Live stock prices may rise or fall sharply without your knowledge unless you keep in touch with buyers by telephone. The added profit you may make on a shipment of cattle, by locating the best available price by telephone, could easily amount to the price of one more animal. One farmer, for example, marketed thirty thousand pounds of cattle at what he guessed was the best price. Had be telephoned for market information he would have made $500 more. It pays, in dollars and cents, to have a farm telephone.
