Factionous Testators.

Will making often affords a man an unrivaled opportunity of paying off old scores and speaking his mind without any fear of unpleasant consequences to himself.

The great Duke of Marlborough evidently could not resist the temptation of a farewell slap at his duchess when he left her "10,000 wherewith to spoil Blenheim in her own way and 15,000 to keep clean and to law with."

There is also a distinct note of spitefulness in this extract from the testament of a Mr. Kerr who, after declaring that he would probably have left his widow 10,000 if she had allowed him to read his evening paper in peace, adds: "But you must remember, my dear, that whenever I commence reading you started playing and singing. You must therefore take the consequences. I leave you 10,000."—Grand Magazine.

How Not to Sleep.

Don't sleep on your left side, for it causes too great a pressure on the heart. Don't sleep on your right side, for it interferes with the respiration of that lung. Don't sleep on your stomach, for that interferes with the respiration of both lungs and makes breathing difficult. Don't sleep on your back, for this method of getting rest is bad for the nervous system. Don't sleep sitting in a chair, for your body falls into an unnatural position and you cannot get the necessary relaxation. Don't sleep standing up, for you may topple over and crack your skull. Don't sleep—Puck.

Time Was Money.

Farmers' Institute Meeting.

The seventh congressional district of the Cook County Farmers' Institute will hold a meeting in the village hall here, December 26th. A program of value has been prepared, and it now remains for the farmers to get the most good out of it by a large attendance, by asking questions, and by offering information in the discussions.

The institute is the place to get your farm problems solved, and to help other farmers to solve theirs. There is no question about the real benefit of the institute. It is well worth while for the farmer to sacrifice something to attend. But he must think about it before hand, plan to go and actually "get there" if he is to reap the benefit. There may be a great deal of entertainment in the institute, but it is for "business," for study, it is a brief farm school.

The address of welcome will be delivered by George Spunzer and Prof. Charles Farr assistant county Superintendent of Schools, will respond.

Prof. Fraser, head of the dairy department at the University of Illinois, has had charge of some valuable investigations the past several years. He will tell how to find the poor cows and how to increase the number of good cows by practical and economical feeding and breeding.

J. P. Mason, a dairyman of Elgin, will discuss the possibilities of dairy business and is able to give information that has been secured through years of experience.

Fred H. Rankin, of the University of Illinois, will address the meeting on Experiment Station Work, and E. A. Logg will discuss the growing of corn.

Mrs. M. M. Bangs of Chicago will speak on a message to deliver and she knows how to deliver it, so that her hearers will get her thought. This institute should be one of the best ever held in the county and the presence of the farmers and their participation in the discussions will insure that result. Good farming depends upon careful study quite as much as upon hard work.

At McVicker's.

"The Chansman," most sensational of American plays, will return to McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, for a farewell engagement of two weeks, beginning Sunday, December 8th. This is the drama that was suppressed as a political move by the city authorities of Philadelphia and around which a storm of discussion has raged wherever presented. It is the story of the reconstruction era in the south and of the part played by the Ku Klux Klan in rescuing that portion of the country from the horrors of carpet bag rule.

In the cast this year are the best members of the two companies that toured the country last season, headed by Franklin Ritchie as Captain Caneron and Eugene Hayden as Esbie Stoneman. The cavemen of the Ku Klux Klan and the cavalry horses used by the Klan are the most thrilling features of the show. As to the scenic production, it is the largest ever directed from Chicago on a three years' trip around the world, visiting England, South Africa, Australia and the Pacific Isles. The regular McVicker prices of 25 cents to $1.00 prevail throughout this engagement and mail orders for seats accompanied by remittances will be promptly filled if forwarded to Messrs. J. and W. Dingwall, McVicker's Theatre, Chicago.

Club Meetings.

The president of the Woman's club, Mrs. John Schwenn, received word Wednesday evening that Mrs. George Watkins, president of the Illinois State Federation of Women's clubs, was quite ill and could not visit Barrington Thursday afternoon as expected. Mrs. Watkins expressed regret at being unable to be present at the meeting at Mrs. Ezra Cannon's.

Mrs. G. F. Mattison gave a very fine paper she had written on, "The Novel and its Influence Morally," telling of standard fiction of the past and present and the effects produced by well known books and their characters.

Mrs. F. E. Lines by special urging again read before the club her paper on "Illinois."

A young ladies quartette, the Misses Blocks Doehner, A. and M. Plage sang two selections. A luncheon was served and there were nearly forty present.

The Thursday club gathered at the home of Mrs. William Thorpe this week where Mrs. J. I. Sears was in hand basket weaving. There was a good attendance and cards had started a basket. Mrs. Sears also gave a talk on "Basketry" telling of the variety of baskets made. Mrs. G. W. Spunzer read a Christmas story.

The Friday Pleasure club were entertained with a club party Saturday night at Mrs. A. W. Sutherland's on West street. Gentlemen friends were invited and prizes were won by Mesdames Sutherland, Farrell and C. Witt, and Messrs C. Abel, H. Donica and A. Sutherland. Mrs. Richard Strobach of the Kirschner farm is hostess for the club today.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society met Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. O. F. Mattison's. Interesting papers were given by H. H. Hubbard and Miss Mildred Elfrink and a reading by Mrs. John Schwenn.

Bazaar Successful.

Through the efforts of about twenty young ladies, who worked together with unusual harmony and interest, the Baptist bazaar last Friday evening in the church parlor was pronounced a very pleasing affair and $83 were taken in.

The young people's booths were the candy, fancy and Japan set room which were all prettily and appropriately arranged.

Five members of the Dorcas sewing society assisted the girls in making their bazaar successful, serving a fine chicken pie supper and managing an apron and quilt booth. They were: Mesdames Peck, Brockway, Ulitsch, Ota and Colekins.

The candy booth was in charge of Misses V. Lines, Wooding, M. Peck, Colten and Ulitsch; aprons were sold by Misses A. and E. Radke, Williams, Tuttle and Hauk; waitresses were Misses Morrison, G. Palmer, Gorman, M. Patton, Jencks, Ota and F. Peck and the sale of fancy articles was conducted by Misses Wagner, J. Lines, Silberman, H. Palmer and E. Wilner. In the tea room were Misses E. Walters, Thorpe, Lawson and Brandt.

Miss Florence Peck, as chairman of the bazaar promoters, is receiving much praise for her many hours of work in the interest of the bazaar.

A Dangerous Deadlock.

That sometimes terminates fatally, is the stoppage of liver and bowel functions. To quickly end this condition without disagreeable sensations, Dr. King's New Life Pills should always be your remedy. Guaranteed absolutely satisfactory in every case or money back, at Barrington Pharmacy 25c.

Can Animals Enjoy a Joke?

Many instances have been collected to prove that the sense of humor exists in the lower animals. A puppy on one occasion stole a bone from a dog that was chained up and sat gnawing it in capture just out of reach of the chain, wagging its tail and apparently enjoying the humor of the situation to the full.

Monkeys, again, will chatter in huge gales when they succeed in pilfering the spectacles of an old lady, and cats have been known to purr with delight when they have been successful in cheating a rival of some dainty morsel.

Animals are also subject to sorrow, and horses, cattle and deer have been known to weep at the loss of their progeny.—London Answers.

The Soft Answer.

During a municipal election a lady canvasser secured one vote for her candidate by her ready wit. She had favorably advanced several reasons in favor of the policy of her party to a high old gentleman, who protesting that he could not take the hind leg of a donkey.

"Well," she replied, "it would give me a great deal more pleasure to drive him to a polling station than to the hospital."

The retort so amused the voter that he finally promised to support her side.—London Globe.

"Ma, who does this stuf so much when Mr. Spunzer is here?"

"I think, dear, she is trying to test his love."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mexico Not a Minor State.

No American statesman will be likely to imitate the recent blunder of Mr. Choate at The Hague who he thought less referring to the republic of Brazil as "a minor state." Brazil is a long ways off from New York and Washington and is seldom thought of at all except as a country to trade with when not upset by revolutions. Mexico is not only a next door neighbor, but this nation has had a lot to do with the Land of the Montezumas first and last. Mexico was a land of revolt when we first began to take interest in it, and it is unquestionably due to United States influence that has brought out of chaos there within the last fifty years. General Zach Taylor had in mind only a little "spoiling raid" when he told Santa Anna in 1846 that if he couldn't make his Mexicans behave the Americans would cross the Rio Grande and do the job themselves. But it was a prophetic bit with promise. The arrogant dictator was finally and his body alone country set on the road toward republicanism and a brighter destiny.

It was the weakness, the aggressiveness and the power of the United States, too, which in the sixties saved Mexico from European control and placed the rule in the hands of the best elements of her own people. Mexico is great in extent, great in resources and great in possibilities for rapid improvement. Her population is twice as large as that of Canada, which holds a similar geographical relation to us on the north. Hundreds of millions of dollars of American capital are invested in Mexican enterprises. Naturally there is a strong inclination on both sides of the line for political and diplomatic co-operation between the two countries. A good neighbor is a good foundation for a nation as well as for a family.

French Arms in North Africa.

France may be counted lucky if her success at Casablanca puts an end to her troubles in Morocco. It is now just sixty years since Abd-el-Kader, the Algerian patriot, surrendered to the French and put an end to the struggle which had lasted eighteen years. The outbreak in Algiers in 1820 was caused by a royal message sent in answer to an appeal by the nominal ruler of Algiers to the effect that a king of France could not confederate to correspond with a dey of Algiers.

Abd-el-Kader, then a young Arab student, took up the cause and organized a revolution against France. At one time 20,000 Arab cavalry attacked and defeated the French. Finally the tide turned, and Abd-el-Kader was obliged to take refuge in Morocco, where he found harboring.

France at last defeated the Moors, who were the friends of the Algerian chief, and they abandoned the cause of Abd-el-Kader, who in turn attacked the Moors, his late allies. In his last throw Abd-el-Kader was defeated, and he surrendered to the French on the 22d day of December, 1817. The war in Algiers was a costly adventure for France, and at one time she had 100,000 men in the field. Will tribes continued to wage a guerrilla warfare in the mountain districts. Abd-el-Kader was held a prisoner by the French king, but when Napoleon III. came into power he liberated him and for his subsequent services to the second empire invested the conquered heroism of France with the cross of the Legion of Honor. Several noted commanders of the armies of the empire earned their spurs in the Algerian campaigns.

Europe still seems disposed to vote The Hague conference a fizzle. Most of the critics declare that it has accomplished nothing worth talking about. Considering the predictions made regarding the outcome, it is not surprising that the meeting has not been what peace advocates hoped for, but as they are a patient lot, likely to persist in their efforts, good will be sure to come from them in the end.

One can hardly blame the man who has just returned from a vacation trip with Jamestown at the end of it for getting warm under the collar when he is confronted with the advice to "buy Christmas presents early and avoid the rush."

Men on Mars fifteen feet tall? They are having a high old time of it no doubt, but probably those Martian signals mean that they'd like to get dime museum engagements down this way.

Weggs it is all over scientists get a more respectful hearing than before for their positive assertions that there is no such thing as an equinoctial storm.

Dr. Wiley is said to be organizing another squad for food experiments. In these stomachs will be almost as much in demand as brains.

Hunters are now engaged in trying to solve the old mystery about why a man is so much easier to hit than a deer.

Japan is importing more American mules. Now an even better-having for war is to be expected.
