EXPLAINS SPECIAL RULE

should be allowed to proceed under the general rules of the house until all members who wish to be heard are heard; it does take away the right of the minority to offer amendments, a right which should be guaranteed the minority in every legislative body; the one motion to reconsider, allowed by the proposed rule is not sufficient. Several different amendments to the bill would be offered if the right to offer amendments under the general rules was not overruled by the adoption of this special rule. The same amendment was alleged to be true as to intervening parties.

The proponents of this special rule prevailed and the rule was adopted. Following that the rule was what is known as a "closure" rule, unreasonably limiting the time of debate and nullifying the right to offer amendments, there were a number of members (including myself) who voted against the rule, although they were in favor of the bill, in connection with the passage of which, the rule was offered. This is shown by the fact that whereas the rule was adopted by a vote of 200 to 123 the bill itself was passed by a vote of 217 to 122.

In my opinion, legislation by "special rule" is a bad practice and should be prevented, if possible. For that reason I have never voted for such a rule.

Notice.

I will not be here for any day except those enumerated by myself after this date, March 25, 1914.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., son of the richest man in the world, testified before the house mine committee at Washington about the question of his personal responsibility for the industrial strife in the coal fields of southern Colorado. He told the committee that his "conscience acquitted him" for having done his full duty in regard to the striking coal diggers by placing competent men in authority over them and leaving responsibility to those men.Returns from the Michigan census which voted on the local option

New Orleans indicate that a serious congress took place on the Alamo repeated as federal troops are on the way to the captured city.The report reached the state department at Washington yesterday that the Mexican government had taken its

SPRING FEVER
IS HEALTHYIt Indicates Fresh Hopes and Renewed buoyancy of Spirit.How wonderfully light the spring fever has been for the country people and for the city dwellers.
Spring fever, with all its healthfulness, is the harbinger of fresh hopes and a buoyancy of spirit.
I noticed a passenger on a Detroit-Chicago train the other day who had started out on his trip with the certain intention of becoming deeply tired, with one of the best of
him, that he might shorten his trip between the two cities. You have done the same thing yourself.
But his bunk had been kept out, and he had read only a few pages. His interest in it had faded.From the car windows he was contemplating the delta and the river.
The ditches were carrying away the water and the soil was a gleaming expanse of new streams bearing the overflow to the river. The farmer, in his shirt sleeves, was repairing the fences after the water had receded, the cattle showing evidence of a winter's stabling and now browsing here and there toward the meadows, scattering the new grass patches of grass, the farm help, in their blue and white, was putting the repair tiles and that necessary for them, here looking after his plow and there his horse, and in the end, the delta and the river were his.The interest in it had faded.

From the car windows he was con-

hopes and a buoyancy of spirit.
I noticed a passenger on a Detroit-Chicago train the other day who had
started out on his trip with the cer-
same thing yourself.
But his bunk had been kept out,
