

Miss Nancy Holbrook, Guy Stillman Are Married Wednesday

BARRINGTON HILLS. — On Wednesday at noon occurred the marriage of Miss Nancy Holbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Howard Holbrook, and Guy Stillman, son of Mr. Fowler McCormick. The marriage service was read by the Rev. Albert Taylor, rector of St. James Episcopal church in Dundee.

Two tall trees of stephanotis blossoms made from hundreds of rare blooms, flanked the altar steps and two smaller ones were used on either side of the altar. A box of white petunias hung at each of the five windows in the 75 year-old church and similar foliage provided a background of green.

Miss Holbrook was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a sheer white velvet gown with a gored skirt and collar and cuffs of rosepoint lace. Her high white velvet hat was trimmed with little bows and her short cape was made of the same material.

Miss Barbara wore a raisin shade of wool with hat of matching velvet. A wedding breakfast at the home of the bride followed the simple but impressive ceremony at the church. Mr. Stillman's father James A. Stillman, his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stillman Jr., all of New York, were present at the wedding. Only the two immediate families were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Stillman are spending their honeymoon at Niagara-on-the-Lake, after which they will return to Barrington for the wedding of the eldest daughter of the Holbrook family, Miss Barbara, who is to marry David Meijonard of Oak Park on September tenth. The ceremony will be celebrated at 8:30 at the Barrington Hills Country club and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stillman will be their attendants. The Stillmans are to live in Troy, N. Y., where Mr. Stillman will be a sophomore at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Home Canning of Tomatoes Starts; Crop Is Abundant

An abundant tomato crop at reasonable prices is being harvested which will be a welcome note to Barrington housewives, who will have an opportunity to fill cans with wholesome food for use in the months to come.

Near normal tomato crops are reported in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan, the latter of which grows much of its tomato crop through the city-owned Benton Harbor market where last year more than 807,000 tomato packs were sold.

Becoming especially popular for home canning, according to a survey by the Benton Harbor market people, is the cold pack method. By using solid tomatoes of desirable variety, the finished product is frequently firm enough to warrant use of whole tomatoes on winter salads. Many canners will process tomatoes during the coming weeks and convert the canned product into juice as needed for the breakfast table.

Several varieties grown locally and in Michigan that are desirable for the home canner are the John Bauer, the Pritchard, the Marglobe, the Greater Baltimore, the Stone and Chalk's Jewel. Much of the early tomato crop consists of Penn State, Erlana and Scarlet Topper varieties. These frequently are sold at prices too high to make home canning economical. The later sorts are lower in price and more desirable for canning.
