THE PLINTON THE LIAR.

Is there any power in canning, in shrewly comprehend, despire methods that can for a moment compare with the trush, with absolute integration of the production of the pr

the truth plan, he has all the universe gustaining, supporting, backing him. What a difference there is between power of a man who is telling the truth and is conscious that he is backed by the eternal principle of right and justice, and the man who is lying and is conscious of it.

without wincing, because he feel that he is backed by eternal principle there is victory in his eye, assurant in his very bearing, while there is says, "I am a liar; I am not a man-know that I am not a man, but ak a make-believe."

One very large class of liars are liars of carelessness, thoughllessness are honest enough, but who are slip observation is faulty; they do not see ear them as they are. from not taking pains to get the exact

the flatterer, the one who cannot bear Then there is the polite liar, who prerteous. He wants you to think well him and wants to make you feel He would rather deceive you than tell you unwelcome truths. Van-ity liars cannot bear to tell the truth when it reflects upon themselves o does not flatter their vanity. Thes liars may be believed in what does no reflect on themselves or put them in an unfavorable light.

We try to make each issue of the REVIEW better than the one preceed ing it, and we're sure that every issue nds with good things for our read ers. This week we are printing some especially fine Memorial Day matter reading. Your attention is especially directed to the beautiful, illustrates poem by Wilbur D. Nesbit on the first page. On the fourth page you will find a timely and touching little story beaded "Katherine," and an interesting article about our national cemeteries is published on page six An article about King Edward's funeral on page seven should interest

Barrington Home Bakery

Goods baked in this new and up-todate bake oven are superior to all shipped-in bakery goods; besides, bread bought direct at the bakery is never exposed to dirt, dust and dogs on depot platforms or store fronts.

Any lady wishing to see this oven in operation, and the clean and sanitary condition of my shop, is most cordially invited to eall at any time.
