The guve mint is givin' cannon ever' whichaways-An when th Fourth is welcomed in they load the gun an But, say, it isn't nothin to th' good old time salute.

Remember how we use to do? We didn't need no gun.

We'd get a poir o' anvils an' we'd wait the risin/sun,
A shiverin' a little bit when th' cold wind 'ud strike—
But when we shot th' anvils off—well that 'uz/somepin' like! We'd set the biggest on the ground an keerfully we'd drop

Some blasth, powder in th' hole that's sunk into th' top.
An' then we'd make a primin' fuse an' put th' little one On top th' other-There you've got the finest hind o gun!

We'd have some turn rods sed hot an still a heatin, too.

An' when th' sun's first ray 'ild come th' gray clouds streatin' through' we'd tech th' turn to th' ruse—an' all of us vid soctot to safety when we shoot th' ground tity that old time salute.

The cannote ain't as good no, art when me an you wes said it to you how then artify made the higgest noisely wonder if there is a place whice still they like to shoot the envils lest at early dawn in the old time satis.
