Lt. Kirk Smith Writes of Interesting War Incidents

A daily bulletin, outlining and describing scenes and incidents as they occurred during the war, was written by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith this week from their son, Lt. Kirk Smith of the United States Navy medical service, who is stationed aboard the USS Parrott in the Chinese-Japanese war zone. Because of the graphic style and personal angle to the description, the bulletin is publishing the bulletin, dividing it into three installments, the first of which follows:

So much has happened since our departure from Chfoo that it is impossible to recount it all in individual letters to those of you whom I think would be interested it would be an endless task; consequently I have decided to resort to the bulletin form of information which I used for a while during the first days of the good old CCC (which, by the way, seems very prosaic in comparison with our experiences of a ship here). Part of what I am about to write will be old news to some of you who already know about our departure from Chfoo. As I don't intend to include any of the in-

2063 Paid Attendance at Barrington Festival

Many Visitors at Colorful Show on First Two Nights

More than 2700 persons including 2063 who paid admissions at the first two nights of the Barrington fall festival on its first two nights. The roughly estimated number of guests admitted free include those holding exhibitors passes, entertainers and children of pre-school age.

The central entertainment, surpassing in quality and number of acts the program as promised in advance, is only one feature of the biggest show ever held in Barrington.

The exhibits with their intriguing and novel displays and offerings successfully held the interest of guests, and the favors and prizes given away by the Lions club and the individual exhibitors proved a very strong drawing force.

In order to find some similar show with which to compare this festival, one needs to go back nine years to the fall of 1928 when a six day affair was held. The paid attendance of the present show is averaging more than double that of the previous year.

More passes were issued nine years ago, according to a record of that affair taken from old files of the Barrington Review. The first three days attendance there was: Monday, 275 paid, total 830; Tuesday 413 paid, total 1013; Wednesday 447 paid, total 1155. A comparative table of the two shows follows:

Paid Admissions	1928	1937
Monday	275	413
Tuesday	413	447
Wednesday	447	473
Total	1145	2063

Grand Jury Frees Fred H. Berlin in Manslaughter Case

Evidence In Sufficient for True Bill; Case Heard Monday

Fred Herman Berlin, 33 years old, of Lake Zurich, was freed of a manslaughter charge when the Lake Zurich grand jury on Monday held that evidence produced by witnesses was insufficient to warrant a true bill being sworn. The jury heard Berlin's case and five hours Monday and returned a true bill in all cases except that of the Lake Zurich man.

His case was brought before the grand jury by State Attorney Charles E. Mason on the recommendation of a coroner's jury, which held that the death of Fred Collins, 51 years old, a former school teacher and mail carrier from Prairie View, was due to injuries received during an altercation with Berlin at a Lake Zurich tavern on July 25.

According to information given at the coroner's inquest held at the death of Collins, the two men became engaged in a quarrel over a 47 cent bill. During the altercation Berlin was stabbed by Collins who was knocked to the floor, striking his head. Collins was fined on a disorderly conduct charge following the incident and the matter appeared settled.

Novel Exhibits and Bright Decorations Pleasing to Guests

Varied Entertainment for Visitors Every Night

Autumnal colorings, gay lights, booths indicative of well-stocked stores and swarms of people make the Barrington fall festival now in progress at the big tent on north Fourth street a colorful spectacle. Arrays are enhanced by the use of fall leaves, rich in color; berries, flowers, streamers and colored lights.

Elements of the unusual may be found in the various displays. One concern shows a series of lamps, dating back to 900 A. D. Another has six perfect ears of Indian corn and the first initial of the firm's name formed by gigantic loops of bread, seven feet in length.

Flavors of delectable foods comes from many of the booths and samples of puddings, pancakes, cakes, cookies, candies, fruit and vegetable juices are served to the passerby.

Still camera views at another booth attracted the crowds, many of whom are fascinated by the grim horror of some of the accident scenes, others intrigued by the exquisite beauty of childhood as photographed informally. The public has been asked to vote for its favorite picture in the amateur class exhibit.

Meat examine the newest cars, on parade, and farm machinery, heating and water softening units. Their wives marvel at new laundry equipment, easy to operate.

Other groups were seen lingering over a booth dedicated to personal advancement, modern records of its achievement. Next to it, is a fall dining table, set for Thanksgiving dinner, perhaps, glowing colors adding touch in keeping with the fall carnival.

The schools are represented, showing phases of their work, and that public servant, Uncle Sam, with a booth outlining the procedure from the dropping of a letter into a mailbox to its final delivery (with especially illustrated poses by local clerks).

There's a replica of a log cabin at one booth and a roof of brightly colored handkerchiefs on another little house. Suggestions for this fall wardrobe, modern backgrounds of leaves bring comments of admiration.

Radios provide music during interludes when there is no program on the program on the center stage, where vaudeville continues.
