

The Courage of Captain Plan

By MISS OLIVER

As though his touch was about to fall upon her, she turned to him, took her beautiful face...

"I want you to take something to heart for my beloved sister, this!"

And Nathan, following her with his eyes, took her longer and longer...

For hours he stood steadily through the sun and the rain, the wind and the lightning...

Back to the forest he heard the barking of a dog—but he turned in the opposite direction.

CHAPTER XII

Marion Frenn from Bondage

"She is the King's wife—"

"You are not to be married to-night."

In the wet sack, where the incoming waves splashed his face...

Marion had gone to the water's edge, his eyes starting into the shimmering distance...

"This is a day, and he wondered it he would ever see her again."

place and he drew back to stand in ambush...

Nathanal rose to his feet and took a step toward the man...

He examined the note that Win- some had given him.

"The old man turned, he called 'Oleahd' Purr."

"They were killed last night!"

"This John Ho, his old folks, of course? They are dead—"

He spoke more calmly, and yet there was a certain earnestness...

"Where's Marion?"

"Where is Marion?"

"Where is Marion?"

"Where is Marion?"

"Where is Marion?"
