JUDICIAL REFORM OR SABOTAGE?

For 150 years under a written constitution the American ple have worshipped at the altar of sportsmanship. They have accepted the doctrine that it is fundamentally thical to refuse to respect an adverse decision.

For generations the supreme court of the United States has been the umpire in deciding what are and what are not valid acts of the executive and legislative branches of the government within the meaning of the supreme law of the land—the Constitution.

There has been a recognized and well-defined differ-ence between reforming judicial procedure and tampering with the personnel or judgment of the supreme court itself. few instances where attempts to control the supreme court of the United States for politipurposes, an outraged public opinion has risen in protest.

President Roosevelt's message to congress, considered iy as a piece of judicial reform, has so many obvious nsistencies in it and makes so many statements that will be disputed by persons who are familiar with the actual truth about the alleged congestion in the work of the supreme court that it would be most unfortunate if the American orle came to the conclusion that the message itself was erely a pretext or excuse to cover up a direct attempt to nish the present members of the supreme court for their nerity in declaring several new deal laws unconstitutional. It is a serious thing to impugn the good faith of a presial policy however well-intentioned may be the motives e president himself. But it is always the duty of the press to speak frankly and point out the dangers to our system of government occasioned by a president's bold as-Mr. Roosevelt's hostility to the present membership of the supreme court became known when, on the day after the NRA was declared unconstitutional by a unanimous vote of all nine justices, liberal and conservative alike, he exhibited a surprising pique. This, is was insisted by his supporters dur-ing the recent campaign, was abandoned because public opinion voiced nation-wide disapproval. Millions of conrvatives in the democratic party voted for Mr. Room at supposition.

Not a word did Mr. Roosevelt say during the last camcourt. He refused to answer the challenge of the candidate who wanted to know if the supreme court "packed." But because about 60.55 supreme court. would be "packed." But because about 28,000,000 persons woted for him, Mr. Roosevelt evidently has concluded now that they gave him a blanket endorsement to do what he ed including all those things he had not mentioned in

The president would be right in assuming that the American people bestowed on him a general grant of lead-ership, but he cannot by any stretch of the imagination asstly that they gave him a manda sume justly that they gave him a mandate to undermine the strength of our judicial system or to impair the effective-of a life tenure assured to judges by the constitution.

What objection, it will be naively asked by many, can re be to a simple increase in the number of justices of the reme court, especially since some are beyond 70?

There can never be any objection to meeting an issue garely and fairly in the American way. If life tenure for detal judges is wrong, if 70 or 75 should be the compulsory ement limit, then the American people should have an runity to pass upon that particular question directly.

blood in the value of it their constitution of dit by providing in their constitution aged judges."

The issue is clear. If there is anything wrong with the life tenure clause by all means let us change it through an activation itself as we have done amendment to the federal constitution itself as we have done in the states. George Washington warned us against "amendent" by usurption of power and by subterfuge. There can no better way to preserve our democratic processes than be no better way to preserve our democratic processes than to let the people decide whether they want the system of choosing justices of their courts changed.—The United State News
