Under an order by Postmaster General Hitchcock the pay of rural carriers is increased from $1,000 to $1,100.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued, under a recent authorization of congress, an order increasing on September 30 the salaries of about $2,000 rural letter carriers. The compensation of the carriers on standard routes, of which there are about 30,000, will be increased from $1,000 to $1,100 a year, with proportionate increases for carriers on shorter routes.

Provided with two pocket knives, one of which she desired was "presented to the president, Mrs. Carolyn Beers of Greenville, O., was arrested at Columbus, O., in the Southern hotel just as Mr. Taft was going to breakfast. Lester Levine, twelve years old, of Kansas City, Mo., amused himself while swimming in the river there by crying "Help!" Three times he was rescued. Suddenly the boy went down for a fourth time and believing he again was fooling no attention was paid to his cry of help. The lad drowned.

Politics

Denying therein every allegation of John D. Archbold and Senator Bois Penrose that he sought or was contributor of contributions by the Standard Oil company to his campaign of 1904, and branding Penrose as unfit to hold a seat in the United States senate, Colonel Roosevelt made public his letter to Senator Clark, chairman of the committee investigating campaign contributions.

Justice John P. Sinks of the Pennsylvania supreme court admitted he had received $5,000 on one occasion and $10,000 on another from John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil company. The contributions were received for political purposes and used for such," he said.

WOOD IS INDICTED

MILL HEAD ACCUSED OF DYNAMITE CONSPIRACY IN LAWRENCE STRIKE.

FAMOUS AS TEXTILE MAN

Is Head of Company Employing 35,000 Hands—Gives $5,000 Cash Bond for His Appearance—Under-taker Arrested.

Boston, Sept. 3.—Charging him in an indictment warrant with conspiring to distribute dynamite in Lawrence during the general strike there last winter, President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company was arrested here Friday.

The American Woolen company, which bore the brunt of the great Lawrence strike, from January 12 until March 14, controls thirty-three manufacturing plants in New England and New York state. It has a capitalization of $75,000,000 and employs 35,000 operatives when all the machinery is in motion.

President Wood is one of the best-known textile men in the country. He furnished cash bail of $5,000. It is understood that he will be formally arraigned at the superior court. Dennis Collins of Cambridge, who was indicted and arrested on a charge of unlawfully having placed dynamite in a railroad passenger train for transportation, is in jail in default of $1,500 bail.

The discovery of dynamite in a Syrian lodging house, a cobbler's shop and a weaving shop in Lawrence last January, while the textile strike was at its height, caused a sensation. Soon afterward John J. Green, a Lawrence undertaker, was arrested on a charge of having unlawfully placed the dynamite in the places where it was found. Green was found guilty and fined $500.

BOY FALLS TO DEATH

DROPS 2,000 FEET FROM BALLOON AT FLINT, MICH.

Lad Caught by Foot When Craft is Released Dangles From Ropes as Thousands Scram.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 31.—His foot caught in the guy rope of a balloon, Chester Betts, aged four years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Betts, living in the city was carried 2,000 feet in the air and then dropped through the roof of a barn. He died while being rushed to a hospital. The tragedy occurred at the fair grounds and 5,000 horrified spectators saw the boy plunge to death.

Among the shuddering thousands who watched the tragic accident were the lad's father and mother, from whom he had wandered in boyish desire to be near the center of the attraction offered by the balloon. They did not know the awing form was that of their son until, with others of the crowd, they rushed to the spot where the crumpled little body lay.

Then the mother fainted and the father, with tears streaming down his cheeks, turned from his dead to care for his living.

The youth was standing near the bag when the word to cast off was given. One of the ropes caught his foot and, evidently too frightened to resist, he was drawn rapidly toward the sky.

The balloonist, Abner Amahl of Lansing, made frantic efforts to pull the lad to the trapeze upon which he sat.

Closer and closer the little form was brought to the bar which meant comparative safety when there was a shriek from the watchers as, turning over two or three times, it shot toward earth.

GOES TO ASSEMBLY

VERMONT IS REPUBLICAN BUT THE LEGISLATURE MUST CHOOSE GOVERNOR.

PROGRESSIVE VOTE IS HEAVY

Drawn From G. O. P. and Prevents Majority Required to Elect Under State Constitution—Roosevelt Men Win in California Primary.

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 5.—Vermont's Tuesday primary returns show that while Fletcher, the Republican candidate for governor, has a plurality, a majority is necessary to elect, consequently the legislature will be called upon to choose the governor. This was almost unanimously Republican in 1910-11 and of the senators and representatives chosen Tuesday, a competent majority will be Republican, so that Mr. Fletcher is assured of his office.

Despite a heavy rain during most of the day, the voters came out in unusual force.

Four years ago the Republican majority was 25,000 in a total vote of 64,367. In 1912, when Cleveland was elected, it was 19,702, and the total vote cast was only 64,367.

Metzger, the Roosevelt candidate for governor, counted on receiving 15,000 votes and returns show that he has done so. It is evident that many Progressivists and some Socialists gave him their suffrages. The Democrats are boasting that they have more than half their own—normal vote is 17,000—and are not losing to the Progressives. It appears, therefore, that most of the voters who only came out in presidential years, voted for the Progressive candidate.

Analyzing the result on the basis of the figures at hand—and they are practically conclusive—the approximate totals are: Fletcher, Republican, 25,000; How, Democrat, 18,000; Metzger, Progressive, 15,000.

Will see Governor McGovern. La Follette Republican, opposed at Tuesday's primary, faced in the state election by Judge John C. Ransdell, from early returns, has a substantial lead over Adolph J. Schmitt, the Progressive Democratic candidate.

Columbus, O., Sept. 5.—Returns received at the secretary of state's office show the defeat of woman suffrage and the adoption of the initiative and referendum home rule and primary amendments.

The returns from the rural counties show that the result on the good roads, minimum wage, liquor license and taxation amendments have carried.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 5.—Returns from the various sections of the state show that the Roosevelt Progressives have swept the state in the primary elections of Tuesday and will have a majority in the California legislature. This is the significant meaning that probably no Taft presidential electors will appear on the ballot in this state at the presidential election in November. According to the peculiar provisions of the California primary law, the candidates for the state legislature who are elected in the primary election of the party in the primaries meet and select the presidential electors.

5,000 HOMELESS FROM FIRE

Flames Sweep Ocean Park at Los Angeles and Destroy the Beach City.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 5.—Five thousand people were homeless in Santa Monica Tuesday night as the result of a fire which originated in the kitchen of the Casino cafe at five o'clock Tuesday evening and burned uncontrolled until nearly nine. The loss is said to be $250,000.

Six solid blocks of cottages and apartment houses, crowded with summer visitors, were destroyed. The famous Fraser's Million Dollar pier, with all its concession buildings, was totally destroyed, except for the concrete piling of the pier itself.

The Decatur hotel, famed to all who have traveled to the Pacific coast in the last ten years, was leveled, along with the long string of small business houses along the "Pike" and the bathhouse, one of the finest and largest on the coast, rests in its own ashes. One Japanese is known to be dead. He jumped into the ocean while trying to escape from the blazing pier, and was drowned. Seven other Japanese are reported to have lost their lives in the holocaust.

Wood Pleads Not Guilty. Boston, Sept. 6.—William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, pleaded not guilty in the superior court Tuesday to an indictment charging him with conspiracy to distribute dynamite in Lawrence strike.

Slides in Colorado Cut. New Orleans, Sept. 5.—Dispatches received Tuesday from Colorado tell of two or more great slides along the Colorado cut. Twelve million cubic yards of earth have slid into the cut, undermining the T. M. C. A. building.

Lavett Weds Minister's Daughter. Columbus, O., Sept. 5.—W. H. Lavett, divorced husband of Ruth Bryn, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, was married Tuesday at Fort Recovery to Miss Gertrude H. Leeper, daughter of Rev. Edward Leeper.

To Operate Canal by Electricity. The Panama canal will be operated almost exclusively by electric power. Approximately seven per cent of the minimum water supply will be diverted by hydro-electric development, and this will be the excess which is not required for lockage, evaporation, and leakage. The hydro-electric station will be located adjacent to the north wall of the Gatun shipway and the plant will have a capacity of 6,000 kilowatts. The average hydraulic head throughout the year will be about 75 feet.

ECZEMA IN RED BLOTCHES

305 Kanter Ave., Detroit, Mich.—"Some time last summer I was taken with eczema. It began in my hair first with red blotches, then scaly, spreading to my face. The blotches were red on my face, dry and scaly, not large; on my scalp they were larger, some scabby. They came on my hands. The itching was terrible. My hands got so I could scarcely work. I tried different eczema ointments but without results. I also took medicine for it but it did no good. I saw the advertisement for a sample of Cuticura Ointment and Soap and sent for one. They did me so much good I bought some more, using them as per directions, and in about three weeks I was well again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment entirely cured me." (Signed) Benj. Passaic, Apr. 6, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

ROOSEVELT'S EXPLANATION.

Theodore Roosevelt has at last made an explanation concerning the alleged Standard Oil contributions to his campaign fund in 1904. He says that he doesn't believe there ever was such a contribution made; that if there was he knew nothing concerning it, and that if it was made he presumes that it was "perfectly legitimate." It is possible that such a contribution was never made, but if an investigation shows that it was, do you suppose that the common people will consider the acceptance of such a contribution, by Roosevelt or his campaign committee, contrary to the very doctrines that he pretends to espouse, "perfectly legitimate?"

The "explanation" is an interesting study in Rooseveltian methods—lots of words, but nothing said. It is typical of his entire public career, which has consisted of noise without end, and little if anything else. How long can the man thus continue to fool any part of the people.

Hunters Born, Not Made.

A hunter is born, not made. Unless a man has the love of the chase bred in his blood he is not going to get any blue ribbons pinned on him for sportsmanship. Some men take to the trail as naturally as a duck beats it to the puddle after cracking the egg shell. Then there are others who never seem to learn the game—they think they like to hunt but when you get them into the tall and unimproved, they prove to be misfits who are eternally doing the wrong thing at the inopportune time.—National Sportsman.

His Mother.

The poet Goethe owed much of his greatness to his mother, a woman well made to bear such a son, a perfect mother, and, better still, his intimate friend and confidant. Brought up in strictly bourgeois and limited circles, with very little education and sympathy that she afterwards became the friend of princes, poets, and philosophers, and her house a rendezvous for the great minds of her day.

Where He Belonged.

At the dinner table on board an ocean liner one man was much annoyed by the vulgar manner in which his next neighbor fed. He tried to take no notice of the man, but after watching him pick a bone in an extremely primitive fashion, he could not control his feelings any longer, and turning to the offender, he said: "Don't you really think you would be more comfortable if you took that bone out on the mat?"—Youth's Companion.

When Travelling.

Take a candle in your bag and a box of safety matches. When they are wanted you will be glad they were put in. The space required for them is small. A passenger on a steamer who was wrecked had a small candle which enabled her to collect some of her most valuable possessions when the lights went out after the collision. —Today's Magazine.

Preserving Wood.

Instead of treating wood to preserve it from rot, an inventor of Budapest arrives at the same result by a reversal of the operation, for he treats the wood to surround the points in such a manner as to destroy all germ and insect life. This process serves as a substitute where it is difficult to secure the treated lumber. It is called "sterilization."

How Characters are Formed.

Characters are achieved—not received. They grow out of the substance of a man's mind. They are not put on as a sugar might put on a lemon. They mature like fruit from the vital fluids of the tree. This is a sign of the character of the man who grows with it. A false man wears out, wears with age. A natural man grows stronger and better with age. Character is an achievement.

There are many ways of getting on the ground of the American people, but only one way of getting on the ground of the American people, and that is by the way of the American people.

AN OUTLAW'S BRIDE

Or the Hunt for the Bad Man of Kalem.

BY DONALD ALLEN.

They said of Mildred Drew that she was a frivolous girl, and now that she was as good as engaged to Stephen Haxleton, they continued to say the same old thing. They did add, however, that Stephen, being three years older and being a conservative young man, would steady her down.

It's nothing against a girl that she is frivolous. It simply means that she refuses to worry about the things that her mother does; that she doesn't want to be herself up too soon; that she is falling in love with a new chap every week or two to study the male sex; that she is romantic by nature, and refuses to take the world as seriously as other girls. Whether folks liked it or not, Miss Mildred went right on being frivolous. She thought a great deal of Stephen Haxleton, but when he started out to lecture her on frivolity she always tossed her head and replied that there were plenty of other good men in the world, and that at exactly ten o'clock the next forenoon she would be back walking the top of the back yard fence.

The evening before Miss Mildred went down to the country to visit her aunt, Mr. Haxleton spoke of having their engagement announced in the papers.

"Why, when were we engaged?" she asked.

"Months ago."

"I never heard of it!"

"But I have asked you to be my wife."

"And I have answered that I didn't know whether I would be or not. No, sir, there is no engagement. I may see some one down in the country that I like better."

Stephen took things very mildly and refused to contest the point that evening, or to be perturbed for the succeeding three days. Then happened what always happens with a conservative young man who has gone along thinking he had a sure thing of it and laughing at would-be rivals. The green-eyed monster clutched him by the throat and he found himself the most wretched man in the state. He did not know until that hour how much he loved the girl. She had denied the engagement that he had looked upon as a settled thing. She was frivolous, but she had spells of being very much in earnest. Stephen asked for a daily letter. He didn't get it. Instead he got one at the end of the week, and its contents did not satisfy his yearnings at all.

"Arrived," read the epistle. "Aunt glad to see me. Dear old soul! Cows, calves, sheep and pigs. Also wind-mills. Also strawberry shortcakes. Have got two freshies on my nose. And there is an actor boarding at the next farmhouse. I can hit a frog with a stone every time, and hope you are well."

That actor! Who was he? What business had he there? Would he have the cheek to scrape an acquaintance with Mildred and fasten her that it was her mission to reform the stage?

He had never heard Mildred say that she would like to become a great actress and give a bunch of Barnums a leg, but there was an actor boarding at the next farmhouse. I can hit a frog with a stone every time, and hope you are well."

Mr. Stephen Haxleton stood it for three days and then started out to have matters cleared up. He did not notify Miss Mildred Drew by letter, telephone or wireless that he was coming. He just threw a few things into a grip and started off. He knew she left the trunk of a village called Kalem, and in time he reached the place. Only then did it occur to him that he didn't know the actor's name. He thought that Mildred had talked about her Aunt Eliza, but that was no guide to his way. There might be a damn Aunt Eliza somewhere, but there was no Aunt Eliza in the last three weeks. Haxleton had been stolen.

houses entered and farmers held up on the highway. The sheriff and constable had been very active, but had accomplished nothing because they had not looked in the right direction. The editor of the Kalem Weekly said they hadn't and editors are always right about these things. "Look for some one that no one would suspect," was his advice.

A constable was at the depot when Mr. Haxleton stepped off the train. He being the only passenger to alight. After a look around he leaned up against the depot building.

"Ha!" whispered the constable. Here was a man that no one would suspect. He was a stranger, and he had an honest look. According to the editor, he should be the outlaw. He didn't seem perturbed at sight of the officer's nickel-plated star, but that was a case of cheek. Indeed, he advanced with a laugh to say:

"I am looking for some one, and yet don't know the name."

"What, rather funny," replied the officer as he felt to see if his handcuffs were in the usual hind pocket. "I admit it," smiled Stephen. "A young lady of my acquaintance in the city came down here a few days ago to visit her aunt."

"And who is her aunt?"

"That's the very thing I want to find out."

"Humph! How are you going to find out anybody if you can't tell her name?"

"That's what occurred to me just as I stepped off the train. I think the young lady referred to her relative as Aunt Eliza."

"Well, I don't know any Aunt Elizas nor Uncle Peters."

"No? I think she must live outside the village, as she has cows and pigs. Perhaps my best way will be to take a highway and follow it for two or three miles."

"Unless you think it better to go back to town by the next train!"

was the suggestive reply.

Mr. Haxleton had come down to rescue Miss Drew, and he took up his grip and started off.

The constable had found the right man at last, and he was soon in communication with the sheriff.

Mr. Haxleton hadn't reached the first farmhouse outside the village when he found a posse of six men calling upon him to halt and give an account of himself. He could have convinced that gang in ten minutes that he was a respectable member of humanity, but what did he do but take to his heels and seek the fields. He was commanded to halt, but his wings grew faster at the command. There were some good runners among his pursuers, but they couldn't overhail Stephen. The best they could do was to keep him in sight most of the time and to waste many bullets firing at him.

Mr. Haxleton slipped over fences, jumped ditches and flew across rails. Why he didn't stop and help himself. Every man of the posse knew why the chase continued, however. They were after the Bad Man of Kalem, and they meant to get him dead or alive.

Even a stern chase and a long chase cannot continue indefinitely. There came a time when Stephen Haxleton started out of a bit of woods and made for a barn about ten rods behind a farm house. The big doors were wide open, and he was wadded in he bumped against a girl coming out with a dozen or more eggs in her apron.

"Stephen!"

"Mildred!"

"What is it?"

"They—they want to arrest me!"

"Oh, goodie, goodie! How nice! How romantic! Stevie, I'll fight to the death for you and then marry you afterward!"

And Aunt Eliza is a witness to the fact that the posse didn't get Stephen until they first got the eggs, and that when they did get him they apologized handsomely for the mistake.

The actor? Oh, he had come and gone. He found the country too rich for his blood.

Miss Mildred's promise? She kept it. All she had been waiting for was for Stephen to show that he had the makings of an outlaw in him to give a romantic turn to events.

No Place for Him.

He had been very ill, but, on becoming convalescent, the doctor ordered him to Southport. The day following he returned home.

"Why, John," said his wife, "what ever brought you back so soon?"

"Oh, how," he replied, "I couldn't stop there; it's a terrible place!"

"No, surely, the doctor said—"

"Never mind what he said. I'll tell you what I saw. After I'd gotten lodged I went for a walk on the first 'lectric car I saw was labeled 'Infirmity,' and it was full of folks as sick; and by gosh! there comes another minute later labeled 'Destiny,' and after that I come home. I'd had enough."

A Heavy City.

The ruins of Machu Picchu, a city probably built by the Incas, were discovered by Hiram Bingham on his 1911 expedition to Peru. The ruins are on a high, steep, and inaccessible ridge, 2,000 feet above the Urubamba river. They are of great beauty and magnificence, and include palaces, baths, temples, and other buildings. Home Life of the Birds.

Unlike most birds, the grebe does not leave their eggs continually. It is only at night and on cloudy days that you will find them at home. A soon as the sun has risen and warmed the chilly morning air the old bird leaves her nest and, collecting decaying vegetation from the shore or bottom of the lake, she covers the eggs with a thick layer and leaves the sweltering mass of stinking muck to hatch them while she spends the day in idleness or play.

House Plans Improving.

The care of food in the home and all other forms of household work are greatly facilitated by right planning and then the use of suitable materials for the construction and furnishing of the home. An adequate and convenient water supply and other conveniences are essential, not only for comfort and for saving labor, but also from the standpoint of home hygiene.

The Men Who Succeed

As heads of great enterprises are men of great energy. Success, today, demands health. To all is to fail. It's utter folly for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took," writes Chas. H. Allen, Sylvania, Ga. "After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders, and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. Only 50 cents at the Barrington Pharmacy.

Flirting With Fame.

"Why do you insist on nibbling around that hook?" said the wise fish. "You know the danger." "Yes," replied the little fellow, "but we all have a certain appetite for glory. I am willing to take a chance for the sake of being described to that man's friends as 'the big fish that got away'."

Why He Did It.

"So your oldest boy has joined the blue club?" "Yes." "What caused him to take that step?" "I don't know. But, judging by sound, I guess it must have been melancholia."

Quizzes and Quiz Supply.

General Anderson, without at Hongkong, has recently taken pains to correct the widespread impression that the growing tendency on the part of Chinamen to disguise with their queues will have the effect of making false hair cheap. It appears that the queues when cut are never sold, but are always preserved for burial with the owner. Mr. Anderson says that this is an absolute rule throughout South China, as well as in all other parts of the country from which he has been able to secure information on the subject.

New Violins and Old.

A contest took place in Paris which seems to vindicate the contention that modern violins are as good in tone as those of ancient make. A number of violins were played in a dark room, and at the end a vote was taken from the musical audience present, with the result, says a Paris correspondent, that the finest violin was judged to be a Belgian instrument dated 1915; the second was a French 1911 violin, and not until the third came a Stradivarius, valued at more than £3,000.

Medical Attention.

"It has often been said, with truth, that only two classes of people receive truly expert medical attendance—the very rich and the very poor," writes Walter Fritchler, M.D., in Munsey's for October. "The very rich can afford specialists and trained nurses. The very poor are taken to million-dollar hospitals, where the best is given to them, and then, perhaps, to convalescent country homes. The rest of us are at the mercy of the general practitioner and amateur nursing."

Germany's Fastest Trains.

The far-east distance trains in Germany are the Berlin-Hannover-Dortmund express, which covers 329.04 miles with only three stops, at an average speed of 50.53 miles an hour; the Oederberg-Braunau-Berlin express, 318.90 miles with four stops, at 50.14 miles an hour; the Berlin-Königsberg express, 366.61 miles with three stops, at 49.70 miles an hour.

A Frost.

"Have you purchased your new car yet, Mrs. North?" asked the visitor. "No, Mr. Southers, I ain't. I can't make up my mind whether to get a gasoline car or a limousine car. Maybe you can tell me—does limousine smell as bad as gasoline?" inquired the lady.—Harper's Weekly.

Marking Keys.

If you have a number of keys in the stable, shed, henhouse and such buildings, that look and feel about alike, put wooden tags on them, with one notch for the stable, two notches for the henhouse, etc. You can tell at a glance, then, or by feeling them if it is dark, which key is the right one.

Poor Mother Earth.

A bargain in a golf rig has decided one girl to go in for the ancient game at a resort famous for that sport.

Property owners living in the northern part of this township petitioned for a new road to connect the Dundee road in this township with the Wauconda and McHenry road in Wauconda township, running through farms which are back from any present public highway, to give outlet to the residents of those farms and for the convenience of the public. The highway commissioners of the two townships met on the grounds last Saturday afternoon and granted the prayer for the new road so that the legal procedure may start at once. The proposed highway will be practically a continuation of what is known as the Honey Lake road in this township, and commencing at the place where that road joins the Bennett road will run northerly through the old Givens, Grace, Conner and Kasper property, connecting with the Wauconda road at a point near the former Plutarch Houghton farm. There is no absolute assurance that the road will be put through, for it may be considered too expensive after the damages have been assessed, but the work has progressed to a point where it is a probability. There are at present several property owners living on the route of the proposed highway who are considerably inconvenienced by reason of no proper way of reaching the public road.
