COUNTY CHARITIES

How the County Takes Care of Its Poor. Written for Barrington Woman's Club.

The prayer-book says "such as are insensible to the miseries of the poor shall have no share in the heavenly kingdom" and we all know the words of the Christ "the poor ye have always with ye." Yes, the world over may be found those with few, or none, of the necessities of life, and but for the aid given by the government, the philanthropists and the charities what greater want might exist than does? We live in a community in which poverty in all its misery is scarcely known, and there are but few of us who have really come in direct personal contact with all the sufferings and unhappiness resultant therefrom.

As we read of the needy we pity them, some of us give liberally according to our means, but how many truly realize what it is to lack the necessities of life, not to mention its little luxuries and pleasures? Our "poverty" lies mainly in our lack of contentment with our splendid allotment of earthly riches and our failure to appreciate what we do have.

Following the phrase "clarity begins at home," let us consider what need there is in our immediate surroundings. Fortunately we can say that there are no poor here. No doubt a few cases can be pointed out but they are so few, and generally so temporary, that "clarity," in the sense of "an aid to physical wants," is not needed. (But, too noticeable, alas, are many matters which our town philanthropists might improve such as the great need of a public library, a village park and an adequate public hall.)

So, the charity calls of these parts are not a burden to anyone, even to the public official in charge of the poor, namely, the supervisor. Two townships of two counties are represented in our village and although the government of counties may differ slightly, in this respect, the care of the poor, they do not, so that what is true of the conduct of county charity of Cook township, Lake county, of Barrington township, Cook county.

Due inquiry brings out the information that in the past five years less than a dozen appeals for aid were recorded in Cuba, and that Barrington township records no more. Owing to the vast difference in population of the two counties the expenses in this work are of course far from equal. About $18,000 to $20,000 are expended annually in Lake county, principally in Waukegan where great need is occasioned in families by factory accidents to the fathers and husbands. Half of the county aid expenses are incurred in Waukegan. While the enormity of the expense in Cook county may be understood by the following list of appropriations in the year 1907: county hospital, $387,782; Dunning institutions, $130,855; county agent, $106,326; total for charities, $624,963 and admissions to charitable institutions increasing.

State laws demand that relatives of a poor person, (father, grandfather, mother, grandmother, children, grandchildren, brothers and sisters), shall support him unless he became a pauper through intemperance or bad conduct, then no demands can be made on others than parent or child. The law provides the order of responsibility resting on relatives and provision is made to enforce their help, or partial support, in case it can be proved that it is impossible for the relatives to assist wholly. Each county court cares for such decisions when reported by the states attorney of the district, or the overseer of the poor in each township.

Sometimes people who have learned to depend on county aid wherever they live, will exhaust the resources of one county and then move to another with the same desire for assistance and necessities, without working for them, and people having dependent relatives will send them away into another county seeking aid, so that a law is existent in Illinois that a fine of $100 shall be forfeited for deliberately taking and leaving a pauper in any county. A person must live in a county one year before being eligible to aid, and the county board may return to the county from which he came, any pauper not entitled to aid, or may demand the first county to pay reasonable charges for support of the pauper.

In some counties each township provides for its poor, but most of the counties in this state have a county fund for the purpose. The supervisor of each township is the overseer, unless there are 4000 or more inhabitants, when upon request of the supervisor, an "overseer of the poor" will be appointed by the county board.

An overseer of the poor may find his responsibilities light or burdensome, according to the vicinity. Every person made dependent by bodily infirmity, idleness, lunacy or unavoidable causes, and not supported by relatives or at the poor house, must be suitably relieved by him. And if, as is the case sometimes, a county has no poor house, arrangements may be made with good people for the care of the pauper. He is under oath to be humane to all and not partial to any. But if a case arises where temporary assistance is needed, then the supervisor is allowed to use his own judgment. He can give orders on merchants for fuel, clothing, food and medicine to such an extent as he thinks best and the bills are allowed after due consideration, by the county board. This is one of the hard tasks of a supervisor, for he must investigate the case and judge of the worthiness of the applicants and keep them limited in their requests.

The Berry horse sale Saturday was well attended and over twenty horses were sold.

Miss Mary Stevens of Barrington visited Wauconda friends this week, returning Wednesday.

S. W. McClain returned his tax books Saturday, and will soon move his family to Libertyville. Erskine Oaks came in from Chicago Saturday, and he and family will soon go to New Mexico to secure government land.

The ball at Oakland hall, St. Patrick's evening was well attended over sixty-five tickets being sold. Mr. and Mrs. Sorenson are popular with the young people and are being patronized by many from a distance. Barrington sent up a "dozen delegation" Tuesday evening.

son of a township becomes ill and has no place to go nor money and perhaps he may die away from friends. The care of such a case is the duty of the supervisor. The county will even ship a body home for burial, if relatives can be found and are unable to bear the expense. And the best of medicines and doctors are offered to such paupers.

The sting about accepting county aid is also established in publicity thereof, and that has been the means of assistance being withheld from many worthy people. Their pride makes them suffer unaided, for it is required of the supervisor to keep full records of the case as to age, sex, infirmities, etc., and in Lake county all such data is published annually with county board reports. Some counties do not make public any charities, but this leads to fraud and chances "to work the county."

A poor house centrally located is also established and managed by the board of supervisors. They appoint the keeper, all necessary assistants, fix their salaries and define their duties. Lake county's poor farm is at Libertyville and Mr. Appleby, the county judge and its benefactor since 1895, has been there twenty-five years. He is ever ready to show visitors around the buildings and grounds which are well equipped and maintained. A visit there is quite interesting and full of excellent lessons.

There are about seventy people there now, of which forty-two are insane; there are no children, as the aim is to place children in adopted homes. This is a strict duty of a supervisor, and he benefits plainly only temporarily. A rate per day is fixed by the board also for each township to pay for any person it has sent to the poor house. Cuba township has no inmates there now, nor has Barrington township, at Dunning, unless several old people who were there

Walter Harrower, aged 64 years, of South Sheridan road, Waukegan, for thirty-five years a resident of Cuba township, was stricken with paralysis Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock at the farm home of his daughter, Mrs. Martin Olson, northeast of Waukegan.

John Ryder Randall, who lately died, was the author of "Maryland, My Maryland," one of the stirring songs that the war produced. The words were inspired by the encounter between the Massachusetts troops and the people of Baltimore. They were soon after sung to the old tune, "The Ragged Soldier." Thus, remarks the Youth's Companion, from the opening of the war the south had a swinging song. "Maryland, My Maryland" caught the ear of the north, and although it is explicitly local, has become a national hymn.

The proposition to furnish municipal free breakfasts to school children in the tenement districts in New York because many pupils have, of necessity, such a slim breakfast that when they get to school they cannot do good work, has appealed to many at first sight, says the Boston Globe, but the officials of organized charity in that city object strenuously and with some degree of reason to the free-breakfast idea. First, on the ground that it is not legal, and secondly that it tends to pauperization.

THOMAS TO SUCCEED EVANS

WILL TAKE COMMAND OF FLEET AT SAN FRANCISCO.

Rear Admiral Perry is to Bring Selected Battleships Home by Way of Suez Canal.

Washington.—At Admiral Evans' personal request he will be relieved of the command of the battleship fleet on reaching San Francisco. Rear Admiral Thomas, the next in seniority, will succeed Admiral Evans in command of the fleet.

Rear Admiral Charles S. Perry will bring the battleship fleet from San Francisco to the Atlantic coast by way of the Suez canal. This detail was announced by Secretary Metcalf late Tuesday.

Admiral Evans will retain command of the fleet until after the grand naval review to be held at San Francisco May 8. The admiral retires in August. It is expected he will return at once to Washington. Secretary Metcalf said, however, that he had no special duty in mind for the admiral before his relinquishment of command and the date of his retirement. Rear Admiral Thomas, who will succeed Admiral Evans in command until the homeward journey begins, is scheduled to retire in October. When he relinquishes the command to Admiral Perry it is expected that he also will return to Washington. The vacancies caused by the retirement of Admirals Evans and Thomas will be filled by the promotion to that rank of Capt. Stanton, Schroeder and Richard Walcott, each of whom now commands a battleship in the fleet.

FEARS TO OFFEND JAPAN.

House Committee Makes Big Cut in Fortifications Budget.

Washington.—The fortifications bill, carrying a total appropriation of $8,210,611 instead of the $38,432,345 asked for by the war department, was reported Monday to the house committee on appropriations by Chairman Smith of the sub-committee on fortifications.

The sub-committee felt, aside from other considerations, that to recommend an appropriation of $38,000,000 for fortifications at this time would be an action which might be very reasonably construed by Japan as an official declaration that the United States was preparing against a war with that nation. The committee has recommended practically nothing for continental United States and has appropriated mainly for the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands.

Tillman Scores Roosevelt.

Washington.—Citing what he claimed to be "cold-blooded facts" to show "carelessly" responsibility for many of the evils which exist, Senator Tillman in a speech made in the senate Monday said:

"In the same category of 'keeping the word of commerce to the ear and breaking them to the hope,' if the newspapers are to be believed, he is even now planning a truce with these same rich manufacturers and is ready to grant amnesty to all past trust offenders."

His Choice.

A country clergyman on his round of visits interviewed a youngster as to his acquaintance with Bible stories.

"My lad," he said, "you have, of course, heard of the parable of the prodigal son?"

"Yes, sir," shyly answered the boy, whose mother had inducted him in sacred history. "Yes, sir."

"Good," said the clergyman. "Now which of them do you like the best of all?"

The boy squirmed, but at last, heeding his mother's frowns, he replied:

"I guess I like that one where somebody loses and finds."

NOT SO BAD AS HE LOOKED.

She—Then you admit that you only married me for my money?

He—No, my dear, you know that at least I'm not a fool.

MUSIC STUDIES

Should Have Steady Nerves.

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive and any habit like coffee drinking may so upset the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practice next to impossible. I practice from seven to eight hours a day and study Harmony two hours," writes a Mich. music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could only practice a few minutes at a time, and mother said I would have to drop my music for a year."

"This was terribly discouraging as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided I would test it for a while."

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never tasted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music."

"I now practice as usual, do my studying and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began."

"I cannot too strongly recommend Postum to musicians who practice half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my appreciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others." "There's a Reason."

The Church

It Has Failed
But It Will
Yet Be Great

By PROF. CHARLES ZUEBLIN, Sociologist.

THE church is not useless; it is going to be greater than ever. But it has failed, as the municipality has failed, to serve the interests of the common life. The church has been too worldly to let religion expand; it has been too unworshipful to give people a chance. The church has never been democratic enough to allow the people to voice their sentiments. There has always been dominance of the hierarchy if not of the clergy. The people do not voice their opinions in religious matters, and are not expected to have them.

It is also the great weakness of all government that we do not trust the people enough. We are confronted in our American traditions with the difficulty of a national church and the need of a national organization of religion. We keep our religion now for the seventh day, and look upon the clergyman and the politician as different beings. We divorce the separate aspects of life from each other, yet all these special interests are founded, like language itself, on the common life of the people.

If we go to the people for our language, why not go to them for the sources of our inspiration? If we went to the people, learned their needs and tried to incorporate them, we should get more efficiency. Might we not appeal to the laity to get a new infusion of blood?

The church is trying to get at our workmen. It doesn't let them voice themselves. Let us open our school houses on Sunday and give them an opportunity of expressing themselves in worship. Then we can afford to tax the private religious houses if people want to go to them.

In England they let people talk all sorts of nonsense. It's the best safety valve. Our religious life lacks spontaneity, and moves along conventional channels. The municipality is our best unit. We are going to regenerate our municipal government before we regenerate our national government. We are going to extend the town meetings and multiply the basis of free expression. It will give us the first leverage to the idea that there is one representation in the life of all, and that is the state.

Heroism of Darning Socks

By ROBERTSON WALLACE.

To many women life is such, that to face it, demands more courage than to face death. To live for one's kind and kin is often more heroic than to die for one's country. Not all women's lives are cast in pleasant places. There is the daily toil of the young girl who struggles to earn an honest livelihood, seeing all too little of the joy of life, and sipping all too early of the cup of sorrow and disappointment. Scarcely can she feed or clothe herself as she should be fed and clothed. Her outlook and prospects are limited. From the drab surroundings of the present she may look back to the gray past or forward into the menacing darkness of the future. She is balanced on the brink of the infinities. A perilous position! But she does not quail. She is brave—a heroine without knowing it.

Again, take the case of the suburban family whose growing requirements take their daily toll of the planning brain and unflagging spirit of the mother. They are doomed by force of circumstances to live the "respectable" life of the suburbs—a condition of existence as far removed from the simple life as east from west. The problem of living a comparatively full life on a superlatively empty purse is indeed a difficult one, but must be faced by the women on whom devolves the dire responsibility of keeping up appearances. The children must be dressed, fed, schooled, be entertained and entertain in conformity with the ideas of the exclusive suburb in which they reside. The suburban matron's wardrobe must withstand the fire of criticism. Now to cultivate the fine flower of a suburban life on a poor soil is really heart-breaking work. Nobody's income is ever so ample as it is made to appear.

But the wife has learned the secret of perennial opulence. She is the keeper of the keys of social life and death. Does she not serve as a slave at home that she may shine as a queen abroad? Does she not strive and struggle half the day that her husband and children may frolic and frolic half the night? She makes apparent extravagance possible because of her genius for small economies. She saves that others may waste. She plots and plans that husband and children may be free from petty cares. She has to lay out every penny so that it shall appear to return the value of two. In hours snatched from rest she rings the changes on the evanescent garments of children, making new things from old ones. She darns her husband's socks and repairs what other things he may require. She keeps the peace amongst inharmonious relatives, for the children's sakes. In a word, is she not a brave woman? Is she not one of the heroines of the suburbs? I am sure she is. For true it is that unheard of heroines, like unheard melodies, are sweeter than those whose names are on every tongue.

Card Players Are Gamblers

By REV. F. E. HOPKINS, D. D., Chicago.

Men and women learn to play the piano without wanting to bet every time they sit down to the instrument that they can play faster than someone else. They can learn to dance without wanting to bet they can remain on the floor until everybody else is exhausted. They can go to the theater and enjoy it without gambling that they can remember more lines of the play than the man on the other side of the aisle; but as soon as men and women learn to play cards the amusement loses its interest if there is not a stake. Herein lies the danger and the evil in card-playing.

The prize may be $100,000, such as some newspaper dream writer recently said exchanged hands at a poker game, or it may be a water bottle or $5, "to buy what you prefer, you know," or just car fare, or "a little house money." It is the prize men and women play for and not the mere pleasure. If you do not believe this, take the trouble to learn how many card parties have long existed without prizes.

Card-playing destroys the art of conversation, discourages sociability, limits the social sphere, turns what should be friendly meetings into money-making chances, sets a bad example, and the inveterate card-player is a useless citizen.

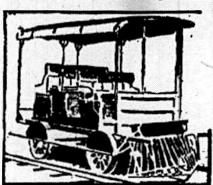

TEXAS RAILROAD'S MOTOR CAR.

General Roadmaster Employs One to Make Inspection Tour of System.

Completing a tour of the lines of the Cotton Belt in Texas in the company's new motor car, General Roadmaster J. J. McCarthy of Mount Pleasant was in Fort Worth Monday morning.

The car, No. 2429, is of the largest pattern, seating nine people comfortably, is of the Sheffield shops, and cost about $1,500. The Cotton Belt is one of the first Texas roads to provide its officials with such a car for close inspection work, according to the Fort Worth Record.

"I am finishing a tour of every foot of Texas track of the Cotton Belt," said Mr. McCarthy, "and have been on the trip for two weeks. I expect to finish soon. The car works beautifully and 'not an accident has occurred. On the trip a motorman has operated it and a conductor was in charge, as we had regular train orders and operated as a special. We averaged about 20 miles per hour when traveling, but could have made better speed had it been necessary. Stops were made at every switch and where every section or extra gang was at work, and the most minute inspection made all the way. I dare say it was an close an inspection as was ever made in Texas.

The advantages of motor car inspection becomes obvious. By such slow, close inspection, when stops can be made at will, and the inspector can step out and scrutinize the tracks, tie, switches, roadbed, etc., no defect should escape the eye, and many should be discovered that would result in averting possible wrecks. I believe the motor has come to stay and that its usefulness will soon be recognized. And not far off is the day when motor cars for railroad inspection will be generally conceded to be indispensable.

The cost of operation is declared greatly less than a special train.

STATE RAILROAD IN CHINA.

Designed to Open Up Rich Section of the Country.

Reports from Peking state that the railway between Tientsin and Chinkiang is to be built without delay. This road, one of the most important links of the Chinese railway system, will be 600 miles in length and for the greater part of its course will parallel the Grand canal. An agreement for the construction of this line was signed by the Chinese government on the one part and by the Hongkong and Shanghai banking corporation, Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., and the Deutsche-Asiatische bank on the other, in May, 1899. The syndicate was authorized to issue an imperial five per cent. loan of about $25,000,000, the actual amount to be determined after the survey. Internal disturbance delayed matters. General supervision was to be exercised by a board consisting of five members, three members of which were to be European and two Chinese.

A quick construction of the line would mean much. Kinschow will, when it is built, be in direct rail communication with Berlin and Shanghai, by means of the Shanghai-Nankin line, which passes through Chinkiang, will also be connected with North China and Europe. Great Britain and Germany being especially benefited. A most populous part of the empire will be opened up to trade and mining and other industries will be given an impetus which will beneficially affect the foreigner.

Wreck Narrowly Averted.

An old accident took place on the Jersey Central road that was full of possibilities in the way of a wreck. An empty locomotive was going toward Jersey City running backward. When running thus an engine is in a peculiarly dangerous position, particularly likely to be thrown from the track, for the light tender wheels usually mount the slightest obstruction. The engine ran into an old crocodile that had been placed squarely across the rails by some would-be train wrecker. Instead of climbing the tie and jumping the rails, the wheels of the tender sank deep into the wood, ceased to revolve and slid the tie along the rails in front of them.

It was afterwards calculated that the crocodile was pushed along in this manner for fully five miles before the engineer found out the state of affairs, and even then he only learned that something was wrong by smelling the smoke from the crocodile, which began to burp from the friction.

China's Progress in Railroads.

By a recent report it appears that there are 3,746 miles of railway in operation in China, 1,622 miles under construction and still other lines soon to be undertaken. The total is yet very small for such a huge country, but the progress of the last ten or fifteen years points clearly to a breaking down of the old objections to railways and gives assurance of more rapid development in the future.

FOR TARIFF REVISION

IOWA REPUBLICANS APPROVE THE OHIO PLATFORM PLAN.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR TAFT

Senator Allison Warmly Indorsed—Cummins Followers Declare That They Will Support the "Stand-Patters."

Des Moines, Ia.—The Republican state convention Wednesday elected four delegates-at-large to the national convention, instructed them to vote for William H. Taft, indorsed Senator William E. Allison by a vote of 672 1/2-24 to 507 7/24, and approved the plank of the Ohio platform calling for a revision of the tariff at a special session of congress.

The Allison people dominated the convention from its opening to its closing, and said their own way throughout. The Cummins people, although defeated in the convention, took special delight in having, as delegates from Polk, their home county, to indorse a plank calling for revision of the tariff, and they made a point of frequently reminding the Allison people of the fact.

When the chairman of the committee on resolutions read the plank declaring that Senator Allison had served his party and his country well, a delegate from Polk, home county of Cummins, interrupted with "and the result railroads."

When the platform announced that the senator possessed strength for all emergencies, another member of the same delegation asked sarcastically: "Then why don't he use it?"

The session was called to order by Francis P. Woods, chairman of the state central committee. He surrendered the gavel to Attorney General H. W. Byers of Harlan, the temporary chairman, who made an eloquent address which aroused the delegates to much enthusiasm. At the conclusion of Attorney General Byers' speech there resulted the various district caucuses.

When the permanent chairman was C. G. Saunders.

ASKS MERCY FOR ORCHARD.

Judge Pronounces Death Sentence But Recommends Commutation.

Caldwell, Idaho.—Harry Orchard was sentenced to death Wednesday for the series of murders the confession of which shocked the world. But after all he may not pay the penalty which his confession in prison has not turned a hand to escape.

Stating that he believed Orchard in his testimony in the trials of William D. Haywood and George A. Pettibone for the murder of James W. McLaughlin, the jurist, Frank Steunenberg told the exact truth, attempting to conceal nothing. Judge Wood recommended that the state board of pardons commute Orchard's sentence of death to imprisonment in the penitentiary. The sentence of death was pronounced in accordance with the plea of guilty entered by Orchard Tuesday last week, when he was arraigned.

RUSSIANS IN DEADLY DUEL.

St. Petersburg.—Lieut. Gen. Smirnov was probably fatally wounded in a duel fought here Wednesday with Lieut. Gen. Fock. The men met in the riding school of the Chevalier Guard regiment and fought with pistols, a distance of 20 paces separating them when the shots were exchanged. The duel was caused by the memorandum sent by Gen. Smirnov on the steps of Port Arthur in which he questioned the courage of Gen. Fock. The latter considered that his honor and reputation were involved and challenged the author of the memorandum.

GOV. GUILD VERY ILL.

Condition of Massachusetts Executive Is Pronounced Critical.

Boston.—It was announced Wednesday night that Gov. Curtis Guild, who has been ill for two weeks, is in a critical condition. His physician, Dr. Frederick B. Winslow, found the governor so seriously ill that it was decided to call two other physicians into consultation, Dr. F. C. Shattuck and Elliott P. Josline were summoned.

Postmaster Route Safe-Blowers.

St. Louis, Mo.—Postmaster David J. Smith West Nyack made a single-handed attack early Wednesday upon three burglars who had dynamited the post office safe, and wounded one of the men, so that it is believed he will die. The others escaped.

Southern Financier Dies.

New Orleans.—John S. Rainey, prominent in southern financial circles, died here Wednesday in the sixty-second year of his age.

Des Moines Fears Coal Famine.

Des Moines, Ia.—Des Moines is facing a coal famine. On April 1 every mine in the state of Iowa will close down. Not a ton of coal will be mined. Just how long the mines will remain closed cannot be told now, but coal dealers believe that the shut-down will be for a month at least. Every mining company in this city is storing its coal now. Factories and large consumers of coal have prepared for the shut-down. Many of them have leased extra ground and have been storing coal.

CLIMATE IS IDEAL

GREAT WEALTH ACQUIRED IN GROWING GRAIN.

Writing from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, W. H. Ellwanger, who was formerly a resident of Green Mountain, Iowa, says: "The climate in summer is ideal for growing grain. Less chance of sunshine, no bad storms. We never need to guard against cyclones; I never saw a better climate in my life. We made more money in 1904 than in any previous five years in central Iowa—one of the best districts in the state." But Mr. Ellwanger was a resident of the Iowa, and it might be more interesting to read what a farmer has to say about Western Canada. From hundreds of letters all filled with words of praise, recounting success in Western Canada there has been one selected. It is as follows:

Payton, Sask., Canada.

Dec. 10th, 1907.

To Whom This May Address February 3, 1907, from Montgomery, Iowa, and a homesteaded 25 miles north of Payton. It was cold when I moved here but it did not stay cold long; it broke up the 8th of February, and was not so cold after that but the spring was late on account of the heavy snow fall, but in spite of the late spring I saw better grain than I ever saw in the states, raised this year. I helped a man finish sowing oats the 4th of July and they made fair oats. In a good year oats will go 100 bushels to the acre and wheat 25 to 50; all root crops do well here. I saw turnips weigh 7 and 8 pounds. In the potatoes this year that measured 1 1/4 inches one way and 1 1/8 the other in circumference. This is a fine stock country; hay in abundance, good water; plenty of fuel, free and plenty of building material—the government gives us timber to saw into lumber and we can get it sawed for about $5.00 per thousand. All small fruit grows wild here, there are ducks, geese, grouse, pheasants, deer, moose, and antelope. I was over to Turtle Lake yesterday where there is lots of fishing being done this winter. I saw about a carload of white fish in one place. I gave 25 cents for 86 pounds of fish. What do you think of that, Brother Yankee? I think this is a fine place both to make money and to live. There was an old man over visiting his brother-in-law. Now this man owns land close to Des Moines, Iowa, and is in good circumstances, but he took a homestead and says he will be content if he can only put in the rest of his days in Canada. He would get up in the morning and look out of the door and say: "If you wouldn't be in Canada?" Now I have been in 13 different states in the United States, and I never saw the chance that there is here for a man that has a little muscle and a little brains. Three cheers for Canada! (Signed.)

Small Savings and Investments.

While the advisability of setting up postal savings banks is being considered it is well to look beyond and think of the future of the savings gathered through Uncle Sam's agency, assuming that such banks are to be opened. It seems to be the experience in France that the government savings banks are used by the thrifty as places of temporary deposit and that the accumulations in time go into interest bearing bonds within reach of the hand known to be as good as gold. It is a passion with the French to own something which keeps growing in value. Probably it is a hereditary trait, dating back to the period when all the land in France was owned by the nobility, who refused to sell. Since the great revolution the number of small landowners in France has increased wonderfully, but yet immense sums of money find their way annually "from the stockings of the peasants," as the saying is, to government treasure chests in exchange for securities which the owner can handle and keep by him.

Encouragement to thrift should go to the length of placing means of acquisition within reach of the humblest wage earner. Instead of limiting bond issues to $1,000 certificates there might be certificates of $100, and the one who began saving would look upon that as a prize to work for. That secured, another would be wanted and so on. Investment in projects based principally upon hot air and printer's ink can be started as low as $5, and the manipulators see to it that other sums are added "before the stock goes up." The $100 certificate which was secured is found to be worthless paper. The numerous frauds foisted upon the small investor in this country serve to prove that millions could be gathered annually for sound securities in small denominations and the scoundrels waste due to "easy money" curtailed if not wholly abolished.

Bank of the Small Trader.

The Bank of France, as shown by a recent report of its governor, had an increase of business in 1907 over that of the previous year, amounting to $100,000,000. The Bank of France is especially the bank of the small trader and the agriculturist. The average value of the bills discounted by this institution last year was a trifle under $150, and nearly one-half of the whole number of bills discounted, and this includes the business in Paris itself, was of value, individually, under $20. Doubtless the average value in the country branches was still lower than in Paris.

It is often said that there is no money for a bank in handling small transactions. If so, then the Bank of France is an exception, for its dividend last year was at the rate of 17 1/2 per cent. Clearly, then, entering for the small trader and the very small agriculturist is profitable, unless for one of the soundest, perhaps the soundest, banking institutions of the world. It would be difficult to find elsewhere a more successful institution, taking it from all points of view, than the Bank of France, and in the experience of this bank we have the strongest possible argument for a financial system in this country which shall encourage banks to engage especially in furnishing working capital for the small trader and the small agriculturist.

The Canadian Camp club has petitioned congress to save the trees. Bravo! If we keep on using up the wood to make paper there will be no place for game to hide in, and the gay hunter will have no excuse for going forth and making weird noises on a homemade piccolo under the impression that he is calling the long snouted, meek eyed moose.

Mrs. Schumann-Heink goes herself naturalized because, she says, America has brought her luck, fame and fortune. Well, it is a change for the privileges of citizenship America gets a mighty fine countrified voice and eight healthy children. Both parties to the deal should be satisfied.

John Hancock a "sanguine" Samuel Adams a "defiant." Abraham Lincoln a "ward boss," and so on. What should we do without all these smart historical sleuths working in the graveyards?

We're going to have an arbitration treaty with Switzerland. That will prevent our navy ravaging the Swiss coasts and the sailing of a Swiss army to retaliate upon ours.

A new gun has been invented which, it is claimed, can fire 3,000,000 bullets a minute. Expert dodging may not have to become a part of many maneuvers.

Fair Play For the Canal.

Former Chief Engineer Stevens protests too much when he criticizes the Panama canal enterprise on every point. Everybody knows that the ultimate cost of the work and the length of time required to throw it open to commerce are uncertain problems. It may never pay its operating expenses, and the net gain to the commerce of this country may not be what the advocates of the canal have predicted. With our fleet occupying several weeks to get from ocean to ocean when they could go through the canal in a couple of days, Mr. Stevens' declaration that the channel will have no military value will make little impression upon the public mind. Americans are not given to pulling up seed planted in good faith in that fashion. Otherwise our development would have halted where it was back in the steamless age.

The dominating passion of this era is the annihilation of distance, and that the Panama canal is sure to do. The canal is an experiment in this line and may not be perfected in twenty years, but the only way to eliminate any impediment is to build it the best we can and the quickest we can and then improve it. The Suez canal project met with hostility on all sides. The more the difficulties loomed before the engineers the louder the critics and detractors barked. But that enterprise proved a time saver for the whole world and a money maker for its capitalists and its present owners. Since no one can foretell with absolute certainty the fate of the Panama canal, the only fair way to say a good word for it or keep silent.

A Real Prince.

As a proposition for Anna Gould to think about with a view to righting her status in the eyes of the world, marriage with the Prince de Sagan, "poor coat" as he is, is not so bad. This prince has hereditary rights in Germany which include a large landed estate and a seat in the German parliament. It may be true that he has been a worse reputation maker than the divorced Count Castellan. But he inherited a bad record, which he may have felt it proper to maintain. However, he is young enough to reform and when he reaches sixty may be as sedate as King Edward of England, whom nobody would have supposed twenty years ago could be shocked by a vaudeville song, as the English king was last summer at a German resort.

Marriage to a prince must bring to Anna Gould and to her children as well promotion. The net result is that she would get a loftier title than the one which cost her so much cash and such deep humiliation. But, best of all, life on a country estate in the interior of Germany might mean the salvation of her children. They would grow up in a healthy atmosphere, far removed from the dissipation of Paris and the scandal attaching to their mother's bad venture there. And then those Vanderbilt girls have landed a duke and a count, so it is but natural for the Gould girl to wish to vault higher and be the American wife of a real prince.

A deserted wife and mother writes this appeal to a city newspaper. "I asked and tried to get some mission workers to help me get a place to stay with the children till I could get work, but they could not help me. They are too busy saving lost souls. If I was a bad woman or girl they would do anything for me, but it is too much trouble to help an honest, unfortunate poor woman to stay decent. Sometimes I wonder what is the use trying to stay honest and right if it seems that only the immoral and dishonest get help from the places that are supposed to help the unfortunate." If that were passed up to Carnegie and the other philanthropists it would doubtless be ignored, for honesty and morality are not picturesque in the eyes of some people.

German professors have begun to say startling things. Dr. Waentz of Halle thinks that Germany can ultimately absorb France, Spain and Italy by colonizing those and gradually christianizing the language, the customs and the ideals of the "degraded" Latin races.

Japan licked only a section of China in her recent war with that country. Perhaps it is time that the unwhipped Celestials who have recently been making faces at the Japs and some other folk get a drubbing too.

"Are we economizing?" asks the editor of an "esteemed contemporary." We could answer him more intelligently if he could have a few minutes confidential conversation with his wife.

The discussion of naval conditions has rather strengthened a popular impression that it is a very good navy and that more of it would be desirable.

Death can be the matter only of a moment, yet it casts its long shadow over a whole life—Lan Maclean.

When people look for trouble, some sort of eerie intuition leads them right to the spot.

Two Speeds in Same Wheel.
The top of a carriage wheel in passing along the road moves more quickly by turning the atmosphere than the bottom. This sounds almost foolish, but it is absolutely sound. It is due to the movable axle, or axle. The top of the wheel has the forward motion plus for forward revolution. The bottom of the wheel has the same forward motion minus backward revolution—London Saturday Review.

Her Old Favorite.
"Professor," said Mrs. Gasswell to the distinguished musician who had been engaged at a high price to entertain her guests, "what was that lovely selection you played just now?"
"That, madam," he answered, glancing at her, "was an improvisation."
"Ah, yes, I remember now. I knew it was an old favorite, but I couldn't think of the name of it to save me."—Chicago Tribune.

John C. The doors were made to swing outward when the building was constructed, the only change being made was in the removal of a latch which did not work satisfactorily. Our information in regard to the matter was received over the telephone and there evidently was a mis-understanding.

The British chamberlain of the exchequer, Herbert M. Asquith, stated that his government wishes to do everything in its power to prevent a new spurt in competitive shipbuilding and that the naval policy of Great Britain is purely defensive. This is interesting, and it would be reassuring if it were not for the fact that most people are keenly conscious that a defensive weapon can be converted into an offensive one on very short notice.

France will re-enforce her army in Morocco. The tribesmen have given the French troops more trouble than was expected, and those in charge of affairs have apparently reached the conclusion that some crushing work must be done soon if Algeria is to be kept out of the ferment. Complete success must attend French efforts or the Moors will become intolerably aggressive.

Japan's Fix.

If Japan had a strong war party, with enthusiasm always on top, it is not a matter for wonder. Up to date the Japanese have not made good on their professions since the war with China lifted their nation to a place among the powers. A big indemnity from Russia in the late war and superior advantages over every other people in the matter of exploiting China was a natural expectation for the mikado's people, who impoverished themselves to fight the campaign in Manchuria.

The indemnity and the valuable concessions which Japan wrung from China in 1895 put the island kingdom on its feet. It enabled her to equip for the inevitable contest with the aggressive Russians. Relatively Japan is as poor today as she was in 1894, when she attacked China. She is heavily in debt, she wants to enlarge her navy, she wants to push numerous and expensive commercial enterprises at home and on the mainland, and she wants to cut a big dash in the world. Unless she can keep doing big things she will sink to a third rate power and be forgotten. Some war will take place far from Japan's sphere of influence, fresh examples of prowess will shake the world, and the heroic Japs will be only a memory, his laurels passing to others. So unless the mikado can keep the lid on the war party tight any thing may happen, and it is just as well for the nations to see whose cat-tails are dragging behind when they go slouching around the globe "doing things" to some other fellow's dignity.

Just Like Grandpa.

Mrs. Barling was reading Mr. R. with a few selections from the advertising columns. "Now, here's something," she exclaimed, "that I would like to have in tables! Just look here, John! Polished white top and curved legs!" Just then little Madge entered. "What's that?" said she. "Who's been writin' in the paper 'bout grandpa?"—Ex-change.

New Zealand Odities.

The crew in New Zealand strikes as sweet a note as any heard in the wood-land. The robin has no song and no red breast. The native hen is the ghost of that killed. There is a caterpillar, which turns into a plant. These and some other productions of nature have done for New Zealand what the kangaroo and the emu have done for Australia—given it the suggestion of oddity and the marvelous.

SYNOPSIS.

Chip McGuire, a 16-year-old girl living at Tim's place in the Maine woods, is sold by her father to Pete Bolduc, a half-breed. She runs away and reaches the camp of Martin Fribble, occupied by Martin, his wife, nephew, Raymond Stetson, and guides. She tells her story and is cared for by Mrs. Fribble. Journey of Fribble's party into the Maine woods, where Mrs. Fribble, an old hermit, who has resided in the wilderness for many years. When camp is broken, Chip and Ray occupy a canoe. The party reach camp of Mrs. Fribble's father, where they are welcomed by him and Cy Walker, an old friend and former townman of McGuire. They settle down for summer's stay. Chip and Ray are in love, but do not realize this but Cy Walker, who is a canoe marks found on lake shore in front of their cabin. Strange smoke is seen across the lake. Martin and Levi leave for settlement to get officers to arrest McGuire, who is a known murderer. Chip's one word to Martin is "No." Chip is a bear on the ride. Chip is stolen by Pete Bolduc and escapes with her in a canoe. Chip is rescued by Martin and Levi as they are returning from the settlement. Bolduc escapes. Old Cy proposes to Ray that he remain in the woods with himself and Aunt and trap during the winter, and he concludes to do so. Others of the party return to Greenville. Chip and Ray start to school in Greenville, and finds life unpleasant at Aunt Comfort's, made so especially by the fact that Old Cy and Ray discover strange tracks in the wilderness. They follow the tracks into the wilderness and discover the hiding place of the man who had been seeking about their camp. They investigate the cave home of McGuire during his absence. Bolduc, McGuire, and the two fight to the death, finding a water grave taken by Ray and Chip to Greenville and finds Chip waiting for him. Ray wants Chip to return to the woods with them, but she, feeling that the old comradeship between them is broken, refuses. When they part, however, it is as lovers. Chip is taken from Aunt Comfort's and finds another home with Judson in the Maine woods, where she is named as Vera Raymond. Aunt Abby, Aunt Mandy Walker, and other friends take Chip home with her to Christmas Eve.

"I was born close to the wilderness," she said, "my mother died when I was about eight years old. Then my father took me into the woods, where I worked at a kind of a boarding house for lumbermen. I ran away from that when I was about 16. I had to; the reasons I don't want to tell. I found some people camping in the woods when I'd been gone three days and 'most starved. They let pity for me, I guess, and took care of me. I stayed at their camp that summer, and then they fetched me home to my mother and I went to school. Somebody said something to me there, somebody who hated me. She had been pestering me all the time and I ran away. Uncle Jud found me and took care of me until you came, and that's all I want to tell. I could tell a lot more, but I don't; but I tell you people to find me or take me back where they live, and that's why I don't tell where I came from. Then I felt it was so dependent on them—I was twitted of it—that it's another reason why I ran away. I wouldn't have stayed with Uncle Jud more than over night except that I had a chance to work and earn my board."

"But wasn't it unkind of you—let it now—not to let these people know you are alive?" answered Aunt Abby. "They were certainly good to you."

"I know that they were," returned Chip, somewhat contritely; "but I couldn't stand being dependent on them any longer. If they found where I was, they'd come and fetch me back; and I'd feel so ashamed I couldn't look 'em in the face. I'd rather they think I was dead."

"Well, perhaps it is best you do not," returned Aunt Abby, sighing; "but years of doubt, and not knowing whether some one was care for you, is dead or alive, are hard to bear. And now that you have told me some of your history, I will tell you a lifelong case of not knowing some one's fate. Many years ago my sister and myself, who were born here, became acquainted with two young men, sailor boys from Haysport, named Cyrus and Judson Walker. Cyrus became attached to me and we were engaged to marry. It never came to pass, however, for the ship that Judson was captain of, with Cyrus as first mate, foundered at sea. All hands took to the two boats. The one Judson was in was picked up, but the other was never heard of afterward. In due time Judson and my sister Amanda married. He gave up a sailor's life, and they settled down where they now live. I waited many years, vainly hoping for my sweetheart's return, and finally, realizing that he must be dead, married Capt. Bemis. That all happened so long ago that I do not care to count the years; and yet all through them has lingered that pitiful thread of doubt and uncertainty, that vain hope that somehow and someday Cyrus may have escaped death and may return. I know it will never happen. I know he is dead; and yet I cannot put away that faint hope and quite believe it is so, and never shall so long as I live. Now you have left those who must have cared something for you in such the same pitiful state of doubt, and it is not right."

"For one moment something almost akin to horror flashed over Chip. "And was he called—was he never—I mean this brother, ever heard that Old Cy felt somewhat dubious, and so the old man murmured. There was no real reason for it, for all Nature was so smiling. The lake was blue and rippled by the June breezes; trout leaped out of it night and morning; flowers were blooming; squirrels frisking, birds singing and nest-building; and what Old Cy most enjoyed, the vernal season was at hand.

Another matter also disturbed him—the whereabouts of McGuire and the half-breed, Pete Bolduc. Levi had had brood the information that neither had been seen nor heard of since the previous autumn; but that was not conclusive, and somehow Old Cy felt that a certain mystery had attached itself to them, and once we suspect a mystery, it pursues us like a phantom. He did not fear either of these renegades, however. He had never harmed them. But he felt that any day might bring a call from one or the other, or that some tragic outcome would be disclosed.

Another problem also annoyed him—who this thief of their game could be, and whether his supposed cave lair was a permanent hiding spot. Two reasons had kept Old Cy from another visit to that sequestered lake during the fall trapping season: first, an evident danger, and then lack of time. But now, with nothing to do except wait for the incoming ones, an impulse to visit again this mysterious spot came to him.

He had, at the former excursion, felt almost certain that this unknown trapper was either McGuire or the half-breed. Some assertions made by Levi seemed to corroborate that theory, and impelled by it, Old Cy started alone, one morning, to visit this lake again. It took him until midday to carry his canoe, camp outfit, rifle, and all across from the stream to stream, and twilight had come ere he reached the lake where he and Ray had left the night before.

Old Cy now turned his canoe, and repairing the bark shanty they had built, which had been crushed by winter's snow, he camped there again.

Next morning, bright and early, he launched his canoe and once more followed the winding stream through the dark woods and out into the rippled lake again.

Here he halted and looked about. No signs of aught human could be over, and then he advanced to the other canoe. That was, as he asserted, a better place, and also lay half back of a jutting ledge of slate. Two paddles leaned against this ledge, and near by was another setting pole. All three of these familiar objects were brown with damp mould and evidently had rested there many months.

"Curly, curly," muttered Old Cy again. "I called it I'd find nothing here, 'n' here's two canoes left to rot, 'n' been here all winter."

Then with a vague sense of need, he turned to his canoe, seized his rifle, looked all around, over the lake, up into the green tangle above the ledges, and finally followed the narrow passage leading to where he had once watched smoke arise. Here on top of this ledge he again halted and looked about.

Back of it was the same V-shaped cleft in rock which a cord had held drying poles; the cord was still there, and below it he could see the dark skins amid the confusion of jagged stones.

Turning, he stepped from this ledge to the lower one nearer the lake, walked down its slope, and looked over the edge. It was a long, narrow, shelf-like projection, ending at the corner of the ledge. Old Cy followed this to its end and stepped down as he was about to leave.

"Great Scott!" he exclaimed, taking a backward step as he did so. And well he might, for there at his feet lay a stone and with rust beside a brown felt hat.

Had a grinning skull met his eyes he would not have been more astounded. In fact, that was the next object he expected to see, and he glanced up and down the crevasse for it. None leered at him, however, and picking up the rusted weapon, he continued his search.

Two rods or so below where he had climbed the upper ledge, he was halted again, for there, at his hand almost, was a curious stone opening some three feet high and one foot wide, back of an outstanding slab of slate.

The two abandoned canoes had surprised him, the rusty rifle astonished him, but this, a self-evident cave entrance, almost took his breath away.

For one instant he glanced at it, then he turned and looked at the rifle and cocked his own, as if expecting a ghost or panther to emerge. None came, however, and once more Old Cy stepped into the opening.

A faint light illumined its interior—a weird slant of sunlight, yet enough to show a rocky cavern. The mystery was solved, and this surely was the hiding spot of the strange trapper!

"Can't see why I missed it afore," Old Cy muttered, kneeling that he might better look within, and sniffing at the peculiar odor. "Wonder if the cuss is dead in thar, or what smells so!"

Then he arose and grasped the slab of slate. One slight pull and it fell aside.

"A nat'ral door, by hokey!" exclaimed Old Cy; and once more he knelt and looked in.

The bravest man will hesitate a moment before entering such a cavern, prefaced, so to speak, by two abandoned canoes, a rusty rifle, human head covered, each and all bespeaking something tragic, and Old Cy was no exception. That he had come upon some great mystery was evident.

Canoes were not left to rot in the wilderness or rifles dropped without cause. And then, that hat!

Surely here, or hereabouts, had been enacted a drama of murderous nature, and inside this cavern might repose its blood-stained sequel.

But the filtering beams of light enlivened Old Cy, and he entered. No ghastly corpse confronted him, but instead a low one, if cramped, about a fireplace daintily fashioned of slate occupied one side of this cave; in front a low table of the same flat stone, resting upon small ones; and upon the table were rusty tin dishes, a few mouldy hardtack, a knife, fork, and scraps of meat, exhalting the odor of decay. A smell of smoke from the charred wood in the fireplace mingled with it. In one corner was a bed of brown fir twigs, also mouldy, a blanket, and tanned deerkins.

The cave was of oval, irregular shape, barely high enough for Old Cy to stand upright. Across its roof, on either side of the rude chimney, a narrow ledge about, he saw in the dim light another doorway opening into still another cave. Into this he peered, but could see nothing.

"A queer live spot," he muttered at last, "a regular human panther den. An' 'twas out of this I seen the smoke come. An' here's his gun," he added, come, as more accustomed to the dim light, he saw one in a corner. "Two guns, two canoes, an' nobody to hum," he continued. "I'm safe, anyhow. I've got to be here that other cave, Martin sure, and he withdrew to the open air."

A visit to a couple of birches soon proved needless of light, and he again entered the cave. One moment more, and then a flaring torch of bark was thrust into the inner cave, a mere crevice and four feet wide, and stooping, as he now had to, Old Cy entered and knelt while he looked about.

He saw nothing here of interest except the scene of some of jutting slate, across two of which lay a slab of the same—no vestige of aught human, and Old Cy was about to retreat when his eye was drawn close to his finger tip unnoted, caused him to drop it on the instant, and drawing another from his pocket he lit it while the flames lashed at him.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed? To be sure, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL, The United States Dispensary says of this herbal remedy, "It is the chief remedy in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrhal jaundice (catarrh of the liver), and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women."

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is claimed in the United States Dispensary as a tonic.

CEDRON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensary says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

OIL OF COCAINE, another ingredient of Peruna, is claimed by the United States Dispensary as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes.

Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys.

These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Seander.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applied to the stomatitis of the mouth, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classes hydatitis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COCAINE as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes).

BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CEDRON, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), catarrh of the duodenum, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

MILLER, MEDICAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLINSIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collinsia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SOUTHERN regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy.

This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate it by some quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

Good Bye, Cuchullin!

Who can set bounds to the soaring imagination of the Celt? An enthusiastic New Yorker recently watching a game of hurling—which resembles a game of football—was struck by the Irish Athletic association how far a good man could drive the ball.

"Well, I'll tell you," responded Mr. Conway, with a twinkle in his eye that contradicted his serious speech. "In the good old days when Cuchullin was champion of Ireland, the king and all the nobility were assembled at the great games of Tullin. Cuchullin struck up a hurley ball into the sky, and then walked off to his pavilion and took a drink of poteen, and stroked back to the spot in good time to catch the ball on his hurley."—Harper's Weekly.

"No, John."

"Why, in his grip, of course."

MASSACRE IS FEARED

WHITE RESIDENTS OF PORT-AU-PRINCE IN TERROR.

CRUISER CAUSES PANIC

Salute by British Vessel Terrifies the Haitians—Denies Hostility to Foreigners.

Key West, Fla. — A reign of terror exists in Port-au-Prince, following the execution of revolutionary plotters March 16, according to advice from Havana received by the government wireless station here.

Street fights occurred all during Tuesday, and there is a fear of a general massacre of all white people in Haiti. The American war vessels have gone from Guantanamo to Port-au-Prince.

Foreign Cruiser Causes Panic. — The British cruiser Indefatigable and the German cruiser Bremen have arrived here under orders from their governments to give full protection to any foreign residents in Port-au-Prince in case their lives or interests are threatened. An American warship is expected to arrive here at any moment.

At present the city is quiet, but there is an underlying current of anxiety, as evidenced by the fact that a veritable panic was caused by the booming of a heavy gun on the British cruiser when she came to anchor in the port Monday evening. The indefatigable announced her arrival by three cannon shots, and the detonations almost terrified the people.

Surprised by the sudden alarm, officers and soldiers alike rushed precipitately to their posts; women and children ran about hither and thither, in seeming despair, crying hysterically, and it was some time before they could be reassured and calmed.

No More Executions. — Positive denial is made by the Haitian officials of the reports that other executions have taken place than those on Sunday morning, when ten or twelve conspirators found, according to the government's statement, with arms and ammunition for military purposes in their possession, were shot to death.

Under a decision taken by the council of ministers the government Tuesday authorized the sailing on board the warships and out of the country the authors of the last insurrection, who have taken refuge at the French, German and Spanish consulates at Gonaives.

Not Hostile to Foreigners. — Gen. Celestin, the minister of war, has returned to Port-au-Prince, at the head of his troops, after having put down the revolutionists at Gonaives. He made a statement in which he denied absolutely that the government entertained hostile sentiments towards foreigners. President Nord Alexis and his ministers also gave assurances of the utmost good feelings towards all foreigners who were pursuing their duties peacefully in Haiti.

BREWERY STRIKE CALLED. — Three Thousand Union Men in St. Louis Walk Out.

St. Louis.—The 3,500 unionized employees in the St. Louis breweries were notified Tuesday afternoon to strike, as a result of a factional quarrel in Beer Drivers' local No. 42. The call for the strike was issued by officials of the International United Brewery Workers of America after a fruitless conference with the representatives of the brewers.

A strike was instituted soon after the issuance of the notification and about 3,000 men walked out. The strikers took their coats and left the plants quietly. Ample police protection was provided at every brewery.

Judge Lochren to Resign. — Minneapolis, Minn.—Judge William Lochren of the United States district court in an interview in the Journal Sunday announces that he will resign his position on the federal bench, the resignation to become effective May 31. Judge Lochren is 75 years old and has been on the federal bench 12 years.

Stoessert Must Go to Prison. — St. Petersburg.—The emperor Tuesday confirmed the death sentence passed upon Lieut. Gen. Stoessert, and also the court's recommendation for commutation of the sentence to ten years' imprisonment.

Burns Beats Irish Champion. — Dublin.—Tommy Burns, the American pugilist, knocked out Jem Roche, the Irish champion, Tuesday night in the first round in the Theater Royal, for the heavyweight championship of the world.

FIVE YEARS FOR J. R. WALSH

FORMER CHICAGO BANKER REFUSED A NEW TRIAL.

Stay Order on Appeal—All Points Raised by Attorneys for Financialer Are Overruled.

Chicago.—John R. Walsh was denied a new trial by Judge A. B. Anderson in the federal court Friday and was sentenced to five years in the government prison at Fort Leavenworth. The sentence was five years on each count on which the president of the old Chicago National bank was convicted, but it is to run concurrently. All the points raised by the attorneys for the defense in their plea for a new trial were overruled by the court, who, in his opinion, reviewed at some length the events during the trial and after the return of the verdict. An appeal to the upper court is expected to stay the execution of the sentence by now faces. In making his ruling Judge Anderson first took up the Palmer incident when that juror hesitated before replying to the roll of the jury. Judge Anderson recited in detail what occurred and said that counsel for the defendant had not objected at the time and that it was clear that Juror Palmer assented to the verdict. This finding was directly against the argument in support of the motion for a new trial.

The main contention of the government in the prosecution of the case was that Mr. Walsh in his capacity of president of the Chicago National bank had misappropriated certain amounts from the funds of the bank by its cashier, John J. Palmer, for the purpose of obtaining large sums of money and presented many questions of banking and financial methods rarely called to the attention of a court.

HOW TO KNOW PURE PAINT.

A Way in Which It May Be Identified Before Using.

After a building has been painted long enough for a weather test, it is easy to tell if the paint used was made of pure White Lead or not. But such belated knowledge comes like locking the barn after the colt is stolen.

What one wants is a test that will tell the quality of the paint before it and the labor of putting it on are paid for.

Pure White Lead is made from metallic lead, and under intense heat, as is produced by a blow-pipe, pure White Lead will reconvert itself back into metallic lead. If, however, it is not genuine White Lead, or if it contains the slightest trace of adulteration, the change will not take place. Therefore the "blow-pipe" test is an absolute and final one.

The National Lead Company are urging everyone interested in painting to make this test of paint before using it, and they guarantee that the pure White Lead sold under their "Dutch Boy Painter" trade-mark will always prove absolutely pure under the "blow-pipe" or any other test. To make it easy for you to perform the experiment they will send you free upon request a blow-pipe and everything necessary for you to make the test, together with a valuable booklet on paint. Address, National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York City.

The Persian Language.

Persian is said to be not a very difficult language. The modern Persian is very much like the English in its sentence structure. The Persian contains but few of the inflections that burden so many of the world's tongues. There is no difference of termination to mark the gender either in nouns or adjectives, and all inanimate things are feminine. In other ways the Persian conforms to the English—London Chronicle.

"Did you ever get over her mother's objection to you?"
"Yes, I told her that she looked as young as her daughter."
"That caught the vain old lady, I suppose."
"Easily, but it lost me the daughter."—Exchange.

McAllister hospital, Waukegan, receives all Lake county cases of sickness at the rate of $1 a day, which includes services of a nurse and needed supplies.

This is a mere out-line of the county's state of the poor. A study of the various large public institutions of our state, whether county or state charges, would require weeks. Supervisors are not paid for their services and all these calls on their time are given without compensation. The only pay they receive is $2.50 a day, for the one or four days, four times a year, during their meetings. This scarcely pays their board and carfare, so that a man never grows rich acting as supervisor. Mrs. M. T. LAMEY.

New Directory.

The Methodist church of Barrington has issued a new directory of the church and of the village of Barrington. The first part contains the names of the church members, officers and teachers and other matters of interest, including a brief history of the church since its organization in 1844. There are pictures of the church, pastor and John Robertson's residence.

The part devoted to the village contains the names of families, of the village board and officers, of the school board and teachers and a list of the societies and organizations of different kinds with the time and place of meetings. There is a fine full page picture of the public school building and of all the churches in the village.

The directory represents a good deal of work and it is hoped that the citizens of Barrington will find it of use as a book of reference. The advertisements are mostly from business houses in our community and show on the part of the advertisers a new, commendable public spirit.

The work was done in the office of the Barrington Review and is a credit to the management and to our town as well.

The directory will be offered for sale by managers for a small sum, and a copy should find a place in every home and business house in the village.

O. F. MATTISON.

H. J. Lageschulte in Charge.

Last Tuesday was contract day for the various milk bottling plants in the vicinity of Chicago. The Bowman Dairy Company located in this village entered into contract with nearly 75 patrons for six months, supply at the following price per 100 pounds: April, $1.25, May, $1.05, June, $1.05, July, $1.05, August, $1.25, September, $1.35, making an average of $1.15 cents. This is the same price being paid by the Borden Condensed Milk Company. Since contract day several farmers have been negotiating with the Bowman people with a view to selling their milk.

H. J. Lageschulte is now in full charge of the plant here and will travel as inspector of their several plants. He will also inspect the farms of the patrons. Mr. Lageschulte being a practical farmer should know the needs of the farmer as well as the people he represents.

Death of Mrs. Becca Prickett.

Mrs. Becca Prickett died Wednesday, March 18, at her home in Nunda, aged 39 years. The funeral services were held from the M. E. church, Nunda, at 12 o'clock p. m. Friday, March 20, with burial in Union cemetery. The W. R. C. held their services at the church and the R. N. A. conducted services at the grave. Mrs. Prickett was a deputy organizer of the Royal Neighbors lodge and instigated and organized the lodge here seven years ago May 19th. She has been here often since, the last time in January. Neighbors going from here to the funeral were Mesdames Leonard, Kendall, Jukes, Burkhardt, Sutherland, Jacobson, Foreman, Leonard, H. Comstock and Mr. and Mrs. George Comstock.

Debating Club.

The boys of the high school under the direction of the principal, Prof. F. J. Fulton, have formed an organization for the purpose of carrying on general discussions, debating and the study of political and parliamentary practices. At their first meeting they debated the question "Resolved, that it is better for a man to work for a salary than to have a business of his own." Those debating were William Gotschalk, Claude Church, Lyle Alverson, Arthur Lageschulte, Clarence Miller, Newton Plagge, Gottlieb Mueller, Fred Grimm, James Foreman, Howard Hutchinson and the principal acted as judges. The question was decided in favor of the negative.

Will Build This Spring.

Recent sales of lots in the Heise sub-division are as follows: lots 2 and 3 to Dr. Oleott; lots 4 and 5 to Charles L. Lytle; lot 13 to Foster Weigel of Evanston. Mr. Cady has the excavation for the basement finished and is planning the completion of his residence by June 1st. Mr. Lytle and Dr. Oleott both plan building modern houses this spring on their recent purchases, and altogether this part of our village will present quite an animated appearance this summer. A Jesuit priest who visited here six years ago predicted that this sub-division would develop into a fine residence district within a few years, as its advantages were many.

Public Sale.

The Evergreen Cemetery Association will offer for sale a number of lots in the new cemetery to the highest bidder on Monday, March 23rd, at 10 a. m. Don't miss this opportunity to secure one of the finest lots in the new sub-division. Wm. Peters, auctioneer.

EVERGREEN CEMETERY ASSN.

Good For Everybody.

Mr. Norman R. Coulter, a prominent architect, in the Delbert Building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a drug-gist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequalled. 50c. at the Barrington Pharmacy.

The Mocking Bird.

Of song birds the mocking bird is easily king. The skylark and nightingale deserve all of the praise that the poets have given them. They are sweet songsters indeed, but when it comes to a contest with the mocking bird their famed laurels either away.

In its variety, range, volume and sweetness the song of the mocking bird has no equal in the feathered kingdom. To hear the "fading song" of the mocking bird on a moonlight night in June is to hear that which never yet came from throat of skylark or nightingale—New York American.

Stranger—How's that?

Native—Yes, he can't even tell the truth without getting it at least two sizes larger than it is.

You'll Get Yours.

Beginning next week the Review will roast everybody, letting everyone know how he or she appears in the eyes of the public. Family scandals, habits and disgraces a specialty. We once had a bright newspaper man in this office whose policy was frankness and then there were complaints. Very well, watch for "spice." No one exempt. "See yourself as others see you." We will begin on the gentleman's family the following week. Our own (if the next, other officials and prominent people.
