High School Coaches to Attend "Football Clinic" at Northwestern Saturday

T. C. Hostford and P. E. Clark, R.H.S. coaches, will be on the lookout for any new "tricks of the trade" that will help them in next fall's grid campaign, when they attend Northwestern university's "football clinic" Saturday, which closes the Wildcats spring practice.

It will be an all day session topped off by the annual game between two inter-squad elevens.

Virginia Booth to Play in National Table Tennis Meet

Miss Virginia Booth, well-known north shore star and runner-up in the Illinois state tourney, who lives north of the village near Billmere, will compete in the national table tennis championships to be held at the Stevens club in Chicago April 5 to 7.

Two hundred and fifty-seven of the nation's outstanding exponents of the game will be present in action including every recent and former national champion.

Hold Track and Football Drills Daily at B. H. S.

Barrington high's football men will continue their grid drills for another week before hanging up their suits until next fall. The spring training session will probably wind up a week from Saturday with a game between the two teams now scrimmaging daily.

The entire football squad is planning to go to Northwestern university Saturday to see the annual Wildcat inter-squad football tussle.

Church Ping Pong Finals to Be Held at Salem Monday

Finals in the second annual church ping pong tournament will be held at the Salem church basement Monday, April 8, starting at 7:30 p. m. During the past week the churches in the meet—St. Paul, Salem, Methodist and Baptist have been busy selecting teams to compete in the finals Monday night to decide the inter-church champions.

The Baptists are the defending title holders but apparently will be hard pressed to repeat their last year's triumph.

The tourney is sponsored by the young people's Christian commission of Barrington which is composed of the four churches mentioned above.

The Man From Yonder

Mail arrived. He took the packet of letters and drank deeply from his bottle's remains.

He thumbed the letters absently, until the script on one caught his eye. The envelope contained a single sheet of note paper and he unfolded it with trembling fingers. On the sheet was written:

"I never want to see you again. I know now the whole country has known and been afraid to admit for years. I have thought you were my friend but now I know you are my worst enemy, as you are the sworn enemy of those I love most."

"DANN."

He stood for a time staring at the paragraph; then read it again and crushed his whiskey bottle. Such a note, now, was to have been expected by an ordered mind, but of course, but his fevered brain had not foreseen any necessity for abandoning this, the most precious of his hopes.

A meticulous office man was Nicholas Brandon, and though he had suffered the severest blow of his experience just now he mechanically went about his habitual procedure. He had received and read a letter. It required no reply. The next step in orderly procedure was to file it.

In the great safe to which only he had combination and keys he opened two files side by side. He took out and placed them on the desk. He opened one and a cruel smile twitched his lips. It enveloped them on paper of varying size, color and quality. He rifled through them, stopping now and again to read a phrase, a sentence, a paragraph. . . .

He read it again. It bore no indication of the time that had passed since its inscription. The note had been left on his desk him three years before. . . . He leaned forward sharply and his eyes narrowed. . . . After a moment he straightened and smiled softly. A look like relief, almost like happiness spread over his face.

See Urebins Used as Food

The harvest of fisheries says that sea urchins are used as food in the United States to some extent. They have never become popular with Americans and the only recorded commercial catch is for New England, where they are sold to the Italian trade in Boston and other large cities.

Third Largest City Park

Rainbow park, within the city of San Diego, was the site of the Panama-California exposition in 1915-1916. It has an area of 1,600 acres and is the third largest municipal park in the United States.

Corolla Fussy About Bed

Although the corolla deserves considerable time to the preparation of a bed of broken-off tree branches in a convenient fork of a tree, at night time, he seldom uses the same bed a second time. A fresh bed is made every evening and if the same tree happens to be used for several nights in succession a fresh fork in the tree is selected each night.

To the Voters of Barrington

Once more I am a candidate for re-election as Village Trustee, and on my record of the last 5 years, I ask your vote. I have served you in the past by consistently opposing extravagant use of Village Funds, I have fought for a proper accounting of Special Assessment funds, and have endeavored in every way to protect the interests of the property owners in the Village. Your vote will continue me in your service for the next two years.

Handed to the ears in a great racket, open doors were supported by the one side by John Martin and the other side by Able Arrington, came slowly, laboriously out of the street. He wisely seemed to be looking for a door through which to get out of the way of the traffic. He then came to a dead end, and then turned down the street, reading the hush which swept the road like a shadow. And then he saw a quick glimmer of excited eyes.

"Elliott!" He called to "Elliott!"
