

"The Rage of Paris"
With New Star, Is
Week-End Feature

Freddie Bartholomew Coming
Wednesday and Thursday in "Kidnapped"

George Raft and Sylvia Sydney are currently seen together in the same studio's "You and Me," a dramatic romance of a girl on parole who's forbidden to marry, coming to the Catlow theatre Saturday for one day only.

In "You and Me" the dramatic story is the same type as the one that brought them joint praise several seasons ago. Raft and Miss Sydney, ex-convicts trying to go straight, fall in love and are faced with threat of a parole rule which forbids the girl to marry on penalty of being returned to prison to serve the balance on her prison sentence.

Statisticians estimate that all classes of Americans begin talking about film stars 15 minutes after the start of any conversation. So the time seems ripe to give them the right way to say, "Danielle Darrieux," the name of the French star who makes her American film debut in "The Rage of Paris," coming to the Catlow Sunday and Monday.

The first name gives little trouble in most cases, though some call it "Danielly." The simplest way to say it is in two sections—"Den-yell." The second name has been called anything from "Dairry" to "Darius." The simplest pronunciation is again in two sections—"Dar-yuh," with the stress on the "yuh!" One says the "yuh" as in the native Americanism, "Where 'yuh think yuh're goin'?"

Joe E. Brown appears as a crook-catching soda jerker in his newest comedy, "Wide Open Faces," coming on Tuesday to the Catlow theatre. Those in two sections include Lydia Roberti, Alison Skipworth, Jane Wyman, Allan Baxter, Berton Churchill, Barbara Pepper, Sidney Toler and Joseph Downing.

Double featured with "Wide Open Faces," is Smith Ballou in "Panama's Bad Man," with Evelyn Daw, Noah Berry Sr., and Stanley Fields.

All good things come in threes and C. Aubrey Smith in the production of Robert Louis Stephenson's "Kidnapped," makes his third important role with Freddie Bartholomew. The doughy British gentleman who endeared himself to the millions in his characterization of the old grouch in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," made another hit with Freddie in "Loyds of London." Now C. Aubrey has an important role in support of Warner Baxter and Freddie in the stirring story of love and adventure, coming to the Catlow Wednesday and Thursday.

$240,000 Bond Issue for Lake County Sanitarium

Bids on a $240,000 bond issue for the construction of the Lake county tuberculosis sanitarium will be received by the finance committee of the board of supervisors up to 10 a. m. Friday, Aug. 5. It was announced last week. The bonds are to extend over an eight-year period and will bear an interest rate of 3 per cent. Revenue from the bond issue, which will be sold at the regular bond meeting, August 5, will be combined with the $193,091 PWA allotment granted Lake county. The hospital and other buildings of the tuberculosis sanitarium will cost $427,200.

McHenry County Is Faced With Flood Damage Costs

The McHenry county board of supervisors will meet August 9 in an effort to reach some method of financing to pay for the many bridges in the county that were swept away by flood waters last month. The problem has occupied the supervisors for the past weeks and no solution has been reached. The estimated cost of replacing the dozen bridges was placed at more than $100,000. A federal grant and a bond issue are the two suggestions most favorably received, but the board is reticent to begin a spending program without knowing where the tax money will come from.

Shady Hill Cottage Hit By Runaway Auto Saturday

SHADY HILL.—The Meese cottage in Shady Hill subdivision was damaged late Saturday night when the car owned by Bud McNulty, 4377 Cortland avenue, Chicago, rolled down a hill and crashed into the dwelling.

The accident occurred when friends of Arthur Bolton were driving to Barrington to meet him. They had just driven away when the McNulty car, which had been parked directly behind the other machine, began its journey. The runaway vehicle went down the hill and crossed over a vacant lot before hitting the Meese cottage near the rear door. Considerable damage was done to the cottage.

The car was believed to have crossed a fence and headlight.

It is believed the McNulty machine had been parked against the car ahead and when that pulled down it was then able to start down the hill.
