

Chase Gets Life Imprisonment for Murder of Cowley

Man Guilty of Killing Here: Jury Recommends Leniency

Paul Chase, who has been found guilty of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment last Monday night in the Federal Judge Sullivan, Chicago was passed on the death of federal agent James P. Cowley, mortally wounded in a gun battle between Chase and Chase and his associates "Baby Face Nelson," on the Northwest highway at a park entrance in Barrington last November. Chase and his associates were called as witnesses.

The case went to the jury at 10:30. The jury studied the facts of the case for only four hours, but gave for more instructions to Judge Sullivan. Shortly before 11 o'clock the body sent to the morgue for autopsy. The body was buried at 10:30 but the request was denied.

The jurors later asked for more evidence declaring that they did not know whether a life sentence would mean that Chase would be incarcerated for the whole of his natural life. The jury and the defendant were taken to the court and Judge Sullivan explained that Chase would pass out of his jurisdiction if sentence had passed and would be in the federal parole board. The jurors then retired at 11:30 o'clock came back into the court with a verdict of life imprisonment for murder. The sentence of life imprisonment was mandatory. If the sentence had not been mandatory for money the mandatory sentence would be death.
