DATES FOR PLANTING CORN

Results of Investigations by Government Extending Over Period of More Than Two Years.

(By JAMES R. COVERT.)

Investigations by the government extending over a period of more than two years relative to the dates of sowing and harvesting the principal crops of all countries, are of unusual value and interest.

The illustration given shows those sections of the United States wherein, according to this investigation, corn planting begins simultaneously. Corn planting is first observed on the chart about February 15 of normal years, the first planting taking place in southern Florida and Texas. Fifteen days later, corn planting is observed in northern Florida, southern Louisiana and central Texas, and by May 15 the movement had progressed as far north as southern Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, central New York, northern Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota.

The curves in the lines of the chart are a significant feature. They indicate the result of influences exerted upon planting by topography, soil conditions, rainfall and latitude. Sometimes one set of influences prevails, sometimes another. Again, several combined influences may be counterbalanced, as it were, by one controlling influence. For instance, the lines in western Kansas and Nebraska bend slightly northward, instead of abruptly southward, as would be expected in view of their greater altitude. The counterbalancing influence in this case is believed to be the character of the soil which, in the western portion of these states, is sandy and therefore readily dries out and quickly warms up in spring. The influence of the Great Lakes is shown in the sinuous line bearing date May 15.

The air temperature at which corn planting begins in actual practice has not heretofore been established, but from data assembled in the study of cereal crops it is believed to be approximately 55 degrees Fahrenheit, except in certain localities, where the mean daily normal temperature does not fall so low as 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

GIVES SIGNAL FOR LETTERS

Flag Arranged to Notify Occupants of House When Rural Carrier Has Deposited Mail.

A flag attached to the mail box will let the occupants of the house know when the carrier has deposited the mail. Two pulleys and a continuous rope, on which is fastened the flag, are easily arranged. Fasten a weight to the rope at the right distance and put a block on top of the box to keep the weight from slipping off the front. When the lid of the box is raised the weight slips off and up goes the flag.

Flag indicates Mail.

The carrier will hold the weight from slipping off the box when he takes out letters and leaves no mail. This same device will save many a head-ach in bad weather, if the box is located considerable distance from the house.
