Heffernan and Winn Co. Is Replaced by Henry Motor Co. at 117 North Cook St.

A new automobile company has been opened at 117 North Cook street under the name of Henry Motor Co. Heffernan and Winn Co. is being replaced by Henry Motor Co. at 117 North Cook St. The company is the authorized dealer for Ford automobiles, accessories, etc., succeeding the Heffernan and Winn company which was located on South Cook street. Heffernan and Winn discontinued business late in February after having contacted the Ford agency in Barrington for three years. The location at 117 North Cook street, which is owned by Schaeble Brothers and Collins, was formerly used by that company for repair work. That company is now conducting its repair department in the main building. An announcement of the opening of the Henry Motor Co. is included on another page of this issue of The Review.

5-Day a Week Bill to Get Hearing in House

Rep. R. G. Soderstrom's five-day week bill will be given a hearing before the house industrial committee March 14, and opponents will be heard a week later.

Spelling of "Hare-Brained"

The original and correct form of the word is "hare-brained." It means flighty, skittish or reckless and refers to the characteristics of a hare. "Mad as a March hare" had a somewhat similar origin. A wild, headless, foolish, volatile or giddy person is said to be hare-brained because he has or shows no more brains or sense than a hare or rabbit. The word is sometimes incorrectly written "hair-brained," even by reputable writers, and that spelling, which began to occur before the year 1800, has led many to seek a different origin of the term.

March brings something better than blustery winds!

Writer Has Some Doubt About Weather Control

A scientist thinks that weather eventually may be controlled by electricity. We contemplate with awe the bringing on of a thunder storm by the pressing of a button. Will powerful aether waves the people will stop the superstitious watering of their lawns and quit the north-west windows? For we do not suppose that the electrical rainmakers will be so far from bringing natural laws as to bring rainstorms from unheard-of directions.

The rains should be quite orderly and never freakish. Rushin said: "As men do not walk on their heads, there are natural laws that clouds do not disobey." We have always thought that man would, one of these days, determine when rain should fall and when it shouldn't, and electrical control may be the secret. But we have profound doubts of his being able to do a thing when a Gulf of Mexico hurricane comes along ashore.—F. H. Collier in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Tender or Soft

Changing the adjective from "tender" to "soft" in referring to the tender sentiment, doesn't lessen the devotion to it.
