NEW YORKER A PASSENGER ON FIRST AMERICAN TRAIN.

Stephen Smith Dubois Still in Fine Mental and Physical Vigor at Age of 95.

As an example of mental and physical vigor at the age of 84, Stephen Smith Dubois, who a few days ago completed the task of cutting and stacking the product of a five-acre field of corn down at Norwood, Long Island, is probably one of the most remarkable old men in the country of whom there is a record.

It was the first official trip, and with a foresight, which has not been followed in later years, the inhabitants of Troy insisted that the directors of the road should assume the first risk, for there was nobody willing to take the chance of a ride behind a "contraption" that they believed was likely to blow up at any moment.

"I was born up in Cayuga county," said the old gentleman, as he rested for a moment from sawing a thick stick of timber, "and came to New York in 1847."

"When I first came to New York the northernmost house in the city was on Twenty-sixth street, near Madison avenue. Beyond that was all green fields. Corporal Thompson's cottage was built a few years later, I think, or it was built it was not used as a half-way house in 1847. Over on the east side there were only a few shanties above Twelfth street. You had a clear view of the East river from what is now Cedar street in 1843."

"When I was a boy up in Cayuga, Indians of the Seneca tribe— you know Seneca county is close by— used to come into Waterloo, where I lived for a time, and ask me to pay most attention to them. They were always peaceable, and never harmed anybody so far as I know. I was 34 years old when I came to New York in '47, and if I do not get any more, I don't give way to any man in any kind of a contest. When I was 50 years old I was as good as most men at 25."

"I have lived the greater part of my life in the open air, eating and drinking everything that came along, and have chewed tobacco for about 75 years. I gave up smoking 30 or 40 years ago, and my quids of chewing have become smaller. Here and there I would take the old man took from his vest pocket a tiny cube of tobacco. It could not have contained more than the sixteenth of a cubic inch."

"Let all my mind be as strong like 30 or 35 years ago," he continued, "so I can't chew like I used to. A small plug of tobacco will last me about six weeks. I don't sleep well at nights now, but when I was a boy I could take long naps. Sleep is a great thing—better than food or drink."

The most remarkable physical achievement of the old man this year was cutting the line east of the Cherry field. He plied this up in 200 "sents," and it is standing to-day as a monument of his prowess. He cleared the same field a year ago, and then shelled the corn by hand, taking each ear and scraping over a bar laid across a bushel measure. When the measure was full he would empty it and begin shelling it again. Early in the spring of this year he cut a line of cherry trees by the roots and cut it into fire wood.

THOSE CONTEMPLATING CHANGE OF RESIDENCE SHOULD READ THEM.

The other day the writer was in the Office of the Canadian Government at St. Paul, Minnesota. On the windows of the building were signs to the effect that home-steads of 160 acres were given free to actual settlers, and in the windows were displays of wheat, oats, barley, other grains and vegetables, which he was told were grown in Western Canada. This could be readily believed for in no other country on the Continent would it be possible to grow such splendid specimens. The world is now pretty well advised that in the growing of such cereals as well as named and vegetables as have been named and vegetables as well as the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have no competitor. For several years past specimens have been exhibited at the State and County Fairs throughout the West, and these exhibits are looked upon as one of the chief attractions. They have demonstrated what can be done in the growing of such cereals as wheat, barley, oats, and corn, and also of such vegetables as the potato, the tomato, the cucumber, the egg plant, and the melon. They are growing when they do that, they say.

"Will you please ask him to stop growing," implored the woman, "just for this week while he is visiting me?"

Where Legislature Meets Every Year. There are now only six states in the United States whose legislatures meet every year. In the others the legislatures meet only once in two years, and this is true of the great states of Pennsylvania and Illinois. Only the legislatures of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Georgia, South Carolina and Rhode Island meet once a year.

FOUR SHAFTS OF HUMOR.

Pithy Remarks from One of the Foremost Jokesters. With the truly artistic temperament the bird in the bush has scant notion of doubling its value by changing its habitat. It has been a man who has spent his time with vital vigor, electric brushes and newspaper recipes, when he should have been winning a laurel wreath to cover his forehead with it. When you enter a shop state just what you want. For then the merchant can go intelligently to work to sell you something else. The great art of commerce is to sell people what they don't want. What they do want will sell itself. But, probably it is no harder to live up to your reputation when you are young than it is to live it down when you are older.—Puck.

ITCHING RASH 16 YEARS.

Girl's Rash Spread and Grew Worse Under Specialist's Care—Perfect Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"When my daughter was a baby she had a breaking out behind the ears. The doctor said that she would outgrow it, and it did get somewhat better until she was about fifteen years old, and after that she could get nothing that would drive it away. She was always applying something in the way of salves. It troubled her behind the knees, opposite the elbows, back of the neck and ears, under the chin, and then it got on the face. That was about three years ago. She took treatment with a specialist and seemed to get worse all the time. We were then advised to try the Cuticura Remedies, and now I don't see any breaking out. Now Curley, 11-19 Sixteenth St., Bay City, Mich., May 20, 1906."

The Sequel. "Funny thing about Dubley. He said he needed a little whisky because he 'was run down.' 'Well, wasn't he run down?' 'I don't know about that, but I do know he was run in.'—The Catholic Standard and Times.

Troublesome Growth. "Does the child ever sleep still a minute?" asked the woman as the youngster sprawled noisily over the couch in a dozen squirming positions at once. The mother responded to her saying: "No," answering his mother. "They are growning when they do that, they say."

"Of course," said Tess at Miss Yermey's wedding, to Mr. Timmid, "the bride looks lovely, as brides always do."

"Yes," replied Jess, "but the bridegroom doesn't. He appears rather run down."

"Run down? Oh, yes; caught after a long chase."

No Nature Fake. The alleged case of a bird making a splash for its broken leg is no more wonderful than this: A Welsh rabbit, about to be devoured by an enemy, made itself stry and tied the strings to a plate, took and leapt in a brave effort to keep from being dragged to its doom.

I saw this with my own eyes but refrain from giving my right name for fear of drawing upon me displeasure.—Herald and Freyher.

Nathan Straus, an eastern philanthropist, has established in New York City a series of milk booths where pure sterilized milk is sold to the poor for one cent a bottle. Absolute anti-septic cleanliness is required by him in all branches of the enterprise. In cleaning the milk bottles he uses two things—hot water and BORAX. The glistening bottles testify to the effectiveness of this method.
