The Paris Waiters' Trick.

"I was in a Paris cafe," said the American tourist, "when there was a sudden quiver not far away, and I suspended my attention to everybody else, to see what the trouble was. It appeared that one of my countrymen, whom I had not noticed in entering, had dined at a table not far away, and when he received his check he handed the waiter a ten dollar gold piece. The waiter put the coin into his mouth and made change for $5 only. The Yankee kicked and swore there was a swindle, but the waiter took the $5 from his mouth and held it up and said: 'See! It is here. It is the coin he gave me. Is it not for me to apologize?'"

"It looked that way to me, but my countryman knew a thing or two. He grabbed the rascal by the throat and choked his mouth open, and, lo, a ten dollar gold piece dropped to the floor. The fellow had the $5 in his mouth to work the trick, and when I got to thinking the thing over I remembered that it had been successfully worked on me a dozen times over."—Chicago News.

The Ground Hog's Sleep.

The woodchuck is a curious shift, a case of nature outdoing herself. Winter spreads far and fast, and woodchuck, in order to keep ahead of danger, would need spreads far, but does not go deep—down only about four feet, and woodchuck, if he cannot escape overland, can perhaps go under land. So down he goes through the winter, down into a mild and even temperature, five long feet away—but as far away from the snow and cold as bedchamber among the beds of the distant Orinoco. Indeed woodchuck's is a further journey and even more wonderful than bedchamber, for these five feet carry him beyond the bounds of time and space into the mysterious realms of sleep, of suspended life, to the very gates of death. That he will return with bedchamber, that he will come up alive with the spring out of this dark way, is very strange.—Dallas Sharp in Atlantic.

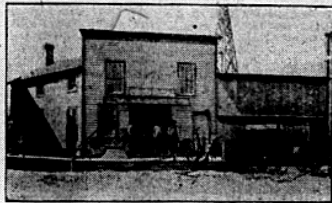

Children to Let.

Quite a number of children are done by the poorer class of mothers, who let their children to beggars at so much per hour. The blindling hier applies to the parents of a likely child, the price is agreed upon, a small amount paid down as a guarantee for the return of the little one, and the beggar forthwith sets out with his human implement to beg for the money of the public charity. The children whose task it is to soften the hearts of the passersby are required to possess special qualifications. They must have hungry looking faces, be first breakers and not very ugly, for a good looking child is more likely to earn extra pennies on account of its pretty face than a less favored competitor.—Madrid Herald.

The Freye Building as it Formerly Appeared and the Building as it is To-Day.

T. OLD BUILDING

THE NEW BUILDING

We draw your attention to the improvement that pleases all. The lot faces Railroad street which thing of the past and the other a reality in our business district. We see the former warehouse whose shabby appearance disfigured the town vicinity and we see the fine brick block that has taken its place. The credit for this change is due to the sagacity of Edward C. Groff, one of our ambitious young merchants. Contrary to many young men of the time who waste and spend their money Mr. Groff has placed the products of his parents and his own endeavors where not only he will be long remembered, but also where the village of Barrington is in debt to him for the

At the Majestic

Houdini, the hand cleft king who created a sensation around the world was so successful during his first week at the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, that it became necessary to engage him for another week. His feats of escaping from handcuffs of every description, from packing boxes, mail pouches and other chained and locked packing baskets have excited astonishment. No one seems to know how he accomplishes these feats but he never yet has failed. He jumped into the Chicago river from the Wells street bridge manacled and with weights on his feet. It was winter morning with the snow falling and the temperature well towards zero and yet cleft only in a bathing suit and with all these incumbrances, he released himself under water and was picked up by a waiting boat. Such an unheard of feat as this excited astonishment and wonder have followed his stage exhibitions. Another feature of his bill is provided by Edwin Stevens, the comedian whose "Evening with Houdini" is not only one of the most artistic but also one of the most entertaining of the new vaudeville acts. A comedy act in the line of burlesque minstrelsy is provided by the Farrell-Taylor trio whose work in this difficult line is said to be quite unequalled. Kelly and Violette the fashion plates of vaudeville will be one of the attractive features. Their singing, dancing and impersonations have scarcely been surpassed anywhere. In the way of expert acrobatics the Montrose Troupe may be depended upon to give a most entertaining exhibition. Popular Jimmie Barry and his company will present a rural skit full of amusing types and half a dozen other specialists complete the bill.

Want Historic Relics.

The Lake County Historical society is desirous of obtaining old books, papers, documents, letters and pictures of historical interest, especially those pertaining to Lake county.

War relics, battle flags, etc., are desirable. Relics of colonial times will be acceptable. Has any one relics of Lincoln, Grant and Logan? If any friends of the society have these and are willing to loan them, let the secretary, Robert M. Ingalls of Waukegan know and due acknowledgment will be made and all articles properly cared for. The society is in a position to keep them safely, having a room in the Carnegie library building in Waukegan for its sole use.

Club Property Will Be Sold.

All of the property of the Olympic club will be sold at auction by Master in Chancery Clarke at Waukegan Court House, Tuesday, December 10th, at one o'clock p. m. The club building located on the Lamey lot on Liberty St., near 4600. There will probably be an opportunity for some one to buy a building at a bargain.

Here's Good Advice.

O. S. Woolver, one of the best known merchants of LeRayville, N. Y., says: "If you are ever troubled with piles, apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured me of them for good 25 years ago." Guaranteed for sores, wounds, burns or abrasions. 25c at Barrington Pharmacy.

Two Ways of Looking at it.

There is a young artist in Washington who classes himself as of the impressionistic school and who, being somewhat out in drawing, generally makes up for his lack of technique by spreading color recklessly and counting on distance for his effect.

"Well," said a friend whom the artist had taken to see the work, "I don't want to foster you, old chap, but that is far and away the best stuff you have ever done. I congratulate you."

Much pleased, the artist was receiving the compliment with becoming modesty when he chanced again to glance at the picture and turned very red. The committee had hung it upside down.

Hurrying to the head of the committee, he was about to launch into a loud complaint when he was informed of the good news that an hour before the picture had been sold for $61. The original price mark had been $10—Lippincott's Magazine.

When Reynard Goes Hunting.

Those who have tried wild fowl shooting know how difficult a matter it is to approach within range without disturbing the birds. The fox's only weapon is his mouth, and the range is necessarily short, but for Reynard it proves all sufficient. His knowledge of the habits of his victims prompts him to a suitable lurking place among the withered rushes in a clump selected to hide the contour of his form and to match the color of his coat as far as possible. Lurking there, almost wholly immersed in water if need be, he waits his opportunity and seizes it. Well may his capture be proverbial, for there is no animal or bird on which he preys that can baffle his pursuit. Even the prickly armor of the hedgehog proves an inadequate protection against the teeth of his voracious prey. It is the thought of it, the smell of it, savors of a whole army of tragedies.—London Tit-Bits.

Six O'Clock Folk.

How many of our readers know what a "six o'clock man" is? Miss Spurgeon, one of the best writers in English at Bedford college, Baker street, in her country cottage and an old "half's mill" in the middle of Westleton Heath, Saxmundham. The other day a non-Suffolk lady told her that her customer's wife had often said, "We are six o'clock people," and she had taken it to mean "early risers." But soon after some one said that this lady's husband was "a six o'clock gentleman," and she knew that he didn't get up early she asked what the epithet meant and was told, "Upright, like the hands of a clock, and so on." Another use of the word in Suffolk is seen in "living upright"—that is, an independent means.—Westminster Gazette.

Backgrounds of the First Families.

While without doubt the corner of street car conductors and minor city employees isn't all that it might be, the public is hardly justified in denouncing the conductors in English at Bedford college, Baker street. Many years ago an illustrious citizen complained to old Mayor Quincy of Boston that the street sweepers were an ungoddennable lot.

The Harder Labor.

"What did you get the rubber gloves for?" they asked her as she passed them around to show how handsome they were. "You have a girl, haven't you? You don't have to wash the dishes."

Exceptional Case.

"They couldn't convict that forger. When he was caught he chewed up the forgery and swallowed it."
