

"In Caliente" to Show at Catlow Sunday, Monday

Will Rogers Starts Three-Day Run Wednesday in Play "Doubling Thomas"

Mexico, with all its beauty and color, its haunting music and exciting dance, come to the Catlow theatre Sunday and Monday when the production, "In Caliente" will have its first-run community showing.

Dolores Del Rio, Glenda Farrell, Pat O'Brien, Edward Everett Horton and Leo Carillo carry the fun, romance and action of this tropical transport to new heights in colorful entertainment.

The picture was filmed in Agua Caliente, the made-over Mexican resort near the California border, and captures the exciting atmosphere of this paradise of girls, songs and laughter.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are the first three days for the showing of Will Rogers' new play, "Doubling Thomas."

Rogers breaks his own laugh records in this story as he equates in the "anxious seat" while his stage-struck wife satisfies her suppressed desire with an unforgettable (and unrepeatable) performance in amateur theatricals.

Billie Burke as the stage-struck wife is just the type to be inoculated with the local virus.

Through the prompts of Allison Skipworth, Miss Burke and a coterie of the brainless leading lights of the small town, realize their ambition to go on the stage in the worst way.

After the ridiculous "success" of the local performance, it requires all Rogers' innate shrewdness to cure his stage-struck wife and save her from going on the rocks.

Tonight, the Catlow will screen for the last time, Joan Harlow and William Powell in "Reckless."

Friday night brings Jean Parker and Chester Morris in "Princess O'Hara." Saturday Richard Barthelmess is started in "Four Hours to Kill," with a Buster Keaton comedy.
