

BETTER WAYS Antipater Phipps and the Carp

By Ellis Parker Butler
Author of 'Pigs in Pigs' Etc.
ILLUSTRATED BY PETER NEWELL

There was a man who was called Antipater on the streets of Bettisville recently because he had been in the habit of catching fish and worms and the children had been so afraid of him that he had nearly all his money and his life had been lost. He was a very poor man and his wife had died. He had a young son who was called Phipps.
