Wouldn't you be mad if some one came up to you and said "You are one of the biggest gossipers in town," when you really are, only people like you to tell you. How would you like to see in print remarks that you make about people and things you tell for facts? Wouldn't you be mad! And still you really say them!

Deceased was born on a farm near Fairfield, Ill., on Dec. 6, 1876, and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barick, who are now residents of Kockelville, Ill.

He was reared to manhood on the farm and was united in marriage with Miss Sadie Hill of Wauconda on Nov. 28, 1898.

About a year ago his health began to fail, and falling to rest in bed in this vicinity, he decided upon a trip through the southern states, but all to no avail.

After his return home he seemed to gain rapidly for some time, then followed a relapse which could not be checked.

He was brave to the end, and courageously faced the inevitable, while making plans for the future, yet at times he let those near him know that he knew.

The funeral was held from the Baptist church, Saturday, Rev. D. C. Dutton, of Anamosa, Ia., officiating, and interment was made in the Wauconda cemetery, the Mystic Workers Lodge, of which he was a member, having charge of the burial services.

Work, and already two roads are practically completed, and the construction of eight or ten more will be undertaken this summer.

"These roads are experimental in two ways: first, in that the department started the physical possibility of making this kind of a road under given conditions; second, in an economic sense, in that a community can be better off in making roads and such a road whether it is worth while to construct any more roads of this character. How else is this question to be intelligently decided by a community except by a practical trial?"

Highway Bridges. "As has already been stated, nearly half the cost tax for roads and bridges in this country is spent for bridges. In a number of counties sixty per cent. of the amount spent for roads and bridges was for bridges, so that this feature of highway work is one of the most important in Illinois. Only a casual investigation, however, is necessary to establish the fact that a majority of the bridges were about half the requisite strength and many cost appreciably more than they should. The reason for this can be summed up in two words: the lack of skilled supervision. It is not expected that the commission and supervisors are engineers, yet they must expend the taxpayers' money for bridges about which they know nothing, nothing about the requisite strength, nothing about the proper material.

"To correct these conditions, the Illinois highway commission offers free of charge to the local highway officials designs, estimates, and specifications for highway bridges of all kinds, and the demand for this aid indicates that it will be one of the most important phases of the work of the commission already planned and authorized for some fifty bridges are under way."

Concrete Bridges Recommended. "Scarcely a township in the state but has very many small bridges with plank floors, and in many cases plank for the abutments, which are a source of constant danger to the traveling public and an endless expense to taxpayers.

"It is within the means of every township to replace these small bridges, that is, bridges with spans up to fifty feet, with concrete structures. Some townships may prefer or be able to build but one or two of these bridges a year, but the most economical plan would be to construct all of these bridges at one time, making a systematic survey of the township sufficient to decide what size of bridge should go in at each place."

Plan of Highway Commission. "The experience already gained in the past year in the Illinois county, combined with the experience in other sections of the country, shows the importance and necessity of expert mental work with the bridge. It is intended by this work to introduce to different communities approved methods of carrying on their present road work, and also to demonstrate the value of new and mixed methods."

"For example, experiments are under way for the construction, in a simple way, of earth roads in which a number of the best methods of construction at a small expense are sticky, muddy roads into something that will be comfortable travel all the year."

Better Roads Without More Taxes. "It is in this field of operation for a state highway commission in investigating and finding out what are the best methods to be used under certain conditions and, having found them out, making them known to everybody. Let it be known that every commissioner can, for the trouble of asking, get advice on all matters of this kind, and that better results can be obtained. Better methods are necessary, and it is essential that the advantages of better methods be first demonstrated before increased expenditures are discussed. Better roads are possible without increased taxes."
