FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE AT WHEELING

Terrible Live Stock Infection Breaks Out Anew When Thought to be Under State Control.

FIVE TOWNSHIPS ARE QUARANTINED

These Are Wheeling, Maine, Palatine and Cook County and Vernon and DeKalb in Lake.

Monday cattlemen were alarmed at the new outbreak of foot and mouth disease near Wheeling just at a time when it was believed that all traces of the affliction had been eradicated from the state after ten months of fighting the contagion. It was discovered that about thirty hogs, in a herd of over a hundred, and three or four cattle, on the Pearson farm had contracted the malady. The hogs were traced to a serum bought at a Chicago drug company and injected to prevent hog cholera. The origin of the serum has not been definitely located.

State and federal veterinarians were hurried to the infected farm and a careful vigilance will be maintained over the surrounding country; five townships are in quarantine: Wheeling, Maine, and Palatine, which are in Cook county and Vernon and DeKalb in Lake county, under orders of State Veterinarian O. E. Dyson.

All the stock on the Pearson farm was killed Tuesday under the direction of Dr. W. C. Hard, federal inspector and Dr. J. S. Jenkins, inspector of the Chicago branch of the United States Bureau of Animal Health.

Henry Pearson is a resident of Evanson and his farm at Wheeling, two miles southwest of the village, is a large model one of fine equipment, similar to the large estates around Barrington.

Dr. Elmer Gieske, veterinary surgeon of Wheeling, a brother to Dr. Albert Gieske of Barrington, said over the telephone, late last evening, that he does not believe the situation is serious for every precaution is being taken to prevent contagion and that it is expected the serum recently used on the Pearson farm is the cause of the outbreak.

Live stock raisers in Illinois have been informed that the bill, passed on July 28, stating that the Pan-American exposition in California would not allow Illinois cattle to be exhibited, is an error, as the Illinois commission has not withdrawn its price offers and will not. It is not known at present whether another retraction will be made later on account of the new outbreak of foot and mouth disease in the state.

Calais Holmes.
Miss Irene Holmes, youngest daughter of W. W. Holmes of North Hawley street, was married to Elmer Calkins on Saturday, August 7, in Buffalo, New York. They are now visiting at various points among them being Niagara Falls, Toronto and Hamilton, Canada. In Hamilton they will be at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. B. Munger and will return to Barrington about August 15.

Miss Holmes has been visiting her sister for several weeks in Canada and Mr. Calkins left here the first of the month and was also a guest of the Hungon home. They are both estimable young people and we hope they will be happy together. The society has about 70 members from the village and surrounding country. The high school will play and the place will be well lighted.

LATER—On account of the stormy weather today, the above mentioned social will be held in the town hall this evening where equally as good time may be enjoyed as out doors. Do not let the rain prevent you from attending.

ATTEND TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION

Spencer Otis and Son, Peter Otis Were Present at the Thursday Exhibit Which Occurred at Champaign.

At Champaign last week the Illinois tractor demonstration was an unequalled success despite heavy rains that rendered impossible the extensive plowing tests planned. Of the 32 companies entered, 31 were there with exhibits and each gave satisfactory demonstrations. 16 actual field work Wednesday and Thursday. Over 100 tractors were taken to Champaign and exhibited in the parked area in Miller's grove.

The first two days of the demonstration were given over simply to the examination of the tractors with such demonstrations of their mechanism as could be given without field work. Despite this handicap sales were brisk and of record. The number of tractors sold was 100, and the number of tractors leased or sold on credit was 1,000.

People from all over the state and from neighboring states came to the grounds on Tuesday and 7500 to 8000 on Wednesday. Wednesday night the snow went out, that a tough old 40 acre field of hard ground was found 3½ miles northwest of town, which could be plowed on Thursday, notwithstanding the water logged condition of the soil.

The first two days of the demonstration moved to the Hobbs' farm south of Champaign and 25 tractors, all of different makes and types, were tested 80 acres of land. The Thursday demonstration was witnessed by 12,000 people.

The demonstration will be repeated at Champaign next year. The tractor men, themselves, were surprised at the volume of inquiry and orders originating at the Champaign show, indicating that popular interest in the farm tractor, for the medium size farm is growing faster than even the men in the business have previously realized. Spencer Otis and son, Peter Otis, viewed the Thursday demonstration.

Bad Runaway Monday Morning.
Something frightened the horses hitched to the Kampert express wagon Tuesday morning about eight o'clock when they were tied near the freight depot and they ran in great confusion down the street in the rear of the Meyer, Schleshofer and Jahr buildings, the building, closing a switching track of the railway situated near the flag station, ran into the rear of a freight car, it was quite badly smashed, while the horses ran on and were stopped by front of John C. Maher's residence on State street, after they had hit a burg and broke a wheel thereon. Mr. Kampert was thrown when the team started and hit his head, but beyond bruises seems to be all right to-day. It was thought at first that his wrist was broken. Machinery for the Jencks and Rohrmeier implement business was on the wagon and was damaged by the fall.

First Public Gathering.
The Woman's Country Life Association gives its first public gathering this evening in the way of a lawn lawn square, Lake street. Everybody is urged to come to the party which will be initiated at 8 o'clock. The association is a local branch of the National Council of Women, but is not affiliated with any other organization, but is a local social evening for all to meet and another becomes better acquainted. The society has about 70 members from the village and surrounding country. The high school will play and the place will be well lighted.

SYNOPTIC

Hall Bonstelle, artist-photographer, prepares for the day's work in his studio.

Hall laughed jeeringly. "Can't be! You don't know Uncle John! He was the most unmitigated bore that ever breathed. Talk about cranks! He never got around to any of the 'artistic'! And I was fool enough to let him be independent. Result, I had to take photographs for a living. Why, Flodie, he's just as likely to leave me a dime with a hole in it, and let it go at that!"

Flodie sighed in sympathy and said: "Well, we must be paid in any case!" They had seven-and-seventy cents in the cash box!

"Good Lord, is it as bad as that? Well, we'll have to collect a few bills in a hurry." Hall appeared to dismiss the subject.

But Flodie was not to be dismissed. "Well, I'll collect, Mr. Bonstelle!" she protested; "every last cent. You can trust me to attend to that! And I've had to sit up and beg like a French poodle, too!"

Hall, walking back and forth, seemed not to be listening, but suddenly he turned to his assistant with a quizzical smile. "Well, we'll have to get her and put her hand on her shoulder."

"See here, Flodie, have you taken out your salary regularly every week? Now, don't you try to fib!"

Flodie tried to pull away but it was too delicious. "Oh, I don't know, abe," she said. "Not like we're broke, perhaps. That's all right. Now, it was she who caught hold of his arm."

"But I wanted to tell you something, Mr. Bonstelle—if you wouldn't mind—just let me—"

"What?" he demanded suspiciously. "Oh, only—if you're willing—really, I mean, to, you know, know I've saved up a little money. Mr. Bonstelle—said, well, it might help you temporarily—until you could—"

Hall threatened her with savage playfulness. "Flodie Fisher, he said determinedly, "you ever dare to mention such a thing to me again, I'll—"

"I don't!" Flodie was very stern. "It's business, Flodie—keeps the women curious. Makes 'em talk! Oh, well," Hall tossed it off his mind.

"Well, get along somehow. Well, run along, Flid; now; I suppose I've got to get ready to preside at this altar of vanity. Good-bye, Flodie!"

Flodie believed Flodie's mother knew more of the actual truth about women than a doctor or a priest!"

Flodie gave him an indulgent smile. "Mr. Bonstelle, I want to tell you something. All three of them put together know a girl a prima curta and retired to the office.

CHAPTER II.

Hall laughed and then stood thoughtfully for a few moments, smoking quickly, blowing rings. Then he took off his dressing gown, put on his coat, and had to look at his camera when Flodie came back.

"There's a desperate old fart out there to see you, Mr. Bonstelle—Mr. Doremus!"

"Doremus?" Hall searched his memory. "What does he look like—a bill collector?"

"No, he's just a nice old man with a side pocket in his coat and a staves at you over the top of his glasses."

Hall sighed. "Well, he'll be in. I'll tell him!"

Mr. Doremus was grave and precise, looked for a chair, and sat down deliberately. He searched in the inside pocket of his coat as he said pointedly. "It is, of course, the first opportunity to communicate with you, Mr. Bonstelle. Unhappily, however, I could not get you on the telephone this morning." Still his hand gripped in his pocket, like a dog at a woodchuck's hole.

"No!" Hall remarked impatiently.

Doremus brought forth a long envelope. Solemnly he spoke, looking over the loops of the rubber band: "Mr. Bonstelle, I have the honor of being the attorney for the estate of your uncle, the late John Deasley Bonstelle."

A dismal thunderbolt struck the room, and Hall, shocked and frightened, had his eyes bright with excitement, tipped back into the office.

Mr. Doremus deposited the paper upon the table. "Well, I shall leave you now to take care of your leisure. You must not be aware that I am a justice of the peace, Mr. Bonstelle. I shall be quite willing to accommodate you, should you find an bride. I think I could perform an credible ceremony as any clergymen at half price!" He chuckled at the idea.

Hall, in no mood for jests, rose and followed him. "Where's Cousin Jonas—Mr. Haslingbury?" he asked. "Lord, he ought to be a happy man, about now!"

Mr. Doremus paused, "took the first opportunity to telegraph to Mr. Haslingbury," he said, "informing him of the provisions of J. H. Bonstelle's will. I requested his immediate appearance in town, and I have no doubt that he will arrive here sometime during the day."

"Think of that old hypocrite getting all that money!" Hall exclaimed. "Lord, it makes me ill—he'll be a thousand times more disgusting than ever, with his religious book and his charity talk."

Mr. Doremus lifted an eloquent finger. "As an executor, you understand I must preserve an attitude of strict impartiality." At the same time he privately added, "I believe me, I believe that I am on the side of youth. Four matings—oh, one could induce one's youthful dreams!" He shook his head sentimentally. "Si la jeunesse savait, si la vieillesse pouvait!"

Hall watched him, half-awed. "Ah, you're all right!" Mr. Bonstelle. Am I correct?"

"Yes. Tomorrow. Why?"

Mr. Doremus solemnly held up his hand. "Wait!" he commanded. "Let me, before I go through the whole document, read this one clause."

Flodie, peering through the door, was breathlessly listening. "What's wrong with it?"

"Er—here it is." Mr. Doremus proceeded to read soberly. "The residue of my estate I leave to my beloved nephew, Hall Cutler Bonstelle, on condition that he is married before he reaches the age of twenty-eight years."

"Oh, I know it! Well, it's all up with me!"

"It's, however, at the beginning of his twenty-eighth birthday he is still unmarried, the residue shall be the property of my beloved cousin, Jonas Haslingbury, as a testimony to our fraternal friendship!"

Mr. Doremus looked up at Flodie. "Hall was scowling. "Let's see it!" he demanded, and he took the instrument and read the clause over to him, while Mr. Doremus' eyes drifted slowly about the apartment. "How much will the residuary legate receive?" Hall asked weakly.

"Oh, a sum of four millions, I expect." "And I see all that, just because I'm a single man!" Hall dropped limp and gloomy, into a chair.

Mr. Doremus bowed soberly. "Your uncle would strong views, Mr. Bonstelle. He firmly believed in marriage. He thought it a duty. He maintained that a man should be married before he could be a good husband."

"I know all about that. Didn't Uncle Flodie give him a prima curta and retired to the office.

"He's a desperate old fart out there to see you, Mr. Bonstelle—Mr. Doremus!"

"Doremus?" Hall searched his memory. "What does he look like—a bill collector?"

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is trying one to meet women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for her self. Of course, indeed, every woman knows the medical treatment at such times, but many expect a woman to come with an organism unfit for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following upon this comes the nervousness of a new mother, a child, and a distinct change in the mother's result.

There is nothing more charming than a happy mother, a happy child, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need he no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from overstrained conditions, a woman's time in which to recuperate would still persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time is upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes there are no children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes a woman normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Co., Lynn, Mass. For a copy to be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Danger in Delay

The greatest danger to kidney trouble is that it often gets so far advanced before the sufferer recognises it. Health will be gradually undermined. Back-ache, headache, nervousness, faintness, loss of appetite, indigestion, constipation, gravel, and Bright's disease may follow as the kidneys get worn. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with Dwan's Kidney Pills. It is the best recommended specific for kidney remedy.

FANCY-WORK FEATURE

LITTLE NOVELTIES OUT OF THE ORDINARY IN NEEDLE ART.

Pin cushion With Natural Flowers, is Pleasing Ornament to Dressing
Table—Charming Table Center for Home Working.

A few flowers always make a very pleasant addition to the dressing table, and in this sketch we show a novel and useful article for holding them. It consists of an oblong cushion in the center of which is fitted a little glass vase, and this vase will serve for this purpose, and the leaves in the center of the cushion must, of course, be made to correspond in size.

The pin cushion from which our sketch was drawn was of the shape shown in diagram A, on the right of the illustration, and it was covered with white muslin, edged with a fine lace and trimmed with a ribbon. At each corner, there was a little bunch of very narrow ribbon matching exactly the color of the cord. The left hand sketch clearly shows the way in which the cushion should be made, and Novelty for the Dressing Table.

Sketch B shows it complete, with the dots fitted in the center and filled with flowers.

When not being used for flowers, this cushion can be used as a compact for hairpins and little odds and ends such as buttons, etc. This same idea could be easily carried out in other shapes, and a circular cushion with a little bow fitted into the center would look very pretty and quite useful.

A most uncommon and charming center is easily made at home like the one here sketched. A piece of silk, satin or the muslin will be needed.

also some sprays of prepared mafia flowers which can be bought at any fancy shop, some white or cream net and a little lace edging.

GROWING CRAZE FOR BUTTONS

New Specialty Devised for Increased Demand in Trimming Wash Dresses, Blouses and Waistcoats.

To comply with the new craze for buttons, a new article has been devised for the trimming of wash dresses, blouses, etc. For the present these new buttons are only made in white of a gimp texture recalling crocheted work, which they are perhaps the mere fact of having a bold round or oval, made of a combination of white and yellow, and dark green. The tiny hat appearance appears to be the favorite. It is to me really lavished on every accessory of dress, whether placed in separate rows or vertical rows, in circles or in clumps. As an example, a daisy fringe of these new berries tremble along the wide brim of a child's hat, while a sprig of these berries, with the heads of a few blossoms softly nestled amid laces drapes round the low crown. No great effort of imagination is needed to employ these new buttons effectively and so especially. Fine fingers are required to arrange them in the white wash dresses, etc., while white washable buttons will at least have no cause of complaining of the success of invention. Colored buttons are now clumped for.

Suffrage Vests
The newest in suffrage regalia is the suffrage vest, which at a little distance looks like any other model, but when the white washable buttons are bordered along the low edge. Look closely at this border, however, and you will discern that the pattern

BOX JACKETS QUITE PLAIN

Mode Shows Simple but Not Severe Effect, and Expresses Decided Youthfulness and Grace.

The summer's styles are specially suited to development. In white serge, and since a white suit is almost a necessity for many occasions, the difficulty of finding an appropriate model is great. The jacket is admitted with such a variety of designs to choose from.

Box jackets with plaited or circular skirts are very smart just now, and kept quite plain and tailored. A splendid example of this style is depicted in the sketch, and carried out in white serge or gabardine.

The top is made so that it may be fastened with a belt, or the back of the neck or turned back from the throat by leaving a few buttons undone. The buttons are run from the top to the bust line, and fasten through a set-on strap round its end. The upstanding collar is slightly gathered into the neck, and its width corresponds to the back and sides with a point under each end.

The edge of the jacket runs a trifle longer in back than in front, and shows a straight, band-facing; some inches deep, encircling its width. Button-trimmed straps are attached to the bust line from the back, with these ends turned under the lower edge, forming a most attractive trimming. Long sleeves show a deep facing.

and here to the satin. Now take the net, which is light and open, and cover over the satin; sew this round the edges to the satin underneath. The net keeps the form in position and protects the satin.

Hold the edges of the center out a pretty little lace or, if liked, a ribbon of ribbon can be used, or a binding of cream braid. The binding or lace will hide the joining of the satin and net, and give a little finish. These centers look sweet on the tea table, and, of course, any kind of flowers harmonize beautifully with them.

These centers may be used in the tea table and, of course, any kind of flowers harmonize beautifully with them.

WEDDING DRESS IN TAFFETA

Full Skirt Finds Its Chance Here and Ripples Out Double or Triple Bouffant.

At smart weddings the number of taffeta dresses worn is noticeable. Here the full skirt finds its chance, and ripples out sometimes in a single layer, sometimes in a double or even a triple skirt. Once very popular, this black taffeta has a double skirt with the edges trimmed with deep bands of fine tulle. This tucked band holds the double skirt out in a most bouffant manner, and may or may not be edged with a tiny knife pleat or a lace edging.

The tulle, which has been most attractively with a lace, though more fitted than those of other seasons, follows the natural line of the figure rather than the pinched-in waist. It drops a bit below the waist in front.

trace very distinctly the slogan, "Votes for women," in black letters on a white mesh. Loyal suffragettes will perhaps have courage to adopt this emblematic veil with their summertime dresses, but the average woman will be content with an ordinary small veil of the new fashion or tie it with a border in conventional pattern.

White veils are promised great popularity this summer and the sash is a favorite because of its easy adjustment over a Panama or sailor hat. The big square or round sash is often placed in the center, tied with a knot, and the ends are overhanging, and the veil may be slipped over the hat crown without aid of mirror or pins.

OLD HATS NOW MADE NEW

Sunburned Straw Transformed by Oil Color and Benzine to Fresh and Pleasing Appearance.

In the August Woman's Home companion a New York woman tells as follows how to make an old hat into a new one:

"I want to tell you how to transform your old straw hat into a charming and useful one. Take a cap of straw with only a table of benzine and a bottle of benzine. Take a cap of benzine (do not use near a fire) put a little color, mix well and strain through a cloth wet with the benzine. Apply this dye with a broad, flat brush to a sunburned Mill or faded dark straw, and, if it is fresh and not dried out, the color will not fade. If the sun hat is in a shower, faded flowers can be dipped into this dye and be renewed."

UMBRELLA TO COVER ACRE

Amusement Provider Asks He Has Scheme Nothing Short of Stupendous.

Tody Hamilton—the only man who ever lost an elephant in Manhattan and wrote a book about it, and if Tody Hamilton (who once lost two lions and a tiger near Forty-second street and Broadway) says a thing is true, then it's true whether it's true or not—Tody Hamilton says that Luna park is about to raise an umbrella which no living man can hold up alone.

This umbrella will cover an acre of Luna park ground, so it was said by Tody Hamilton—who for years saw to it that a baby giraffe was born annually in Madison Square garden on the night Barnum & Bailey came to town.

First, a steel umbrella is constructed in the ground, and the handle will be 140 feet high, so it was said by Tody Hamilton—who was the first man to reveal the news that Silvers, the clown, was the first man to strike gold in Alaska.

The umbrella will be steel-rebbed, covered with crevices-tent canvas, and will be painted and decorated with chintz, according to a statement issued by Tody Hamilton—when he once crossed broad snakes with puff adders while with the Barnum show and raised thereby a crop of living automobile tires.

Five thousand persons will be able to enjoy the cool shade under the umbrella.

A searchlight with rays shooting for ten miles, an infernal flash beacon, thousands of electric bulbs and things and stuff to taste will decorate the steel and canvas umbrella at night.

Colonel Roosevelt has added that he had just turned down an offer made by Colonel Roosevelt to stock the Luna lagoon with a correspondence school of man-eating fish—New York Sun.

For do but consider what an exciting thing sleep is! It is an instinctive need that, if a tyrant would give his crown for an hour's slumber, he it cannot be bought; so of beautiful a shape is it that, though a man live with an empress, his heart cannot be quiet until he leaves her embrace.

Hold the edges of the center out a pretty little lace or, if liked, a ribbon of ribbon can be used, or a binding of cream braid. The binding or lace will hide the joining of the satin and net, and give a little finish. These centers look sweet on the tea table, and, of course, any kind of flowers harmonize beautifully with them.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or more, or one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen.

"We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castor oil would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these deaths could be prevented by the use of Castor oil. Castor oil, Drops, tinctures and ointments sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they simply retard circulation and lead to convulsions, fits, death, etc. Castor oil, however, is a valuable medicine which does not affect the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allows over.

Castor oil always bears the signature of Castor.

MUSSEL MUD AS FERTILIZER

Organic Remains of Shellfish Secure Fertility to Poor and Most Exhausted Soil.

Conrad Frank Doedemer, writer from Charlotte, P. E. I., Canada:

In most of the bays indenting the shores of Prince Edward Island are found great numbers of dead scallops, mussels, shells, so-called loosely, the organic remains of countless generations of oysters, mussels, clams, and other bivalves of the ocean, and of crustaceous animals generally. The shells, usually more or less intact, are found scattered over the bottom, and the mud beneath and the combination is a fertilizer of high value and potency. It supplies small quantities of phosphates and alkalies. An ordinary dressing of it secures fertility in a striking manner, to the poorest or most exhausted soil. The shells decay slowly, year by year, throwing off a film of mud which leaves the embrace of the sea.

These centers look sweet on the tea table, and, of course, any kind of flowers harmonize beautifully with them.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 12, 1915.

~ RETIRED FARMERS.

A correspondent writes: "Can you find a country town anywhere in the Middle West that does not contain a number of retired farmers? Some towns seem to be half populated by them. Look over those same towns and see how many retired grocers, blacksmiths, plumbers, or even doctors or lawyers you find.

Is there any other trade or profession that produces so large a proportion of men who can retire while they are still in good physical condition, with enough capital to insure them comfortable maintenance for the rest of their days, and a nice nest egg to leave their descendants?"

Certainly there is no other trade or profession that produces so large a number of men who do retire in the agreeable circumstances named. Very likely no other trade or profession produces so large a proportion, although this is simply guessing and there are six million farmers in the United States.

There are nearly two and a half million farms worked by tenants, and in the last census period the number of farms worked by tenants increased twice as fast as the number worked by owners. In a good many cases a farm worked by a tenant means that the owner has retired.

It is true that the farmer usually retires on a cash income that the lawyer, doctor, merchant or banker would consider small; but probably the ambition to retire is stronger among farmers than among followers of most other trades or professions.

The lawyer and the doctor keep on practicing even when they might manage to live without professional income; in the same circumstances the banker and merchant stick to the shop with shorter hours and longer vacations. They don't want to give up the activities in which they are expert. Evidently, as a general sort of rule, they get more pleasure out of their business than the farmer gets out of his.

Farming, when a man is not driven by hard manual toil, should be the pleasantest of businesses. The care of the retired farmer is to make the fact more fully correspond with the idea—Saturday Evening Post.

Don't "Lick the Editor."

One of the amusing things in a newspaper office is the way in which people call to "lick the editor," so to speak, for putting something into the paper which the callers do not like. Instead of being thankful that some of their misdeeds, mean ways, queer looks and private affairs are not given long and detailed write-ups, they come in to say that "I want my name left out of the paper." In this country a newspaper can publish anything true and the public can like the idea or not. So if you live in a community where the editor has the breeding and courtesy to never publish news of scandal, family disgrace, business dishonesty or anything low, of which there is always plenty

SOWING THE GRAIN OF POVERTY

Rye a Soil Builder and a Money-Maker.

"Sowing the 'grain of poverty' on the old farm will pay this young man of the country better than sowing wild oats," truly remarks an experienced farmer to a group of his neighbors last week. "I sowed some 'wild oats' many years ago and the harvest was not to my liking. The reapers, my debtors, took away all, leaving only a few rods of stubble. The next year I sowed rye and the yield was so large a crop, especially wheat, on this farm as I would like. Casting about for a suitable crop I struck rye, as it readily takes the place of wheat in the rotation and will yield a fair crop most anywhere. The rye is sown in the fall, worn and sandy land is suited to it, and its financial condition so often of them nickname my rye, which was about the only crop I could grow then, 'the grain of poverty.'"

"As the man evidenced signs of adopting his story a friendly crook urged him on by asking: 'Well, Silas, as I understand you are a poor man, so as you once sowed, why do you keep on growing this 'grain of poverty'?' To which Silas continued as follows:

"Well, rye will grow most any place while wheat demands a good seed bed and is rather choice in its habitat. Rye grows and thrives in the poorest soil, and that is the 'grain of poverty' about which you ask. I sowed rye in this land because it is not so easily injured by drought or the Hessian fly as wheat. While I started growing rye on mighty thin land I have found out that I can get bigger yields on good fertile soils and that rye responds to plenty of fertilizer just the same as wheat. I have used up to 50 pounds of a good-grade complete wheat fertilizer on an acre of rye. I apply it through the grain drill just as I do for wheat."

"When my land was very thin, I sowed rye in my corn at the last cultivation, pasture it in the fall and turn it in the spring. This is a good way to start my work and to put seed and brains into it. I began keeping more and better live stock, and reinforced the manure, with suitable fertilizer until the yield of rye has gone up from eight bushels per acre to 85 bushels last year."

"You know the rye has changed since it has been improved by the addition of new porches, chimneys, weatherboarding, windows and a coating of paint. So you see rye is partly responsible at least for my rebuilt farm. My farm has made me quite a pile of money to say why I attack the 'grain of poverty.'"

Laughter Analyzed.

Laughter is a sign of high development. The nearer one is to the animal, the less one laughs. The more highly developed we become, the more do we perceive humor. For example, a man remembers a sign that an emotion has suddenly been set free. It is like a touch on the trigger of a gun, the gun being self-restraining.

Reward or Punishment?

As a general thing when we talk to a man who uses a lot of Latin we crave to give him a Roman "punch." Palms News.

SUBSTITUTE FOR ICE BOX

Food May Be Kept Cool in Contrivance Which is Not at All Hard to Put Together.

A box fitted up to hold food helps to solve the problem of keeping food during the hot months. If the cover is removed and the bottom taken out, the remaining frame fitted with a shelf or two, and then stood in a tub of water, the water will suffice to which the breeze has an effect. It proves a good cooler. But its construction is not complete until it is covered with strips of heavy cloth, such as burlap, sackcloth, or flannel. These are fastened on top of the box and hang down over the edges, completely covering the water. A top of this cloth is placed a dish of water, with narrow strips of material laid in it and hanging over on the cloth covering of the box. The water goes through these and keeps the cloth covering wet, it having been given a good wetting. The air reaching this causes evaporation, thus greatly reducing the temperature of the atmosphere. When this is very dry, the evaporation will be much more rapid, and the cold will be increased correspondingly.

WHEN JELLY WILL NOT JELL

Putting Material Back into Saucepans
Only Service to Make a Bad
Matter Worse.

When jelly will not jell, and that happens sometimes, do not turn it back into a saucenpan to cool over. That breaks the little gelatinous globules and the jelly will not set again, though enough to make Jell, and you will have at best a sticky, stringy mess. Instead, take a large dripping pan, half fill it with water, set the undisturbed saucenpan of jelly in it, not close enough to touch, put into a hot oven and allow to stand until the jelly is jelled. It sometimes takes three-quarters of an hour, but the jelly will cut as smooth and clear as though it had been prepared at first cooking. A pinch of powdered alum will help the jelling process. Now is the time when the far-seeing housewife, while doing her preserving, puts up plenty little jars of jam and jelly for future use. Use for Christmas gifts. For a few cents little fancy glasses, jars, mugs or tiny pitchers may be had, which, filled with homemade jam and accompanied by a Christmas greeting, will prove very acceptable gifts. Small cold cream jars and like, if well made, may make excellent containers for jelly.

How to Repack Ice Cream.

When the cream is frozen, take off the cover, remove the lid and dasher, pack the ice cream neatly in the bottom of the can, replace the lid, close the hub with a cork. Dip the tub with salt and ice, pushing them down to the bottom of the tub until the tub is filled to its top and covering the can; then put over the freezer a piece of carpet or blanket, to exclude air, and stand in a cold place for one or two hours. If ice and hard water are used, the salt and ingredient is taken separately, but after standing one or two hours they blend and form a pleasant white. This is called repacking.

Hollandaise Sauce.

Cold or hot asparagus can be served with Hollandaise sauce and indeed many loves this saucy vegetable consider this sauce its best accompaniment. To make it, beat a half a cupful of butter to a cream and then add the yolks of four eggs, beating again. Next add one tablespoonful of boiling water and then a tablespoonful of lemon juice or vinegar and salt and pepper to taste. Beat not for five minutes with a beater or stir the cool in a double boiler, stirring all the time until thick. Serve cold.

Rechaffa's Best.

Brown two (tablespoonfuls) butter, add two (tablespoonfuls) flour, brown thoroughly. Add two (tablespoonfuls) of cold, well-chilled currant jelly. When the sauce begins to thicken add one-fourth teaspoonful paprika, a few drops of onion juice, one (tablespoonful) cayenne and thin slices of rare roast beef. Stir carefully till meat is heated. Add a tablespoonful of sherry added just before serving improves it.

Cleaning Fine Fabrics.

Delicate fabrics like crepe, moire or crepe de chine generally require professional skill to clean properly. However, the homemaker can remove stains herself if she acts properly by placing the stain in a small amount of hot water, then adding a few drops of ammonia.

The fabric can then be pressed with clean white blotters or brown paper, with a warm iron.

Pineapple Ade.

Cut slices of very ripe pineapple into small pieces. Put these with a little water in a large pitcher and sprinkle them well with sugar. Pour on boiling water, allowing a small half pint to each pineapple. Cover and let stand until quite cool, occasionally pressing down the pineapple with a spoon. Strain the infusion and serve in tumblers with ice.

Banana Conserve.

Take a banana and either slice it or split it and then put some of the conserve on it and a little sweet cream or top milk if you have it. It's simply great.
