Putting Courage into the Sky Child

By MARGARET CONN RHOADS

We all realize that the child who is shy and constantly embarrassed by bashfulness has a handicap that needs very wise handling. Many times a parent can help a child to rise above this timidity and become happily sociable, delighting in personal contacts.

"June started out to be one of those little children who hide behind their mother's skirts at the approach of a stranger; her lips quivered if she were singled out for attention and she evaded the milkman when they came on their daily rounds," related a mother before a group of parent students. "I determined that she should never hear any of the family comment on her shyness. I also made up my mind to think of ways to overcome this handicap. I knew I should have to go very carefully along the way or I might make matters worse, but today June is such an unusually responsive child and meets people so easily that I feel my carefully laid plans were well worth while.

"I began with the milkman as he came each day. I allowed June to stick the stamp on my letter. This seemed such a big thing to her! Then, with the letter in her hand, I gave the milkman, she forgot her fear and ran out to meet him. He helped me by not getting too friendly with her all at once. And in much this same simple way I acquainted June with the milkman and the grocery boy. I let her put the tickets in the milk bottles and let her set the bottles out. That gave her an interest in the man who delivered the milk. I would empty the grocery boy's basket and hand her the empty container to give to him. When guests came to the house I would ask her to open the door. She soon learned to ask them to be seated especially if their manner when they greeted her was not too familiar. Most little boys and girls like to get acquainted with a strange person gradually, but many older people are apt to gush over children, the moment they meet them. When June started for nursery school she was somewhat afraid of the experience. But each morning I let her take some small gift to the teacher and her joy in carrying the flower or the red apple or the cutout she had made lessened her consciousness of self and the problem was solved happily.

"Shyness or backwardness is often regarded by parents as a trait which will outgrow and so they feel it need not be given special concern. I like to think that in our home we are always helping the children to develop the traits that will benefit them. They should have the assurance they should be able to meet people happily, be sufficiently self-possessed to enter into child activities and reap the joy of personal contacts. They should have the assurance within themselves that they are capable of joining in a conversation with a group of their age or of playing games with as much fun as they can have. Shyness induces an inferiority complex in the child that later makes the grownup cheat himself of much advancement and many pleasures that are rightly his. Today June at five can meet the guests in our home pleasantly, totally unconscious of herself. What picture she would have presented had we ignored her bashfulness! She would have been timid still, and little by little would have become more certain that she would always be a shy person."

public utility pole while upside down.

The car was then thrown back on the road, where it rested on its side facing west. Mrs. Keele was hurled through the top of the sedan onto the gravel road a number of feet away.

The young man quickly went to her assistance, and, with aid of passers-by, placed her in his machine and drove to town. Examination by a local physician revealed she was dead. Coroner Taylor, after his examination, stated he thought death was almost instantaneous.

H. W. Buckler testified at the inquest and told what he learned after inspecting the scene, which was a quarter of a mile from his residence. Mr. Keele also testified.

The deceased was born in London, England on January 10, 1889, and had previously devoted part of her life to a stage career. She and her husband formerly lived at Monticello, the home of his parents.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Schwemm and family have moved from South Hough street to their home on Summit street. Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Keilmann and family will occupy the house the Schwemms have vacated.

MILK INCOME DEPENDABLE

Milk proved a more dependable source of farm income during recent years than most major farm products, according to the Federal Trade Commission's recent agricultural income study.

During 1932 when gross farm income sagged to its lowest point, dairy farmers received 54 per cent as much for milk as in 1929. Farmers received only 40 per cent of the 1929 total for livestock, 38 per cent for tobacco, 34 per cent for cotton and 29 per cent for wheat.

By 1934 when gross farm income recovered substantially, milk was well ahead of other major farm products with a gross of 64 per cent and wheat 45 per cent. Only one product, cotton, was higher—tobacco at 79 per cent of the 1929 figure. Cotton was 48 per cent of the pre-depression income.

From 1929 to 1934 the average income to the producer from milk held up better than any other product reported.

Evangelical Church to Hold Celebration

Sunday, July 25, is to be "red letter" day for the Evangelical churches of Illinois. One hundred years ago, July 25, 1837, an Evangelical pioneer, Rev. Jacob Boas, preached the first sermon at what is now North Northfield, Ill. This was the inauguscular beginning of the Illinois conference of the Evangelical church.

Throughout the Illinois conference, Evangelical churches will observe this centenary in special ways this coming Sunday. During the afternoon ministers and people will gather at North Northfield for the centennial celebration. The Barrington Salem Evangelical church under Rev. W. A. Stauffer has prepared a program in honor of the event.

The centenary program will be held at the North Northfield cemetery and school house which is two miles straight east of Wheeling. Beginning at 2 o'clock a sacred concert will be given by the Prairie View cornet band. At 2:30 o'clock the worship service will begin under the leadership of Rev. L. C. Schmidt, superintendent of the Chicago district. Bishop George Edward Epp will preach the centennial sermon, on the subject, "What Mean These Stones?" The beautiful centennial memorial marked will be dedicated by Bishop Emeritus S. F. Spreng. He will give an address on the subject, "The Centennial's Challenge to Youth."

There will be special music by the brotherhood chorus, the ladies chorus, the conference quartet, the Prairie View band and by the large group that shall assemble.

The Evangelical church in the state of Illinois is not large in comparison to some other Christian communions, but a report made shows there are 108 ministers; 120 organized congregations with 17,765 members; 121 Sunday schools with a membership of 21,847; 119 leagues of Christian Endeavor, and 21 Women's Missionary societies. The denomination's largest college and largest theological seminary are located in Illinois.

Several thousand members and friends of the church, from over the state, are expected to attend this gathering Sunday.

Elected Group Treasurer

Bernard Lipotaky, member of S. Lipotaky and Sons, was elected treasurer of the northern Illinois group of the Jewish Youth at a meeting held in Temple Am Echod in Waukegan last week. The Jewish Youth is a youthful organization formed recently with a social, religious and cultural betterment aim.

Attend Lions Convention

A number of members of the Barrington Lions club traveled to Chicago Tuesday and Wednesday to attend the annual national convention of Lions International. They reported a number of interesting programs and events during the meeting. The convention will last through Friday.

Planning Lawn Social

Mrs. W. Meekins, 133 N. Cook street, is heading a committee arranging a lawn social for the benefit of the Woman's Relief Corps. It will be held Saturday, July 31. Assisting her are: Mrs. John Jurs, Mrs. C. Schwartz, Mrs. E. Magee, Mrs. Fred Brandt, Mrs. Noel Stayner and Mrs. Harry Hewetzer.

Make 'Em Believe It

In Anthony Trollope's novel, "The Fixed Period," it is suggested that men are useful only up to forty, that at sixty they should pass a year in contemplation and then submit to chloroform.
