In your OLD home you can add NEW comfort . . . save fuel

If your house was built before modern insulation was available, it can be easily made comfortable and save considerable fuel. It is through the roof that most heat is lost. By applying a thick warm blanket of Balsam-Wool to the entire floor or between the roof rafters needless heat loss is prevented.

You will find a surprising saving in fueling the house will be more comfortable in the coldest weather; the upstairs rooms will be more comfortable in the hot summer days and nights. See us about it today.

See the Balsam-Wool advertisement on page 122 and 123 of Saturday Evening Post for February 28.

CLOTHES
LIVE LONGER
washed
OUR way

We have made a new of washday. Each tub of soap and fabric is given the scientific washing formula that best meets its needs. For each class we use from nine to twelve changes of water instead of the usual four. We use one hundred gallons for your family washing! No wonder clothes laundered here are cleaner and last longer!

Hay Surrenders to State's Attorney; Hearing Feb. 13

Mr. Hay surrendered but "no suggestion for a settlement has been considered," Attorney Baswell informed the court.

"We are giving consideration to Mr. Hay's promise to make restitution, of course, but we are not in a position to say we are trying to do to get the value of this difficulty without loss to the community, which holds any of the species."

"Mr. Hay has agreed to assist us in the investigation of the amount of the collection and amounts of the bonds that were illegally issued. He was to appear before the court at 10:30 a.m. yesterday, but we excused him when we saw he was seriously ill and that his presence would be of no value."

Arthur Young & Co., 105 S. LaSalle Street, Chicago, who audited the books of the city, presented their report. So far as can be determined, the amount of the illegal bonds is $13,000. The village has been asked to make a $10,000 contribution on its own, the total being $23,000.

Mr. Hay, who is 72 years old, died in his home at 1000 S. Dearborn Street, Chicago, on Feb. 1. His wife, Mrs. Henry J. Hay, 69, died in 1926.

There are twenty-two in the married couple, including a son, Mr. Edward B. Pomeroy, 30, of Plaza, W. 111th Street; a daughter, Mrs. Alice Ricks, 26, of 1000 W. Division Street; a son, A. H. S. Hay, 28, of 1000 W. Division Street; a brother, James P. McHenry; William Skinner, 26, of 1000 W. Division Street; William Dottore, Louis Borelli, and Hugh McHenry.

LINCOLN'S EARLY LIFE

As time goes by the name of Abraham Lincoln shines ever brighter in history's scroll. That name is perpetuated in the great Lincoln Memorial in Washington, the most massive and beautiful structure yet erected to any American. But it is in the hearts of his countrymen that his greatness is most imperishably recorded.

Born in a Kentucky log cabin 121 years ago on February 12, Lincoln's boyhood was marked by poverty and privation. He could write his name, Abraham's own schooling did not amount to a full year. He wielded an axe in clearing the forest from the age of eight; his mother died when he was nine. In his tenth year he was kicked by a horse and for a time was thought to have been killed.

At the age of 22 Lincoln was employed at $12 a month; at 23 he served a short time as captain of an volunteer company in the Black Hawk Indian war, and upon returning ran for the legislature but was defeated. Then he and a partner bought a store and stock of goods, but the business failed. Then he was a carpenter, or occupation until he got work assisting the county surveyor, which, as he said, "procured bread and kept soul and body together."

About this time he studied English grammar, and in 1834, when he was 25, he again ran for the legislature and was elected. Then he studied law entirely without assistance and was licensed to practice two years later.

Lincoln recognized his need of education and diligently devoted his spare time to acquiring it. He studied and mastered six books of law and after he had been elected to Congress, he lost no opportunity for self-improvement.

Thus, in spite of early handicaps, he prepared himself for his great destiny.

WHAT MAKES WOMEN BUY?

It is a well-known fact by all merchants, and by husbands as well, that practically all buying for the home is either actually done by women or directed by them. For this reason the merchant's greatest problem is to attract the favorable attention of women to his wares.

We are alert to grasp opportunities to secure merchandise at a bargain and they are more discriminating buyers than men as a rule. They read advertisements and act upon the information obtained thereby.

In order to determine just what advertising is doing, the largest advertising influence on women's buying is a recent study made by a Los Angeles advertising club, developed some interesting facts. Replies from 1,000 women of all classes were obtained in answers to a questionnaire listing the various advertising media and asking what form of advertising influenced them most.

Newspapers were credited with greatest influence by 36 per cent of these women, magazine advertising by 22 per cent, street car advertising by a fraction over 4 per cent, announcement cards and program advertising by less than 4 per cent while booklets, pamphlets and circular letters influenced less than 2 per cent.

Thus again is demonstrated what every wide-awake merchant must have already observed—advertising is most potent for reaching women buyers. And this applies with equal force to men buyers, too.

CORRUPTION IN GOVERNMENT

Complaint of corruption among public officials is not uncommon, but there is one kind of corruption that is usually overlooked. Corruption in politics is a matter of the passing and taking of bribes or the buying of votes or making of "deals" to insure elections. The official who supports, vocally, a law which he laughs at, ignores, and violates among his friends or in the privacy of his home, is corrupt except for the official who accepts an actual cash bribe.

HOW OCCUPATIONS CHANGE

Seventy years is not a relatively long time in the life of a nation such as ours, yet so rapidly have industrial conditions changed that within the period since 1860 the occupation of the people of the United States has changed almost entirely.

Many trades which formerly provided employment for large numbers have almost disappeared, while others, unheard of seventy years ago, have grown to vast proportions, as shown by census reports recently reviewed.

Occupations which have shown a marked reduction in the number of persons employed in proportion to population include those of shipyard workers, marble and stone cutters, wheelwrights, coopers and blacksmiths. The village blacksmith, formerly an important adjunct of community life, has almost vanished from many sections.

On the other hand, it is shown in the proportion of machinists, while electricians, automobile mechanics and chauffeurs, airplane artificers and moving picture operators, all unknown a few decades ago, have taken leading places in the industrial scheme.

In proportion to population plumbers have increased nearly 25 times, architects seven times, barbers, hairdressers and manicurists seven times, dentists four times. Chemists, lawyers and physicians have maintained a fairly steady average, as have carpenters.

Few women were employed outside their homes in 1880, except as teachers, so that all engaged in other occupations at present practically represent a net gain.

What of the future? Will new inventions again revolutionize industry and employ most as the automobile, radio, typewriter, moving picture, electrical appliances and other home-made conveniences have done?

The question is interesting, and we must wait for the answer, but a safe guess would probably be an affirmative one.

MOSCOW'S GREAT BELLS

It is an interesting fact that the two largest bells in the world, one weighing more than 200 tons and the other 128 tons, are both in Moscow. No other bell weighs more than 90 tons.

The larger of the Moscow bells was cast in 1713, either in the foundry or shortly after it cracked and an 11-ton piece fell out. Our story is that it was successfully cast and hung, but fell to the ground when the school bell rung and cracked when firemen came to extinguish the fire which had been bedded in the earth for about a century, when it was raised onto a pedestal, where it served as a chapel, the opening made by the broken fragment being used as the door.

This bell, known as "The Bear," is 19 feet 5 inches in height, 60 feet 9 inches in diameter and its weight is 200 tons.

Contrary to the belief of the choir, this bell gives another service in song. Bells special and unique in song, the choir will give a special place of prime importance when it will give special numbers.

Throughout the year, the church groups meet together for the regular monthly missionary prayer meeting. Next Thursday each group will meet in its own room again.

THE PASSING OF PIN CUSHIONS

I saw one of those old-fashioned, crocheted pin cushions the other day. It was a week-long and faded-out mess and punched full of pinsholes. These pins evidently had been used for a long time.

It was the old style pin cushion of the pin-cushion era. The foppery was in mode.

She just stood around and took whatever happened to come her way. She had no definite purpose in life, no definite aspiration, no definite waiting, and she was a pin cushion.

She was a pin cushion, and the world could hang on to it until it got round.

You don't like pin cushions, pin cushions are not nice. The foppery was in mode.

She was a pin cushion, and the world was a pin cushion.

She was a pin cushion, and the world was a pin cushion.

"The Child's First School is the Family"—Friedel

"THERE IS, HOWEVER, A LIMIT"

By PAULINE HERZ THOMAS

Billy is a tall, gangly fellow. He is not very bright, but likes to play, and weaker than most.

One time, when he was about 10, he was playing with his brother, and when he was not able to get his hand around his brother's neck, he let go.

He was so angry that he hit his brother, and when his mother came to him, he said, "I'm sorry, Mother, I hit my brother."

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother. "If you do, you're not a good boy."

"I'm sorry, Mother," said Billy, and he went to his room and lay down.

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother again.

"I'm sorry, Mother," said Billy again.

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother again.

"I'm sorry, Mother," said Billy again.

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother again.

"I'm sorry, Mother," said Billy again.

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother again.

"I'm sorry, Mother," said Billy again.

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother again.

"I'm sorry, Mother," said Billy again.

"Don't you know it's not nice to hit people?" said Mother again.

THE PERTINENT AND IMPERTINENT PRESS

Madly the complaint seems to be that in doing what turned out in this country is concerned.

Another reason Shakespeare turned out in this country is that he was a good man.

Nature fits so we are compelled to do what we are compelled to do.

It is not so good as it should be.

Antioch Leads
N. W. Conference
for Fourth Year

The fourth straight year a team from Antioch high school has won the Northwest Conference basketball tournament. This year they defeated Waukegan, 30-27, and Libertyville in the order named to their credit for the top spot.

Burrville, which is 6th among the leaders in the conference race, and placed second in the first two games when they lost to Antioch in the first two games, has won the toughest game in the whole play when they dropped Heights from the top spot, 28-27, on Jan. 20 to 21.

Elm proved to be the surprise of the conference when it beat Libertyville, 10 to 2, to become the third place winner.

Barrington Boys League

High school boys from Barrington who trained Leyden earlier scaling in their opening encounter, but they have been beaten by the Leyden boys in the afternoon, frus and in the evening, and have been beaten in the field, too. He was winning 13-10 when the game was over.

Their chief trouble was their inability to get a good start, and they were needed. Not a single member of the team had been in the gymnasium to play any of the games with the exception of Alsburyberg in the Leyden contest, when the Barrington boys were in succession from near the edge of the floor.

Clips of Barrington was honored by the Barrington boys, and will be honored here Friday night with a vengeance when Heights comes to town. The Barrington boys will be anxious to show their followers that they are still in the race when they were eliminated last week. Heights has the edge for they were the victors in the first two games in succession from near the edge of the floor.
