

Pass in better than thirty. Better in a dry month, and quite as well, than a house full of such girls.—Peregrina of Boston, 1871.

An Explanation.
"And why, Tommy, do you suppose I'm so anxious to get into bed as to have a good night's sleep?"
"Because," says he, "I'm probably wanted to get into bed."

For the Sake of My Customers' Safety and Health

Remembering the old adage, "It is better to be safe than sorry," and desiring above all things to give my customers with clean and sanitary coin machines and containers, I have added to my business equipment two articles to help to maintain this policy. The "Safes" mentioned are for streets and are far in excess of any others in the range of their kind and forms, and prove their value as a preventive, positive means against the dangers incident with the usual method of keeping them.

HOT FROM THE OVEN

one of our rib roasts would tempt a stone image to eat. Its fragrance acts like a tonic. And once you get your teeth into it you'll stop eating only when you can eat no more.

Your Roast Beef

is good cold as well as hot. Fine for luncheon or tea and especially good for picnic sandwiches. Try the best and you'll know we could justly praise it more.

SAVED CHILD FROM DEATH

"I never could have believed from a word I heard that for a year or two I would be doing a good deed," says Mrs. A. L. Taylor. "I found it a bad thing to do. At the time, I was very much surprised and did not know what to do. I was pleased as much as I could be pleased by it." She was called by her husband's mother who was lying in bed with the flu. "For a couple of days, I was in a bad way, but I was very much pleased to see her get well. I was very much pleased to see her get well. I was very much pleased to see her get well. I was very much pleased to see her get well."
