

Worth of Clothes.
The influence of clothes must not be taken to be, as it has been from the beginning of history, either "sacred or profane," a foremost factor in those success by which man's destiny is guided. His health and comfort, aims and purposes, social standing and business prosperity; everything indeed that makes his life worth living may be affected by it in directions never dreamed of by the tailor who, if he does not actually make the man, is largely instrumental in making him what he is.

Between Girls.
"I haven't received a love letter from Jack in three days. I think it's a shame. I shall be positively ill unless I get a love letter by tomorrow."
"Well, my dear," said the other girl, "if you need a love letter from Jack as badly as that, I have 40 or 50 I'll be glad to let you have."

Why is This?
When a woman misses a street car she laughs. When a man does the same thing he scowls. Why is this? Are women gamblers losers than men?

An Easy One.
Al De Mustard—Your wife's costume tonight is charming. It simply beggars description. Justin De Bunch—And that reminds me of a countess—why am I like description?
Natural Thought.
Eve—If I were to die would you marry again? Adam—How many ribs do you suppose a fellow can lose without coming to pieces?

A Success.
"Was your chafing dish party a success?" "Great! We spoiled all the food early in the evening, and then went to a regular restaurant."

The Writer Who Does Most.
That writer does the most who gives his reader the most knowledge and takes from him the least time.—C. C. Colton.

Corrected.
Gentlemen (engaging groom)—"Are you married?" Groom—"No, sir, I was thrown again a barbed wire fence and got my face scratched."—London Tatler.

TURNED LEAVES OF ROMANCE

Vangy Found, as Others of Her Sex Have Done, That Man Was Ever Flaming.

"Will you have a cup of tea, Vangy?" asked Mrs. Greens, as Vangy came in from hanging out the clothes. "Ah, don't say of Ah do, Mrs. Greens. It's right on my mind. Ah's moor' chill to de marrer ob mah bones. Yo's berry kin' as, yielding to Mrs. Greens's suggestion, she deposited her sorry form on a chair near the kitchen table. 'To' allus tryin' to make a pussen comfable. 'To' min's me ob mah maw—'oo' yo' ain' as ol' as her, but yo' like her in yo' mannahs. Oh, yes, Ah likes sugar in mah tea. Weneber anybody ast me of I like sugar in mah tea. Ah tink ob a gamman fr'm' Ah was 'gared to oncel. 'Ware ha' now' Lor, Ah dunno, be le' de city. He ain' no 'count no how an' Ah don' care if he nevah come back. Dere's jes' as good meat in de hash as abo come out ob it, Mrs. Greens. 'Wot's his name?' honey. His name Mirtah Dobson, at dat time. 'Wot yo' waw' me put mah sugar in yo' tea fo'?' Ah say, 'W' be say, yo' maw fogot to put in de sugar an' I cawn drink tea 'less it berry sweet.' Now dere's," she concluded with a shake of her head, "he wouldn't drink his tea. Ah reckon, at Ah was to put mah whole ban' in."

Their Proper Place.
The folks who are perpetually protesting that their consciences are clear and that they have nothing for which to reproach themselves are generally in a bad way, for the probability is that their much-vaunted consciences have stopped working and are of no further use. Such people never allow that they are in the wrong; their favorite sentence is, "I told you so!" and their proper place is on a desert island with thick skinned turtles for boon companions.

Pleasing Epigram.
"Great talents are of no use without a little sanity of the mind"—thus wrote Lady Shelley of her friend Lord Brougham, who suffered from chronic disgust of life.—London Times.

Aim to Shed Joy.
The joy-maker is the most needed man in the world; the pain-maker is all too plentiful.

Still Believes in Witches.
There is a certain wheat free land Benevento, in Italy, around which the witches are said to gather on certain nights, and make a peasant of the Campagna believes that the witches assemble on midsummer nights amid the ruins of the Roman Forum, where they turn themselves into huge black cats. As one proceeds east the superstitions of the ignorant thicken and multiply. India is full of supernatural traditions and fantasies.

Are Ever at War.
There are two things everlastingly at war, joy and pain. But Buckton's Arctic Salve will banish pain in any form. It soon subdues the itching, irritation, inflammation or swelling; it gives comfort, invites joy. Greatest healer of burns, boils, ulcers, cuts, bruises, eczema, scalds, pimples, skin eruptions. Only 25c at Barrington Pharmacy.

Useful Instrument in Farm House.
Every farm house should have a harness needle in it. One of the many uses to which the needle can be put is to sew rips in the extra trip to the cobbler's.—Home Department, National Magazine.

Nut-Picking Aid.
Place peanut in a pan, and pour boiling water over them, let them stay for a while, then crack. The meats can be easily removed from the shells.

Being Well Born.
The problem of being well born has appealed to philosophers and statesmen in all times. The Jews guarded the birthright in ways that are largely responsible for the virile strength of the race. The Spartans secured strong warriors, but failed to develop other qualities. Plato definitely worked out plans to secure right conditions of birth. The eugenic conscience of the Romans made them the rulers of the world.

The Supreme Test.
"Job was supposed to be a most patient man," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "but we never heard of any one seeing him trying to get a lively seal off a fishhook."—Yonkers Statesman.

Plan for Simple Diet.
"Simple diet," said Pfluy, "is best, for many diseases bring many diseases; and rich sauces are worse than even heaping several meats upon each other."

India's Coal Production.
India produces twelve million tons of coal a year.

Mortality Without Religion.
Morality without religion is only a kind of dead reckoning—an endeavor to find our place on a cloudy sea by measuring the distance we have run, but without any observation of the heavenly bodies.—Longfellow.
