VOLUME 31, NUMBER 38

BARRINGTON, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1915

$1.50 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

WILLIAM RYAN DIED WEDNESDAY MORNING

Had Been in a Chicago Hospital About Four Months Following Breakdown After a Stroke of Paralysis.

MRS. RYAN DIED THIS SPRING

Mr. Ryan Was a Native of Montreal, Canada—Not Much is Known of His Early Life—Familiar Saturday.

William Ryan of Barrington, step father of Mrs. Robert O'Brien, died at the hospital at Danmington on Wednesday morning at 1:50 o'clock. He had been confined in the hospital about four months and was mentally irresponsible for most of that time, following the death caused by a paralytic stroke several years ago and the further stroke he received in the death of his wife last spring. His daughter, Mrs. O'Brien, and a niece, Genevieve Dolan of Irving Park were with him when he died.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at ten o'clock at St. Ann's Catholic church of which he was a member. William James Ryan was born in Montreal, Canada, July 18, 1852. Very little is known of his early days but he became a man a structural iron worker and was married in Chicago to a wife who died many years ago. In July, 1881, he married Mrs. Ellen Taylor of Gary. They lived in Gary until 1893, when they moved to Barrington where they have occupied several houses on the Cook county side. Mrs. Ryan died this spring. It is known that there were two brothers and two sisters who are thought to be living in Canada. A stepson, Arthur Taylor, lives in Stoneboro, Pennsylvania, and will be here for the funeral, a stepdaughter, Mrs. Gus Niemeyer lives in East-Orange, New Jersey.

Mr. Ryan had charge of the building of bridges for the Chicago and North Western railway for many years and traveled over many states in his work; he also worked upon the structural iron work of many of the large Chicago buildings. He has been unable to work for several years.

Cattle Situation About the Same.—Up to a few days ago the record of animals killed in the epidemic of foot and mouth disease against cattle in Lake county and northeastern Cook is 1330. Two herds were found infected Tuesday but the situation remains about the same as last week. Mrs. Scott Durand's infected herd and all residents of her farm held in strict quarantine by deputy sheriffs.

Dr. O. E. Dyon, state veterinarian, believes that the disease is spread by crows, pigeons, cats, dogs and various birds flying about the infected herds. Men are urged to kill crows and pigeons and keep dogs at home. Mrs. Durand's herd is one of five herds of cows in the state which have been found free from tuberculosis by the approved test.

Several cases of foot and mouth disease have been reported between Elgin and Schaumburg, but the cattle are now disposed of; one farmer had a sick herd for two weeks and was finally reported to authorities by a neighbor. Around Libertyville infected country all farmers are now working with the inspectors in every way to help control the epidemic.

Bowman Milk Prices Announced.

The Bowman Dairy company opened their contract books Saturday and announced the prices they will pay for next six months which are as follows:

October.....	$1.80
November.....	1.90
December.....	1.90
January.....	1.85
February.....	1.75
March.....	1.65

The above prices apply to milk testing 2.6 per cent. For every cent over one per cent above 2.6 and additional one cent per 100 pounds are added, but for each one tenth of one per cent below 2.6 three cents per 100 pounds are deducted from the above schedule. The 10 cents per 100 pounds for premium on barn score has been discontinued.

This price is some lower than that paid last winter but the Milk Producers' association has made no fight and to date over of patrons at the local factory have affixed their signatures to contracts.

VICKERY DOGS AGAIN TAKE PRIZES

Walter K. Reeves Enters Ring for First Time and Each Dog Exhibited Won First Prizes.

Twelve dogs from the Vickery kennels were entered at the Irving Park open air dog show on the ball grounds last Friday. Walter Reeves, manager of the kennels, exhibited them and every dog he took into the ring won first prize. Mr. Reeves has been judge of shows for the past 10 years and the Irving Park show was the first one in which he had entered the ring in that time.

Dogs which took special prizes (best franchise in their class) were: Vickery Ledge, Albrecht terrier; Miss Vickery Switchboard, wire haired fox terrier; Master Key, Irish terrier and Keppach Dugald, Scottish terrier belonging to Miss Jean Crawford.

The Vickery dogs also won first for best team and best breed. At the Bismark Gardens, Chicago, show on Saturday eight Vickery dogs took first and those also taking specials were: Switchboard, Ledge and Vickery Bristles; the latter won first for his best American bred wire fox terrier in both shows.

The Vickery kennels are known much more widely than local people realize. Visitors from various countries, traveling through Chicago, have called at the kennels, even people from Australia.

Country Life Association Meets.—The meeting last Friday afternoon of the Women's Country Life association was a very interesting one in many respects. Nearly 100 ladies gathered at the Salem church, about half of them being regular members and the others visitors for the day.

The association has 85 members and is growing each meeting. All women are welcomed into membership and many more will no doubt join as they take to appreciate the benefits of belonging to this new sort of a club, wherein the study of home and its work is the main object.

On Friday after a short business session and vocal music offered by Mrs. Verdie Havel and Mrs. John Caldwell, the same members, their homes and customs were told of by Mrs. T. L. C. Smith, who is an authority on Chinese ways of living, for she lived among the Orientals for a long period of years and has just left them.

The table of the wall of the church audience room were hung with samples of the handwork of women of the race and two tables of curios were displayed. It is needless to say that Mrs. Smith's talk, given in an extemporaneous way, had instructive facts; many well thought out and interesting information about a great variety of Chinese affairs.

Plans for future programs of the association will be announced soon.

Christianity and the Modern Man.

A great course of lectures on this important theme, free to the public, will be given by the Rev. Francis L. Patton, D. D., LL. D., Co-president of Princeton, at 10 o'clock on the afternoon of Monday to Friday (September 27-October 1, inclusive) in Central Music Hall, 14 East Van Buren street, near Michigan Boulevard.

These lectures, to whose preparation a great deal of time was given, were delivered before Princeton university last spring and are scheduled for several of the larger cities of the country this autumn.

The arrangements are in charge of the Moody Bible Institute, but the invitation to Dr. Patton was extended not only in the name of Dean James M. Gray, but by representatives of the different industrial associations and theological seminaries in Chicago and Evanston, including the Revs. W. E. Shirley, Ralph H. Adams, J. O. Dwyer, Bernard H. Throcky, Roy D. Bower and J. M. Wilson and Drs. O. S. Davis, Charles M. Stuart, James G. McClellan, R. E. Simonsen, C. G. Walbridge, Elmer F. Krause, William C. Deane and John Marston Deane.

As the capacity of the hall is limited, admission will be by ticket obtainable without charge on application by mail or otherwise, to the business offices of the Moody Bible Institute, 153 Institute Place.

Wells, treasurer and Mrs. Frank Gleske, corresponding secretary. The president appoints a vice-president to each of the church denominations in the town. CHURCH MOVIES POORLY ATTENDED

Two Nights of Pictures at the Baptist Church Proved a Poor Drawing Card—Pictures Were Interesting.

Motion pictures of scenes and people in Japan and China shown at the Baptist church last Thursday and Friday nights were excellent, very interesting and next best to a trip through these countries. For some reason the attendance both evenings was very small, even many of the members of the Baptist congregation were not present; the reason is not really understood; perhaps the twenty-five cents asked for adult admission was the cause, perhaps prejudice against the use of a church for a "movie."

However no criticism can justly be made against the good instruction in the views. These same pictures have been shown in churches in other towns as well as public halls and it was unusual that a town the size of Barrington could procure their display here. Prof. Whitney who explained the scenes came directly here from Louisville, Kentucky, where he had shown the pictures before thousands of people for several weeks in the army there. The Field museum of Chicago sent Dr. George Dorsey of Chicago university to these two countries to get pictures of the strange people before they become like American people in their ideas, dress and ways, as they are in great numbers. It was a vast expensive trip, the group of men with Dr. Dorsey was paid for its work, but in this village the trip and the chance to see the pictures were not appreciated. Dr. Dorsey is a leading authority in anthropology, or the study of man in all he has done and been, especially in pre-historic times.

Prof. Whitney did not especially please anyone, for he had a strange manner of speaking. The door receipts were so small that the church made little money.

BY GLETT BURGESS

SYNOPSIS.

Hall Bonistella, a photographer, prepares for the day's work in his studio. Flo, his wife, reminds him of a party he is to give in the studio that night. She is a financial expert. Mr. Bonistella has had him $40,000 on condition that he marry her before his twenty-fifth birthday. When he begins at midnight that night, Mrs. Bonistella calls at the studio. Hall asks her to marry him. She agrees to give him an answer at the party that night. Mrs. Bonistella calls at Hall's studio to see him. She is a financial expert. Hall asks her to marry him. She agrees to give him an answer at the party that night. Mrs. Bonistella calls at Hall's studio to see him. She is a financial expert. Hall asks her to marry him. She agrees to give him an answer at the party that night.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

Flo stared at him, fascinated, as a bird by a snake. Try as she could, it was impossible to deny his accusation.

"Hold on a minute, now!" He shook his finger impressively. "I'd give a good deal if I was satisfied he wouldn't be married before midnight."

Flo could stare no longer. It was useless to attempt to hide her feelings from this man. Her heart was burning. "Oh, so would I, if I had the money!" she cried, wretched.

Jonas leaned back, with a smile of victory on his face. "Well, I guess I got to the woman's 'at last'," he gloated. "All women are just alike, when you come right down to it. One man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found—that is, different. But that's neither here nor there. I expected you was sweet on Hall; your face gave you dead away. Well, then, miss," he brought it out deliberately, "seems to me our interests ought to be identical."

"What do you mean?" Something in Flo's subconsciousness was awakened.

"You, being a woman, don't want him to marry anybody else. Well, neither do I." He watched her closely, heartily.

"I see," said Flo, frigidly, "because you'd lose a fortune."

"Oh, it ain't the money, miss, don't you misinterpret my motives. I don't want a cent of it for myself. It's for me to do with. See here; if Hall gets that money, he's bound to throw it away on all sorts of foolishness. If he marries tonight, some shoe-peddler, extravagant woman, will have the spend of it." He watched the shatter strike Flo, and went on. "Whereas, if I inherit it—why, I get my play all laid out already. He leaned forward earnestly. "Why, do you know, miss, they're beaten in the tropics what don't know what to do with it, let alone the Bible. They tell me they ain't a toothbrush nor a pair of corsets in all Polynesia. And all of them miserable buggers got to be damned overboard. Then he thought to do. She flew back to the printing room, and went to work on the negatives. They must all be finished before the ladies arrive. Flo looked up. Who was that in the office? Flo went in and found that the ladies had a big bunch of evergreen garlands. He pulled off his hat and grinned.

"Well, Flo, said, with a pathetic look in her face, 'I don't see what we can do about it. He's made up his mind to marry tonight, and he's already proposed to three women.' Jonas whistled long and low. "Looks like we got to get to work in a hurry, don't it? See here, miss; he spoke slowly and emphatically. 'You can do it. Why, women is born for tricks like this. What's that Jeremiah says? 'A woman shall compass a man.' That's right, too. You'll find a way and depend on me to help all I can. What'd you say?'

Flo's mind had already jumped to the task. Why not try to save Hall? But the excuse she gave herself. To be dishonest to him was unthinkable, but to prevent a lifelong unhappiness due to his marrying any one of the three women had been proposed to—ah, that was another thing. What if she could accomplish it, and get the best of this scheming hypocrite into the bargain? There was a magnificent chance for a woman's strategy! Suddenly she thought came, beautiful, complete. She jumped up excitedly. "I know!" she cried.

"What? Got an idea already?" Jonas grinned.

"Yes! I'll tell you. I'm going to get those three women together in this room—and then I'll just let nature take its course! If something doesn't happen, then I don't know anything about women."

Jonas chuckled, delighted. "Well, that will be a picnic, won't it? Huh! I'd like to see the fun!"

"Eleven o'clock, Lord, I generally sit to bed by ten."

"You won't tonight, then. Better drink some coffee if you're asleep. And I guess it'll be worth sitting up for. Good afternoon, Mr. Hastingbury!" Flo did not offer to shake hands.

Jonas gazed at her in ever-growing admiration. "Say, miss, he ventured, 'I ain't often I get lonely over a woman. I don't think 'em enough. But I've took considerable fancy to you, somehow. You got a good head on your shoulders, you have!'

"Well, it's likely to stay there, I'm afraid. At any rate, I'll never be on yours, Mr. Hastingbury!"

With white Flo went, without honoring him with another glance, into the stockroom, leaving him to take his departure alone.

CHAPTER VII.

After Jonas Hastingbury had left, Flo went to the telephone and called Mr. Bonistella.

"Mrs. Bonistella? Yes, this is Miss Fisher—at her pictures. You know I'm about your pictures. You could drop in this afternoon and see some prints! Oh, yes, lovely, I think. About three o'clock, if you will. Good-by!"

Next she called up Miss Dalry, and said nearly the same thing; both ladies agreed to call. But how about the party?

It was hard to Ketch You Alone, You Know.

Rosamund? She wandered from studio to studio. Well, Flo must risk it. Perhaps she could be found later. Meanwhile she had much to do. She flew back to the printing room, and went to work on the negatives. They must all be finished before the ladies arrive. Flo looked up. Who was that in the office? Flo went in and found that the ladies had a big bunch of evergreen garlands. He pulled off his hat and grinned.

"Well, Flo, said, with a pathetic look in her face, 'I don't see what we can do about it. He's made up his mind to marry tonight, and he's already proposed to three women.' Jonas chuckled, delighted. "Well, that will be a picnic, won't it? Huh! I'd like to see the fun!"

"No," said Flo, "you'll have to leave. I've got to go to the party tonight. I'm going to get those three women together in this room—and then I'll just let nature take its course! If something doesn't happen, then I don't know anything about women."

Jonas chuckled, delighted. "Well, that will be a picnic, won't it? Huh! I'd like to see the fun!"

"No," said Flo, "you'll have to leave. I've got to go to the party tonight. I'm going to get those three women together in this room—and then I'll just let nature take its course! If something doesn't happen, then I don't know anything about women."

Jonas chuckled, delighted. "Well, that will be a picnic, won't it? Huh! I'd like to see the fun!"

apathetically. "Of course I'm nothing but a janitor—now—but Miss Fisher, if I only had you I'd show 'em. And—say, don't go yet, please, Miss Fisher—wait till I get rid of it for once and for all—I'll do me good—you wouldn't ever have the likes of me, I know—that ain't all of it—it's only I want to do something for you, just to prove how I feel. If I could only help you some way!—don't you understand how it is, Miss Fisher? Won't you give me a try sometime? That's all I want now!"

Flo, leaning against the table, watched him with tears in her eyes. He, Flo, understood! How shall she know? She could no longer laugh at him. Kindly she stretched forth her hand; and the janitor who, in all his life had never known gallantry, reached for it, and kissed it as naturally as might a courtier. He touched Flo's little hand as if it were a holy relic; and on it there fell a soft rain of tears.

Flo, bit her lip; she slowly shook her head. "I'm awfully sorry, Alfred; really, but I don't see what I can do."

Goodness in a Dungeon

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Assistant to the Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—He was there in the prison. But the Lord was with Joseph—Gen. 39:20, 21.

Joseph's prison was made gloomy by physical discomfort; by the mysterious of his sufferings.

ing, although an innocent man; and by the fact that, after his kindness to the chief butler the latter forgot him.

light in the prison and that in several directions. Prisoners of the Lord. To begin with, the text tells us that "the Lord was with Joseph."

As we express it sometimes in singing one of our hymns:

Prisoners would palaces prove If Jesus would dwell with me there. Paul was enabled to write the epistle to the Philippians with his key-word, "Joyful."

"Joyful," from the Roman prison John Bunyan in his "den" at Bedford saw, Immanuel's hand and the Delectable mountains. Madam Guyon said the Lord had shut her out of prison like a bird, with nothing to do but sing.

Again, the Lord gave Joseph favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison (Gen. 39:21). The hearts of kings are in the hand of God and his afflicted people may be certain that God is not at a loss when he wishes to relieve them. Stories more fascinating than fiction could be written from the lives of Christians who have been given favor in the sight of the great ones of earth.

The Lord kept Joseph unselfish. Most of us would have felt justified in nursing our troubles, but this man had "a heart at leisure" from his task, to soothe and sympathize. One morning, Joseph noticed that his fellow prisoner, the butler and baker, looked sad. He immediately inquired the cause and proceeded to help them to the best of his ability. After all, the best way to bear one's burdens is to help bear the burden of others. Since, over, although Joseph little realized it, his interest in these prisoners marked a crisis in his life; as a result it he finally came to the land of Egypt, but he was ready for the crisis only because he was daily caring for the interests of others. How little we know of the crises that every day will bring forth, and how we need to walk humbly so as to please God if we are to meet these crises adequately!

It is evident that the Lord preserved the faith of Joseph. We recall his own dreams when in his father's house, and the assurance they gave him that he would come to a place of elevation over his father and brethren; but here he was in the dungeon and he would have seemed justified in his loss of faith in dreams. Yet that this was not the case is evident from his interpretation of the dreams of the butler and baker, and his confidence that God would save them to pass. Psalm 105:19 (R. V.) tells us that "until the time that his word came to pass, the word of the Lord proved him."

The Lord kept Joseph unrelenting. When speaking with the chief butler he said, "I have done nothing that they should put me in the dungeon" (Gen. 40:15). Not a word does he utter concerning that wicked woman, Potiphar's wife, who had designed his ruin. How slow are our Christians are to learn that they need do no unkind thing in order to fulfill the plans of God! "He shall bring forth thy righteousnesses" as the light and thy judgment as the noonday."

Helping in God. Altogether, God was training Joseph to hope in himself alone and to obey him in any event. Doubtless his hope of deliverance was high when the chief butler left the prison, yet two long years passed before deliverance came. By the grace of God, Joseph was kept from growing rebellious, but perished in the way of duty. When God finds a man who will plod on, enlightening to do his will under all circumstances, he will quickly set him in a large place and put a scepter in his hand. Joseph was in training for the throne, and so are all true followers of Christ.

What a misfortune if the chief butler had remembered Joseph according to his promise! Joseph might have been delivered from the prison and sent away a free man out of the land, but scarcely more than this. How his discourages us to trust and not to be afraid!

The Christian's Easy Chair. An aged Christian woman living in deep poverty was asked how she bore her troubles. She said that they bore her especially bitter she sat in her easy chair and rocked them away. The visitor looked at this with wonder, but she saw no trace of it, until finally the happy saint explained that it was Romans 8:28! "All things work together for good to them that love God."

High Collars. High, unyielding collars destroy the round softness of the throat. Shun them. Every night massage the neck with a good skin food.

DEFECTIVES AND OTHER DEFECTIVES.

Psychologists, doctors, judges and other learned men of distinction have long agitated and cogitated over the perplexing question of "what to do with our defectives."

A defective, according to Webster, is a person who is of vicious or criminal inclination, but without moral responsibility, and this is the class to whom our men and women of brains have been devoting their attention for so many years.

But isn't there another class of defective—a detective who is morally responsible?

What of the man who beats his wife?

What of the man who seriously misuses his horse, or the one who in a rage aims a vicious kick at the dog or the cat?

What of the man who makes stirring remarks of respectable women and girls?

What of the man who slanders, and lies, and secretly undermines your business, and seeks to destroy your reputation among your fellow men?

What of the man who is surly, and quarrelsome, and strikes and shouts without provocation?

What of the merchant who cheats and gives short weight, and sells goods that are not as represented?

What of the doctor who "drugs" a case that he may extract a larger fee from one in distress?

What of the public official who prescribes his office to his personal gain?

What of the preacher who is sympathetic with the rich and sees not the poor?

What of the automobile driver who runs over dogs and chickens, and even children, through recklessness and a disregard for the rights of others?

What of the gossip whose tongue is coated with the poison of scandal, and lies, and insinuations, and tale bearing, and general all round devilishness?

What of the thousand and one others whose intellects are unimpaired, who know right from wrong, who realize the advantages of treading the path of honor—and yet, knowing these, drift with the tide of indifference and eventually float out upon the sea of damnation?

Are they not defectives?

Are they not quite as much to be dreaded, and should they not be curbed as quickly as the one whose mind is unimpaired and whose acts are but those of a disordered brain?

Are they defectives, or what?

Please give us your views when they are "fresh" give them to us in the week in which they happen. Our newspaper week runs from Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to the next Thursday at the same hour. We do not care to publish news of things which happened before our latest issue. On Thursday noon we begin to gather news for the coming week; any occurrence before that time becomes "dead" to us.

Wednesday afternoon and evening news does not reach us in time most morning to be put in the paper, why we do not care to publish "write-ups" of these occurrences eight days later.

We publish a "weekly" not a "monthly." We want all the news people will be kind enough to send, but we want it right after it happens, not in two or three days, or even later for the current week. So many give us items on Thursday in the last hour when we close our week, items which took place days before. We cannot receive much news on Thursday morning.

SOME COOKERY HINTS: IS "MAGIC" TO THEM

IDEAS THAT MAY BE OF VALUE TO THE HOUSEWIFE.

Everything Russian Cannot Understand Is "Black Art."

Soldiers of the Czar Are Steeped in Superstition—Distrust Officers They See Using One of the General Staff Charts.

By HUGO BETTAUER. (International News Service.)

Reichenberg, Bohemia.—With an officer of the Austrian ambulance service I visited the prison camp that has been established near here. The camp is really a large city of wooden barracks with electric lights, paved streets, sidewalks, waterworks, public baths and a small library. Surrounded on all sides by green hills the barracks and other buildings cover the beautiful valley for miles.

In this primitive town more than forty thousand Russian soldiers are waiting for the time when the war will end and they shall be sent home. Each day the population of the camp grows, as long railroad trains constantly bring more prisoners, and new barracks have to be built. Every race of the czar's endless empire is represented.

The prisoners are a queer lot, and furnish unlimited opportunity for ethnological studies. As they speak a dozen different languages and many do not understand Russian, they have formed clubs which keep entirely to themselves.

The red Russians, for instance, will have nothing to do with the Germans, and the German from Courland of Livland considers it below his dignity to associate with a "mull" from the plains of the Volga.

As a rule, the different clubs go along pretty well together, and quarrels and fights seldom occur. The small detachment of Russian troops which guards the camp, really has little to do.

For visitors the prisoners have little use, and it is hard to get them to talk. "All strangers are 'nemtis' (Germans) to them, and only the more educated have heard of the 'austris' (Austrians)."

The Germans they consider the incarnation of all evil, and they firmly believe that every "nemtis" is the servant and agent of the devil. Their general ignorance is only surprised by their superstition.

While we walked through the camp we came upon an old Russian first sergeant, who gravely was trying to explain the cause of the war to about fifty of the prisoners.

"The short-jackets brought on this bloody conflict," he said. "The war came as the world is sinful and immoral. God hates the short-jackets; they are indecent. The French, English and Serbians are no better than the 'nemtis'. They also wear the short-jackets and offend the Lord by their frivolity."

Most of the listeners nodded approvingly, and only one, a rather intelligent-looking young fellow, dared to contradict the "argument" of the old man.

"I believe that a man can be moral even in a short jacket," the young fellow said, but he stepped quickly when he saw that nobody shared his tolerant views.

For the defense of the Russian army the prisoners blame the "black art" of the German generals. They are firmly convinced that Hindenburg and Mackensen have sold their souls to the devil. Hindenburg they all know, and they consider him the representative of Satan on earth.

Military maps, in their eyes, are the work of hell, and they distrust their own officers if they see one of them with a general staff chart.

A general who does not hide the fact that he uses maps and plans is held in contempt and popularity, and is hated as an imitator of the Germans and an infidel. Seventy per cent of the soldiers of the czar are in the maps nothing but "German swindlers" and "black art."

Still more superstitious than their comrades are the Cossacks. To them everything that they cannot understand is "magic." Next to the Germans the Cossacks hate nothing more than the real Russians. They call murderers, crooks, oppressors, etc., and he will not even talk to them.

Most of the prisoners are good-natured and behave well. They willingly obey all orders of the guards and work without a murmur from morning till night. If they are commanded to do so. Their appetite is enormous. They are always hungry and devour incredible quantities of food. As to quality, they do not care, and they are perfectly contented with a kettle of soup, a piece of bacon or fat mutton and a couple of dozen potatoes.

One of the breakers of the prisoner, and of the Russian soldiers in general, is their distrust for the property of others. To express it more plainly, they steal whatever they can lay their hands on, like all primitive races. Even high officers are not free from this trait.

Barnesville, Ga.—G. C. Hayes of this place has on his premises a mockingbird that would doubtless be highly prized in the British trenches. In watching the hours away Mr. Hayes has frequently wondered "Tipperary" and his telephone, and now as the mockingbird waxes its lady love its song is interspersed with occasional sings of "Tipperary" clear enough to be understood.

He Sings "Tipperary."

Barnesville, Ga.—G. C. Hayes of this place has on his premises a mockingbird that would doubtless be highly prized in the British trenches. In watching the hours away Mr. Hayes has frequently wondered "Tipperary" and his telephone, and now as the mockingbird waxes its lady love its song is interspersed with occasional sings of "Tipperary" clear enough to be understood.

The Next Best Thing to the Pine Forest for Colds is—

Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey which goes to the very roots of cold troubles. It clears the throat and gives relief from colds, coughs and sore throats. The pine has ever been the friend of man in driving away colds. Moreover, the pine-honey qualities are particularly effective in fighting children's colds. Remember that a cold broken at the start grows rather than the possibility of complications. 25c.

Elbert Hubbard's Creed.

"I believe that no one can harm us but ourselves, that sin is misdirected energy, that there is no devil but fear, and that the universe is planned for good. I believe that work is a blessing, that winter is as necessary as summer, that night is as useful as day, that death is a manifestation of life, and last of all, I believe in you and I believe in a Power that is in ourselves that makes for our righteousness."

Retain Jewel of Friendship.

If we have had the good fortune to win the esteem of a friend, let us do anything rather than lose him. We must give and forgive, live and let live. If our friends have faults, we must bear with them. We must hope all

U. S. HITS SEA POLICY BRITISH SEIZE MEAT

WILSON AND LANSING COMPLETE NOTE TO ENGLAND.

Call Ship Seizures, Illegal and Unfriendly—denounced as Unjustified by World Law.

Washington, Sept. 20.—President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing conferred at length on Friday on the completely new of this government to Great Britain and on the phases of the controversy with Germany over the sinking of the Arabik. The points of view of the two officials have been put into a preliminary form, and are:

That as the United States has repeatedly denied and specifically every one of the justifications set up by Sir Edward Grey, the British minister for foreign affairs, and Lord Cromer, his assistant, this government cannot fail to regard the persistent oppression of American commerce as unfriendly.

That Great Britain acted illegally when she took steps of seizure and detention out of the domain of diplomacy and made them merely matters for the British prize courts.

That the argument by Great Britain for such action is indefensible, because it is based on the order in council, which is itself an illegal policy.

That the establishment of a blockade under the order in council which pretends to include neutral ports, is not justified by international law on the mere ground of the next port of call.

That the United States has heretofore given Great Britain notice that it would not tolerate acts such as in the prize courts, which were based on the illegal withdrawal of questions of seizure and detention from the category of diplomatic questions. The United States has in fact filed its protest, putting Great Britain on notice.

It is stated that there is in the note no suggestion of the ultimatum of a retaliatory answer from the United States within any specified time.

STEFANSSON, EXPLORER, SAFE

Discover New Land Southwest of St. Patrick Island—Was on Ice for Several Months.

Nome, Alaska, Sept. 20.—The power schooner Ruby arrived from Hornscho Island, on the Arctic coast west of the mouth of the Mackenzie river, with news that Vilhelm Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, who with two companions, Storck, Storkerson and De Anderson, set out from Martin Point, Alaska, March 22, 1914, over the frozen Arctic ocean to the north, supposed new lands in the Beaufort sea, is not only alive and well, but has accomplished every purpose for which the hazardous journey was undertaken.

Capt. S. F. Cottle, master of the Ruby, says that Stefansson is on Banks Land, east of the Mackenzie, questioning the continuance of the explorations to the westward to ascertain the full extent of the new land he discovered southwest of St. Patrick Island.

FOUR CARGOES, WORTH MILLIONS OF DOLLARS, CONDEMNED.

Products Owned by American Packers Are Declared Forfeited to the Crown by Tribunal.

London, Sept. 18.—Chicago packers were defeated in the British prize court when that tribunal handed down a decision on Thursday confiscating to the crown large American cargoes taken from merchantmen. The prize court held that these cargoes were ultimately destined for Germany, to be used by that country for her army and navy. The firms whose cargoes were overruled by the court were Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Nelson Morris & Co., and the Schwartzschild-Solberg company.

At the conclusion of its decision the court granted leave to appeal, provided $25,000 security was posted as no security for the costs of further proceedings.

The judgment was delivered by Sir Samuel T. Evans, president of the court. It involves the cargoes of the Norwegian steamships Kim, Alfred Nobel, Bjornstjerne-Bjornson and Fridland.

All the goods on these vessels, consisting principally of American meat products, are confiscated, with the exception of a small portion which the court related to claimants.

The meat cargoes, shipped for the most part by the great American packing companies and valued by them at $15,000,000, were found by the president to be destined, except for some small items, not for consumption in Denmark, but for delivery in Germany.

DUMBA PROTESTS HIS RECALL

Austrian Ambassador In Letter to Lansing Says Action Is Unjust—Sought to Aid His People.

New York, Sept. 21.—Doctor Dumba, Austro-Hungarian ambassador, has addressed to Secretary of State Lansing a letter protesting the request for his recall as unjust.

The letter is devoted mainly to a defense of the ambassador's plan to find other work for the nationals of his government employed in American munition plants.

Except to say that he takes exception to Mr. Lansing's charge that he confessed to having conspired to bring about the seizure of American munition works, the ambassador makes no reference to the intercepted letter to the Austro-Hungarian minister for foreign affairs, upon which the request for his recall was based.

DELAY ACTION ON MEXICO

Mediators Agree Some Faction Must Be Recognized—Appointments Must Prove Capabilities.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Pan-American conference on Mexican affairs announced at the conclusion of its meeting here on Saturday that each of the diplomatic representatives will recommend to their government that in their judgment the time has now come to extend recognition to a government in Mexico.

The faction to be recognized was not named. They decided that the de facto government aspiring to recognition must possess "the material and moral capacity necessary to protect the lives of nationals and foreigners."

Germans Use Huge Guns Against Capital—Roumanians Anxious to Enter War—Three Balken States Prepared to Fight.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Mobilization of all military forces in Bulgaria, for the purpose of armed neutrality, has been ordered by the Bulgarian government. Official announcement of this order was communicated on Tuesday by his government to Mr. Panaretov, Bulgaria's minister. One hundred thousand Bulgarian reservists in the United States have been notified of the order through consuls and will join the colors immediately.

London, Sept. 23.—Austrian and German artillery shelled at various points for 100 miles along the Serbian frontier, between the mouths of the Drina and Morava rivers, on Monday, September 22, and other Serbian positions south of the Danube. Large forces of German infantry are ready for an order to drive through Serbia.

While this preliminary fighting was in progress, Bulgaria, Roumania and Greece seemed to be taking steps that inevitably would lead them into the war.

An Overseas agency dispatch from Berlin announces it is reported that the Serbian government has declared the Serbo-Bulgarian frontier district a war zone, and that Bulgarian troops are concentrated near the Serbian frontier.

If Bulgaria enters the war on the side of the Germans it is reported Roumania and Greece would declare war on her in a few hours. Reports from Rome are that all three Balkan nations will be in the war before now.

The Roumanian capital is wildly excited over rumors that large bodies of German troops were transported through Hungary, and were concentrated near Temesvar, within striking distance of both Serbian and Roumanian frontiers.

SEES 11 BILLION WAR DEFICIT

Chancellor McKenna's Budget for Britain Proposes Increases in Taxes and Customs.

London, Sept. 23.—Great Britain on Tuesday was brought face to face with the gigantic task of supplementing her taxes to meet war debt, that at the end of the financial year will total $1,000,000,000.

Chancellor Reginald McKenna, in the historic budget speech that ever was made in parliament, announced that:

England's estimated revenue for the current year amounts to $7,200,000,000. England's estimated expenditures will total $7,950,000,000. England's deficit by January 1 will amount to $1,000,000,000. To meet this tremendous tax burden, Chancellor McKenna's budget proposes to add 10 per cent to the revenue from the present income tax; impose a tax of 50 per cent on surplus profits of all war supply manufacturers; levy a surtax on incomes exceeding $40,000; increase the duties on sugar; abolish halfpenny postage; increase postal telegraph rates; double the tax on patent medicines; increase duties on many commodities; levy new import duties on many products; impose a general ad valorem tax of 33 1/2 per cent on customs.

In introducing the budget Mr. McKenna declared that the British government is face to face with a deficit of $5,500,000,000.

The new ambassador is said to be named at once. The dispatch says that Kajetan Mervay von Kapros Mores, former Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Rome, has been selected for this place.

GETTING RID OF INVENTOR

How General Miles Handled Wild-Eyed Man With Bulletproof Army Coat.

When General Miles was at the head of the army he used to be occasionally besieged by cranks with pneumatic firing guns, dirigible war balloons and other maraud inventions. But the general would weed these out with the out with admirable speed. An inventor in his office one day tells of a curious incident in this relation.

A card was brought in and laid before the general. "Oh, send him in," said Miles. "His business won't take more than a minute or two."

So he came a wild-eyed, long-haired man, twisting his soft hat nervously in both hands. "General," he said, "I have here"—and he took out a small parcel—"a bulletproof army coat. If the government would adopt this—"

"Put it on; put it on!" said General Miles. And he ran the inventor out with a clerk appeared as the inventor was getting into the coat.

"Excuse me, general, I forgot something," interrupted the inventor, "with a hunted look no dissatisfied."

HE ASKED THE RIGHT MAN

Railroad Man Has His Curiosity Satisfied in a Startling Manner.

A Louisville attorney said a railroad man who has his stopover here went to a theater the other night. The railroad man saw a flashily dressed, red-headed, sporty-looking individual sitting in one of the boxes.

"Who is that tough person sitting in the box?" the railroad man asked, pleasantly. "He looks like a drunken brawler."

"That," said the attorney, "is my cousin."

The railroad man gasped a couple of times before he could get a grip on himself. Then a smile spread over his face as he remarked:

"Well, I went straight to headquarters for information, didn't I?"—Louisville Times.

It Made a Difference.

"How far is it to the next town?" the motorist asked the farmer along the road.

"About ten miles as the crow flies," said the farmer.

"Yes, I know," said the motorist, "but you see, the crow's flying with me today."

"Skiing the difficulty."

She—How do you like my skirt, dear?"

Ho—Well, pet, I suppose it's all right; but isn't it a bit long for a kilt?"

HANDICRAFT FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

By
A. NEELY HALL and DOROTHY PERKINS

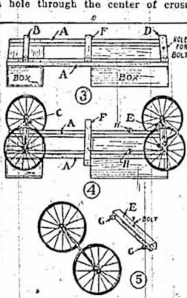

A HOMEMADE PUSHMOBILE.

In building a pushmobile, the wheels are of first importance. Fig. 1 shows the body framework. The side rails A should be 2 1/2 or 3 by 4 in. Cut them to whatever length you wish. Upon these rails are mounted two grocery boxes, a long box on the bow end, and a box as long as this one is wide, on the stern end. Fasten the rails to the bottom of these boxes (Fig. 3). The crosspieces B and D provide for the mounting of the wheels. Nail one to rails A at the bow end, and the other so it will come under the center of the stern box. Crosspiece F forms a footbar.

The front iron axle must be attached to a pivotal wheel axle (E, Figs. 4 and 5). This must have a hole bored through the center of its length for a 1/2-inch axle bolt. Screw a pair of screw-eyes into one end (G, Fig. 5). Fasten the iron axle to the wooden axle with iron staples, or bent-over nails. Bore a hole through the center of cross-piece D (Figs. 3 and 7) for the carriages bolt to run through. Then, in mounting the axle upon the frame work, slip an iron washer over the carriage bolt so it will come between axle D and crosspiece D. The rear axle must be fastened to a similar wooden axle (C, Fig. 4). Nail this wooden axle to crosspiece B.

The steering gear should be made as follows: A towing machine wheel is best for the steering-wheel, but a wagon-wheel will do. Cut a broom handle for the shaft (I, Fig. 6), and mount the wheel on one end. Then cut a crosspiece (J), and a square block (K), bore a hole of the diameter of the broom handle through the center of each, and fasten it to I. Slip this crosspiece over the end of the shaft, and fasten it 12 inches above the end with screws driven through the edges of J and K, as shown. Cut a hole through the bottom of the bow box for the end of the shaft to run through, and another hole one-half inch deep in the center of the edge of the crosspiece D (Fig. 7) for a screw to turn it to turn. Screw a screw-eye into the end of crosspiece J (L, Fig. 6), and one into the under side of each side rail A (M, Figs. 4 and 5). Then tie a four-foot length of rope at its center to screw-eye L, and run the ends through screw-eyes M, and tie to screw-eyes N in axle E (Figs. 4 and 5). Figs. 1 and 2 show how the body of the pushmobile is completed by fastening a pair of triangular pieces upon the top of the bow box, nailing boards across them, and tacking screen mesh over the front of the box for the radiator front; also how the seat is made.

THE GAMES OF JACK-STICKS AND RING-TOSS.

No doubt you are familiar with the game of jack-sticks, in which a pile of tiny sticks in the forms of hammers, saws, axes, picks, etc., are placed in the center of a table, and then in turn each player tries to remove by means of a small hooked stick as many of the "straws" as possible, without disturbing any other "straws" in the pile.

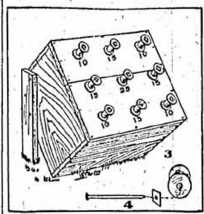

The only difference between the "straw" game and our "stick" game is in the substitution of real hammers, saws, etc., for the small ones. Figure 1 shows the large assortment of articles that may be used—brooms, umbrellas, coat hangers, pans, pot covers, pails, dustpans, etc. Throw these articles in a heap, crossed and uncrossed, in the illustration. The hooked stick for removing the articles from the pile take a broom handle and drive a long nail into it near one end, as shown in Fig. 2.

Taking turns, each player should try to remove, one at a time, as many "sticks" from the pile as she can without disturbing anything else. The turn passes to the next player the instant she disturbs other than the article she is trying to remove. The player securing the largest number of articles is the winner.

The game of ring-toss requires an easily made target (Fig. 3). The target requires a grocery box, two steel spoons for pins, and a wire nail. The spoons should be placed 4 or 4 1/2 inches apart. The heads of the nails for fastening them will likely be smaller than the holes in the spoons, and in that case, in order to make the nails hold, it will be necessary to cut small squares of cardboard and run these over the nails as far as the spoons (Figs. 3 and 4). After nailing the spoons in their proper positions, number them with black paint, ink or pencil, as indicated in Fig. 3. Each number represents the score of the spoon plun above it.

The tossing rings have a hole through their centers, and are filled with leaves, or beanbags (Fig. 5). Cut two pieces of cloth eight or nine inches square for each (Fig. 6). Fold each piece in half diagonally, so as to bring corners A together (Fig. 6) and B together (Fig. 7). Fold the corners C over to corner D (Figs. 7 and 8), and fold corner C over to corner D (Figs. 8 and 9). Cut off corners C and D, as indicated by dotted lines in Fig. 9 (Fig. 9), and, unfolded, the piece will have the form shown in Fig. 11. Sew the pair of cloth rings together, both around the outer and inner edges, leaving but a small opening between the outer edges. Fill the bags with beans, through the opening, then sew up the opening. There should be three rings, so each player may have three tosses each. The distance from where the rings are tossed may be ten, fifteen or twenty feet away from the target.

IN THE FATHERLAND

INTERESTING BITS OF NEWS
FROM THE GREAT GERMAN EMPIRE.

WHAT'S DOING IN OLD HOME

Summary of the Most Important Happenings in the Land of the Kaiser —Timely Items for the German Reader.

Frankfurt's largest barracks are built around a square perhaps 500 feet square, square large enough to accommodate easily a dozen or a score of groups of soldiers. There is the customary marching, exercising in saluting, bayonet drill work, setting up drill and dummy shooting practice.

One corner of the parade ground is reserved for the playing, chiefly such simple games as blind man's bluff, tag of war, hop frog and the like. The favorite game is one in which a score of soldiers form a circle, while two of their number, blindfolded, attempt to catch each other in the center. It is all absurdly simple, and interesting to watch for a moment, but experience has shown that it has great value in relieving mental strain. The soldier coming out from under fire has about two desires—to sleep and to eat—and after he has done these no amount of reading or conversation will make him forget himself as well as physical exercises that relieve cramped limbs and make him lazier.

German sweethearts and German wives write so many letters to the men at the front that the German paper factories are compelled to work day and night. The German post office is taxed to the limit of its capacity. Soviet official warnings have had to be published in order to curb the enthusiasm for the war. According to statistics just published, the German post office handles 25,000,000 letters every day on the average. This is an increase of 62 per cent compared with the last year, 1913. There are 15,000,000 letters sent or received from soldiers in the field every day. This is more than the German post office handled for the whole empire in 1913.

Now if the bread crumb was such a huge success from the standpoint of the economists, the word in a national or social sense—Germans ask why not extend the system. If the system works well in times of war, why return to the old slovenly methods of extravagance and happy-go-lucky life of systems in time of peace? This is the way the subject is discussed in Germany. While most of the sons of the fatherland are at the front fighting, those who stayed at home are discussing how to fight another kind of an enemy to the human race, namely, laziness, idleness, unproductive labor, needless energy. And they are tracking this internal enemy in the good old-fashioned, scientific, thoroughgoing German way.

Few cities in Germany have more bravely defied the reactionary and destructive effects of the war than Leipzig. The famous old city, for decades the center of the fur trade and book business, though hard hit by the conflict, nevertheless is attempting a building program that would easily be considered ambitious in peace time. The largest railway station in Europe is gradually nearing completion at a cost of more than $10,000,000. Its construction has only been slowed down by the shortage of workmen, and some time this fall it will be entirely finished.

Princess Adelbert, wife of the third son of the German kaiser, gave birth to a daughter September 11. The child died less than an hour after its birth. The condition of the princess is reported satisfactory. Prince Adelbert and Princess Adelbert of Saxe-Weimarer were married August 26, 1914. A month later the prince was reported killed at Druseba, but the rumor proved unfounded. In March he was promoted to captain in the navy and major in the army.

A decrease of approximately 25 per cent in the birth rate of Berlin for July over the same month in 1914, is reported in a dispatch from Amsterdam. Official returns show that while 3,710 children were born in the German capital in July, 1914, only 2,790 were born in July, 1915. The number of births for May, June and July of 1914 was 10,020, while it was only 7,523 for the same quarter this year.

The Berlin Vorwärts reports that owing to some cases of typhus fever having been discovered in the western district of Berlin, the police have cautioned the public against the use of unboiled milk.

The German government had for years before the war taken the output of piric acid at a price so high that the manufacturers were able to sell the dyestuffs and drugs in other countries far below the cost of manufacture. In this way Germany made 95 per cent of the world's product of pig iron, and the German government was able to supply what they needed for the manufacture of high explosives. It was this clever form of subsidy, and not superior skill, nor cheap labor that gave the Germans the monopoly of the coal, gas products of the world.

ILLINOIS STATE FAIR IS OPENED

Speed Events at Show Hampered by the Rain.

AUTOMOBILE RACES HALTED

President Len Small, Other Officers and Members of Board Which Control the Exposition Fair From Pleasant.

Springfield.—Rain, falling at an inopportune time, cut seriously into the opening details of speed at the Illinois state fair which was thrown open to the public.

President Len Small, Secretary H. M. Davison and others of the officers and members of the board of the fair, the agriculture, which controls the fair, were far from pleased with the results, but, despite the threatening weather, many hundreds entered the gates before dark and stayed in and out among the many exhibits.

"Throughout the day the capital city band gave concerts from various of the pavilions in the grounds."

One of the scenes of greatest activity was the boys' state fair school on the hill near the west entrance. Saturday was formal opening day for the school, and the young men came in by the scores from various parts of the state in order to be ready for the first day of work.

At the girls' school, the program course was followed, with a tour of the grounds by the girls in the afternoon. Lectures and class work preceded in the morning of the first day, and the visiting in the afternoon.

Chief Danman of the fair grounds police reported a quiet day. "We have had no reports of trouble of any consequence whatsoever," he stated. The fair's force consists of 90 men from Chicago and other parts of Illinois.

One of the places which on the opening day attracted much attention was the "Made in Springfield" show in machinery hall. The booths in this exhibit are complete and the displays, most of them, are new.

The first day visitors stopped short, upon entering the exposition grounds, to gaze at the transformation which had taken place within the small two inclosures, customarily occupied by thousands of birds from the new estate state game farm.

Instead of pheasants, geese, ducks and other brilliant birds of scarce varieties, the grounds were really completely or walking leisurely about, half a dozen deer, fresh from the spotted regions of the East and the South. Suggestive of the days when the underbrush teemed with wild animals, and when larger game were more plentiful than in the present day, the deer, and the deer, these deer gave fair patrons an interesting idea of animal life as it has been in sparsely inhabited regions.

The unchained, and of which was in place on the opening day, will be unusually strong this year. The same will be true of the motor vehicle show, especially the new cars. The automobile show this year will be the largest in the fair's history.

Bank's Gain in Resources.

Cash on hand and deposits were $60,269,923, an increase of $3,640,772. Savings deposits subject to notice were $291,167,683, a decrease of $3,505,414. Total deposits, including due to banks, were $192,657,444, an increase of $28,922,046.

PEACH DAINTIES OF MERIT
Many Ways of Preparing Fruit Which All Appreciate for Its Perfect Flavor.

For peach cobbler, prepare plain pastry from three parts of flour and three-fourths of a pound of mixed lard and butter. Line the baking dish with this and pour in two quarts of freshly stewed peaches, covering the dish with a pastry lid, pierced here and there to let steam escape. Bake until brown and then cover thickly with powdered sugar and serve steaming hot with rich cream.

Here is another peach pie recipe: Bake a rich pastry crust until brown and crisp and then cool. Just at serving time heap it high with sliced peaches, sprinkle with sugar and pile whipped cream on top. A variation of this recipe is this: Cut short pastry into squares and fold the four corners to the center. Moisten them with milk, press them down so that they will remain in place, prick the pastry with a fork and bake one square for each person. Brown in the oven, chill and serve piled high with peaches cut into large pieces, stewed just until tender and sweetened to taste. Top with a big spoonful of whipped cream.

Still another peach pie, the favorite of a very good cook, is this: Sift together a cupful and a half of flour, a quarter of a cupful of sugar, two teaspoons of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Into this cut half a cupful of butter and add enough milk to make a stiff batter. Use as little milk as possible. Roll into a thick sheet, line a deep pie pan with it and slice peaches into it. Sweeten them, wash and cover them with sour or sweet milk, then bake until done in a moderate oven.

A tempting dessert is peach whip. To make it press ripe peaches through a vegetable press, sweeten to taste and mix immediately with whipped cream or whipped egg whites. Pile in tall glass and serve very cold.

Another tempting dessert is a peach sandwich, one for each person. Slice a stale sponge cake and dip the slices quickly in milk. Then brown in butter. Between each two slices pile freshly sliced, sweetened peaches and pile on whipped cream.

Obviously Misleading.
Passing a swimming pool in a small city one day two country women read this sign at the entrance: "25,000 Oats. In and Out Every Hour."

"That's all nonsense," said one of the women. "There ain't that many women in this whole county."

Best Glorious Future.

All this world is heavy with the promise of greater things, and the day will come, one day in the unending succession of days, when beings, be they men or beasts, in our thoughts, shall stand on this earth as one stands on a footstool, and shall laugh and reach out their hands amid the start—H. G. Wells.

Health and Happiness Depend on Your Liver.

That sluggish liver with its sluggish flow of bile is what makes the world look so dark at times. Dr. King's New Life Pills go straight to the root of the difficulty by waking up the action of the liver and increasing the bile. Dr. King's New Life Pills cause the bowels to act more freely and drive away those "moody days." 25c a bottle.

Thrust at Scotch Frugality.

"No wonder the Scotch got rich," said a man, laying down a magazine about the multimillionaires of Scotch blood. "No wonder." He puffed his Havana thoughtfully. "An Irishman and a Scotchman went into a bar one day," he said. "But the Irishman had no money." He blew a fragrant cloud towards the ceiling. "So they came out," he said, "without a drink."—London Opinion.

Hebrew or Jew?

The name "Jew" was used originally to denote one belonging to the tribe of Judah. After the return from the Babylonian captivity any member of the new state was called a Jew. The name "Hebrew" in its widest sense includes any member of the northern branch of Semites, including the Israelites, Ammonites, Moabites, etc. It is used, however, specifically to denote an Israelite.

Sounds Fifty.

A New York lawyer tells of a case tried in a fishing town of Massachusetts, during which the chief witness under cross-examination refused to state the amount of his gross income. "You must answer the question," said the judge. "But, Your Honor," said the man, "I have no gross income; I am a fisherman, and it's all not."

First Idea of Steam Plowing.

The idea of the use of steam and machinery to plow the ground seems to have originated with David Ramsey and Thomas Wildgoose in 1645, but the motive power they proposed to use is not quite clear. Francis Moore in 1769 first attempted to use the steam engine for this purpose. The history of practical steam plowing dates from the invention of Fowler, assisted by Smith, in 1854.

Hard Luck Indeed.

Reilly was lamenting to her aunt the fact that she only had one grandfather while her little friend had two. Her aunt tried to reconcile her by saying one grandfather was in heaven, to which she replied: "Oh, dear, I've had awful luck with my grandfathers: one in heaven and the other one is lame."

Mistake Somewhere.

"Yes," said Uncle Silas, "my son Bill has got back from a special course he's been studying at college, with a piece of paper signed by 'the authorities' saying how he's an A. M. I dunno what an A. M. is, but I'm afraid there's some mistake about it, for judge' from the time he gets down to breakfast he behaves more like a P. M. ter me."

Safety First

6 PER CENT. REAL ESTATE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS are steadily growing in popularity and their advantages over other classes of bonds and individual mortgages are numerous. First, the value of the security underlying REAL ESTATE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS can easily be determined, and the property be personally inspected by the investor before making purchases, whereas on the other hand, experience and tedious study is necessary to exactly value the security of such corporation bonds as Railroads, Public Utilities and Industrials. Furthermore the stability in price of REAL ESTATE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS has been demonstrated; they have maintained their full par value when other bonds, even of the highest character, have suffered severe declines in times of depression. Also REAL ESTATE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS are issued in most convenient denominations of $100, $500 and $1000 and the interest is paid promptly on the date of maturity. These moderate sizes enable the investor to buy small amounts of bonds, and, in need of funds, to sell portions of his holdings.

Our customers have never suffered any loss of money nor any delay in the payment of principal or interest on CHICAGO REAL ESTATE MORTGAGE BONDS bought from us.
