CHAUTAUQUA EVENTS TO START TOMORROW

Junior Chautauqua in Morning, Short Program in Afternoon and Regular Session at Night in New Plan.

MORE ADVERTISED, THAN BEFORE

Two Big Automobile Runs Out Tonight, Boosting in Nearby Towns Accompanied by the School Band.

The two automobile runs to adjacent towns for the purpose of advertising the coming Chautauqua meeting were great "get-together and boost" parties. On Friday evening, 27 cars all bedecked with signs and pennants, piloted by John C. Plagge, left from town square at 7 o'clock; the "boosters" blew horns, rang bells and scattered advertising literature through several townships, stopping at Palatine and Arlington Heights for speeches by Howard P. Castle and open air concerts by the Barrington High School band with Sam Landwehr and Newton Plagge assisting. The band boys gave their services for the good of the cause.

Tuesday evening 32 cars, all loaded to capacity with "boosters," descended upon Lake Zurich and Wisconsin. These towns seemed quite interested and it is expected many will arrange to come to Barrington during Chautauqua week. George W. Spunner, "chief-boosters" of the runs, made speeches at both places. A large number of the parties in the morning represented all the churches, lodges and political parties in the village; on Friday, the mayor, three village trustees, police magistrate, village clerk, village attorney were "boosting" and two thirds of the business houses. Many of the cars have kept the signs displayed all this week.

This evening there will be a large meeting called at the hall park for all children in the town and for all adults who wish to attend to organize the Junior Chautauque. Miss Ruth Patterson will be here and will remain during the six days to conduct the "play festival" for the children, which will be made up of athletic games and folk dancing. Every morning from 10 until 12 o'clock and for a half hour after the afternoon program the children will be assisted by Miss Patterson to enjoy the fun.

The first program opens at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. I. M. Cochran will be the platform superintendent and two college students will take care of the program, singing in the tent at night. New hangings and back drop have been added this year to the stage equipment for the sake of beauty and a detached tent will serve as dressing room. Seats will be plentiful and unless present to care for your needs.

The five towns to have the programs during the same week with the Chautauqua here are: Harvard, Crystal Lake, Belvidere, Geneva and Byron. The Lincoln Chautauque has four circuits going in the state and before the season ends 94 towns of Illinois, four in Wisconsin and one in Indiana will have heard six good entertainments. Barrington is on circuit No. 1.

George Hansen, advance agent, was in town yesterday and will be back here this evening. He states that each circuit has seven tents, six always in use and one jumping to the next circuit. After the Chautauque of these six towns around here is completed, the tent is moved to the northwestern part of the state. It comes here from Antioch.

Ticket sales are progressing encouragingly to those promoting the big gathering.

Tuesday morning a case of assault was called before Judge Cretz and a change of venue taken at once by Judge Fred Frye.

Trouble between the three directors of the Spring Lake school over hiring a teacher developed into a quarrel Monday afternoon in the school yard and later Charles Helm brought suit against Robert Mickey, Jr., for assault. Mr. Holcomb is the third director. G. W. Spunner represented Mr. Helm in the justice court and Mr. Mickey, Sr., his son. The case was continued until July 29 at 2 p. m. Two witnesses who testified that they saw the fight at Arlington Heights, and the other wanted a Barrington girl to have the school.

MERCANTILE COMPANY IN ERROR

Thomas McAdams Admits Incompetence in Part of Report on Willis Ellsworth Wright, Personally.

On July 3 we published a report issued by the McAdams Mercantile Agency of Chicago on Willis Ellsworth Wright, president of the American Banking Credit company. Since the publication of that report R. F. Locke, attorney for Mr. Wright requested the McAdams Mercantile agency to modify some of the statements made therein. The report is on Willis Ellsworth Wright, personally, and not on the American Banking Credit company. Mr. McAdams of the McAdams Mercantile agency makes the following statement:

July 20, 1915.
Mr. R. F. Locke,
1165 W. Monroe St.,
Chicago, Illinois.
"My dear Sir:

"In answer to your request to investigate further our information on WILLIS ELLSWORTH WRIGHT, 111 West Monroe Street, desire to say that we have complied with your request, and find that our report of May 17th, 1915, was made in error, especially in regard to the American Finance and Trust Company of Birmingham, Alabama, and that our statement reading: "This proposition endeavoring to handle mortgages, bonds, etc., on the installment basis, but the Postal Authority finally put them out of commission" was made entirely in error, and the statement is absolutely wrong.

"Further in reference to our latest report, we find that this statement is also in error, and we are able to receipt of the following letter addressed to Mr. W. E. Wright, 1016 Harris Trust Bldg., Chicago:
"Dear Sir:
"Reply to your inquiry for information in regard to your account at our bank, beg to advise that same was opened with us on February 27th, 1911, with a deposit of $322.40, that the account averaged about $200.00, and that it was closed out on May 1st, 1911, withdrawing at that time, $938.80.
"Trusting this information serves your purpose, I beg to remain, Sir, very truly
Signed—R. W. BALLOU
"Cashier."
"The last paragraphs in the report regarding the suits of record should never have been mentioned in the report of Willis Ellsworth Wright. They are not against the subject of this report, nor have been shown letters from the different complainants in the cases so stated.
"We regret very much that the erroneous statements heretofore mentioned have been the means of causing Mr. Wright or any of his business associates any difficulty, and if the correction as herein made be not sufficient to entirely remove any misconceptions which may have been arrived at by anyone reading our report, we want you to feel free to call upon us for further statement correcting the matter heretofore referred to.

"Yours very truly,
"McADAMS MERCANTILE AGENCY,
"By THOMAS MCADAMS."
(In commenting on the plan of the American Banking Credit company in selling its contracts we stated that "business men of Barrington proposed" which requires, this a fraudulent proposition." On investigation we find that this statement is a little too strong. The business men of Barrington referred to say from the investigation they had made into the plan of the company they could not recommend it to their friends.

Fish and Game Law Amended.
The Illinois fish and game law has been amended setting aside the Fox River and its tributaries as a fish reserve. Fish may only be taken from the stream by hook and line. All seines and other forms of fishing, other than by hook and line, are prohibited. Violators are to be arrested and prosecuted.

"S. W. Brown,
"Deputy Fish and Game Warden."

Judge George D. Alden

JUDGE GEORGE D. ALDEN of Boston, celebrated as one of the great orators of his day, will deliver the final address of the Chautauqua just preceding the appearance of the Grand Opera Company the sixth night. For spirited thought and marvelous delivery, for wit that bites, for clear cut English, for the rush of sentiment and the delight of dictation without fault, Judge Alden perhaps has no peer in his field. The sixth day of the Chautauqua.

Des Plaines Camp Meetings Closed.

The 56th annual session of the Des Plaines Camp meetings closed Monday evening. Nearly 3000 people were on the grounds for the last day. D. W. Potter, president of the Chicago District Camp Grounds association, states that from a spiritual point of view this year's meeting was a huge success. The expenses paid $5000 more money on hand but the amount will be made up by subscriptions during the year. There will be a longer season next year and the grounds will be put to greater use.

District Superintendent Rev. L. F. W. Lasemann led a union sacramental service at the closing service. He said the raising of the $25,000 debt would be begun immediately. No grade will be charged hereafter. Rev. Anderson of Newpark said "Some say if we open the gates without charge we will have the rabble. We are thankful for that. We want the rabble." Elmer W. (O.) Simpson of Kansas City, formerly of Chicago, said he looks forward to the day when the union of church denominations will perform a greater service for God.

A Horror of War.

Mrs. Philip Snowden, who has arrived in America on her way to the Women's Peace congress in San Francisco, told what a British officer had described to her as the most terrible of the whole tragedy of the battlefield. "It is not the shrieks of the wounded as they fall he said," Mrs. Snowden stated. "It is not the sight of the dead as they lie there, but it is the cry of the wounded boys calling for their mothers, and there is no one to do anything for them. They are the boys of 16 and 17 and even younger. They may say "mother" or "mum," but in their agony all those boys call for the one who has given them the greatest care all their lives."

SHORT LOCAL ITEMS.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walworth of Cuba township on Saturday, July 11.

Frank Mandchake of Barrington township last Friday purchased a five passenger Allen car from William Frank of Dundee agent.

Motoring parties from here went to Elgin Tuesday to the concert of the Elgin Military band in Lord's park. This band will give an open concert in Huntley Friday evening.

R. G. Munday returned from Lisbon, Iowa, Monday evening after attending the annual session of the Sunday school and Keynote League Christian Endeavor general managing board of the United Evangelical church. Mr. Munday represented all the churches of the state of Illinois in the meeting.

A "Republican Day" picnic is to be held at Phillips' park, Aurora, Saturday, August 7. United States Senator L. V. Sherman, Congressman James R. Mann, minority leader of the house of representatives, candidates for congress, and members of the United States and other national leaders will speak. The world champion Aurora Zouaves will drill, famous brass bands will play and there will be other attractions.

St. Paul's Social Profitable Affair.

Postponement from Wednesday night to Thursday night last week of the lawn social of the Young People's society of St. Paul's church did not lessen the attendance for the interest of the public which always goes to this annual affair. The High School band, being engaged for Thursday evening, could not play as expected, but very good music was secured at Crystal Lake consisting of drum, piano and violin with Dwight Goodwin as leader. Altogether the law cream tables, gran-grah and candy booth took in $53.40 which the young people will give to the general church fund, after deducting expenses. The tables were more thrived and the lawn was well lighted.

Off For The War.

Two residents of this village for the past two years left Wednesday morning for Europe where they will enlist in the Italian army. They are Michael Finney and Gulla Tullie, two young Italian fellows about 21 years old who have worked with the Northwestern railway section gang here and have lived in the station hands' quarters alongside the trucks in the yards. Their fare is paid by the Italian consul in Chicago who also gave them 318 dollars. They kissed their fellow countrymen in the gang who were in continental fashions. He is the one armed guard on the Walnut street crossing.

Herman Bergman Dead.

Herman Bergman of 2723 Sheffield avenue, Chicago, who died Wednesday night, was buried last Saturday. His parents were early settlers of Chicago. The funeral was held at the Diversey Parkway Evangelical church at 2 o'clock. Rev. H. H. Thorens, the pastor, was in charge. Ten Barrington people, all cousins of Mr. Bergman, attended. They are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. McLeary, Mr. and Mrs. John Meiners, Mrs. Mary Krash, Fred Frye, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lageschule, Mrs. Chris Rieker and Mrs. H. S. Meier.

New Public School Study.

Fire prevention is to be taught in the public schools of Illinois with the opening of the fall term. W. H. Bennett, state fire marshal, is having a text book prepared. State superintendent of public instruction, F. G. Blair, is working with the fire marshal to make the plan possible. Some of the lessons will deal with matches, kerosene, gasoline, oil lamps, chimneys and ways of avoiding danger from lightning. Bonfires and spontaneous combustion will be considered.

Palatine Fair Dates.

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 16, 17 and 18, will be great days in these parts. On these dates the great Cook County fair will be on the boards. Great as was this year's celebration, 1914 event will surpass it. It will be a real old-fashioned country fair, with all its trills. An excellent race program, with large purses, will be held. Cash prizes will be given for exhibits. It will be thoroughly advertised throughout the country and Chicago.

GREEN PEAS CANNED BY STEAM

Women's Country Life Association Is Treated to Demonstration Conducted by Miss Mary E. Riley of Cuba.

By Miss A. L. Renousson.
The Women's Country Life association met in regular meeting at the village hall on Friday, July 16. A canning demonstration was conducted by Miss Mary E. Riley, green peas being the vegetable canned by steam. The present result was 16 glass pint cans of as tempting looking peas as one could wish to see.

The home canning movement is becoming more general throughout the United States; clubs for women, girls and boys being organized daily. What better way is there of reducing the high cost of living than to can our surplus garden vegetables at home, which for every can would be a saving of from 10 to 25 cents, if the same amount was purchased at a grocery store. Women and girls of this community can do and are doing what others can do.

New members enrolled at this meeting were Mesdames Butler, Kendall, Cadwallader, Barth, Spunner, Raffels, L. A. Powers, H. Constock and the Misses Katherine Oils, Boyer and Berry.

The August meeting of the association will be in the way of a lawn social to be held Thursday evening, August 12, to which everybody will be welcome. The place has not yet been decided.

Wauconda.

Claude Pratt spent Monday and Tuesday in Chicago.

Mrs. J. E. Tomlins of Cary spent Sunday with relatives here.

Miss Regina Struss and friend are guests of the Malman family.

Mrs. Kittie Miller of Chicago spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Mills.

Misses Elizabeth and Dora Scheneman of Waukegan spent Sunday with Miss May Mulhearn.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Owen of Chicago were guests of Mrs. R. C. Kent during the past week.

The automobile parade from Barrington advertising the Chautauque attracted much attention Tuesday evening.

Mrs. William Clark and Mrs. T. Seymour visited over Sunday with Mrs. Manlove at Des Plaines and attended campmeeting.

William Basely and family entertained their son, Jon, of Union Sunday and on his return he took his mother home with him for a week's stay.

Hugh Reid and family of Chicago spent the last of the week with George Blackburn and family. Robert Blackburn accompanied them home remaining over Tuesday evening.

Charles Davila is very ill at present, writing and friends are apprehensive because of his condition. Mr. Davila is an old and respected retired farmer well and favorably known throughout this section.

Married at the Methodist parsonage in Waukegan on Wednesday, July 14, Leslie Davis and Miss Edith Fisher. These young people have the best wishes of many friends here for a prosperous and happy life.

Captain J. E. Pratt who has been mentioned as a visitor here, left Sunday for a few days' visit with Everett Joslyn and family of Marango, after which he will go back to his Wyoming home. Capt. Pratt has many new friends among our people; but many of his old associates are missed as each year, old friends and neighbors are length of life beyond a great majority of the old soldiers.

Piano Difficulty Settled.

Deputy Sheriff Elmer Green of Lake county came from Waukegan this morning with Mrs. C. Tallman, representing the Baldwin Piano company, to take possession of a piano at the home of Eugene Murphy, Main street. The company claims payments were not made as expected. The Murphy family have paid $159 of $215 they were to pay when the contract was made four years ago. The claim was settled by payment of $100 and the piano returned to its possession, the piano company agreeing to discontinue suit and pay costs.

GARDENING BY OUR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Becoming Very Popular and Also Serves Double Purpose of Employment and Instruction for Boys and Girls.

SELLS $2 WORTH OF VEGETABLES

Clark Harrower, Aged 11 Years, Sowed 10 Cents Worth of Seeds. Originally on Two Square Rods Land.

The Cook County School Field and Garden clubs for members a number of Barrington public school boys and girls all more or less interested in their gardening. Those who really accomplish something will be recommended to the county superintendent of schools, E. J. Tobin, for recognition on the annual "Achievement Day" next winter when children from all over the county will gather in Chicago to receive praise for their efforts to "do something."

Last year Henry Rieker won the Tribune silver jar for the best "accomplishment." He raised corn. The Barrington school won the Tribune $100 prize for most "good works" in a school district.

The boys and girls of the village who are entered this summer as tillers of the soil are: Marina Benoit, Frances Brockway, Gloria Williams, Curtis Jahnke, Edward Rieker, Walter Schnitzler, Donald Goff, Alvin Beth, Russell Brockway, Albert Erick, Thomas Dockery, Kirk Smith, John Plagge, Jr., Vernon Schroeder, Henry Smith, La Verne Harrower, Charles Harrower, Howard Stuehendorf, Robert Shot, Gerald Brown and Wright Callow; in the country: Nelson Hammond, Henry Rieker, Hobart Berghora, William Hammond, Irvin and William Killeberger and Harold Peas are farming. The town children have vegetable gardens while those out ways are raising corn, cucumbers and potatoes.

The county superintendent issues a record book for each club member in which instructions are printed as to the rules governing the club, a page for description of garden, crop, pictures of order, location, etc. The book of Clark Harrower, aged about 11 years, shows that on April 2 he rented two square rods of land of his father on Appleton street and planted 10 cents worth of onion sets and 10 cents worth of sweet corn. He has since been at work preparing the ground. On May 9 he began to pull green vegetables to housewives and by July 14 his sales amount to over $2.00. Those who have visited his garden are County Life Director E. M. Phillips, retired Prof. J. G. Smith, twice ad Superintendent Tobin, once.

The others are keeping records too. Prof. and Mrs. E. S. Smith have assisted some of the school girls recently in preserving "fruits with the steam cooker which belongs to the school. This cooker is for the use of local housewives and also may be borrowed. Miss Katherine Oils is planning to organize a girls' canning club.

Crystal Lake Bank to Re-open.

The preparations of the directors and stockholders of the Citizens' bank of Crystal Lake to re-open their bank have not been made public, excepting that the bank is to be opened this week for business. A 50 per cent. stock surrender, a part of the plan of making good to depositors would hit 37 stockholders in amounts from $5,400 to $1,000. It is reported that there is no disposition to push the case of embankment against Cashier Charles Wright if this Wright families settle the share of the losses against the former cashier.

Business Houses to Take Rest.

Beginning Friday evening many of the business houses of the village will close at 7:30 o'clock in the evening during the six nights of the Chautauque meeting. This is so that clerks and proprietors may have a vacation from evening work and enjoy the entertainments. Most of the stores and offices have joined in the closing idea. In most towns there is a "business men's close" every evening, or several a week, during the hot weather.

"No, I do not forget, James. There was but one way in which I could hope to steal him away from you, and I went about it deliberately, with my eyes open. I came here to induce him to run away with me. I would have taken him back to his mother's home to his grave, and there I would have told him what you did to her. After leaving my story he elected to return to the man who had destroyed his mother. I should have stopped and asked for no protest. But I would have taken him from you in the manner that was best for you, the worst. My sister was true to you. I would have been just as true, and after you had suffered the torments of hell, it was my plan to reverse everything to you. But you would have had your punishment by that time. When you were at the very end of your strength, with your trouble on the edge of oblivion, then I would have bunted you out and laughed at you and told you the truth. But you would have had years of anguish—"

"I have already had years of agony. I do not overlook that fact," said he. "I suffered for twenty years. I was at the edge of oblivion more than once. If it is a pleasure for you to hear me say it, I will say it. There are—"

"It does not offset the pain that her suffering brought to me. It does not counter-balance the agonies you gave to her boy, nor the stigma you put upon him. I am glad that you suffered. It proves to me that you secretly considered yourself to be in the wrong. You doubted your own right. You were never sure, and yet you crushed the life out of her innocent, bleeding heart. You let her die without a word to show that you—"

"I was lost to the world for years," he said. "There were many years when I was not in touch with—"

"But her letters must have reached you. She wrote a thousand—"

"They never reached me," he said significantly.

"You ordered them destroyed?" she cried in sudden comprehension.

"I must decline to answer that question."

CHAPTER XXI.

Revenge, Turned Blind.

She gave him a curious, incredulous smile, and then abruptly returned to her charge. "When my sister came home, degraded, I was nine years of age, but I was not so young that I did not know that a dreadful thing had happened to her. She was blighted beyond all hope of recovery. It was a little more than she told her story over and over again, and it was I to whom she read all of the pitiful letters she wrote to you. You said you wanted to come to America to kill you. He did come later on, to plead with you and to kill you if you would not listen to him. But you had heard of Africa, they said. I could not understand why you would not give to her that little baby boy. He was hers and—"

"She stopped short in her recital and covered her eyes with her hands. He waited for her to go on, sitting as rigid as the image that faced him from beyond the table's end. Afterward, my father and my uncle made every effort to get the child away from you, but he was hidden—your knowledge—carefully he was hidden—so that he might never find him. For ten years they searched for him—and you. For ten years she wrote to you, begging you to let her have him. If only for a little while at a time. She promised to restore him to you, God bless her poor soul. You never replied. You scorned her. We were richly rewarded. But our money was of no help to us in the search for her boy. You had secured her too well. At last, one day, she told me what it was that you had done. She told me that you had Guido Fervelli, her music-master, 'I knew him, James. He had known her from childhood. He was one of the finest men I have ever known—"

"He was in love with her," grated Brood.

"Perhaps. Who knows? But if so, he never said as much as you speak of love to her. He challenged you. Why did you refuse to fight him?"

"Because she begged me not to kill him. Did she tell you of her father?"

"Yes. But that was not the real reason. It was because you were not sure of your ground."

"I deny that."

"Never mind. It is enough that poor Fervelli passed out of her life. She did not see him again until just before she died. He was a noble gentleman. He wrote but my letter to her after that wretched day in this house. I have it here in this pocket."

She drew a package of papers from her bosom and laid it upon the table before him. "There were a half dozen letters tied together with a piece of white ribbon."

"But one letter from him," she went on. "It has brought it here for you to read. But not now. There are other letters and documents here for you to consider. They are from the grave. Ah, I do not wonder that you shrink and draw back from them. They convict you, James."

"Now I can see why you have taken in this right ignorant man. You— you know, he was innocent," he said in a low, unsteady voice.

"And why I have hated you, at— at— at— that you do not understand. I had and his Lydia, even though he went away with me. Once away from here, do you think that he would ever return? No. Even though he knew you— you to his father, he would not follow that he has never been your son. You have hurt him since he was a babe. Do you understand? I do not hate you now. It is something that you have done to him. You were true to her. What you did long ago was not your fault. You loved that she was a woman who went on loving her. That it what weakened my resolve. You loved her to the end, she loved you to the end. In the end of that, you could go on hating you? You must have been worthy of her love. She knew you better than all the world. You came to me with love for her in your heart. You took me, and you loved her all this time. I am not sure, James, that you are not entitled to this miserable, unhappy love I have come to feel for you— my own love, not Mattie's love."

"You— you are saying this so that I may refrain from throwing you out into the street?"

"No, she is crying to her face. 'I shall ask nothing of you. If I am to go it shall be because I have failed. I have been a blind, half-glorious fool. I trap has caught me instead of you, and I shall take the consequences. I have lost everything,' said he steadily.

"You do not mean?"

"I cannot ask you to stay here after this."

"But I shall not go. I have a duty to perform. I have this house. I intend to save the life of that poor boy downstairs, so that he may not die believing me to be an evil woman, a faithless wife, and a cold-blooded murderer. I have accomplished something! You know that he is your son. You know that my sister was as pure as snow. You know that you killed her girl that she loved. You know that you brought her to her. That is something. That—"

Brood dropped into the chair and buried his face in his quivering arms. In a matter of minutes the girl's soul. "They've all said that he is like me. I have seen it at times, but I would not believe. I fought against it, resisted it, but I could not. Now it is too late and I see! I see! I feel damn you— oh, damn you—you have driven me to the killing of my own son!"

The doctor came, silent for a long time, her hand hovering above his head.

"He is not going to die," she said at last, when she saw that she had full command of her voice. "I have promised you that, James. I shall not go from this house until he is well. I shall nurse him back to health and give him back to you and Mattie, for now I know that he belongs to both of you and not to her alone. Now, James, you may go down to him. He is not conscious. He will not hear you prying at his bedside. He—"

A knock came at the door—a sharp, impatient knock. It was repeated twice in the brief space of time before the summons the doctor could call out. They were petrified with the dread of something that awaited them beyond the door. "Come in," it was said finally.

Doctor Hodder, careless and bare-armed, came into the room.

CHAPTER XXII.

The Closed Door.

The doctor blinked for a moment. The two were leaning forward with their arms in their eyes, their hands gripping the table.

"I will be up to see you for an under-taker," demanded Hodder irritably. Brood started forward. "Is he dead?"

"Of course not, but he might as well be," exclaimed the other, and he was plain to see that he was very much out of patience. "You've called in another doctor and a priest, and now I hear that you should turn into the library. Hang it all, Brood, why don't you send for the coroner and under-taker and have done with it? I'm blessed if I—"

"Yvonne came swiftly to his side. 'Is he conscious? Does he know?'

"For God's sake, Hodder, is there any hope?" cried Brood.

"I'll be honest with you, Jim. I don't believe there is. It went in here, above the heart, and it's lodged back there by the spine somewhere. 'We have located it yet, but we will, I had to let up on the other for awhile, you see. He opened his eyes a few faint glances. There was a gleam in them. I am certain that he whispered Lydia Demond's name. Sounded that way to him, but, of course—"

"That's what you say?" she cried, whirling upon her husband.

"I think you'd better step in and see him now, Jim," said the doctor, suddenly becoming very gentle. "He may come to again and—well, it may be the last time he'll ever open his eyes. Yes, it's as bad as all that."

"I'll go—once," said Brood, his face ashen. "You must revive him for a few minutes. Hodder, there's something I've got to say to him. He must be able to hear and to understand. It is the most important thing in the world. He choked up suddenly."

"You'll have to be careful, Jim. He's ready to collapse. Then it's all off."

"Nevertheless, Doctor, Hodder, my husband has something to say to his son that cannot be put off for an instant. I think it will mean a great deal to him, and to understand me. It will make life worth living for him."

Hodder stared for a second or two. "He'll need a bit of courage and if anything put it into him, he'll make a better fight. If you get a chance, say it to him, Jim. I—I if it's got anything to do with his mother, say it, for pity's sake. He has moaned the word 'mother' time and time again."

"It has to do with his mother," Brood cried out. "Come! I want you to hear it, too, Hodder."

"There isn't much time to lose. I'm afraid," Brood said, shaking his head. His gaze suddenly rested on Mrs. Brood's face. She was very erect, and a smile came to her lips as she before was or her lips—a smile that puzzled and yet inspired him with a positive, undebatable feeling of encouragement.

"He is not going to die, Doctor Hodder," she said quietly. Something went through his body that warmed it curiously. He felt a thrill, as one who is seized by a great overpowering excitement.

She preceded him into the hall. He closed the door behind him and gave a swift glance about the room that had been his most private retreat for years.

He was never to set foot inside it again. In that single glance he bade farewell to it forever. It was a hated, lovely spot. He had spent an age in it during those bitter morning hours, an age of imprisonment.

On the landing below they came upon Lydia. She was seated on a window ledge, leaning wearily against the wall. She looked up as they approached, but watched them with steady, unflinching eyes in which there was no friendliness, no compassion. They were her enemies, they had killed her son. She thought of him as he lay there, and then before the bitter look they encountered. His shoulders you have said all that to me before, Lydia."

"What is your object in keeping me away from him at such a time as this, Mrs. Brood?" demanded Lydia. "You refuse to let me go to him. Is it because you are afraid of what—"

"There are trying days ahead of us, Lydia," interrupted Yvonne. "We shall have to face them together. I can promise you that; Frederic will be saved for you. Tomorrow, just day perhaps, I may be able to explain everything to you. You hate me today. Everyone in this house hates me. Frederic hates me. There is a day coming when you will not hate me. That was my prayer, Lydia. I was not praying for Frederic, but for myself."

"For yourself?"

"I might have known you—"

"You hesitate? Perhaps it is just as well."

"I want to say to you, Mrs. Brood, that it is my purpose to remain in this house as long as I can be—"

"You are welcome, Lydia. You will be the one great tonic that is to restore him to health of mind and body. Yes, I shall go further, and say that you are commanded to stay here and help me in the long fight that is ahead of us."

"I thank you, Mrs. Brood," the girl was surprised into saying.

Both of them turned quickly as the door of Frederic's room opened and James Brood came out into the hall. His face was drawn with pain and anxiety, but the light of exaltation was in his eyes.

"Come, Lydia," he said softly, after he had closed the door behind him. "He knows me. He is conscious. Hodder can't understand it, but he seems to be coming suddenly from a stranger. He—"

"Stronger?" cried Yvonne, the ring of triumph in her voice. "I knew I should feel coming—his strength— even out here, James. Yes, as it now, Lydia. You will see a strange sight, my dear. James Brood will kneel beside his son and tell him—"

"Come!" said Brood, spreading out his hands in a gesture of admission. "You must hear it, too, Lydia. Not you, Frederic! You are not to come in."

"I grant you ten minutes, James," she said, with the air of a dictator. "After that I shall take my stand beside him and you will not be needed."

She struck her breast sharply with her clinched hand. "His one and only hope lies here, James. I am his salvation. I am his strength. When you come out of your room again, I will be to stay until I give the word for you to re-enter. Go now and put spirit into him. That's all that I ask of you."

He stared for a moment and then lowered his head. A moment later Lydia followed him into the room and Yvonne was alone in the hall. Alone! Bawled was ascending the stairs. He came and stood before her, and bent his knee.

"I forgot," she said, looking down upon him from the vestige of the old dread in her eyes. "I have a friend, after all."

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Joy of June.

On a warm morning toward the middle of the month of June Frederic and Lydia sat in the quiet, old-fashioned courtyard, in the grateful shade of the south wing and almost directly beneath the balcony of Yvonne's house. He sat cross-legged on the ground, and she sat on a pile of cushions, her feet and her hands resting against the wall. Looking at her, one would not have thought that he had passed through the valley of the shadow of death, and was now emerging into the sunshine of life. His face was pale from long confinement, but there was a healthy glow about his eyes, and a clear light in his eyes. For a week or more he had been permitted to walk about the house and into the garden, always leaning on the arm of his father or the faithful Brigid. Each day he was given a little strength and vitality increased and each night he slept with the peace of a care-free child.

As for Lydia, she was radiant with happiness. The long fight was over. She had gone through the campaign against death with loyal, unflinching courage; there had never been an instant when her staunch heart had faltered; there had been distress but never despair. If the trials told on her it did not matter, for she was of the fighting kind. Her love was the sustenance on which she thrived despite the beggary offerings that were laid before her during those weeks of famine.

Times there was a penitential mood brought the touch of sadness to her face, but she was not unhappy. She and Frederic were happy, but what of the one who actually had wrought the miracle? That one alone was unhappy, unrequited, unloved. There was no place for her in the new order of things. When Lydia thought of her—as she often did—it was with an insupportable craving in her soul. She longed for the hour to come when Yvonne Brood would lay aside the mask of resignation and demand tribute; when the strange demands that held all of them at bay would disappear and they could feel that she was no longer regarded them as adversaries.

In real life there was no longer a symptom of rancor in the heart of Lydia Demond. She realized that her sweetest recovery was due almost entirely to the reasonable forgiveness accorded by this woman at a time when mortal agencies appeared to be of no avail. Her absolute certainty that she had the power to tawar. Just, at least in this instance, had its effect, not only on the wounded man but on those who attended him. Doctor Hodder and the nurses were not slow to admit that her magnificent courage, her almost scornful self-assurance, supplied them with an incentive that, to his mind, never had gone beyond the form of a mere hope. There was something positively startling in her serene conviction that Frederic would survive. There was a day coming when you will not hate me. That was my prayer, Lydia. I was not praying for Frederic, but for myself."

"For yourself?"

"I might have known you—"

"You hesitate? Perhaps it is just as well."

"I want to say to you, Mrs. Brood, that it is my purpose to remain in this house as long as I can be—"

"You are welcome, Lydia. You will be the one great tonic that is to restore him to health of mind and body. Yes, I shall go further, and say that you are commanded to stay here and help me in the long fight that is ahead of us."

SUPPORT YOUR PAPER.

The local newspaper is one of the greatest assets of any section of country and should be supported and encouraged as such, not with a feeling of charity toward the editor, but as to the fact that the paper is contributing to the uplift of the community and the consequent enhancing of the value of your own holdings. We want you—all of you—not to realize that this paper is not being published just for the glory of the editor.

It is a public institution. It is, for progress, for commercial advancement, for community pride, for the development and encouragement of every legitimate interest that will be of value to our people.

We are laboring to that end, and we want you to labor with us.

Get rid of the idea that when you hand us a dollar or news items or articles to be published you are "helping the editor along."

You are helping the editor, yes; but you are helping YOURSELF more than you are him, for you are getting more than value received for your money.

You are supporting a business enterprise that labors diligently day by day for the social, intellectual and commercial advancement of yourself and every other citizen of the community. And no other business enterprise can speak louder or more to the point.

MORONS ARE DANGEROUS.

"Altruists," or expert physicians in judging the insane, have developed a new word the past few years which is applied to people who lack mental development equal to their years. Such people are now called "morons." These physicians warn people of the danger of morons who may be harmless for years, but who may become violently insane and dangerous in a second.

Many families, through love for relatives who are unfortunately morons, keep them at home and allow them much freedom in moving about the streets, when the half demented one should be more guarded or in institutions. How many accounts are read of murders and attacks upon sane people by those said to be harmless, just "nutty." Many love to tease those who are mentally weak and aggravate them, but it is a risky pleasure. Any second the sickened brain, or simple mind, may lose its reasoning entirely, and the brute force in a crazy human be used with terrible results.

There is some slight difference between the poor boy who reaches the top and the glided youth who sinks to the bottom. Life is just one big ladder, and you can climb as high or slide as low as you like, and no one will stop you.

The man who continually knocks his home town is generally the one who does the least for it and receives his all from it. And he is most surely the one who receives the least respect from the rest of the people of the town. If a town is worth living in it is worth boosting. To give it a knock is to insult your own intelligence.

Of course the sins of your neighbor are of scarlet, while your own are as white as the snow.

Dr. W. J. Libberton will preach at Olivet Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago, during the next four Sundays in accordance with arrangements made prior to his coming to Barrington as pastor of the Methodist church. On next Sunday his pulpit here will be filled by Rev. Albert Perry of Park Ridge. The prayer meeting will be held at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, instead of Wednesday, during the next four weeks.

Why do people go about among home town folks in any old clothes that will hang together and then drive up neatly to go out, as down among strangers? Friends like to see you clean and neat, too. There are two faults about dress, one is too great a love for fine clothes and the other is too little care as to appearance. "If the feathers don't make fine birds," but clean working clothes and a change when your working hours are over, help a lot to make you respected. "Cleanliness is next to Godliness." It is also to be comfortable, but why be slovenly in front of your real friends and let strangers see you at your best?

Dear Grove picnics on Sundays are attracting many young people from Barrington.

Mrs. Arnett Limes played the pipe organ at the Baptist church last Sunday morning in the absence of the regular organist, Mrs. W. J. Cameron. It was her first attempt in leading a public service and many compliments were paid her.

U. S. URGED TO ACT RUSS FRONT PIERCED

GERMANY ASKS NEW EFFORT TO END STARVATION POLICY.

Secretary of State Lansing Declines Again to Sound Great Britain on Subject.

Washington, July 19.—In an interview here, in which considerable importance had been attached, Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, found Secretary Lansing unresponsive to a suggestion that the United States undertake again to approach Great Britain with a view of effecting an armistice under the terms of which the British embargo on shipments of supplies of all kinds to German ports and the German submarine warfare on unarmed merchant ships would be discontinued.

Beyond the suggestion that the United States again undertake to bring about a modus vivendi that would bind Great Britain to suspend what the German government terms "England's starvation policy" and bind Germany to discontinue the sinking of merchant ships before an opportunity was given to enable their passengers and crews to reach places of safety, nothing was said by the German envoy, according to the best information obtainable, to change the understanding of the United States on Germany's attitude as made known in the note of the Berlin government.

In a matter relating to the response of this government will be based on Germany's unwillingness to concede that she is bound by the established rule of international law that a merchant vessel, no matter what its status, shall not be sent to the bottom by a German submarine until after the requirement of visit and search has been complied with and passengers and crew have been afforded time to reach a place of safety.

IOWA POSSE HUNTS BANDITS

Bank Robbers Held Up North Liberty Cashier and Take All the Cash on Hand.

North Liberty, Ia., July 19.—Two men held up and robbed the Farmers' Savings bank here of $10,000, practically all the cash it had on hand, shortly before the closing hour Friday. The robbers made their escape in an automobile.

Practically all of the men in the town joined in the hunt for the robbers. The cashier, James E. Clippens, was held up at the point of a pistol.

Mason City, Ia., July 19.—After a running fight, Jack Noel, Scotty McDonald and Roy Hoffman surrendered after they had killed and wounded several men at a saloon in that city. Hoffman, compelling all the men to surrender their clothing, jewelry and money. The robbers then fled.

Prairie for U. S. Doctors. London, July 20.—Miraculous is the only proper adjective to apply to the work being done by American doctors and nurses in Serbia, said Sir Thomas Lipton, following his return from his second trip to the near East.

Big Fleet of Hydroplanes. New York, July 20.—According to information obtained by the Aero Club of America, the navy department has decided to order immediately 100 hydroplanes and 500 boats. These are to be the first of a fleet of 200.

GERMANS CLOSING TRAP IN MOVE TO SMASH RUSSIAN ARMY.

Two-Thirds of the Kaiser's Army Thrown into Great Battle in the East.

London, July 20.—North and south the Germans have placed the Russian front, according to dispatches from Berlin and Vienna, and the millions of Von Hindenburg and the other millions under Von Mackensen are smashing forward to close the gap behind Warsaw and trap, crush and destroy the greater portion of the Russian armies.

On a front of more than 400 miles, in a campaign unparalleled in history for daring and startling maneuvers and the colossal number of men engaged, Teuton and Slav are at death grips. More than 10,000,000 are reported fighting on both sides. No less than two thirds of the Germans under arms have been thrown into the fight forward to close the gap behind Warsaw and trap, crush and destroy the greater portion of the Russian armies.

The long maturing plans of Von Hindenburg, the Prussian military genius, which it has been predicted will startle the world, are in process of quick development. Leading his own legions, he has split and broken the Russian front south of Przemysl, and hurled his armies forward on the heels of the rapidly retreating Slavs, has extended his advance until it approaches the banks of the Narva.

Meanwhile, to the south, the armies under Von Mackensen which for the last two weeks have been shifting front and apparently were inactive, began a massive movement against the Lublin-Chelm railway in concert with Hindenburg's northern drive and breaking the Russian front near Krasnostav. The southward drive, as sweeping, in tremendous strength against the railroad upon which the grand duke depends for his supplies.

THAW WINS LONG BATTLE

Justice Hendricks Approves Verdict of Jury and Releases Him on Bail Pending Appeal.

New York, July 17.—Harry K. Thaw Friday won his nine-year fight for liberty. Justice Hendricks of the supreme court approved the verdict of the jury finding the slayer of Stanford White sane, and released him on $35,000 bail pending an appeal by the state.

As soon as the jury was dismissed Thaw warmly to the box and shook hands with the jurymen, saying to each: "Thank you so much for all that you have done."

Outside the courtroom a wide field of stops had been crowded all afternoon and the street and the sidewalks on either side of it also were crowded.

CLOSING IN ON RUSS

GERMANS WITHIN 20 MILES OF THE POLISH CAPITAL IN RAPID ADVANCE. CITY'S FALL SEEMS CERTAIN

Hindenburg Threatens Line to Warsaw and Invaders Drive to Lublin-Chelm Railway, Vital Supply Route—Thousands of Russians Captured.

London, July 22.—The German and Austrian armies have been victorious all along the whole 1,000-mile Russian line. The city of Radom, capital of the province of that name, and 17 miles south of Warsaw, has been occupied by the Austrian troops.

Allied cavalry is astride the important railroad from Radom to Ivangorod. Lublin has either been captured or is on the verge of being evacuated, the Russian commander in chief having issued an order that in case of retreat the male population of the city is to attach itself to the end of the retreating army.

The Lublin-Chelm railway, an important link which leads to Warsaw, is still believed to be held by the Russians, but it is scarcely possible that they will be able to hold it for any number of hours.

Warsaw's fall seems certain. Nothing but a miracle can save the Polish capital from the Austro-German hordes that are surging forward upon it from north and south. It is not now a question of whether the city will fall, but how soon. While hope is still entertained that the Russians will make a stand, it is a faint hope.

News of the evacuation of Warsaw, followed by the triumphant entry of the allied troops, and such scenes as attended the capture of Lemberg and Przemysl, would cause no surprise at any time now to the British.

In the case of the north the army of General von Duesen has taken Tarnobrzeg, within 38 miles of the important export of Riga. The fall of the latter city seems as certain as that of Warsaw.

Following the great encirclement southward the Germans have met with great successes to the northeast of Warsaw. Here the army of General von Gallwitz has captured the fortress of Ostroleka, about twenty miles from Warsaw and one of the great depots of the Russian army. It was counted upon to block the German invasion.

Less than twenty miles southwest of the city the army of General von Mackensen has captured the city of Bialystok.

Enormous numbers of prisoners are being taken by the Germans. Within the last two days, say the Berlin and Vienna reports, more than fifty thousand men, 110 officers and 23 machine guns have been taken. Of these, Von Gallwitz took 25,000 men in one day's fighting on the Narva.

With the victorious battles pursuing the Russians across the battlefield between the Vistula and the Bug rivers, great numbers of additional captives are being taken. Fifty officers and 3,000 men were taken in one lot, and 3,000 in another lot were captured near Skid, according to the Austrian official report.

MEXICO CITY AGAIN TAKEN

Carrazzistas Completely Evacuate Mexican Capital—Zapata in Full Possession.

Washington, July 22.—Mexico City has been completely evacuated by the Carranzistas under General Gonzalez and now is in full possession of the Zapataistas, according to reports from the state department officials.

These dispatches, dated Mexico City, Monday noon, announced that the Carranzistas entered the city Sunday afternoon and appointed various city authorities. The Zapataistas are in full power, but apparently they desire to maintain order. President Carranza and the convention government have not yet returned from Cuernavaca, where they fled on July 9.

Bilateral communication between Vera Cruz and Mexico City has been suspended. In a telegram dated Monday at Piedras Negras, Vice-Consul Nichols announced communication with Torreon was opened Sunday.

100,000 LOST IN CHINA FLOOD

Cablegram From Peking to State Department Told of Big Losses—Appeal for Assistance.

Washington, July 22.—From 80,000 to 100,000 lives have been lost in the floods in the vicinity of Canton, China, according to a cablegram to the state department from Peking. Consul General Chebro has appealed for all the assistance that can be afforded by the navy department.

100,000 Lost in China Flood. Geneva, July 22.—The health of Franz Josef, Austrian emperor, is causing great anxiety, according to reports reaching here. He suffers from nervous excitement and his mind apparently is profoundly affected.

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly get up. I had nervous, spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would turn raw. I could not sleep. My good, had no appetite and everything I ate I felt better. I continued to take and now I am well and strong."

"I have always recommended your medicine ever since I was so wonderfully benefited by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. MARTHA SEARCY, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, also they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), 255 Mass. Ave., Boston, Mass. Your letter will be read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

BE KINDER TO YOURSELF Women Are Often Victims of Nervousness Because They Don't Know How to Relax.

One of the important things to know in life, especially if you are a woman, is how to let yourself alone, writes Mary Carolyn Davies in the Mother's Magazine. The ability to relax, the tact of being judiciously lazy, the tact to let herself alone has saved many a woman from a nervous breakdown.

We all know the housewife who nags herself into such a state of consciousness that she cannot rest. If she has down she is constantly worrying herself with thoughts of the work that she is neglecting.

Much of the blame for this state of affairs lies at the door of the mother. The mistake is in their training of their children, especially their daughters. They are taught from earliest infancy to be kind to others, to bear with them, to be kind to them, to help them; but from birth to death no one ever tells them to be kind, also, to themselves.

The woman who nags herself can make herself more miserable than anyone else possibly could. She can make her life more of a nightmare than any misfortune could possibly make it. If such women could learn to be kinder to themselves there is no doubt that their own lives would be lengthened; and not only that, but the lives of those with whom they come in close contact would be made far more pleasant.

Time Required. "How long does it take you to go fishing?" "Well, if you consider the time I actually gain, it takes only a few hours. But if you count in the time I consume waiting for conditions to be just right and arranging for bait, it takes several weeks."

BUILT A MONUMENT The Best Sport in the World.

"A monument built by and from Postum." Is the way an Illinois man describes himself. He says: "For years I was a coffee drinker until at last I became a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia, constipation, headaches and indigestion."

"Gradually my condition changed. The old troubles disappeared and I began to feel well. My appetite became good and I could digest food. Now I am restored to strength and health, can sleep sound all night and awake with a fresh and vigorous feeling."

"I am really a monument built by Postum, for I was a physical wreck, distressed in body and mind, and am now a strong, healthy man. I know exactly what made the change; it was leaving off coffee and using Postum."

Name given by Postum Co. to Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkg.

Postum comes in two forms: "Postum Cereal"—the original form—must be well boiled. Use 50c pkg. "Instant Postum"—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage (satisfies 20c and 50c tins).

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup. "There's a Reason for Postum."

The Barrington "boosters" of the Chautauque reached here in 25 cars Tuesday evening. Speeches and music were in order in the business district and interested many in the tent entertainment.

The Bert Robbins Comedy company opens Sunday in this village for a week's series of shows and sale of patent medicines. The same show has exhibited here for many years under the name of the Hudson Medical company.

On Tuesday another delegation from the Essanay company were in town. Most of them were girls of about 20 in outing costumes. A few remained for several days of posing but most of them returned to Chicago that night taking the train at Barrington. One film registered was of a struggle in a boat between a fellow and girl; she overturned the boat in order to get away from him.

Several automobiles from Barrington stopped here Friday night. They were a part of an automobile run to Palatine. Adolphus Heitsch and Lake Zurich to advertise the Chautauque meetings which begin in Barrington, Friday, July 23. Speeches were to have been given and a band played but the parade became divided by mistake near Deer Grove and the larger part rode into Barrington instead of Lake Zurich.

The Commercial association of Lake Zurich has issued an eight page folder advertising the town. It contains all sorts of information about the beautiful summer resort, pictures of camps, hotels, bathing, boating, drives, groves, picnic grounds, private homes, summer cottages and a map of the "vicinity." These were distributed in Chicago and different towns. A great many people have come out to see the lake since who said they had read the folder and it was the first time they had heard of Lake Zurich and its advantages. This shows that it pays to advertise the town.

The Essanay Moving Picture company of Chicago were here the past week taking pictures for a photo-play to be given in Chicago. It certainly was exciting watching them so all watch for the play named "Rule of 69" for you might see Lake Zurich and especially the great train called "Maud." There were 20 in the company who enjoyed it here and said "Lake Zurich certainly has some beautiful scenery." One scene taken was of two girls and two men in canoes which were overturned in anger; another was a love scene at one of the hotels and a quarrel between two men.
