Those Broken Ranks

A Memorial Day Poem by Marion Connelly Smith.

Sound in our dreaming ears
And, hark, the battle drums swell
Across the gulf of years!

How strange, how swift, the after days
Spring after spring go by!
Voices of sorrow and of pain
In loosening memories die.

The ranks are thinned, their work long done,
The stately heads grown white,
And brave old comrades pass by one
And stand beyond our sight.

AND, HARK, THE BATTLE DRUMS SWELL!
New hopes, new triumphs, projects wide,
Have filled the nation's heart,
Strong men, true children of our side,
Now fill their destined part,
But still they stand—those broken ranks—

We share with spirits dear
The losses of a people's youth
Upcoming year by year.

Ah, how soon these passing hours
Will vanish from our view,
Their very memories be as sheets
Of men we know!

Yet from the past
With glory fraught,
Their praise
Still shall ring

And tribute to their graves
Be brought
In lavish bloom
Of spring.

Fired First and Last Shot.
It is a fact not generally known that the man who fired the first gun in the civil war killed himself with another shot not long after the close of the conflict. Edmund Hunter, who opened the bombardment of Fort Sumter by firing the first cannon shot, owned a large plantation on the James river, with many slaves. He was an old man, but intensely loyal to the south. By the fortunes of war his estate was ruined. So disappointed and humiliated was Hunter by the failure of the southern cause that on the 17th of June, 1865, at Amelia Court House, Va., the old man loaded a musket and killed himself.

The German play at the school house Monday evening, June 1st, will be funny and interesting from the first. Admission 25c. proceeds to add to the equipment for the German department.

Where Local Option Helps.
Local option is certainly proving a good thing for Woodstock. We understand that seventy-five round trip tickets from Harvard were purchased Saturday evening. We suggest to the gentlemen who did so, convenient to carry suit cases of these emergency trips that Woodstock merchants can supply them guaranteed to carry twelve quarts.—Woodstock Sentinel.

Farragut the Brave

By ROBERTUS LOVE

Of Farragut the brave
Let us send a ringing salute
Down the past,
When the fortress cannon crashed
And the admiral was lashed
To the mast,
When the shells shrieked and broke
On the Hartford's hull of oak.

Not in ships forged of steel
All the batteries of Mobile
Did he dare,
Yet the glory of his fight
Scintillates enduring light
On the air,
With a far shining flame
To illuminate his name.
