on 32 years ago this spring. I had a crazy fool notion then to go back there even when I hadn't gone broke—and I done well to go up. And that's why I wanted that boy back there. And that's why I'm mighty proud of him to go back to go and take hold. Like I know he would be."

"That's excellent. Now, Mr. Bines, I like him and I dare say you've done the best thing for him, unusual as it was. But don't grind him. Might I not be well to ease up a little after he's out there? You might let it be understood that I am willing to finance any of those propositions there liberally—he's actin' this mornin' just like the world's his oyster—and every mouth had an 'r' in it at that."

"I'm delighted to hear it. I've always been fond of the chap."

"I was very glad you read him correctly. It seemed to me you were taking a risk. It was broken the spirit of most men."

"Well, you see I knew the stock. It's pushin', lightin' stock. My grandfather fought his way west to Pennsylvania when that country was wilder'n Africa, and my father fought his way to Ohio when that was the frontier. I seen some hard times myself, and this boy's father was a fighter, too. So I know the boy was in him, all right. He's got his faults, but they don't hurt him none."

The debutante with the golden hair ruffled up to her chaperon in an air of rank aristocracy, and without a hand grasped her hand, and loosened her fingers from the fan she held, said the New York Press. Then, smiling apologetically, she took the chaperon's wedding ring and began twirling it around frantically. After the golden circle had spun around the married woman's chubby finger about ten times this matron inquired what the why and wherefore of the strange action.

"Oh, it's Jack's next dance with me," she said, "and the next young thing."

"That doesn't come near explainin' why you're makin' a merry-round of my ring," murmured the other woman.

"Twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three," counted the debutante as the ring still made the circuit. "Oh, it's the latest superstition of us girls. Not that I believe in such things, no, but—I can't afford to leave a loop-hole in the occult when Jack is concerned. After a girl twirls a wedding ring ten times the next matron in the room is the man who'll propose and the man she will marry. It's the very latest thing in superstitions, you know."

"Oh!" said the matron, with appreciative comprehension. "That certainly is more symbolic than the superstitions of my time."

"Forty-eight, forty-nine, fifty!" concluded the girl. Then she gasped in sudden alarm.

"Horrible," she shuddered. "Here comes that odious Billy Haverstraw."

"He'll be the first to meet me after the count! No, he won't either!"

There was a flutter of white skirts and the debutantes dodged around a palm, while poor Haverstraw passed on with burning cheeks, wondering if he was an ogre. Then, as the chosen Jack appeared, the debutante fluttered into sight again, and the latest Gotham girl superstition was instantly afloat on an ample train.

LOOT BANK IN DAYLIGHT.

Bold Robbers Secure $7,000 from Ladd Financial Institution.

La Salle.—The Farmers' and Miners' bank in this county, was robbed of $7,000 by two men at two o'clock on the afternoon of November 5.

Martin Zearing, the cashier, was away at a funeral, his assistant, a clerical man, James Shepler, was in the bank. Two strangers entered and asked for some change. While Hurley was making the change one of the men covered him with a revolver and the other jumped over the counter and overpowered him.

The robbers marched Hurley to a back room, where they bound him hand and foot, and gagged him. The robbers then helped themselves to cash and escaped. They left $150 in gold, besides a quantity of silver, on the counter. The amount of their booty was about $7,000.

After the men left the bank it was 20 minutes before the alarm was given. By that time the robbers were out of town. When Hurley was released he told the story of the robbery and the news was telephoned to all near towns.

The two robbers turned up at Peru several hours later. They were put in a living room to put in their house and were removed. An attempt was made to arrest them, but they held back the town officials with drawn revolvers, stole a horse and buggy from the stable, and drove out of town on a gallop.

A citizens' posse was formed, but not until the robbers were well out of town.

Plans Big Consumption Comp.

Bloomington.—Buffalo Rock, one of the most picturesque and historical points along the Illinois river, and located in La Salle county, was purchased by the Illinois Homeopathic Medical society, who dedicated services lasting all day. President Edwin H. Hughes, of DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind., and Dr. W. D. Parr of Kokomo, Ind., were the principal speakers.

Teachers Elect Officers.

Freeport.—The Northern Illinois Teachers' association decided to hold the next annual meeting at Moline and elected the following officers: President, S. E. Raines; Freeport; vice president, O. E. Taylor; East Dubuque; secretary, S. F. Parsons; Dubuque; treasurer, C. E. Joiner, Rock Island; railroad secretary, E. A. Roselle; executive committee, H. E. Austin, Sterling; executive committee, H. E. Browne of Rock Island, J. N. Ade of Kewanee, and O. F. Hoffman of Lanark. The convention went on record as favoring the appointment of a commission to revise and codify the laws governing schools.

Teachers Elect Officers.

Cairo.—The local auto-bound freight train on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis struck a street car at a crossing in the northern part of Cairo, killing Edward Steven and injuring several other persons. The street car was broken into splinters. The motormen escaped death by jumping.

Thought Death Was Sleep.

Pana.—Philip Aliche, aged 75 years, died in a chair at his home while his aged sister, Miss Margaret Aliche, was keeping watch over him under the impression that he was sleeping. She had kept her vigil all through the night and part of the next day. Aliche died in his sleep.

"Oh, it's Jack's next dance with me," she said, "and the next young thing."

"That doesn't come near explainin' why you're makin' a merry-round of my ring," murmured the other woman.

"Twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three," counted the debutante as the ring still made the circuit. "Oh, it's the latest superstition of us girls. Woman Routs Burglars.

Chicago.—Using a chair as a weapon, Mrs. Mary Fadden, 1369 West Van Buren street, routed burglars from her home. She awakened shortly after four o'clock to find two men attempting to crawl through a window in the kitchen.

FORMER PASTOR IN TROUBLE.

Rev. Isaac G. Cook Arrested on Complaint of Child.

Peoria.—The Rev. Isaac G. Cook, formerly pastor of the Methodist church at Bartonsville, a suburb of Peoria, was arrested on the charge of attacking the 13-year-old daughter of Charles W. Robinson, vice president of the Gipper Company. The attack, it is alleged, took place on Moss avenue, the exclusive and popular residence portion of the city.

The girl says she was followed out of a drug store by the former clergyman, who accosted her, hugged her, and repeatedly kissed her. On the description furnished by the girl her assailant was arrested and placed behind the bars.

Cook denies the charge. The girl was accompanied by a little dog, and Cook admits that he stopped to fondle the family pet, but did not place his hands on the girl.

PANA WOMAN WOULD DIE.

Miss Bessie Wilson Creates Sensation at Railroad Station in Decatur.

Decatur.—Miss Bessie Wilson, an unusually pretty girl from Pana, made a sensational attempt to take her life in the Illinois Central station rather than go back with her mother.

The girl was found at a hotel and was forced to her mother to go to the station. She kept protesting that she would kill herself and suddenly drew a bottle of poison and drank a portion of it. Her mother tried to stop her, but she continued to drink it.

The Woman's club is planning to send in a few weeks a box of clothing to the worthy poor of Chicago. People who will contribute garments, hats, shoes or any wearing apparel will find their donations gratefully received and may send them to Mesdames H. Powers, J. C. Collins, E. Cannon, A. Lines, F. Storck and M. T. Lamey.

Mrs. Chas. Meyer, of S. Hawley street, formerly Bertha Rachow, was taken to Dunning Thursday suffering from an attack of temporary insanity following a severe illness of several weeks.

Nothing is a better recommendation for Barrington than to state that we have no idle people. "Everybody works, even the fathers," and the constant cry is for "help." It is next to impossible for housewives who need a little extra help for a day or two a week to secure anyone. There is a larger demand for the housewives who supply the work and when illness or extra cares enter a home, the unfortunate family have a difficult task finding temporary help. Men who do odd jobs are very scarce and many a tramp finds work here for as long as he cares to stay.

An Engineer.

An I. H. C. Gasoline Engine

does not require an engineer to run it. It is so simple and practical in construction that it requires very little attention and is easily operated by anyone.

An I. H. C. Gasoline Engine

runs smoothly and produces more power than rated. It is very economical in the use of fuel, consuming less per horse power than any other engine of the same rated capacity.

An I. H. C. Gasoline Engine

is a wise investment. It saves time and money, and increases your profit as a result of the increased production. No progressive farmer can afford to be without an I. H. C. engine.

Made in the following styles and sizes:

Vertical—2, 3 and 5 horse power.

Horizontal—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 15 horse power.

Portable—6, 8, 10, 12 and 15 horse power.
