IF IT'S INDIVIDUALITY YOU WANT . . . MAY WE SUGGEST LAMPS

LAMPS make ideal Christmas gifts because they're so individualistic and so useful. Even "people who have everything" can find a place for a charming new lamp. There are lamps for every room in the house, both floor and table models, now on display at your Public Service Store and most of them will harmonize nicely with the smallest of gift budgets, either purchased outright or the "Little by Little" way with a small down payment.

There are attractive little lamps for the occasional table in the living room in colonial designs and others with gay pottery bases and parchment shades. There is a brass lamp with decorated parchment shade as low as $2.25.

Boudoir sticks for the dressing table will give a dainty feminine touch to the most matter-of-fact bedrooms. Bedside lamps, also, are ornamental and useful. These are priced as low as $3.

At your Public Service Store you'll find desk lamps for business men, student lamps for young people away at school, reflector lamps for indirect lighting, smoking-stand lamps for men who smoke as they read, little lamps that clip on to books—and even—so many other kinds. Why not shop now for your Christmas gift lamps while displays are at their best.

CAN CONGRESS FINISH?

Much talk is heard of the probability of an extra session of Congress soon after the short session which will end next March. Many believe that it will be impossible to finish necessary legislation this winter.

Much will depend, of course, upon the attitude of certain groups which have met measures to advance, or others to oppose. It appears quite evident that the Prohibitionists will insist on a special session, as from extreme instance, that all, but if obstruction tactics are pursued by those Senators of both parties who seem to delight in throwing monkey wrenches into the legislative machine, he may be forced to it.

It is a foregone conclusion that the present emergency situation will be the subject of much debate, and that all sorts of remedies will be proposed in bills to be offered.

The farm relief question is by no means settled, in spite of the present law, passed after several years of wind-jamming on the floors of both houses. The Farm Board will be subjected to much criticism, and many bills will be made for modifying the existing set-up.

Senator Wagner's long pending unemployment bills will have a new airing. Appropriations for prohibition enforcement will naturally bring on a long talk. New bills will be thrown in, as the fight goes on, as a result of almost innumerable recent investigations by committees of both houses. That hardy perennial, Muscle Shoals, will be the subject of another spirited and probably futile tussle. It would take a column of encyclopedias to list all pending questions, each of which somebody or other thinks the most vital issue of the day.

Amid all this welter of controversy it is to be remembered that the annual supply bills, providing appropriations for all departments of the government, must be passed. It has been held that they will be deliberately obstructed in order to compel the calling of a special session. Opponents of the administration deny this, but denials of statements of politicians, whether on one side or the other, may be taken with several grains of salt.

So, everything considered, the question of whether Congress can finish the imperative tasks before it by March 4 is a very lively one.

GOLF KING RETIRES

"Bobby" Jones, undisputed golf king of the world, who this year set the unprecedented record of the winning of all four major American and British championships, has announced his retirement from tournament competition.

He will continue his interest in the game of golf, however, and has signed a contract to make 12 one-reel motion pictures illustrating the fine points of the game for the benefit of players and others.

To most persons the name of "Bobby" Jones merely signifies the greatest golfer, but he has other high attainments as well. He holds the degree of Bachelor of Science in mechanical engineering from Georgia Tech, bachelor of science from Harvard, studied law at Emory University, and has been a practicing lawyer in Atlanta since 1928. He was married to Miss Mary Malone of Atlanta in 1924 and has two children.

All of which constitutes a rather impressive record for a young man of 28 years.

DANGER SEASON NEAR

Added precautions by motorists are advisable if they would avoid the danger incident to slippery roads during the approaching cold weather. Wet pavements strewed with leaves are a source of danger from skidding during the fall of the year, while snow and ice present even greater hazards later on.

A study of accident records shows that these seasons are generally marked by a large increase of automobile wrecks caused by skidding, in due to cases in defective brakes.

Frequent inspection of brakes is the best insurance against this type of accident. If the car is equipped with four-wheel brakes, as are all standard makes now being manufactured, the obtaining of proper equalization is especially important. One break out of alignment may cause skidding, particularly when the brakes are applied with full force in an emergency.

"Because I Love Her."

MR. ANSTY, making his way through the office, stopped

wrong, may not, at such a time, reach

Converse was trying. Their few

minutes were well

spent, his high color

was admiring; his small

eyes were bright

with triumph. Love. All that he had lost in his success

he had gained,

he had won.

Converse looked around in his office, was anxious to be spoken to in that manner. But when he had seen him, he had followed.

They went to the room.

Converse had seen him before. The atmosphere of Linda Roth still filled the room in that fashion as if over the thousand performances he had given her, her eyes clung intently

to the drooping ferns and the hanging flowers of shaded lamps. It forced him to look away.

Converse was alone there and

Brian could endure to see the frail setting where she had sat, the imitation pearls as if perhaps not more than his hand, the far away removed from the sentiments of little things.

Converse was asked, curiously,

he saw at once that the

younger man had to be done with something new and strange.

So far as he could surmise,

the young man whom he could crush

as easily as he could crush a small pebble, without knowing how it came there. But he was learned to be wary of unexpected things, and when it occurred he produced a single cigar. It was not a place for smoking, nor

was it a place for a
