Joseph Vorisek Is Held to Grand Jury

Joseph Vorisek, manager of the Fox River Coal and Lumber company of Fox River Grove, was held to the McHenry county grand jury Wednesday morning on a charge of embezzlement.

An investigation of Vorisek's business affairs began after he had reported to McHenry county authorities the $100 burglary of the lumber office on January 11.

Vorisek came to Woodstock Tuesday night, where he was arrested on a warrant signed by Joseph Hodges, president of the lumber firm. The warrant apparently charges Vorisek with receiving $12 of company money and embossing and converting it to his own use.

Deputy Sheriff Clyde C. Miser said the manager's business accounts have been checked and they are supposed to disclose that Vorisek collected $73 on a bill but did not deposit it to the firm's account.

At the hearing, Vorisek said he was innocent of the burglary and would cooperate with authorities to solve the case. Deputy Miser admitted to him that he had knowledge of the burglary, but that he did not actually participate in it.

Returning From Hospital Mrs. John Doeberger, 211 E. Liberty street, who underwent an operation at the Hennrich hospital in Chicago, was expected Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.
