

BARRINGTON REVIEW

VOLUME 25, NUMBER 14

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1913

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

BRIEF MENTION OF NEWS ABOUT TOWN

Happenings of the Week (In Short Paragraphs—What's Doing in Our Hauling Village.)

Fred Wolf purchased an Excelsior motorcycle last Saturday from P. C. Leonard.

The board of village trustees will meet in monthly session at the village hall next Monday evening.

The Epworth league of the Methodist church sent a case of eggs to the old people's home in Edgewater last week.

E. W. Riley, assessor of the town of Cuba, went to Waterville yesterday to secure the assessor's book for this year and will commence his work at once.

The Men's class of the Salem church will give a program at the church on next Wednesday evening. All mature persons are invited. On Tuesday evening the Young People's Missionary society of that church will also give a program at the church.

An electrical ball will be given at the village hall Thursday evening, April 10, by the local employees of the Public Service company. Music will be furnished by Kruse's orchestra of Des Plaines. The admission will be 75 cents a couple and spectators will be charged 25 cents.

Mrs. Henry Volker of Main street has received word from Piqua, Ohio, that Medadene George, Henry and Frank Schlusser, and the daughter of the latter, were drowned in the recent flood. These ladies were the wives of Mrs. Volker's nephews who also lost their homes and places of business.

This evening the Harrington concert company, accompanied by Mrs. Emma C. W. Matthews, reader, will entertain at the Methodist Episcopal church. It will be an instrumental and vocal program well worth hearing. If previous presentations are any criticism, and all should plan to attend.

The annual report of William Faddock, treasurer of the highway commissioners of the town of Cuba, appears in another column of this paper. The treasurer has only charged a commission on money actually paid out for road work. He has made no charge for money borrowed or the repayment of same, contrary to the impression gained by some of the taxpayers.

Mrs. A. L. Weidenbeck of Cottage Grove, Wisconsin, formerly Miss Elizabeth Brandt of this village, was brought by her parents' home here Saturday by her mother who has been stricken with her and nursing care through her mother's illness. She was taken sick after attending a lodge supper at Cottage Grove and it was feared for a while that she would not recover. Last Friday was the first day that she has been able to sit up and she was brought home immediately.

The Aldride and Terry dogs, entered by the Victory kennels at the twelfth annual exhibition of the Chicago Kennel club, held last week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, were returned Saturday evening bearing all the blue ribbons they could well be expected to obtain. With their Aldride dogs the Victory people won first prize for best breed, best team of Aldride and best brace of Aldride; with the Fox terriers they received first prize for best team and with Irish terriers first prize for best dog and best bitch.

P. T. Seaver has rented Mrs. Elizabeth Kirby's house on South Hawley street and will move there in a short time. R. E. Bosler will move to the Wisconsin house on South Hawley street, which the Seaver family has been occupying and E. C. Thies will take possession of the Lageschulte house on Lake street which Mr. Bosler will vacate, having traded his home on South Hawley street for the latter place. Mr. Lageschulte will fix up the Thies home, installing all modern conveniences and re-furnishing it throughout, and it will be occupied by Otto Adams, a C. & N.-W. collector, and family after the end of next month.

Sunday evening the Chicago Telephone company changed its local exchange from the Lamey building to the building opposite, erected for them a year ago by John Broad. "Cut over" is telephone parlance. The company had been getting ready for the change for months and all arrangements had been completed, so that the actual work of making the change took but an instant. The exchange is now located in a spacious, commodious structure, with a large operators room, office, and a state room in the basement, and no floor building for the operators can be located in the vicinity. The new building is a handsome structure in the village and the entire system is up-to-date.

NEWS OF THE FARM AND DAIRY

Notes of Comment and Interest to Local Agriculturists and Milk Producers.

The milk question has been practically settled here for another six months and all dairymen have signed up with some company or are shipping their milk. Almost all of the local plant here. The dairymen gained a distinctive victory in the recent campaign, having forced every company to change their prices with the exception of the Bowman's, the latter company offering in the start nearly as much as the "dairymen's" association was asking, and will be in a position next fall to have a great deal more to say about what their milk is worth if they maintain their organization during the summer, as they plan on doing.

Epworth League Meeting. The business and social meeting of the Epworth league of the Methodist church on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Alberta Horn was well attended, the parlors being filled mostly with young people.

The league decided to assist in the arrangements for the coming bazaar in the fall and it was decided to continue in the line of gathering and selling papers, books and magazines. Persons having them to dispose of can telephone E. F. Young at the Public Service company's sub-station, number 11.

A special social function at the Methodist church on April 15, was planned and the matter was referred to the fourth department of the league to carry out. One new member was admitted.

Fifty dollars were appropriated for church expenses and benevolences and it was arranged to aid in some contemplated improvements in the church. A committee consisting of Mrs. E. Riecke, Miss Stella Harnden and Frank Dohmeyer were appointed to nominate officers for the coming year and report at the next meeting, April 22.

Following the transaction of business there was a social hour. Miss Horn and Irving Horn gave a piano duet. Mr. McFadden gave a humorous reading and Miss Violet Ullrich rendered a piano solo. An impromptu daily paper, the "Epworth Evening Journal," made up of short items, mostly "gossip," was read by Miss Ethel Kline. Games and refreshments followed and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

Missionary Society Met.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. R. Freeman. There were twenty-two present. The program was in charge of Mrs. B. A. Cannon and the general topic was "Medical Missions in China." Persons taking part in the program were Mesdames E. S. Smith, W. A. Shearer, H. P. Castle, J. A. Calkins, W. J. Cameron, R. Lytle and H. A. Harnden. Zella Mickey, Mrs. Harris of Chicago and Mrs. Mason Cook sang solos.

Plans were announced for the annual thank-offering which will occur on the last Sunday morning in April. Miss Strawwick, a returned missionary from China, has been secured as the speaker. At the close of the program a social half hour was enjoyed during which the hostesses served cake and ice cream. The next meeting will be the first Tuesday in May at the home of Mrs. John Schwenn.

Was In Wreck.

Archie Cowen running as a baggageman on the C. & N.-W. railway between Chicago and northern Michigan was in a wreck on his return run last Sunday evening and had a very narrow escape from death. The train was running at a very rapid rate in order to make up lost time when the engine, tender and the two baggage cars left the track. Fortunately, almost miraculously, it would seem, Mr. Cowen escaped with only a severe shaking up. The engineer and fireman were badly hurt and two men stealing a ride were instantly killed.

Mr. Cowen who lives with his wife and son on Hough street, has been on the road for fifteen years and this was his first accident.

Improving Undertaking Rooms.

R. R. Bloch is making improvements at his undertaking rooms, which will give him more room and enable him to display more caskets in a more convenient manner. Instead of keeping the caskets in boxes as he has been doing he will have them arranged in cabinets with doors which swing downward, and the caskets which will be hung on the inside of the doors will thus be brought into full view in a horizontal position. The cabinets will be finished in light oak, adding greatly to the appearance of the interior.

O. V. BASEBALL TEAM MAKES PLANS

Season Will Open May Third—Many Candidates From Which Strong Team May Be Selected.

The Omnes Vitae club's baseball team is preparing for the summer's play and members are enthusiastic over the prospect of a successful season. F. O. Stone is manager this year and has been busy arranging for games. He says that there are more candidates who wish to make the team this year than usual and out of this material they should be able to select enough good players to compose a strong team—one able to put up some good games and the sport interesting enough to insure a goodly attendance at each game. It will be his policy to secure as opposing players teams which will be fully the equals of the locals, thus making it certain that the games will be interesting ones.

The same grounds have been rented for the season and the first game will be played Saturday afternoon, May 3, if a team can be persuaded to come here on that date. Games have been scheduled for the tenth and seventeenth but none has been arranged for the former day. The visitors on the tenth will be the Edgewater Reds and on the seventeenth the Northwestern University Settlement team. Members of the latter team, playing basket ball this winter, won 31 out of a possible 32 games and ought to be in pretty good condition at the opening of the baseball season.

Local baseball fans—and there are many of them—will be glad to know that the chances are good for some interesting games the coming summer, and will, we are certain, turn out to a man as long as a good standard is maintained by the O. V. club.

SCHOOL NOTES

The Harrington high school first took an interest in base ball when the Pentagonal league was organized about five years ago. It was through the principals that it was begun. Maywood, Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Barrington first comprised the league until this last year when Maywood joined another league because they had won the pennant every year and they decided that they were too strong for us. Arlington Heights dropped out of the Pentagonal league because they did not have enough boys in their school to make good teams so Barrington, Palatine and Des Plaines were the only ones left in the league. These three schools organized again this last February and gave the president power to invite other schools to join. As a result of the work by the president Crystal Lake and McHenry will join the league so that there will be five teams as in former years. Last year Barrington had the lowest percentage of all the teams in the league, but they hope as in earlier years to have the highest this coming season. The same men it is thought, will play this year as last and in their same positions. Their hearts are light and happy for they see the pennant ahead.

A district declamation contest is given each year by the high schools of Maywood, Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Barrington. Two representatives are sent from each school, boy and a girl, to enter the contest. Besides the speakers each school is supposed to give one musical number. The two persons winning in this contest speak at the county contest in Chicago, and the winner of the county contest receive gold medals.

Two years ago the banner was won by representative Howard Harnden. Last year Leah Meyer won the banner in the district contest and also the medal in the county contest. This year the contest will be held April 11, at Arlington Heights. The preliminary contest will be held at the Barrington high school Monday evening, April 7. This is the first contest ever open to the public so a large attendance is hoped for. Music will be furnished by the Barrington Concert company. There will be seven contestants who will speak, four girls and three boys. The admission fee is twenty-five cents.

Township Election Notice.

TWO BANKS WILL CONSOLIDATE

Stockholders of First State Bank Vote Unanimously to Accept Proposition of Present Bank.

The stockholders of the newly organized First State Bank of Barrington voted unanimously at their meeting held in the hall over Stiefenhofer's blacksmith shop last Saturday afternoon, to accept the proposition of the Barrington Bank of Robertson, Plagge & Company affecting a consolidation of the two banks and increasing the capital stock to $50,000 with a paid up surplus of $10,000. The arrangement is to have the stockholders of the latter bank, and others who are not already interested in the new bank, take up the balance of the stock, $20,000.

It was agreed to allow the present bank $12,500 for its business and good will, the new bank to receive the earnings of the present bank since the first of January. The new bank, the Barrington bank for its business was determined by precedent, the local conditions being compared with those where similar consolidations have been made.

A new charter has been applied for and as soon as it is received the reorganization will take place, when new directors and new officers will be elected and the new bank will take over the business of the present institution. The name first determined upon, First State Bank of Barrington, will probably be preserved and the new bank will occupy the quarters of the Barrington Bank for a time, although it is the present plan to seek a more commodious place as soon as possible.

It is expected that the new charter will arrive in a few days but it will be several weeks, it is likely, before arrangements for taking over the old bank can be completed. The stockholders will meet Saturday, April 12, to elect the new board of directors.

Melika of Chicago were married at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church last Saturday morning by Rev. O. F. Maxton. The bride's father, mother and sister and Mrs. Maxton were the only witnesses to the ceremony.

Mr. Melika is a young man following the carpenter's trade in Chicago, and the Parkyn family are recent arrivals here. Mr. and Mrs. Melika will make their home in this village, residing in the Spriggs house on Hough and Station streets. They are very nice young people and will be a worthy addition to the society of this village.

One Hundred at Supper.

One hundred people ate of the good supper served by the ladies of the Women's Relief Corps Wednesday evening in their new quarters in the South building. The room had been hung with the national colors and looked very pretty. These women always give to their patrons the best of well prepared food and therefore always deserve patronage.

Mrs. Hannah Powers was chairman of the committee in charge with Mesdames Carmichael, Fred Lageschulte, Peck, Jencks, E. D. Frosty and Richardson for assistants. Mesdames Keeler, Grunau, W. Meyer, Addie Lines, G. Page, M. J. Hawley, V. Comstock and Miss A. Meyer were waitresses; Mrs. J. G. Catlow was cashier and Mrs. E. Cannon and Mrs. S. Seibert welcomed the visitors.

The corps with the G. A. R. members have renovated the hall and two kitchens, making such improvements that the rooms are now as attractive as could be wished.

General Taylor Dead.

"General Taylor," as William Clark was familiarly known, passed away at his home on "The Flat," that portion of country in northern Cuba and southern Wauconda townships near the Fox river, Monday morning at the age of 92 years.

He was an eccentric character, well known in this locality, having resided on the farm where he died since 1850. His wife passed to her rest nearly fifteen years ago since which time he has often been quite alone on the farm, and seldom had much more company than a housekeeper; but last year one of the sons went to the old home to assist in caring for his father.

He leaves three sons and one daughter, all in middle life. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the M. E. church and burial took place in the family lot in Wauconda cemetery.

RAPS N. Y. SENATOR

STEPHEN J. STILWELL CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED GRAFT
REFUSES TO QUIT.

DEMANDS AN INVESTIGATION

Governor Sulzer Asks for Resignation Says Senate Action by Bank
Note Concerns Are Both False and Abused.

Albany, N. Y., April 3.—Senator
Stephen J. Stilwell of New York, accused of attempted extortion by George H. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note company, refused Tuesday to resign at the suggestion of Governor Sulzer and demanded a thorough investigation of the charges.

The senate ordered an inquiry and directed the judiciary committee to report a method of procedure.

Senator Stilwell, who is chairman of the codes committee, introduced,
among other stock exchange reform measures, a bill designed to relieve the New York Bank Note company from alleged discrimination on the part of the New York Stock exchange, which, it is claimed, has refused to list securities it engraved and printed by the New York Bank
Note company.

In a telegram to Governor Sulzer,
Kendall alleges that Senator Stilwell asked $250 for drafting the bill, that the senator demanded $500 each for four members of the senate codes committee to report the bill out of committee, and that a further demand of $1,000 was made to influence the assembly codes committee to report
the measure.

Kendall says he declined to comply and notified the senator that unless the bill was reported he would telegraph the situation to the governor and every member of the legislature.

The senate bill was reported March 27, and the assembly bill was reported about the same time and is now on the order of final passage in the house.

Senator Stilwell declares the "entire story is so false and so absurd
that it is scarcely worth a reply."

Governor Sulzer received the telegram from Kendall and conferred with the president of the bank note company. He later called Senator Stilwell to the executive chamber and suggested that he resign. Stilwell refused. The governor then took up the matter with Attorney General Carmody, to whom he gave alleged documentary evidence in the case.

U. S. TAKES UP WOMAN'S CASE

Charged That Miss Zelle Emerson Did Not Trial in English Court.

Washington, April 3.—The United States government will take official action on the charge that Zelle Emerson, the American suffragette, failed to receive a fair trial in the English courts and is being inhumanely treated by the officials of the London prison in which she is incarcerated.

President Wilson held a long conference with Secretary Bryan Tuesday during which the charges were discussed. After the conference Secretary Bryan returned immediately to the state department and cabled the American embassy in London to rush
the facts in connection with the case.

GREET TAFT LOUDLY AT YALE

Three Thousand Students With Band
Welcome the Former President.

New Haven, Conn., April 3.—Three thousand Yale students, headed by a band, roared a welcome to former President Taft when he arrived here
Tuesday from New York to take up his duties as Kent professor of law at the university. As Mr. Taft stepped from the train he was presented with a huge bouquet of violets
by the marshals of the parade.

USES AEROPLANE FOR SUICIDE

Russian Army Officer Deliberately Lies Himself and 600 Feet to the Ground.

London, England, April 3.—Lieutenant Perikofsky of the Russian army committed suicide by deliberately shooting of the motor of an aeroplane in which he was flying and dropping from a height of 500 feet to the ground
Tuesday, according to a dispatch.
The tragedy may have been an accident until a letter written just before the fatal flight was opened.

Yonkers Forces Direct Election
Thursday, Tuesday April 1.—The Yonkers board of election officers in a house meeting Tuesday ratifying the federal constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States senators by popular vote.

Deaths in Pennsylvania King.
Pittsburgh, Pa., April 3.—King, Pennsylvania was pronounced king of Alabama by the provincial government of that country, according to a dispatch received here Tuesday. The king was a member of the Alabama legislature.

LONG DEADLOCK FINALLY BROKEN

J. H. LEWIS IS ELECTED TO LONG TERM AND L. Y. SHERMAN GETS SHORT.

FIFTEEN BALLOTS ARE TAKEN

Choice of Assembly Is First Time in History of Illinois That Two U. S.
Senators Are Selected at the Same Time.

Springfield.—The Illinois legislature
elected James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, United States senator for a full six-year term beginning March 4, 1915.
Lawrence Y. Sherman was selected for the remainder of the term vacated by William Lorimer, which began March 4, 1909.

The deadlock, which has been in actual progress since February 11, was broken on the fifteenth ballot for the long term and on the fourteenth ballot for the short term.

It was the first time since Illinois became a state in 1818 that two United States senators were elected at the same time.

Following was the alignment:

Vote for Lewis for Long Term.
Democrats ..... 97
Republicans ..... 63
Progressives ..... 4

Total ..... 164
Vote for Sherman for Short Term.
Democrats ..... 72
Republicans ..... 86
Progressives ..... 6

Total ..... 164
Plans Made for 1915.

The candidacy of Senator-elect Sherman for the full term, beginning March 4, 1915, was announced immediately after the adjournment of the joint session by Homer J. Tice, his campaign manager. Simultaneously came the word that Frank H. Punt and Medill McCormick will be rival candidates for the Progressive nomination for senator for the same term.
Will Recommend Direct Primary.
The governor will recommend to this legislature the immediate enactment of a direct primary law for the nomination of senators, looking forward to the ratification of the federal constitutional amendment for the direct election of senators. Governor Dunn gave that indication of his course.

Election Passes Quietly.
The breaking of the deadlock was attended by sensational scenes. It was witnessed by a crowded gallery.
Governor Dunn and County Treasurer O'Connell secured the signatures of 70 Democrats to an agreement to stand by the Lewis-Sherman proposal as made by Representative Tice for Mr. Sherman on the floor of the joint session, when Mr. Sherman stipulated his willingness to accept the short term and throw his influence to Lewis for the long term on the proviso that there would be reciprocal steps taken by the Democrats.

There were bitter speeches on both sides, however, and statements much broader than inferences, that carried the suggestion that there will be many details of the manner in which the deadlock was broken yet under cover made public upon the slump during the senatorial campaign.

"Organization" Stands Pat.
To the last the state organization
Democrats held out for "two Democrats or none." State Senator Al P.
Gorman was the spokesman for the state committee leader. He cast bold denial before the joint ballot began, denying Governor Dunn had brought up the Allen bill issue as an argument for the consumption of the anti-Sullivan dovetailed Democrats.

Inside the Republican camp there was grave trouble made for the greater part by Representative Shannon and Shurtz, who fought to a stalemate against ratification of the Lewis-Sherman terms of peace.
In the midst of ten Republicans who were present refused to follow the recommendation of the joint Republican steering committee and to vote for Lewis. They were:

Senator Gray of Whitehall, Representative Burres of Champaign, Thomas Curran of Cook, Hull of Cook, Hutchinson of Cook, Rothchild
of Cook, Shanahan of Cook, Shepherd of Kane, Shurtz of McHenry, and Smelkal of Cook.

Stick to Boeschenstein.
Thirty-two of the ninety-eight Democrats refused to vote for Sherman for the short term. Twenty-five of them struck out for Charles Boeschenstein, the Democratic caucus nominee for the short term, and voted for him
on the final ballot, as follows:

Senators Broderick of Cook, Cana-dy of Montgomery, Carroll of Cook, Gorman of Cook, Haas of Livingston, Hurly of Cook, Many of Brown, and O'Connor of Cook; Representatives Paly of Marshall, Garasche of Madison, Gorman of Peoria, Hilchey of Cook, Hoffman of Adams, Mitchell of Cook, McCarthy of Cook, Mulcahy of Cook, Pitcock of Cook, Rapp of Wayne,
Roe of Fayette, Shepherd of Jersey,
Smith of Cook, Sullivan of Cook,
Walsh of Cook, R. E. Wilson of Cook, and Speaker McKinley.

Several Votes Scattering.
Senator Cleary of Jo Davies voted for Punt. Ashton of Cook voted for John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Gillespie of McLean responded "present." Graham of Lake was recorded as absent.

O'Rourke of Cook refused to stay through the ballot and Foreman of Coles did not vote after he had failed to get the attention of the joint assembly for the purpose of telling a story in expiation of his sin.

The absentees were Senators Andrew of Winnebago, whose wife is sick, and Chamberlain of St. Clair, whose baby just died, both Republicans; Representative Munro of Lake, Pres-
sire, who is ill, and Kane of Saline, Democrat, who was cut off by the doctors.

Four Progressives voted for Lewis
—Graham of Cook, Lloyd of Cook, Suit of Cook and Taylor of Cook. Five Progressives voted for Sherman—Gru-nan of Cook, Jayne of Warren, Sherman of Cook, Suit of Cook and Taylor of Cook.

The summary of the fifteenth ballot,
upon which Lewis was elected for the long term, was:

Senate House Total
Lewis ..... 46 118 164
Sherman ..... 9 9
Punt ..... 3 30 33
Bartyn ..... 4 1
Present ..... 2 2
Absent ..... 2 4

The summary of the fourteenth joint ballot, upon which Lawrence Y. Sherman was elected for the short term, was:

Senate House Total
Sherman ..... 28 106 134
Boeschenstein ..... 27 27
Punt ..... 3 19 22
McDonald (Sec.) ..... 4 4

A. J. Hopkins (Dem.) ..... 1 1

Illinois Bar Association to Meet.
Principles of reform best adapted to the needs of Illinois courts will be the leading theme for discussion at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Bar association, to be held in Springfield Tuesday and Wednesday, April 6 and 7, in which lawyers from all parts of the state will participate. Through the secretary of the association, John P. Vail, it is known that the meeting is an affair of the state to attend, whether members of the association or not.

DEATH CLAIMS MONEY KING

END COMES TO JOHN PIERPONT
MORGAN IN HOTEL AT ROME.

DOCTORS HAD GIVEN UP HOPE

His Many Associates and the World of Finance Were Prepared to Hear of the Demise of Their Friend and Leader.

Rome, Italy.—John Pierpont Morgan,
the American financier, died here
aged 76 years.

Dr. M. Allen Starr of New York, who had been called into consultation,
attributed his demoralized breakdown
to emotion caused by the investigation carried out by the Pujo committee at Washington into the operations of the money trust.

John Pierpont Morgan was so tacit-urn, so gruff to those not acquainted with him, and so opposed to being interviewed that little of value for a depiction of his personality has been secured. He talked by his deeds and by his deeds he was measured in type.
And so often was he measured in this manner that it was difficult to tell new things. Only the most careful perusal of all available records of this captain of finance made it possible to shape a foundation for the story of his life.

Mr. Morgan, when he first saw the light of day in Hartford, was even at that time destined to be a rich man.
He was the purple born, and while he was a very ordinary schoolboy a great fortune was being accumulated by his father as a starter for the son.

As the boy Morgan did not concern himself with anything more than studying at school, which he did in a plodding fashion, and having a good time. He laid the foundation for splendid health and great physical strength by hunting and fishing swimming in Hog river, a dirty little stream which skirted his home, and building rafts, upon which he ventured upon the broad bosom of the Connecticut.

When he plugged his way through the grammar school he was packed off to Boston, where he went through the same routine in high school. This finished, his father, without emotion or enthusiasm, informed him that a seat in the University of Göttingen,
Germany, had been prepared for him.

And the son, with no more display of feeling than to Germany. When he had finished his studies he returned to this country to find a desk awaiting him in the banking house of Duncan, Shuman & Co.

He already had considerable technical knowledge of banking matters and a keen knowledge of affairs of the world, for he was a close student of conditions. His father had been a banker and he possibly regarded it as certain during his school days that he, as a matter of course, was to follow the same course.

Right here may be described the most remarkable of all traits in Morgan's life. That is, that he was a worker. It was not necessary for him to become a clerk, a full-fledged banker at once, or anything else than a gentleman of leisure. He could have been a rich lord who had liked, and his father's lifetime would not have been long enough to allow him to amass the millions his father had spent for his benefit. But this king of life did not appeal to John Morgan.

As a clerk he paid strict attention to the firm's business, and he minded his own business, not speaking unless he had something to say, and not wasting time to listen to others who told something not worth while hearing. He had set out to be a builder, not a tear-dropper, and he needed every minute of his life for the clerk.

He evidenced remarkable ability as a clerk. Here his training stood him in good stead. It soon became apparent that he was fully capable of acting as the agent in the United States of the London firm of Peabody & Co., bankers, in which his father was interested. This was in 1869, a period when a very head was necessary in the banking business.

Four years later he became a member of the banking firm of Dabney,
Morgan & Co., investment securities, and his name became known to the people in New York. As a matter of course, it always was familiar with people of business because of the great Morgan fortune, but John Morgan was now recognized as a member of the business ability. In 1871

the firm of Drexel, Morgan & Co., bankers, was founded, which afterwards became J. P. Morgan & Co., the firm of the present.

Perhaps no man ever lived who had
as much of other people's money
placed at his absolute disposal as J.
P. Morgan.

It is estimated that over $500,000,
000 belonging to outside corporations was his to do with as he saw fit. This statement is made on the authority of Wall street statisticians, who declare that he could with a wave of his hand start or stop the buying of any of the products used by the corporations which he dominated.

During the investigation of the Stanley congressional committee it developed that the entire cash balance of the United States Steel corporation, amounting to something over $70,000,000, was on deposit with J. P.
Morgan and company.

The vast financial power of this man can be judged when it is remembered that his was a private bank,
and not subject in any way to national,
state or local supervision or any constitutional authority whatsoever.

As great as this steel deposit was it represented but a modicum of the money, belonging to some one else,
that Morgan held to do with according to his pleasure.

Wall street authorities who were well acquainted with Morgan, say that he would seldom go upon the directorate of any company or corporation which he could not dominate. The result was that the various railroad corporations and innumerable other companies who had him on their directorate deposited their money at his bank.

THE NEW BANK.

The news that the Barrington Bank of Robertson, Piange & Company and the newly organized First State Bank of Barrington will consolidate will be a source of much gratification to many people. The need of a state bank here is admitted in fact the organization by Chicago parties of a state bank to be located in this village was responsible for the present movement, made to head off the outsiders in which it has been successful. The excellent standard of the present private bank, and the fact that the men at the head are so favorably known and well liked made many reluctant to see a change made which would be apt to injure its business to some extent and divide the banking accommodations of the town. The organization of a state bank is not a new idea; on the contrary it has been talked of for the last ten or fifteen years, but for these same reasons it got no further than the talking point until the outsiders signified their intention of coming in here, but now that the step has been taken and arrangements have been made to satisfactory everyone should be well pleased.

By the present plan Barrington will have one of the strongest banks between Chicago and Woodstock. The Barrington bank has, through its twenty years of business, made for itself a reputation for conservative, careful management second to that of no other private bank in the state, and has built up a fine business. This reputation and this business will make the First State Bank of Barrington, from the day it commences business, capable of earning good profits for its stockholders. The REVIEW congratulates all of the parties to the proposed consolidation upon this fortunate outcome, and predicts prosperity for the new bank and satisfaction to its stockholders.

A REAL NEED.

The thing that Barrington most needs at the present time is a commercial club or business men's association—something to awaken interest and enthusiasm and create advantage spirit. The village has the advantages of excellent shipping facilities and a rich farming and dairying territory surrounding, and is located just far enough away from one of the world's greatest market centers to be within convenient reach and still maintain its spirit of independence, and there are many things that an up-to-date organization of the business men could do for the town, to their mutual advantage and for the betterment of all of the residents.

Cities do not grow, they must be built, and their builders' usually reap material rewards. Barrington has been building for many years, slowly and naturally, but it has not received the assistance from its citizens that is needed to remove it from the country town class.

The time to boost is now.

In the Same Beat. Belle and Dan had just announced their engagement. "When we are married," said Belle, "I shall expect you to share every morning. It's one of the rules of the club I belong to that none of its members shall marry a man who won't share every morning." "Oh, that's all right," replied Dan; "but what about the morning I don't get home in time? I belong to a club, too—Lippincott's Magazine."

Preferred the Longer Name.

Little Harry, named the doll that was given him "Jim." But he said to his papa, "I am going to call it Jimmie, because it seems like when I see Jim I have to stop so soon."

WORDS OF TRUTH

By ADDISON HICKOX.

When Andrews announced early in June that he was going to buy a straw hat his family knew that summer was on its way, in spite of the bleak winds and cold rains that made them all shiver. Andrews laughed aloud over the foolishness shown by women in being slaves to fashion, but he would never venture out with a straw hat before the proper season, even though he awaited for weeks.

"Well," his wife sighed, "I'm glad of it, for that old hat looks too shabby to wear any more. All I ask is that you don't get the latest fad in straw because the latest is never becoming to you."

"Oh, I'll get a good one, all right," he assured her cheerfully. "A conservative model, but one with some dash just the same."

So he did. He was leaving for a business trip and bought the new hat on his way to the train, so as to have an up-to-date look when he met the man with whom he was to transact business. In the early afternoon a young boy delivered a large round box at the Andrews home.

"Maybe somebody's sent us a present," Lucy Andrews cried in pleasant anticipation. "It couldn't be flowers, could it?"

Her mother broke the cord and opened the box, and so displayed to view Andrews' old derby.

"Isn't that just like a man?" exclaimed Mrs. Andrews. "The idea of sending home that old hat! It comes in handy for me, though, because I wanted to have Dan carry out some boxes from the cellar and I'll give this hat as a reward."

Dan was the furniture man. He was pleased with what he termed a "swell lid," and was profuse in his thanks. "I'll wear it to a christening Thursday week," he said. "An' won't I be the swell guy, though!"

That night cold rain came down in torrents, and Mrs. Andrews did not sleep well, because of a new worry that troubled her. Getting up to look after the windows, she roused Lucy to whom she expressed her worry.

"Your father'll be home tomorrow morning," she said, "and I'm perfectly sure the first thing he'll ask for is that derby hat. If it's raining like this he just can't wear his new straw hat to the office. It would look absurd."

"Oh, never mind," Lucy said consolingly. "You can't tell what the weather's going to be. Maybe it'll be better anything tomorrow morning."

But it wasn't. Further, Andrews had barely kissed his wife and daughter before he asked for his old hat.

"Hat?" his wife said vaguely. "What hat? I thought you wore your hat out of the store when you bought it."

"I did wear my straw hat. I mean the derby. It beats all how uncomfortable some stores are. The man promised faithfully to have that derby here yesterday afternoon, yet he doesn't seem to have meant a word he said. Lucy, if you don't eat so rapidly you won't choke."

Lucy sat on the window seat in the dining room for two hours that morning watching for Dan, supported by the excitement of it and by the joy of staying at home from school. When Dan finally arrived she summoned her mother with a joyous shout.

"I'm sorry, Dan," Mrs. Andrews said awkwardly, "but I didn't understand that Mr. Andrews wanted that hat. If you don't mind, I'll be very glad if you will bring it back today."

"I'll bring it if I can, ma'am," he said, grumpily. "But I loaned it to a friend of mine to wear to a dance to-night and I've got to bust him up."

Mrs. Andrews gave him a silver dollar, which he hung on the step before he condescended to accept it. Then there was nothing to do but wait. The day seemed as long it would never end, dragging its weary hours along until nearly five o'clock, and perilously near the home-coming hour.

"Dan's been here to take out the ashes," Lucy said, cheerfully. "I guess he didn't find the hat after all."

Mrs. Andrews went out in the rain to the next door neighbor's, where she saw Dan.

"Oh, I got it," he said sourly. "But I had to give the fellow 50 cents for it."

Mrs. Andrews refunded the 50 cents and Dan appeared at once at the door bearing the hat in its box, for all the world as though it were a wedding cake or a basket of eggs. Mrs. Andrews was so glad to get it that she almost wept and stood on to admire it after she had hung it on the rack in the hall.

"There's no use saying anything to papa about it," she told Lucy. "It would just worry him to think I had so much trouble. Here he comes now."

The door swung open to admit the man with a derby and a gleam of late sunshine.

"Hello!" Andrews cried broadly. "My, but I'm glad to get home! Well, well, there's my hat at last! Looks sort of funny, doesn't it? Probably because I've been wearing my new one. I think, after all, my dear, I won't bother with that derby. I didn't realize that it was so shabby. You'd better give it to Dan."

EXPULSION FROM EDEN

THE Word of God must stand, whether it be the word promising Eternal Life or the sentence of Death. There is no variegation with Him, neither shadow of turning. The curse, the New Testament foretold by the Lord, was executed, but not instantly. Adam was not stricken lifeless with a thunderbolt. From the very beginning God foreknew all, and had planned the redemption of Adam and Eve and all their children. As a result Jesus came "died the Just for the unjust, and promises as a result that ultimately the "curse" will be removed. "There shall be no more curse—Revelation 22:3, 14:5. All of us were told, and many of us believed fully that the penalty of Father Adam's disobedience was eternal torture, in which all of his posterity must share, except a few—the saints, the Elect. We were told that this was the teaching of the Bible. We accepted it without looking for the proof.

Christian people are examining their Bibles more carefully. They find that the curse, or penalty for sin, was and is a totally different one. The wages of sin is death." (Romans 6:23) "The soul that sinneth it shall die." This penalty of death has rested against Adam and his family for six thousand years. It has brought sorrow and sighing, pain and trouble—Romans 5:12.

It is this curse of death that was pronounced against Father Adam, according to the Genesis account, and also according to the New Testament account. "Accursed is the Earth for thy sake; thorns and thistles shall it bring forth unto thee: in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread until thou return unto the ground from whence thou was taken, for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." It is from this curse that Jesus redeemed us by dying for us, the Just for the unjust. It is from this death-curse that Messiah rescues all by a resurrection from the dead—1 Corinthians 15:21.

World Looks for the Best.

There are two sides to every story. The victory you win means defeat to the other fellow. But that should not deter us from doing our best. It's the best that the world needs, but if you can do better than the other fellow, it is your work that the world wants.

SYNOPSIS.

Major McDonald, commanding an army post near Fort Dodge, sends a man to intercept his daughter, Molly, who is needed for the post. An Indian outbreak is threatened. "Black" Hamlin, a sergeant who had been with Molly since she was a child, arrives at Fort Dodge two days ahead of schedule. He decides to look after Molly, who is a passenger. Hamlin meets the "stout" of the Indians. It is decided to return to the post. The Indians are seen when the Indians appear.

CHAPTER V.

The Defenses of the Stage. There were times when Hamlin's mental processes seemed slow, almost sluggish, but this was never true in moments of emergency and peril. Then he became swift, impetuous, seemingly borne forward by some inspiring instinct. It was for such experiences as this that he remained in the service—his whole nature responding almost joyously to the business of action, of imminent danger, his nerves steady into rock. These were the characteristics which had won him his chevrons and the unswerving service of the frontier, and when scarcely more than a boy, had put a captain's bars on the gray collar of his Confederate uniform.

Now, as he struggled to his knees, gripping the iron footfall with one hand, a single glance gave him a distinct impression of their desperate situation. With that knowledge, there likewise flashed over his mind the only possible means of defense. The Indians, numbering at least thirty, had ridden recklessly over the protection of the river bank, spreading to right and left, as their ponies' hoofs struck the turf, and were now charging down upon the disabled coach, yelling maddly and brandishing their guns. The very reckless abandon of their advance expressed the conception they had of the situation. They had witnessed the flight of the two fugitives, the runaway of the wheelers, and believed the remaining passengers would be helpless victims. They came on, savage and confident, not anticipating a fight, but a massacre—shrieking prisoners, and a glut of revenge.

With one swing of his body, Hamlin was upon the ground, and had jerked open the inside door of the coach, forcing it back against the protection of the bluff which towered directly above. His eyes were quick to perceive the peculiar advantage of position; that their assailants would be compelled to advance from only one direction. The three within the coach, struggling to their feet, dazed, bewildered, falling as yet to comprehend fully those distant yells, who heard into their midst, uttering swift orders, and unconsciously jerking the men into position for defense.

Here, quick now! Don't waste time! It's a matter of seconds, I tell you! They're coming—a horde of them. Here, Hamlin, take this rifle barrel and knock a hole through the wall there, big enough to get your arm through. Hit it hard, damn you, it's a case of life or death! What have you got, Gonzales! A revolver! Into that window there, and blast away! You've got the reputation of a gun-man; now let's see you prove it. Get back in the corner, mule, so I can slip past—no, lie down below the fire line!

"But—but I won't!" and she faced him, her face white, but her eyes shining. "I can shoot! See!" and she flashed a pearl-handled revolver again and again. The sergeant thrust her unconsciously aside and plunged across to the opposite window, gripping his Henry rifle.

"Do as I say," he growled. "This is our fight. Get down! Now, you terrify, let them have it!" There was a wild shrieking of mounted figures almost at the coach wheels, hair streaming, feathers waving, lean, red arms thrown up, the air vocal with shrill utterances—then the dull thud of a Henry, the boom of the Winchester, the sharp spitting of a Colt. The smoke rolled out in a cloud, pungent, concealing, nervous fingers pressing the triggers again and again. They could see reeling horses, men gripping their ponies' manes to keep erect, staring, frightened eyes, animals flung back on their haunches, rearing maddly in the air. The fierce yell of exultation changed into a savage scream, bullets crashed into the thin side of the coach; it they'll endeavor to creep in, and take us by surprise. It's going to be a clear night, and there's small chance for even an Indian to hide in that buffalo-grass with the loose shingles. They have got to come up from below, for no back could climb down this bluff without making a noise. I don't see why, with such a back, we can't hold out as we are until help gets here; those fellows who rode away will report at Canon Bluff and send a rider to Dodge for help. There ought to be soldiers out here by noon tomorrow. What troops are at Dodge now?"

"Only a single company—infantry," replied Hamlin gloomily. "All the rest are scouting along the Solomon. Darned if I believe they'll send us a man. Those two cowards will likely report us all dead—otherwise they wouldn't be any cause for running away—and the commander will satisfy himself by sending a courier to the fellows in the field."

"Well, then," commented the sergeant, his eyes gleaming, "we've simply got to fight it out alone, I reckon, and hang on to our last shoddy. What do you make of that, boys?"

The three men stared for some time at the distant group over their rifles, in silence. "They ain't all Arapahoes, that's certain," said Hamlin at last. "Some of 'em are Cheyennes. I've seen 'em 'fore—-I see 'em now."

"That's the one, and he is a bad actor; saw him once over at Fort Kearney two years ago. Had a couple of 'em. Say!" in surprise, "ain't that an Opalia Sioux war bonnet bobbin' there to the right, Sergeant?"

Hamlin studied the distant feathered head-dress indicated, shading his eyes with one hand. "I reckon maybe it is, Hamlin," he acknowledged at last. "Those fellows have evidently got together; we're going to have the biggest scrap this summer the old army has had yet. Looks as though it was going to begin right here—and now. See there! The dance is on, boys; there they come; they will try it on foot this time."

He tested his rifle, resting one knee on the seat, Hamlin pushed the barrel of his Winchester out through the window, and the little Mexican lay flat, his eyes on the level with the window-sill. The girl alone remained motionless, crouched on the floor, her white face uplifted.

The entire field stretching to the river was clear to the view, the short dry buffalo-grass offering no concealment. To the right of the coach, some fifty yards from the foot of the bluff, a shallow gully leading down from the bluff, but this slight advantage was unavailable. The sun had already dropped from view, and the gathering twilight distorted the features, making them almost grotesque in their savagery. Yet they could be clearly distinguished, stealing silently forward, guns in hand, spreading out in a wide half-circle, obedient to the gestures of Roman Nose, who still mounted upon his pony, was traversing the ground in front of them, and outlined against the dull gleam of evening behind him. From the black depths of the coach the three men stared on almost breathless, gripping their weapons, fascinated, determined not to waste a shot. Gonzales, under the strain, uttered a fierce yell, and his hand crashed his arm between iron fingers.

"Keep still, you fool!" he muttered, never glancing around. "Let your gun talk. Wait until they get to their feet!" Hamlin cried eagerly. "Ain't there they come—now snubbin'."

He saw only those black, indistinct figures, leaping out of the smoke, crawling on the coach, their naked arms uplifted, their voices mingling in savage yells. Like lightning he worked his rifle, hand throbbing to the very tips, oblivious to all else; almost without realization he heard the deep or bellows of Hamlin's Winchester, the sharp bark of a revolver at his very elbow. He was exchanged between the couple. Sometimes a noble girl will keep a young man waiting a day or two for an answer, but whatever it may be it is considered final.

The Word of Life

By REV. H. W. POPE, Superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT: "Holding forth the word of life." Phil. 1:10.

In writing to the church at Philippi which he had just founded, Paul urges upon them two things: First: That they be blameless and harmless, as a band of men who are called to live a consistent Christian life. Second: That they form the habit of holding forth the word of life to others. Paul then goes on to say that if these Philippians church members were satisfied simply to take a consistent example, and did not also engage in personal effort to help the unsaved, he should consider his labor upon these as well-nigh lost. The ease with which one can do this work, and the blessing which usually accompany it, makes it almost inaccessible for us to neglect it.

On one occasion I handed a little card to a man asking if he would like something to read. On it he saw the word "Christian," and at once he said with a sneer, "Christian, yes, I have neighbors who are Christians, and I have some who are not, and the latter are more neighborly and more honorable in business every time." "That may be," I said, "but remember that it is not their religion which makes your neighbors mean and dishonorable, but the lack of it, and it is not fair to blame Jesus Christ for what does not belong to him."

Then I added, "It may be that you do not feel the need of a Savior now, but the time will surely come when you will feel it."

"I guess I need him enough now," my friend said, "I saw that I had touched a tender chord, and I said, 'My friend, if there is any one on this earth that needs Jesus Christ, I think you are one.' Then I held up Christ as a comforter and told him how willing Christ was to come into his sad heart and make it glad, and into his desolate home and make it bright, and heavenly home. Then taking it for granted that he did not know how to find Christ, I went on to explain the way of salvation. Then I said, 'Now, my friend, give me your understanding of what it is to become a Christian, are you willing to accept Christ as your Savior right here and now, and give up your hand on it?' 'Yes sir, I am,' he replied, and he grasped my hand heartily. Then we removed our hats, and I prayed, and he prayed after which he gave me his name and told me about himself. This was at a county fair in the midst of noise and confusion. Horses were racing, fairs were shouting and the merry-go-round was in full blast. And yet in the midst of that surging crowd this man with bowed head was confessing his sins, and his inviting Jesus Christ to come into his heart."

It is a great aid in opening conversation with strangers to have with you a variety of leaflets or gospel tracts. You can hand one to a person saying, "Would you like something to read?" If he does not express an opinion, you can give him another, saying, "This one is a little different," or "Here is one which I think you will enjoy." By this means you gradually become acquainted, and by and by you can give him one which presents the way of salvation plainly, and ask him if he has accepted Christ as his Savior.

Sitting in a hotel in Denver I was reading a newspaper. By my side sat a young man talking with two others. Soon he uttered an oath. Taking out a little card entitled, "Why Do You Swear?" I laid it down on the arm of the chair between us, and went on reading. He picked it up and read it. As soon as his companions left he said to me, "My friend, that is the best thing on swearing I ever saw. It is an eye opener. I know and I ought not to do it, but you see I am a newspaper man on the Chicago River Ocean. I am thrown in with a rough crowd and I cannot seem to overcome the habit." He then went on to tell me about himself and we had a long heart to heart talk. Remember he began the conversation, and he did most of the talking.

When we have ascertained one's real position, the next thing is to lead him to accept Christ. The main object is not to lead people to give up their bad habits, or to attend church, or even to join the church, but rather to accept Christ as their personal Lord and Master. We should then show them from God's word that they have forgiveness of sins and eternal life (Acts 10:43; John 3:16).

They should also be instructed in the duties of the Christian life, especially the duty of confessing Christ publicly, and the habit of daily prayer and Bible reading.

"I think I suffered every pain a woman could before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I think it saved the baby's life, as I lost my first one."

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age. Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

PRETTY LANGUAGE OF LOVE

In Switzerland Flowers Are Made Use of by Those Who Seek Their Companions in Life.

In remote Alpine hamlets and villages especially in the Bernese Oberland there still exist ancient and pretty customs of personal marriage by the language of flowers. If a maid accepts a bouquet of adjectives from a man or her father, the idea being that the man has risked his life to obtain the flowers for the woman he loves.

Another method which exists in the Canton of Glarus is for the young man to place a flowerpot containing a single rose and a note on the window sill of the girl's room when she is absent from home and wait—perhaps days—for a reply. If the maid takes the rose, she then tells her lover that she will accept of him, and if the rose is allowed to fade away the proposal is rejected without a "belle dame sans merci."
