FARM AND ROAD IMPROVEMENT

HOW AND WHEN TO USE DRAG

Successful Operation of Implement Involves Two Principles—Both Must Be Understood.

(By W. D. KING.)
The successful operation of a road drag involves two principles, which, when thoroughly understood and intelligently applied, make road working with this implement very simple. The first concerns the length and position of the hitch, while the second deals with the position of the driver on the drag. Each influences the other to a large extent, and successful manipulation of the drag is dependent upon an understanding of both of them.

For ordinary purposes the snatch link or clevis should be fastened far enough toward the blade end of the chain to follow the team at an angle of 45 degrees. This will cause the earth to move along the face of the drag smoothly and will give comparatively light draft to the team, provided the driver rides in the line of draft. Sometimes, however, conditions are met which require special treatment, and in a rolling country such conditions are not infrequent. Often a flat place several rods in length or a steep spot needs special attention.

The distance from the drag at which the team is hitched affects the depth of the cutting. Shortening the chain tends to lift the front slab from the ground; a longer hitch causes the blade to cut more deeply. The length of hitch may be regulated by lengthening and shortening the chain at the end which runs through the hole in the blade end of the drag. If small weeds are to be cut the doubletree should be attached rather closer to the ditch end of the drag. The drag will now move nearly ditch end foremost, and the driver should stand with one foot on the extreme forward end of the front slab. This will swing the drag back to the proper angle and will cause the blade to plow.

The drag does the best work when the soil is moist, but not sticky. The earth then moves freely along the faces of the slabs. If the roadway is very badly rutted and full of holes, it may be well to use the drag once when the ground is slushy. This treatment is particularly applicable before a cold spell in winter when it is possible to have a roadway freeze smooth.

HAULING MANURE IN WINTER

Best Shown in Illustration is Better Than Bob-Sled, but Poor Substitute for Sprayer.

It is sometimes difficult to get manure out to the field in winter, and then a sled comes in very handy. If it is balanced on a short frame, the contents can be easily dumped in piles as wanted. It is much better to have a sled of this kind, and for this purpose alone, than to use the bob-sleds which are generally in use. Of course this is a mighty poor substitute for a manure-sprayer, but it is better to use it and get the manure out to the fields, than to allow it to run to waste near the barn.

Best Seed Corn.
The best seed corn is that grown on one's own farm. In selecting it remember that next year's corn will be like the type you select for seed. In curing seed corn remember that it will not grow if it freezes before being dried. Shuck ears when they come from the field and place in racks, or tie up with strings so that ears do not touch. A good place for drying is in the attic or in an upstairs room in the house, provided the air can circulate freely. Corn will not dry well if placed in barns or over grain bins in the granary.

Temperature of Storage Room.
For keeping vegetables and fruits in storage over winter the temperature of the storage room must be low and even.

Silo to Heat.
The silo is the only safe and sure way and the cheapest way to handle the corn crop.

Compost.
It is a common, when we can live ourselves above the annoying of circumstances over which we have no control; but it is a greater victory when we can make these circumstances helpful, when we can appreciate the good there is in them.—Lucy Latson.

Tip for Farmers.
Percy Noodle says he knew a man who sent two dollars to Augusta, Me. for a recipe "How to make a hen lay two eggs per day," and got an answer advising him to sprinkle her tail with blood squeezed out of a turkey.—Dallas News.
