

NECESSITY FOR PROVIDING PIGS COMFORTABLE QUARTERS

Many Things of Vital Importance in Making Hog Business Entirely Profitable—Must Have Proper Shelter With Exercise.

In raising pigs there are several things, very essential, which must be done to secure the right degree of the health and which will make the winter litter rather costly. Hogs are great lovers of warmth and they must have it for their economical growth. This has been fully demonstrated by the experiment stations in the different farming regions. The cost of the grain to secure a ton of bacon was almost double with outside feeding as compared with a warm shelter, all other things being as near equal as possible.

Warmth is a very great necessity to the suckling pig, and to obtain the best results and give the little fellow sufficient amount of exercise he should be kept in the open. It is an easy matter to make the bed warm enough, but so soon as the pig leaves the nest for exercise out in the open, it becomes chilly and soon returns to the warm bed. Not taking exercise sufficient to keep him from coming too fat, through failure and death ensues. An abundance of exercise is necessary as every hog is getting all the milk and other foods they can eat.

In raising winter pigs there are six really very important things that are taken into consideration: Warmth, exercise, good food, ventilation, clean and good housing, and clean and good housing, which will make ventilation and allow the air to play through going out to the open is necessary. ## RAISING PIGS FOR HOUSEHOLD

Systematic Planning and Cultivation of Forest Trees to Benefit of Agriculturist Yet in Landscape.

By R. B. BROWN, Eden, Mass.
The most serious of wood men, if properly handled, can be made to grow in your yard, and yet maintain an average growth, or even increase in value.

The tree growth of the woodlot should be encouraged in every possible way. All dead wood should be completely removed and added to the woodpile. It will serve as fuel for the heating, at least, and does away with one of the chief sources of disease among growing woods. It has been proven that a very large percentage of all the trees that are cut from areas from the decaying dead wood, being about three.

Thinking correctly is a second requisite to making a woodlot profitable. It is not enough to stand in a tree close, all are competing for food and space, and the right place should be well removed, to avoid the remainder.

When an area of any dimensions has been cleared, and the ground seeded immediately, if the second growth does not start, the country should allow pasture.

This steer weighed 1,300 pounds upon a scale and is an excellent specimen. This makes his dressing percentage like an average steer. He has broad head, straight level back and deep back.
