THE GRUATING CLASS

To Irma E. Benson, president; Ray L. Rosen, treasurer; Ruth Leona Dixon, secretary; Jennie Mae Adams, Grace E. Cottle, Kathryn Ann Davis, Wilhelmina Hoff Horne, Berneice, Burt Hoffman, Elaine Hoffmann, Clifford A. Johnson, Irma A. Kincaid, Miriam E. Lytle, Jessie W. Magill, Marian F. Seaver, Marjorie Steward, and Ed Weaver, comprising the 1927 graduating class.

It is customary for newspapers to give on special occasions editorials about a "ribbon-bond diploma in one hand and a world-wide gesture in the other." They are usually written by old fogies evincing an awe and unhappiness that they do not stand in years. When Christ said: Love your enemies, He preached the sublime height of forgiveness. His preaching of love was a high degree of common sense in the injunction. The scale of life could be heaped, not by hate, but by love. The enemy of hate there is no need of defense. The enemy has taken him in his power. He is poisoning his mind, absorbing his energies, and making him hate. The hate is essentially a murderer. He cannot think straight. His hatred is chaotic. It is not a clear thing. These things that Christ gave the counsel of perfection. However, we always search around for natural props, as we have seen lighted, and then they always lay found. As illustrating the unwisdom of hatred, Baron Lanken, the head of the German press bureau in Berlin, once said: "I have said of Cardinal Reiser in a recent interview, 'he was too wise to hate it,' a foolish statement in terms of logic, but it is engraved on your minds if not on your diplomas."

MILITARY TRAINING
Objection to short periods of military drill and instruction for young men in high schools can be urged only on the grounds of economy. Offering the most approved method of physical exercise and inculcating that most desirable habit or impulse of obedience, authority and acceptance. Military training, unless it is made a feature instead of an incident, must tend to the development of the citizen-soldier, young man learning to march, to stand straight and use his arms, with weapons or without, to obey orders, promptly and willingly; to understand some of the measures of group movement and the value of concerted action; there are some of the benefits accruing from the school of the soldier. The training does not make fighters as much as defenders.

Thousands of young men, after leaving school, enter the National Guard for military drill, recreation, athletic exercise and good training for health and incidentally for what is called a hobby. The National Guard, in this very moment of peace, is doing the flooded districts of the Mississippi Valley. It is often called upon, and responds with alacrity and service, when needed.

DETROIT SIGNS
Do not grumble at the "detour" signs which now will be more numerous than ever. These are unavoidable when the city is being improved. The detour is a little inconvenience amounting to no comparison with the permanent advantages which a good city affords.

Twenty years ago a detour sign was unknown. Men worked slowly with picks and shovels, wheelbarrows and horse drawn wagons. The detour sign was a simple sign pointing right up one time to prevent traffic from running right through where the work was being done.

But, today, it is often necessary to have miles of road under construction at one time in order to furnish sufficient work for the various tractors and excavators which move a wagonload of dirt where a laborer used to move a shovel.

It is a shame to build good roads that is to maintain poor ones.

THE AMERICAN WAY

That brand of Americanism that is really 100 per cent apparent in the unanimous decision of organized farmers of Poland to support the available land, they agreed to pool their surplus corn and soy beans and donate it to food sufferers of their section. The extent of their generosity has made it impossible to retain seed for planting purposes a serious one. The scarcity of seed naturally increases the price of the available seed. The Polish farmers are a surplus Poland farmers could not afford to purchase. But their sympathy for those in need of food and their patriotic motives and they decided to give away what would have brought them a high price.

At the same time these farmers were giving away fruits of their last year's industry, caption critics were announcing to the world that this is the American god, it is no such thing. Americans are quick to make the most of their financial opportunities, and love the comforts and conveniences that money brings them, but in the hour of calamity no people on earth put their money more freely than the people of America. The United States is just one of thousands of kind. America gets because it gives.
