

Lawyer Criticizes Sewer Loan Report of Advisory Group

Should be published from week In consideration of his action he offered to furnish the board with a detailed report consisting of five major topics:

- 1. An outline of the financial situation.
2. A discussion to point out wherein a PWA loan is more economical than special assessment proceedings.
3. Requirements of the decree which necessitate the construction of a new sewer system.

Discusses Sewer Plan
Trustee J. C. Cadwallader posed a question as to the adequacy of the proposed PWA loan in completely disposing of all of the requirements of the court decision. Mr. Maloney explained that the plan would take care of every angle of the situation including the separation of the storm and sanitary systems, the development of the disposal plant to a point that would adequately dispose of the sewage of the population of 6000, condemnation proceedings and the obtaining of sewer rights, and an added feature for the elimination of the cost of a company pumping station. All included in the plan of the system which is to be financed by the loan, he said.

The committee went ahead with the plan. Mr. Maloney said his committee was asked for nothing but had said that I was always available. The board, engineers and lawyers have all been available, but the committee has worked without getting sufficient information. The committee has filled to bring out all the points with the result that it has made the situation less difficult and confusing. There are so many points underated points in the report that it should have been submitted to the board to be handled over before it was published.
The committee thinks, from what is stated in the report, that the board has not kept it advised. The committee was not asked for the consideration of the board. The recent meetings of the committee have been closed as far as the board has been concerned. The board was not requested to attend. Now a report is submitted that the board, engineers and lawyers, blaming the committee because they didn't do the work.
The committee has disposed of everything I has been asked to do without having done anything. The report is so guaranteed, it merely condemns the board for not knowing what it had asked the committee for.
Mr. Maloney explained to the board that he believed the village would realize a saving of more than $100,000 if the sewer system is financed by the PWA loan.
A special assessment job would cost at least $200,000, he said, whereas the 30 per cent saving on a PWA loan would bring the cost down to less than $100,000.

Mrs. Frances Reichmann Is Given Divorce, $6000, and Furnishings of Home

Mrs. Frances Budget Reichmann, 428 Hillside avenue, was granted a divorce by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort Monday through William D. Reichmann, son of Mrs. M. Reichmann, town-ship.
Under the agreement, Mrs. Reichmann, a socially prominent girl, receives $6000 cash, $1000 for attorney's fees, the furniture of her home, and permission to live there rent free until December 1. She was also given permission to resume her maiden name.
The divorce was granted after Mrs. Reichmann had amended her original separate maintenance bill. The Reichmanns were married in St. James chapel, Chicago, May 11, 1925. Mrs. Reichmann charged her husband left her August 4, 1931. When the original bill was filed last May, Reichmann was ordered to pay $150 a month temporary alimony. He pleaded inability to pay, and his wife's lawyer, Arthur R. Hall, offered to get him a position. The offer was refused.

Dorothy Wickersheim, Ela Pupil, Wins Essay Contest

Dorothy Wickersheim and Helen Jayne of Ela township high school received cash awards last week for placing highest in an essay contest sponsored by the Illinois state Woman's Relief corps and locally by the Girl Scouts. W. Sweeney No. 85 chapter, George Meyer received honorable mention for his essay.
All essays entered in the contest were entitled "Lincoln, the Martyr." Miss Wickersheim's essay will be advanced to the state contest by virtue of her victory in local competition.

Three Kindred Materials: Diamonds, Graphite, Coal

There is a strange and secret kinship between diamonds and graphite (used in lead pencils) and ordinary coal, declares a writer in the Washington Star.
All three may possibly have a common ancestry, though they come to very different things. If so, the link is not clear. It is first of all a matter of pressure and temperature. Just what the tremendous pressure changed some of these ancient plants into hard and brilliant diamonds, others into common black coal, and still others into a soft, dark gray mineral admirably suited for writing, no one knows.
Graphite is much lighter than coal, with which it is ordinarily confused because both may easily be used for writing. But pure graphite is much too soft to be hardened by being mixed with powdered coal.
Unlike coal and diamonds, graphite is a form of carbon which does not melt but burns and when it is mixed with clay it is used in making dishes and bowls which are heat resistant. It is one of the chief uses are in lubricants and paints.
The so-called "lead" in a lead pencil is much more nearly related, chemically, than to the metal by whose name it is so often mistakenly called. Like the diamond, it is made of carbon, a plant material, though the centuries of rock pressure have changed its form beyond easy recognition.

Caucasian Race Not All White

The Caucasian race is generally believed to include only white people, but about 40 per cent of it is not white, writes Ruth A. Fairbrother, Pasco, W. L., in Collier's Weekly. Such Caucasians as the Hindus and Arabs have dark brown skins, while others, such as pure-blooded Abyssinians, have skins as black as any negro.

Mississippi and Missouri Rivers

The Hand-McNally atlas gives the Mississippi's length at 2777 miles, and the Missouri's as 2551. The Mississippi is navigable for 2,625 miles, however, and the Missouri for but 2,414.8. The Missouri is measured from its source to its junction with the Mississippi, which is about 17 miles north of St. Louis.

The Black Widow Spider

The black widow spider occurs to some extent throughout most of the United States and South America, but so far as this country is concerned is most commonly found in the southern states and in Utah, Idaho, California and Oregon. A close relative that makes its home in France, Italy and Russia, though smaller than our black widow, is about as much to be feared.
