and fortum on March 13 and 14 at 5 o'clock-as its anusual major production.

This three-act comely, directed by Mise Ethel Schwab, portrays some of the problems of a typical American family.

The plot emphasizes the difficulties of parents who feel they have something to say in directing the destinate of their parents who feel they have something to say in directing the destinate of their parents. Thus the dominating and auccessful Herbert Kaloses finds himself tossed in the domestic blanket.

How his wife, who takes the children's side of the ragument, house one of the parents had been been been supported to the domestic blanket.

How his wife, who takes the children's side of the argument, but one over on him and leaves him speechless in his defeat with her delightful wise provides the play with boundless humor.
