While driving a team on a hay rake one of the horses became frightened and killed him in the right thigh causing a severe flesh wound which necessitated the calling of a physician.

Joe Robertson has been troubled this week with a dislocated right shoulder. He had an accident and neither he or the doctor can determine the cause of the dislocation, but he is obliged to carry his arm in a sling to keep the joint in place. His friends hope that his "good right arm" will soon be in shape for use again.

V. D. Harley has invented and is showing on the market a new class display rack for soured pie cards. The patent of superiority he claims for his rack is, that the pattern is so arranged as to leave every portion of the face of the pie card in each position in full view, and the combination will make it impossible for anyone to see the other side.

BEST CITY IN THE WORLD

Mrs. S. E. Howarth Writes of Los Angeles—Is Delighted With California.

"I must repeat what is claimed for this city, that Los Angeles is really the homesetter's paradise of the south west. The climate here is not to be excelled anywhere. There is no humidity, no sun strokes, no electric or thunder storms, no hot waves, no cyclones and no fierce winds. It is only when the sun is hottest, the shade of a house or a tree is always cool. The evenings and the mornings are always crisp and refreshing. At night in mid-summer as in mid-winter the sleeper requires a blanket to keep himself comfortable. I shall not attempt to write of the wide variety of delicious fruit and beautiful flowers that abound, and grow and bloom here throughout the year, for I am quite sure you have read and heard all about them. The area of Los Angeles is 101 square miles and an elevation above the Pacific of 720 feet. It is 18 miles from the ocean and has a population of 447,000, an increase of 127,000 since the census of 1910. It is estimated that there are 15,000 visitors during the summer months and many thousands during the winter months, which affords a princely sum for the local merchants. Since 1910 65 miles of new buildings have been erected here, and there are 2300 manufacturing establishments in operation here, and many others under way. There are 40 commercial and savings banks. Also there are 2,000 oil wells the products of which are used on the streets and for fuel. The shopping districts of Los Angeles is a wonderland. The streets are wide, well asphalted and beautifully paved and well lighted. There are 22 fire departments. The water plant is owned by the city. It is a gravity system, no pumping plant being required. It brings pure mountain water from snows and springs over 200 miles into the city and in sufficient quantity to supply all the needs of the city government and improvements, the tax rate for the city is only $1.43 and county $1.35. Los Angeles with its superb climate, location and prodigious growth affords to the young and old alike, home and business opportunities that no other city in the world can equal."

MRS. S. E. HOWARTH, Los Angeles, California.

Spellar-Frisch

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frisch, west of Fox river in Cuba township, the wedding of their daughter, Miss Mamie Frisch, to Charles Spellar of Chicago occurred last Saturday evening. Over 100 guests from Chicago and Elgin were in attendance. An elaborate wedding supper followed the ceremony, and the evening was given over to informal dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Spellar are spending a short honeymoon in Wisconsin, and on their return will make their home in Chicago where Mr. Spellar is a bank engraver.

Mr. and Mrs. Frisch conduct one of the most popular summer resorts along the Fox river, and Mrs. Spellar, their only daughter, is a beautiful and accomplished young woman, beloved by every guest of the Fox River resort, and very family about the country-side. Congratulations were showered upon the happy couple from all sides.

Board of Review Finished

The Lake County board of review has finished its work for the present year, its figures showing an increase of $97,995 on the assessed valuations. The total assessed value of personal property in the county is $3,320,850 as compared with $4,010,740 last year. The real estate is assessed at $13,290,420 this year. Dance tickets will cost 75 cents and spectators will be charged 25 cents. John Smith, the manager has issued a neat program for the use of the dancers. These will be used as a badge of admission instead of a ribbon.

The Men Who Succeed

As heads of great enterprises are men of great energy. Success, to-day, demands that a man should be able to stand up to a man to endure a week, rain or shine, half alive condition when the sun is just as hot as the sun, and his feet in short order. "For" bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took," writes Chas. B. Allen, of Bryant, Ga. "After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders, and nervousness, I am now able to do my work, and I am very grateful to Dr. Barker's medicine."

Dr. Barker, physician, will be in Barrington at Dr. Shearer's office, Tuesday, October 1.

BALL SEASON NEARLY ENDED

Local Baseball Team Will Play Last Two Games of Year This Week and Next.

The baseball season for the local fans is nearly closed, but two more games remaining to be played, and according to those connected with the Omnes Vitae team the games may be, not only abandoned for this season, but for all the time. Many local baseball players are getting discouraged. Their games did not receive the attendance they merited this year and as a result the receipts have fallen far short of being enough to balance the expenditures. The boys played good ball this year, winning about 75 per cent of the games played, but say they do not love the game well enough to do all the work, secure the games, and pay their own and the visiting teams expenses out of their own pockets. They may decide to give up trying to have a ball team here.

Last Saturday's game was cancelled on account of the rain. This week there will be a game between the single men and the married men of the club, and a great crowd of spectators. The club team will play the high school baseball team. These two games will end the playing here for this year.

BLAST TRIAL NEAR

HEARING OF FIFTY-ONE INDICTED
MEN SOON TO TAKE PLACE AT INDIANAPOLIS.

MASS OF EVIDENCE IS READY

Orin McManigal Is Expected to Be Principal Witness of the Government—Senator Kern to Defend Accused.

Indianapolis, Sept. 24.—On October 1 fifty-one men, who were indicted in connection with the dynamiting cases, will be placed on trial by the government. The district attorney is at work on the cases and expects to be ready by the time the cases are called.
Almost the entire list of officials of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers for ten years back will appear.

The district attorney has marsh-aled his testimony, consisting largely of documentary evidence, in such a way as to expedite the trial
as much as possible. The records and letters taken from the offices of the iron workers have been arranged in the order of their dates and are ready in the order in which the prosecution assert the writers stand toward the conspiracy that the government charged existed in the organization to dynamite property.

John J. McNamara, the international secretary, is said to have handled all the correspondence and given practically all the instructions regarding places where explosives
should be used, and the prosecution holds there is abundant evidence that the instructions were acted upon.

Letters alleged to have been written by Ryan to other members and by them to Ryan constitute an interesting part of the correspondence.
The letters, nearly 200 of which are in the possession of the government, are alleged to be from or about the men indicted, and the government asserts it is able to trace practically every job of dynamiting to an immediate or remote connection with them. In this connection the evidence of Orin McManigal will be very important, for it is said it will show that he received instructions in harmony with the letters, and that he carried out these instructions to the letter and received pay for them.
Senator Kern has recently been employed by the defense and is now going over the indictments and is frequently in consultation with the defendants.

FLASHES OFF THE WIRE

Columbia, Mo., Sept. 24.—Mrs.
Champ Clark was named president of the Missouri and bacon show in January at the University of Missouri Agricultural college. She will be a judge in the ham and bacon contest.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 21.—More than 2,000 persons have been vaccinated at the public safety building within the last 24 hours. The majority were children brought in by their parents.

Knox Guest at Dinner.
Tokyo, Sept. 23.—Philander C. Knox, who attended the funeral of the late Emperor Meiji, was the special ambassador of the United States, was the guest of honor at a dinner given on Friday by Baron Shibayama.

Haiti Rate Raised.
Washington, Sept. 23.—Advances in

PACKING UP

BACKED MEXICO WAR

AMERICAN FINANCIERS SAID TO HAVE FURNISHED MONEY.

Charles P. Taft and H. Clay Pierce
Named to Head of Syndicate
That Financed Madero.

New Orleans, Sept. 21.—Charles P.
Taft, Henry Clay Pierce, president of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, and representatives of the Harriman interests are charged by Juan P. Didap, diplomatic adviser of the Mexican revolution, with having furnished the money needed to finance the revolution against Diaz to President Madero.
Didap made this allegation on Thursday before leaving for Mexico.

He said that $5,000,000 had been advanced and that the loan had been repaid with a $200,000 premium. Mr.
Didap added that a new junta would be formed to replace the one which has been broken up by the arrests of its members by United States officers.
Marfa, Tex. Sept. 21.—Col. Pascual
Orsoco, Sr., and four other staff officers of Pascual Orsoco, Jr., rebel commander of the north, arrived here last night from Presidio, Tex., where they fled after the rebel defeat at Orizaba, Mex. They were in custody of United States Marshal Matthews and a squad
of United States cavalry.

The Mexican consul here has filed a complaint against all the prisoners, charging violation of the United States neutrality laws. The trial will be held before United States Commissioner Griffin. Several attorneys are here to represent the defendants.

JUDGE HUTTON WILL NOT RUN

Race for Re-Election to Bench
in Los Angeles, Cal.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25.—Judge
George H. Hutton of the Los Angeles superior court, who presided at the recent Darrow bribery trial, withdrew from the race for re-election on Monday, because his health had become affected by the months of strain of the trial. With the termination of his duties on the bench, Judge Hutton will head an expedition of investigation and exploration into New Mexico and Arizona for the American Archaeological society, for the purpose of studying the evidences of an ancient irrigation system of prehistoric races
in that section.

AMERICANS ARE IN DANGER

Incipient Revolt in Town in China Is Started by Defiant Chief of Police.

Foo Chow, Sept. 25.—A large number of Americans in this city are in danger of their lives because of an incipient revolt started on Monday by the chief of police, who has defied the authorities of the government and has threatened to destroy the city in a case he is attacked.

A large force of federal soldiers has been dispatched from Peking to Foo Chow. Sharp fighting is anticipated within a short time and all foreigners have been warned to gather within their own legations and seek protection from the attacks of the natives.

Quiet in Nicaragua.
Washington, Sept. 25.—The navy department dispatches from Corinto reported all quiet near Granada, Nicaragua, but added that the rebels still were manifesting great activity along the shores of Lake Nicaragua.

Oil Chiefs Are Called.
New York, Sept. 25.—A subpoena was issued for John D. Archbold, to testify in the hearing in the suit which was brought to prevent the sale to serve on the board of the Waters-Pierce Oil company.

RUSH OUT MARINES

ORDERED TO SANTO DOMINGO TO PROTECT CUSTOMS HOUSES
AND FOREIGN PROPERTY.

SITUATION IS VERY SERIOUS

President Issues Rush Orders After Assistant Secretary Winthrop Informs Him of Critical Conditions—Gunboat Goes to Dominican Waters.

Wilmington, Del. Sept. 26.—A force of 750 marines will sail from Philadelphia on the transport Prairie for Santo Domingo to protect the American customs receivership there.
This decision was reached by President Taft at a conference on Tuesday with Secretary Winthrop, assistant secretary of the navy.
The marines will take charge of the customs houses of the republic, endangered by the present revolution, which are under United States supervision by the terms of the 1907 convention.

The marines will sail from Philadelphia on the transport Prairie. Col.
F. J. Moses probably will command the detachment and Brigadier General McIntyre, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, and W. T. P. Foy, of the Latin-American division will also sail on the Prairie.

Although no definite plans were made by the president and Mr. Winthrop at their conference, the force probably will be split into small bodies so that the customs of the whole Santo Domingo republic can be safely closed.

There is no United States force in the republic now, but the gunboat Wheeling will land blue-jackets, but the authorities will await the arrival of the Prairie.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The gun-boat Wheeling is the only American warship now in the Dominican waters.
She has a complement of about seventy marines. The gunboat Petrel left there a few days ago and is now on her way to New York. She was last reported off the Florida coast, in an equinoctial storm. She might be turned back by whirlpools.
Most of the marines who go to San Domingo, however, undoubtedly will be drawn from the posts at Washington, New York, Boston, Norfolk and other Atlantic coast stations.

SENATORS TO QUIZ HILLES

Senate Committee Will Examine G.
O. P. Chairman as to Campaign Money.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Senator
Clapp received a letter from George W. Perkins on Tuesday asking that Charles H. Hilles, chairman of the Republican national committee, be called before the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures to "testify fully as to his charge that Colonel Roosevelt had spent millions of dollars of Harvester trust money."
Senator Clapp stated that Mr. Hilles undoubtedly would be called before the committee, but would be examined not alone upon that reported statement, but upon the general subject of campaign contributions.

A plan for the opening of hearing
next week was outlined by Senator Clapp for presentation to the full committee when it meets. The first witness probably will be Cornelius N.
Bliss, Jr., and the second C. C. Tegenhoff, private secretary to the late Edward H. Harriman. These two men will be called upon to produce any papers belonging to the estates respectively of Cornelius N. Bliss and Mr. Harriman that might throw light on the charges made by John D.
Archbold that the Standard Oil company had been asked to contribute to the Roosevelt fund of 1904.

GERMAN PEACE MAKER DIES

Baron Blieherstein, Appointed to British Court, Was Relieved Upon to Restore Friendship.

Hadenweiler, Germany, Sept. 26.—
Baron Adolf Blieherstein von Hohen-stein, successor to Blamack as the "strong man of Germany" and minister of Prussian hopes for the peaceful working out of Emperor William's ambitious international policies, died suddenly here.

The baron was appointed ambassador to London only last May and his assignment to that difficult post was hailed by the most progressive political writers of Europe as a proof of the confidence of the government in his ability to bring about trifling and agitation which for months had threatened the peace of the world.

Roosevelt Escapes Crash.
Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 26.—Several men were borne down in the collapse of Haskell's Medical college here. Dr.
Roosevelt spoke here and the college himself narrowly escaped. No one was injured seriously, however.

Student "Poison Squad." Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 26.—With the opening of the school year at the Hahnemann Medical college here, Dr.
Edwin Nesbitt, professor of pharmacology, has organized a "poison squad"
from the undergraduate body.

Darrow Trial October 21.
Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 26.—Acting Governor Wallace appointed Judge W.
M. Conley of Modesto to preside at the second trial of Clarence S. Darrow on a charge of bribery. The trial will open on October 21.

COULDN'T HAVE DONE BETTER

Marriage Arrangement Seemed Something of a Bargain, but It Turned Out Unhappy.

George A. Hirmsham, the widely known writer, says there is no country in the world where marriage, at least in the peasant class, is more a matter of bargaining, and yet shows a higher average of stability and content than Ireland. Sometimes the man has never seen the woman before they are brought together, the precise number of pounds, shillings, or pence to be handed over having been
by that time settled.

This is illustrated in personal recollections last published by an Irish woman. She was visiting with an aunt a cottage in the neighborhood and admired a fine mahogany chest of drawers.

"Was for that I was married,"
said the mistress of the cottage. A young farmer had also seen and admired a bargain was struck. There was no money, but the bride was to have a couple of sheep, a rearing bullock and a pair of geese. The prudent young man measured it, and then turned and asked:

"An' which o' them little girls is it?"
She was the oldest unmarried—
"that the doors," as the phrase was.
"An' so I whist," she said, "and was happy ever afterwards."—Tit-Bits.

HOW TO TREAT PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently smear the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and warm water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on rising and retiring.
After other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the face and bath. To escape from the danger of inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of pimples, blackheads,
redness and roughness, yellow, oily,
mothy and other unwholesome conditions of the skin.

INTERESTING LORE OF HAND

Few Men Can Tell the Truth While Their Hands Remain Open—Some Signs and Symbols

When a man is not telling the truth he is apt to clench his hands, as few men can lie with their hands open. A man who holds his thumb tightly within his hand has weak will power. Strong willed persons hold their thumbs outside when shutting their hands.

Shaking hands in greeting was originally an evidence that each person was unarmed.

Among savage tribes when a man holds up hands it is a sign of peace, an evidence that he is unarmed or does not intend to use weapons. An outlaw says, "Hold up your hands!" meaning thereby to make his victim powerless to resist attack.

When a man kisses the hands of a woman he expresses his submission. This is also the idea when kissing the hands of kings. By this act their superiority is acknowledged.

When an oath is taken it is done by raising the right hand, or laying it upon a bible.

In the consecration of bishops, priests and deacons, and also in confirmation, the laying on of hands is the essence of the sacramental rite.

A bishop gives his blessing with the thumb and first and second fingers. In this the thumb represents God the Father, the first finger stands for God the Holy Ghost, the three together symbolizing the Holy Trinity.

The wedding ring is placed upon the third finger of the woman's hand to show that, after the Trinity, man's love, honor and duty is given to his wife.

Besides the deaf and dumb there are many people, notably of Latin and Semitic races, who talk with their hands.

FISHING POINTERS FOR BOYS

Proper Method of Fastening Line to a Hook is Shown—Some Quite Useful Suggestions.

The drawing shows the proper way to line a hook. This method holds the hook at right angles with the line, and thus keeps it from getting tangled. The best place for snubbing is in a shallow, quiet place by the side of a large stream. After you catch the first one, be very quiet and try to keep your line constantly in the water, for they travel in schools and are easily scared. They will not linger about the same place long unless something to eat is in sight. If you are pulling them up rapidly just half the top barb of your hook. Bullheads abound in weedy places and bite best after a rain, when a west wind is blowing.

INTEREST IN SOAP BUBBLES

Those Made of Soap Water to Which Glycerine Has Been Added Are Quite Attractive.

Have you ever stopped to think what a really interesting thing a soap bubble is? Soap bubbles are not only interesting to boys and girls, but they have long been a source of wonder and interest to men of science. In fact, scientists have employed soap bubbles in trying to perform certain experiments.

A soap bubble is nothing more than a film of water molecules (tiny particles that cannot be seen with the naked eye), held together by the sticking power of dissolved soap. As most of us know, in making bubbles the bowl of a common clay pipe is dipped into soapy water. The bubble maker blows air into the pipe and the bubble at once expands. While bubbles made of plain soap water are interesting, those made of soap water to which some glycerine has been added are even more attractive, because they have such pretty colors.

There are many ways of making bubbles. For instance, smoke may be blown through the pipe into the bubbles or one bubble may be blown inside of another. Very large bubbles can be made by using the hands instead of a pipe. Cover the hands well with soap and then hold them so as to form a cup, as if drinking with the hands from a spring, but leaving a small hole in the bottom. With the mouth about a foot from the hands, blow a current of air into them. Some of the bubbles will be more than a foot in diameter. Try this experiment the next time you wash your hands.

PUZZLES.

How can I get the wine out of a bottle if I have no corkcrew and must not break the glass, or make any hole in it or in the cork?

Answer—Push the cork into the bottle.

A person tells another that he can put something into his right hand, which the other cannot put into his left.

Answer—The last person's left elbow.

How must I draw a circle round a person placed in the center of a room so that he will not be able to jump out of it though his legs should be free?

Answer draw it round his body.

What Made Baby Cry.

Any woman who entertains needs this invaluable assistant to be up to date, to provide correct service and to save the useless stress and unnecessary fatigue required to carry trays around.

IN PUTTING UP PRESERVES

Matter of Importance is the Selection of the Right Kind of Fruit to Be Preserved.

Fruit for preserving in any form should be fresh-picked, or gathered, and slightly under-ripe. Such fruit ensures more perfect shape in the finished product and eliminates the possibility of fermented fruit or the loss of pectin or jelly-making property.

Handle soft fruit (peaches, berries, etc.) as little as possible. If it is to be canned in jars, put it into the jars at once, on hulling or otherwise preparing it.

If berries must be washed, put them in a colander, and wash with cold water over them and turn at once upon a large sieve to drain, then hull.

Large hard fruit, as apples, pears, and quinces, should be washed and wiped dry before paring.

Cut apples and other hard fruit, for jelly, into quarters, removing all wormy places and imperfections. Retain the skin and cores. The cores of quinces should be discarded, as the excess of gummy properties does not hold.

Use a silver-plated knife to pare fruit. Peaches, soft pears, plums and tomatoes, set into a wire basket (try-basket) may be plunged into a saucepan of boiling water; after three or four minutes remove to a kettle of cold water for the same time, when the fruit may be quickly and easily peeled. This method of peeling is admirable when a large quantity of fruit is to be put up, but it is thought to detract somewhat from the flavor.

Chicken Pie.

Cut up the chicken and stew it until it is tender, season it with one teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of ground mace, one teaspoonful of ground ginger, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, and two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley.

Take a deep pie dish and line it with a pie crust, then put a cup in the center of the dish (this cup will hold the gravy). Then put the chicken in the dish, two raw potatoes cut in thin slices and one hard-boiled egg cut in slices. Put the potatoes and egg on top of the chicken and cover the dish with pie crust, bake and serve hot.

Swedish Meat Balls.

One pound of finely ground lean beef put through a meat chopper twice, also a small onion, if you like onions; one tablespoon of flour, a little pepper and salt, and cold water enough to mix easily with a spoon; then wet your hands in cold water and shape into balls; put a piece of butter in the frying pan, have pan hot before putting balls in, fry on both sides and push to one side; make brown gravy by browning a small piece of butter and a teaspoon of flour; pour hot water over all and cook five minutes.

St. Denis Salad.

Cut cold boiled potatoes in one-half-inch cubes. There should be 1 1/2 cups. Cut cold boiled beets in one-quarter-inch cubes. There should be one-third of a cup. Mix the potatoes and beets, add three hard-boiled eggs finely chopped, one-half tablespoon of chopped green pepper and one-half teaspoon of chopped cheese. Mix with dressing and serve in nests of lettuce leaves.

Yeast Paste.

Take one-half cupful of water, one-half cupful of lard, the beaten white of one egg, three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one teaspoonful of cream tartar, and one-half teaspoonful of soda; add flour enough to make a moderately stiff dough.

Yeast Pudding.

One cup of milk, one cup of molasses, one cup of oat or three-quarters butter, half cup of raisins, more or less, three full cups flour, teaspoon of soda. Boil or steam four hours.

ILLINOIS' BIG SUIT

Action Against Illinois Central Declared to Be Rare.

Under Direction of Attorney General State Wins Victory in Contest With Corporation for Millions.

"A case of its great proportions is rare in the history of this court." The people claim that the Illinois Central Railroad company has failed to pay all the taxes legally due the state. "Upwards of twenty millions is claimed to be due." There are innumerable, complicated and weighty questions involved in the suit. "Innumerable new questions arise." "We do not think that there will again occur in the history of this court a case wherein this extraordinary extension of time will be necessary."

With these words, the supreme court of Illinois broke all its rules and precedents and granted to each side a whole day in which to argue what is now known throughout the United States as the Illinois Central case.

The amount of money involved, the sensational charges against a great corporation, and the intricacies of its legal entanglements make it the most remarkable in the history of Illinois courts.

The state granted a charter in 1851 to the Illinois Central Railroad company to build two lines of road, one from Cairo to Galena and the other from Centralia to Chicago. The state gave the company 2,596,000 acres of land, from the sale of which the company has since received thirty million dollars.

The charter was perpetual and provided that semi-annually the company should pay to the state treasury seven per cent. of its gross receipts.

From 1851 to 1905 the company made its payments semi-annually upon its own accounts and its tenders were not seriously questioned. Governor Charles S. Deneen in 1905, immediately following his inauguration, decided not to take the company's word for it. He refused to give it a receipt in full and sent his investigators into its offices. These investigators unearthed facts which the governor deemed evidence that the company was not paying the state what was due.

Atty. Gen. Stead Files Suit. Attorney General Stead was called in. The legislature appropriated money with which to prosecute the investigations and such legal action as they might indicate to be necessary to settle all the questions in dispute between the state and the company and to recover what the company might owe the treasury.

Mr. Stead began the preparation of a suit for an accounting. This involved tremendous and enormous work. Thousands of long and intricate accounts had to be examined, extending back thirty years. He had to study the leases and purchases of non-charter lines, fifty-five in number, and their relations to the business of the charter lines. He had to master all the complicated details of railroad financing and accounting, go over the hundreds of legal cases in which the company had been a party, read the minutes of the boards of directors' meetings.

It was filed in the circuit court of LaSalle county in June, 1907. Judge Samuel Stough, who presided, rendered an opinion in June, 1908, which gave the state the advantage of position, and sent the case to the supreme court upon appeal by the company.

In December, 1908, it was argued orally before that tribunal.

Decision a Victory for State.

On October 28, 1910, the court handed down its opinion, which was an almost complete victory for the state. Its contentions were sustained in every material point but one, in which the court held that the state could not go back of 1905 in an accounting, but from that date it was granted the right to an accounting on the basis of the interpretation of the charter just announced by the court.

The court holds that from 1905 on and for all future time, the company must fairly and fully account to the state for seven per cent. of the receipts of the charter lines; it must fairly and equitably divide all joint receipts of the charter and non-charter lines; it may not deduct anything for expenses before the state's percentage is computed; it must charge the non-charter lines for the services and use of charter line rolling stock and terminals; it can deduct from the charter line earnings only a fair rental for the Cairo bridge; it must account for receipts from its dining cars and hotels and it must answer seventy-four interrogatories propounded by the state.

The accounting will require, of course, a vast amount of testimony before a special master and considerable time will elapse before it will be known what the company owes to the state, but that it will run into the millions is not denied.

Will Battle Old Questions.

The suit will settle for all time to come several questions which have been asked or less hundred times since 1851. It is largely because of his desire to carry to the work which has no other home or advantage to the state and to use this litigation to the end that Mr. Stead has decided to be a candidate for re-election in this year.

Cut Shows Barrington Portable Gasoline Engine with Screen Water Cooling Tank

The Barrington Portable Gasoline Engine is mounted on heavy, substantial steel trucks. They are especially built and balanced for portable engine work and will stand perfectly stationary on a level floor without blocking, when running at full speed and under load. The materials used in their manufacture are the best that money will buy. Equipped with friction clutch pulley, screen-cooling water tank with circulating pump, gasoline tank, speed lever, battery complete, magneto and all necessary accessories. The engine is fitted with a volume or throttling governor; this governor is a centrifugal high speed governor, being run two revolutions to one revolution of the engine, thereby maintaining a regulation that will govern on less than one hundredth part of an inch; and we guarantee the speed of this engine to be as regular as any steam engine ever built. Can be changed from 125 revolutions to 400 revolutions while running. Ask your neighbors about them.

CHAPTER IX.

All Aboard!
The starting of the train surprised the ironical decorators in the stages of their work. They studied out in a sudden shame, as came over them that the joke had coiled on their own heads. They did their best to carry out the honored rite of making a newly married couple as miserable as possible and the newly married couple failed to do its share.

The two lieutenants glared at each other in mutual contempt. They studied much at West Point about ambushes, and how to avoid them. Could Mallory have escaped the way they had digged for him? The porter looked at their handiwork in disgust. The cosy-corner effect of white cushions and orange flowers, gracefully making the concealed rice-trap, seemed the whitest thing ever devised. Now it looked the silliest.

The other passengers were equally discontented. While the two men were in the corridor were kissing good-byes as if they were hoping to stay up honey enough to sustain the hearts for a three years' fast. As the porter was studying them with perplexity.

He was used, however, to waking people out of dreamland, and he began to fear that if he were discovered spying on the lovers, he might as well go to the gallows for the same or four times.

Since the increasing racket of the train made no effect on the two heads beating as one, the small matter of cough was as nothing.

Finally the porter was compelled to reach forward and tap Mallory's head and stutter:

"Scuse me, but co-could I git b-b-y dis train?"

The prince was united, and the two lovers sat at him with a wide-eyed where-am-I? look. Marjorie was first to realize what awakened them.

She felt called upon to say something so she said, as carelessly as if she had not just emerged from a young gentleman's arms:

"Oh, porter, how long before train starts?"

"Train's done started, Missy."

This simple statement struck her from her eyes and the color from her ears, and she was somehow awake when she cried: "stop it—stop it!"

"That's mo'n I can do, Missy," porter expostulated.

"Then I'll jump off," Marjorie vowed, making a dash for the door.

But the porter filled the narrow pair, and waved her back.

Vestibule's done locked up train coats, the livery-appl's. Feel that he had safely chemoquered rabbiness, the porter squeaked
the dumbfounded pair, and went change his blue blouse for the wet coat of his chambermaidly dut Mallory's first wondering thought a rapturous feeling that error stances had forced his dream into reality. He thrilled with triumph
"You've got to go with me now."
"I'll go," she said.
He asked meekly: "then, sublime,"
said. Kissmet!"
They clutched each other again
a fiercely blissful hug. Marjorie back to earth with a bump: "You really sure there's a minister board?"

"Pretty sure," said Mallory; not bag a trifle.

"But you said you were sure."

"Well, when you're a sure, that means you're not quite sure."

It was not an entirely satisfactory justification, and Marjorie began quake with alarm: "Suppose this shouldn't be?"

"Oh, then," Mallory answered calmly, "there's bound to be one morrow."

Marjorie realized at once the enormous abyss between them and perplexed, when the porter returned in his white jacket.

"I bet they missed the train; all this work for nothing," Hudson grumbled. But Shaw, seeing the porter caught a gleam of hope, and asked anxiously:

"Say, porter, have you seen anything anywhere that looks like a fresh fly man's pair?"

"Well," and the porter rubbed his eyes with the back of his hand as he chuckled, "well, they's a mighty low in' couple out there in the corridor."

"That's them—the chev—it!"

Instantly everything was alive and in action. It was as if a magic had thrilled in a dejected camp.

"Get ready!" Shaw commanded.

"Here, here for everybody!"

"Everybody take an old shoe," said Hudson. "You can't miss in this row car."

"There's a kazoo for everyone, too," said Shaw, as the outtripped hands were equipped with wedding ammunition. "Do you know the 'Wedding March'?"

"I ought to by this time," said Mrs. Whitcomb.

Right into the tangle of preparation, old Ira Lathrop stalked, on his way back to his seat to get more cigars.

"Have some rice for the bride."

"couple!" said Ashton, offering him one of his own double-handful.

But Lathrop brushed him aside with a romance-bather's growl.

"Watch out for your head, then," cried Hudson, and Lathrop ducked just too late to escape a neck-billow from the water.

"An old shoe took him a clip about the ear, and the old woman-bather dropped raging into the same berth where the spinster, Anne Gattie, was trying to dodge the same downpour.

Still there was enough of the shrapnel left to overwhelm the two young "friends," who marched into the aisle, trying to look indifferent.

and prepared for nothing on earth less than for a wedding charivari. "I like to entrust his plans to fellow-fools like Hudson and Shaw, whom he had known at West Point for diabolically joyous hazers and practical jokers. Even as he sputtered rice and winecease from the impact of flying footgear he was he cursing himself as a double-breasted idiot for asking such men to engage his berth for him. He had a sudden instinct that they had doubtless been sent to him by the white sports with white satin farbelows and ludicrous labels. But he could no shelter himself from the white steel and the black thumps. He could hardly shelter Marjorie, who cowered behind him and shrieked even louder than the ramping tormentors.

When the assailants had exhausted the rice and shoes, they charged down the aisle for the privilege of kissing the bride. Marjorie was dragged and thrown about as though she were a rag doll, and he had to fight his way back to Marjorie with might and main. He was tugging and striking like a demon and yelling, "Stop it! stop it!"

Hudson took his punishment with uproarious good nature, laughing: "Oh, shut up, or we'll kiss you!"

But Shaw was scrubbing his wrists with a sea-sack wall of:

"Are you two thugs going to Barcelona with me?"

"Don't worry," smiled Hudson. "We're only going as far as Kedzie and Madison avenue, just to start the honeymoon properly."

The identity of the elopers had been a cause of the solution of the problem would have been simple. Marjorie could get off at this suburban station and drive home from there. But the two wits were like pled type, and they

Before they knew it, they were both haled along the aisle to the white altar. "I love you," said the bride to Hudson. "Sh! down—make your solemn protest at home."

"No—never—oh, oh!" cried Marjorie, darting away and throwing herself into the first empty seat—in Lathrop's berth. Mallory followed to console her with caresses and murmurs of, "There's there. Don't cry, dearie!"

Hudson and Shaw followed close with mawkish mockery: "Don't cry

And now Mrs. Temple intervened. She had enjoyed the initiation ceremony as well as anyone. But when the little bride began to cry, she remembered the pitiful terror and she

On the train aboard, all right. Don't mention it—you're entirely welcome."

It was the porter that brought the first relief from the ordeal.

"If you gemmen is gettin' off at Kedzie avenue, you'd better step smart. We're slowin' up now."

Marjorie was sobbing too audibly to hear, and Mallory swearing too loudly to think. The porter, who had been a Kiedzie crooner, offered And Hudson a yellin' "Well, good-bye, old boy and old girl. Sorry we can't go all the way." He had the offhandedness to kiss the bride good-bye, and Shaw was equally bold, but Mallory's force enabled him to beat them off. He elbowed and shouldered them down the aisle, and sent after them one of his own boys. But it just missed them, they being caught.

Mallory stood glaring after the departing traitors. He was glad that they at least were gone, till he realized with a sickening slump in his vitals, that they had not taken with them his awful dilemma. And now the train was once more creakety clicking into the night and the west.

CHAPTER X.

Excess Baggage.

Never was a young soldier so embarrassed by a problem in tactics as

Lieutenant Harry Mallory, safely, stopped his train, and put docking

Hudson and Shaw had erected a white bath temple to Hymen in berth number one, had created such commotion, and departed in such confusion that there had been no opportunity to proclaim that he and Marjorie were "not married—just friends."

And now the passengers had accepted them as that enormous fund of amusement to any train, a newly wedded pair. To explain the mistake would have been difficult, even among friends. But among strangers—well, perhaps a wiser and a colder brain than Harry Mallory's could have been so easily lulled into a brief respite restoring truth to her pedestal. But Mallory was in no condition for such a stolid delivery.

He mopped his brow in agony, lost in a blizzard of bewilderment. He drifted back toward Marjorie, half to protect and half for companionship's sake. He found Mrs. Temple cuddling between close and mothering her as if she were a baby instead of a bride.

"The poor child run away and get married!"

Marjorie's frantic "Boo-boo-boo-boo" might have meant anything.

Temple took it for assent, and murmured with glowing reminiscence: "Just the way Doctor Temple and I did."

She could not see the leaping flash of wild hope that lighted up Mallory's face. She only heard his voice across her shoulder:

"Doctor? Doctor Temple? Is your husband a reverend doctor?"

"A reverend doctor?" the little old lady repeated weakly.

"Yes—a preacher?"

The poor old congregation-wearer's soul was abruptly confronted with the ruination of all the delight in her little escape with her pupil-faggot.

husband. If she had ever dreamed that the girl who was weeping in her arms was weeping from any other fright than the one which she had just experienced from the preacher's benediction, she would have cast every other consideration aside, and told her the truth.

But her husband's last behest before he left her had been to keep their precious pretend-secret. She felt—just then that a woman's first duty is to obey her husband. Besides, what business was it of this young husband's what her old husband's business? Before she had fairly begun to debate her duty, almost automatically, with the instantaneous instinct of self-protection, her lips had uttered the denial:

"Oh—he's—just a—plain doctor."

There he is now."

Mailory cast one miserable glance down the aisle at Dr. Temple coming back from the smoking room. As the old man passed, she stared at the bridegroom, whose preparation he had not seen. He was just enough befuddled by his first cigar for thirty years to look a trifle tipsy. The motion of the train and the rakish tilt of his unwonted crimson tie confirmed the suspicion and annihilated Mailory's new-born hope, that perhaps repentance had dropped a parson at their

Eric the Red

was a Viking. EMMETT REED was a Viking's son. He grew up around rumfests, whom he held in check by a brutality even greater than their own. He was born in Norway in 1890, and came to America as Jari, or Earl, in the interval between his voyages of piracy like the usual group of barren farmers and red at his elbow of hard drinking, loud voiced Vikings who had sworn allegiance to him.

Lave were few in that land, and age of men in short life was cheap. Yet Eric committed himself to availing as to soon even the hardened his father, but he had many more sons. One of them, Erling, in service of King Olaf of Norway and known as "The King's Guardsman." His constant good fortune has been to find a king in the "Lair of Larks." Like the rest of King Olaf's crew, he had embraced Christianity, foregoing the further course of forcing his faithful subjects to same faith. A fierce quarrel arose between the two, but their differences were at last patched up by offering each party for the safety of voyage of discovery.

As the Vikings hastened down to the waiting ships Eric rode at their head. He was the first to see the straggling party of Norsemen who were stumbling and threw him just as he reached the water's edge. He was so overcome with grief that this seemed an operation of mind. He refused to go on. He expected to see his friend Leif. He saw him. He saw him with joy, for they hated Eric and loved his gallant son.

After a long halt westward Leif came to a gloomy, cloud-wrapped coast. He saw a dark, wooded shore, he sailed southward, looking for land for bidding shores. He found them. He is supposed to have landed somewhere on which thousands of red deer were feeding. Here Eric landed and founded a city. He named the country "Greenland." Rumors of its whereabouts had come to him from another Viking.

Now was Greenland the only strange country of which wandering Vikings had told Eric. These sea robbers in their restless journeys to new plunder were often swept out of all known routes by storms. More than one survivor of such voyages had spoken of having sighted a great land along the southwestern New England coast. The place seemed a paradise to these men from the bleak northern soil. The grass was rich and verdant. Wild grapes grew everywhere. Lief, because of the multitude of grapes, called the country "Vinland," or "Wine land."

Here he is supposed to have founded a colony before carrying back to Greenland the first of the "wonderful" discoveries. Other Norse voyagers are believed to have followed him to New England, but their fate and their very existence is shrouded in doubt.

Jonathan Wild, Founder of the "True Trust"

JONATHAN WILKINS was singularly fortunate in tracing

WILLIAM WALKER, a thief who never stole, a business man with no legitimate business, a politician who helped the law, and a man of the law who helped the thief, was the founder of one of the queerest monopolies on record—a "Thief Trust."

It began in 1852. He was a Birmingham buckle-maker by trade and came to London as a young man to improve himself with him. It was a regular "Trust." Once in awhile some statute

ona thieves, Wild made them a little speech. He explained that the new laws had made life hard for robbers. Theft was not only a "hangman's business," it was also a "poor man's game." The stolen goods were so closely watched that they dared not do business. So he suggested an improvement on the old methods. Any one coming forward with information could count on Wild and tell all about it. Wild in turn was to get to the person robbed, and on the latter's promise to ask no questions, was to offer a return reward. This would result in a substantial reward. This reward he would give to the thief in exchange for the plunder, keeping enough to have retired, but the spirit of craft was too strong for him. His first effort was to go to the right side of the wrong side of the street, where he saw a large crowd of men. He continued to write thieves' ill-earned money from them and to betray such as failed to follow his orders. At last, in 1728, he was arrested, convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

As the hangman's cart bore him to Tyburn (London's place of execution), the crowd mobbed him, yelling "Judas!" and "traitor!" In the end, the rascal received little work for the executioner to do when the cart at last reached Tyburn.

Heard of the money as his own capital.

It was a simple arrangement. The victim would get back his property by paying a certain sum; the thieves would make more money than they dealt in. The victim would get back his "bribe." Wild, with no danger to himself, would reap a tidy commission on every robbery.

From the first his business prospered. He was doing nothing but deal in money from any come within reach of the law. A house, for instance, would be robbed of $3,000 worth of valuables. Wild would go to the owner and talk him over for the best price he could get for the loot. The property was paid and

CAREFUL DOCTOR
Prescribed Change of Food Instead of

It takes considerable courage for a doctor to deliberately prescribe only food for a desperate patient, instead of resorting to the usual list of medicines.

There are some truly scientific physicians among the present generation who recognise and treat conditions as they are and should be treated, regardless of the value to their pockets. Here's an instance:

"Four years ago I was taken with severe gastritis and nothing would stay on my stomach so that I was on the verge of starvation."

"I heard of a doctor who had a summer cottage near me—a specialist from N. Y.—and as a last hope, sent

"After he examined me carefully he advised me to try a small quantity of Grape-Nuts at first, then as my stomach became stronger to eat more. "I kept at it and gradually got so I could eat and digest three teaspoonsful. Then I began to have color in my face, memory became clear, whereas before everything seemed a blank. My limbs got stronger and I could walk. So I steadily recovered. "Now after a year on Grape-Nuts I weigh 155 lbs. My people were surprised at the way I grew fleshy and strong on this food."
